French Orders for Americans Under the Unified Command

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 31. (Associated Press.)—The acceptance by France of General Pershing's offer of all American men and material for the present emergency has in effect virtually resulted in a unified army command, so far as the French Army and American forces are concerned. This is shown by the fact that the orders issued to the American troops are of French origin.

CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, Sunday, March 31.—There was great activity back of the American lines today. Hour after hour long lines of trucks, carrying men and war material, were moving in the cold rain through the sticky mud. French camions helping Pershing's men get under way for the battle front. The roads in this part of France are filled with men in brown and blue. The big trucks are seemingly going in every direction, but are moving under a well-directed plan of the French to utilize the United States forces to beat back the boche where he belongs.

Rain has fallen for the past four days, but the spirit of the men is undampened, and the boys in brown show that they have got down to the real business of war.

Facing the prospect of heavy fighting in a battle that may last for months, Uncle Sam's boys are enthusiastic to show the stuff they are made of and stamp as a lie the German statement that French officers found the Americans not good fighters. Even the high officers in charge do not yet know the exact disposition to be made of the men, but are ready for anything.

Troops Singing as They Go.

American movements became marked yesterday, and early this morning hundreds of trucks, the field artillery, and supply trains were winding along the French highways, officers' cars and motor cycles darting ahead and back, conducting the movement expeditiously.

The Americans were packed like sardines in the big trucks, already full of equipment, singing "Over There" and other songs as they moved.

Everything seen here shows that the American and French soldiers are the best of comrades, for the United States men are filled with admiration of the excellence of the French war machine of which they are for a time a part.

I am not permitted to state in detail the plan for the Americans, but it can be stated that Pershing's men are to play an actual part in the war very soon.

The undertaking was started after extended conferences between the American, French, and British high commands, Secretary Baker participating and President Wilson being kept fully informed. It is not believed that there is danger of

King George Congratulates American Aviation Section

LONDON, March 31.—Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters in France, describing King George's visit to the front, says:

"In the course of an inspection, the King visited an airdrome, where he inspected an American section, the members of which he congratulated upon their fine and smart appearance, a praise which was well justified, for a likelier looking set of lads never yet swore to drive the Huns out of the air.

"The King spent a crowded fifty hours in France, moving about freely among troops who had taken part in the first onrush of the German offensive."

WILSON INITIATES NEW MEAT POLICY

Will Appoint Board, at Hoover's Suggestion, to Survey the Packing Industry.

MAY MEAN FEDERAL CONTROL

Present Indefinite Situation Almost Intolerable, Administrator Says in Letter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—On the recommendation of Food Administrator Hoover the President, it was announced today, has authorized a survey of the packing industry, which may result in Government control for the period of the war.

Mr. Hoover made public a letter to the President, in which the suggestion was advanced that the "time had come" for a change in the Government's policy toward the meat industry. He urged the appointment, which the President approved, of a board "to study the entire situation with regard to the meat industry and the steps that should be taken with regard thereto."

This board is to be composed of the Secretary of Agriculture, as representing the producer; the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, as representing trade conditions; the Chairman of the Federal Tariff Board, as representing economic thought; the Secretary of Labor, as representing the civilian consumer, and the Food Administrator, as having to carry out any given policy determined upon.

In his letter Mr. Hoover declared that, in spite of the well-founded objection to any theory of price-fixing, the American situation had reached a point where the volume of purchases controlled by a single agency amounted to price-fixing and that "all theories go by the board."

Three Alternatives Faced.

Abandonment of direction of war purchases and conservation measures, because they affect prices; continuance of the present national policy, and stabilization of prices by the Government are the three alternatives that must be faced, according to Mr. Hoover.

The first, he declared, would be a tremendous relief to the Government, but would lead to a transfer of price influence to uncontrolled agencies, with a corresponding harmful effect on the cost of living.

That Mr. Hoover does not favor the second alternative, the system under which he is operating at present, is made plain in the following quotation from his communication to the President:

"This (the present policy of the Food Administration) is an almost intolerable situation for any Government official in criticism from both producer and consumer, and, with the growing volume of purchases, this criticism must increase. It permits of no constructive policy in production."

The final course, according to Mr. Hoover, is the most important, both in the far-reaching effect that it may have on production and in its dangers. It is certain, he said, to assure the producer of fair returns, but may, through either a voluntary agreement with the packers as to prices or through Government control, involve the Government in some financial responsibility in speculative business.

The question to be determined, the letter stated, is which of the alternatives will be the maximum contribution to winning the war, and this problem is the one to be placed before the commission, on account of Mr. Hoover's expressed belief that this "should not be determined at the opinion of any single individual, no matter how sincere and earnest the application of intelligence might be."

Mr. Hoover's letter to the President follows:

Change of Policy Imperative.

March 26, 1918.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT:

I feel that we have reached a position with regard to the whole meat industry of the country that requires a reconsideration of policy. The situation is one of the most complex with which the Government has to deal, by virtue of the WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Sunday, March 31.—We now have knowledge that the attack on Arras was prepared on a scale of enormous strength by divisions arranged in depth, preceded by a bombardment as great as that which fell upon any part of the British line on the morning of March 21 and that the enemy had determined to capture not only Arras itself but Vimy Ridge.

It was the heroic resistance of the British troops that defeated this furious onslaught and destroyed by enormous losses to the German troops this dark scheme of their high command. Seven German divisions were in position north of the Scarpe and twelve south, in an arc around the defenses of Arras. I believe that their plan was for two divisions to capture the city, supported by others following closely, while three divisions of storm troops were to rush through when the British battalions were heavily engaged or overwhelmed, and seize the heights of Vimy.

The brunt of this attack, preceded by colossal gunfire, fell upon London troops and against these the German tides dashed and broke. By artillery fire, machine-gun fire, and rifle fire, the enemy's advancing waves of men were swept to piecee, and though they came on again and again this massacre continued until at last it must have sickened even the high German officers directing the operations from behind. The attacks died out and the night was quiet around Arras while the enemy collected his wounded.

Crushing Reverse for Germans.

It was an utter defeat which will at least check German efforts around Arras, though they may be renewed with that ruthlessness as to loss of life to achieve a settled purpose which is one quality of German generalship.

Yesterday there were a number of violent engagements which were decided mainly in favor of the British, and sent more victims to the German field hospitals. During the night of Friday enemy patrols apparently penetrated into the woods above Moreuil, on the River Avre, and yesterday bodies of British cavalry moved forward to clear them out. They did this with skill and success and held their ground.

Somewhat later in the morning the Germans began an attack in the region between Marcelcave and Warfusee, across the highroad from Amiens to St. Quentin. After heavy gunning, which lasted about an hour, the British raked them with machine-gun fire and dispersed them. For a time they were quiet, but at 1:45, after two more hours of bombardment, they attacked again in greater strength, and again were beaten back with most bloody losses.

In the morning also there were violent attacks on one side of Arras, and here once more the losses of a German division were so high that its regiments were almost destroyed. It was a fresh division just brought up to the battle, but now, after a few hours, is broken up, and large numbers of its dead lie outside of Arros.

President Now May Ask for War Against Bulgaria

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—It is expected that President Wilson will soon appear before Congress with a recommendation for a declaration of war between the United States and Bulgaria.

Congress has been ready since December to declare war on both Bulgaria and Turkey. It only refrained from including these countries in the declaration against Austria because the President did not then consider it immediately practical.

However, now that it has been officially announced in Paris that General Pershing's offer of American aid has been accepted by General Foch and also announced officially that Austrian and Bulgarian troops have been identified as being on the Franco-British front, it is believed the President will take action.

April 2, that we began the battle of Arras and fought over that ground which is again our battlefield, and it was a great anthem of gunfire which rose up to the sky on Easter morn.

It would be unwise to exaggerate the enemy's losses, and I find it very difficult to get an exact idea of them, but it seems to me certain that since that Thursday morning when they launched their offensive, ten days ago, they have reached figures so high that the enemy command must be deeply anxious as to the morale of their men and the outcome of this dreadful gamble with fate.

In spite, too, of their progress over the old Somme battlefield, those barren and blasted slopes where there is nothing worth capture and only one vast graveyard and one wide stretch of hideous lifelessness, they have failed so far in their ambitions and their plans. Their intention was to break the allied armies to bits by the enormous weight of their onslaught, and by piercing between the gap to cut off masses of troops, whole divisions and whole brigades, so that we should be absolutely undone. In that they have failed.

Apart from all regrets at having had to fall back at all and at having suffered losses for which there is mourning in our hearts, because so many splendid men have fallen on the field of honor—that terrible field of honor which will be watered with tears for all time—we may at least rejoice that by the skill of our fighting officers and the steady courage of our men our line was brought back unbroken, and that all the way back to our present position the enemy was never able to strike through and roll up large forces. It is true that he has taken many prisoners, not so many as he claims, but they were remnants of rearguards and isolated bodies and broken companies, not complete units or anything like groups of units divided from the rest of the British Army.

British Gaps Soon Filled.

It was touch and go several times. Sometimes there were slight gaps between the British units for a short time, through which the enemy tried to break, but always the gaps were filled at the psychological moment by heroic efforts. By constant rearguard actions, stoutly fighting, the withdrawal was covered.

Nothing in all this battle was finer than the way the 17th Division fought its way back to the present line of defense, while the march of the Royal Naval Division in the face of the enemy trying to pierce through on the British flank was a thrilling episode. I have been among these men and from the Generals and officers heard a full narrative of those anxious hours.

One British unit was holding the line in front of Hermies and Havrincourt on the morning of the 21st, and although under that frightful bombardment after dawn, lost only 150 yards of their trenches in the enemy's onrush with what might have seemed overpowering forces but which did not overpower.

The British fought like Greek heroes. They counterattacked the enemy, and drove him out of the ground he had gained. Hermies was attacked six times and Havrincourt seven times, but the enemy fell in heaps and could not break through. The sunken road at Demicourt from which he had deployed. It became a ditch of death for the German storm troops. They were mowed down by machine guns and shrapnel again and again until the sunken road was heaped with their bodies laid out in rows. Enemy success elsewhere made it necessary for the British unit I speak of to withdraw toward Haplincourt and Bertincourt and go to Villersaufios.

This was the night of the 22d, and by this time the enemy had taken Baumetz and Vein Wood, and seriously threatened the unit's flank. They were in danger of being surrounded. They blew up the lock of the canal, and the rear guards covered their withdrawal. They were isolated, and had the enemy between them and Brilliant Bayonet Charge, in Which Canadian Troops Join, Expels German Garrison.

GERMAN FORCE WIPED OUT

Battalion Which Crossed the Oise Lost All Its Men Either Killed or Captured.

PARIS, March 31.—On the southern battle front the French have recaptured Ayencourt and Montchel, (South of Montdidier,) and gained considerable ground in the region of Orvillers, (to the southeast,) according to the official communication from the War Office tonight.

Yesterday Moreuil (north of Montdidier) changed hands three times, remaining in the hands of the French after a brilliant bayonet charge of French and British troops fighting side by side.

The check to the German advance between Moreuil and Lassigny is complete. In the storming of Plemont, in this region, reported last night, the French took 700 prisoners.

On the Oise front all the men of a German battalion which had crossed the river near Chauny were killed or taken prisoners.

The battle is slackening, according to news reaching Paris late tonight. The attacks of the Germans have been less violent and less numerous today, and it has been observed that the enemy is feverishly digging himself in, particularly in the neighborhood of Lassigny.

The general impression is that the situation is most satisfactory.

Following is the text of the night official report:

The Germans, exhausted by their sanguinary check of yesterday, made violent local attacks today at certain points on the front.

North of Moreuil the enemy gained no success except in the region of Hangard-en-Santerre, where, after stubborn fighting, he succeeded in gaining a foothold in that village.

Between Moreuil and Lassigny our troops, according to the latest information, recaptured Ayencourt and Montchel last evening, taking about 100 prisoners and 14 machine guns. Today, in the course of spirited engagements, they made a notable advance in the region of Orvillers.

On the Oise front enemy detachments, consisting of a battalion of storming troops, after having crossed the river near Chauny, attempted to establish a bridgehead on the left bank. In a vigorous counterattack this battalion was completely annihilated or taken prisoner. The number of unwounded Germans remaining in our hands exceeded 100.

Our long-range guns caught under their fire and destroyed an enemy train of heavy artillery in the region of Laon.

The afternoon statement from the War Office follows:

The struggle was continued with undiminished violence during the night, and the result was to emphasize the check administered to the formidable German effort of yesterday to break through the line.

Between Montdidier and Moreuil the fire of the French infantry mowed down German battalions, which renewed the assault without ceasing. Moreuil, captured by the Germans, was retaken by the French, again taken by the Germans, and finally carried in a bayo-

France Accepts Offer of American Troops; Who "Will Fight Side by Side" With Allies

PARIS, March 31.—"The French Government has decided to accede to the desire expressed by General Pershing in the name of the United States Government," says an official note issued today dealing with the operation of American troops with the French and British.

"The American troops will fight side by side with the British and French troops, and the Star-Spangled Banner will float beside the French and English flags in the plains of Picardy."

SHELL HITS PARIS AS CITY WORSHIPS

German Easter Sunday Bombardment Kills One Person, Wounds Another.

ALL CHURCHES CROWDED

Belief Laon Cathedral Masks 65½-Foot Gun May Have Made It Target of French.

PARIS, March 31.—The bombardment of Paris by long-range German guns was resumed at 2:15 P. M. today. An official note issued tonight says:

The German long-range cannon continued during the day to bombard the Paris district. One person was killed and one injured.

At the services this morning the churches were even more crowded than is usual on Easter Sunday.

No unexploded shell has thus far been found. However, there have been examined, in the municipal laboratory, fragments of sufficient size to permit the Directors to reach certain conclusions. They are of the opinion that a double fuse is used, and that the guns fire 210-millimeter (8¼-inch) shells.

Apparently four guns are being used, two on each alternate day. The tubes of the guns, which are rifle guns, are more than sixty feet long. The installation and adjustment of the guns must require at least three months. Doubtless they are concealed under mountains of cement, rendering it most difficult to locate and destroy them.

GENEVA, March 30.—Lieut. Gen. von Rohne, a German authority on ordnance and Inspector of Artillery, gives in a magazine of which he is editor, additional details in regard to the long-range German guns with which Paris is being bombarded. He says they are 20 meters (65½ feet) long. The empty shell weighs 150 kilograms, (330 pounds,) and the charge weighs the same. The projectile attains a height of 30 kilometers (18.6 miles) and descends from the sky like a meteor on its target.

General von Rohne says it requires about three minutes for the shell to reach its destination. The greatest difficulty in the way of increasing the range was overcome by sending the projectile high enough to reach the rarified air.

It appears the Germans are extremely proud of the bombardment of Paris.

The long-range gun of the Germans which has been shelling Paris for more than a week has been reported as being placed in the Forest of St. Gobain, but deductions drawn from two different sources yesterday make it quite possible that it is in Laon, and that the Germans may even be using it under cover of the Cathedral in Laon. This would place the gun something over eighty miles instead of a little over seventy miles from Paris, Laon being about ten miles east of the Forest of St. Gobain.

Lieut. Gen. von Rohne several days ago was reported as saying in the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen, that it was a waste of time for the citizens of Paris to ascend the Eiffel Tower in an effort to catch a glimpse of the cannon. "Only airmen at a height of 1,300 meters will be able to observe them," said the General.

A mathematical deduction would lead to the conclusion that the cannon was something over eighty miles from Paris. This is further strengthened by a paragraph in the Berlin War Office report of Saturday published yesterday in THE NEW YORK TIMES, which said: "The Laon Cathedral, which has been considerably damaged by the continuous bombardment, is threatened with destruction from the fire of the French guns, according to the War Office."

If the German report is true, that the French are firing at one of their own cathedrals, a grave reason for so doing must exist, military circles here say, and it appears fairly evident to them that the French are searching out the gun that is bombarding Paris from

GERMANS REPORT LOCAL SUCCESSES

Claim the Capture of Three Villages in the Valley of the Luce.

ENLARGE ON FOE'S LOSSES

Berlin Says They Were "Sanguinary" in Vain Counterattacks Around Montdidier.

BERLIN, March 31, (via London.)—The official report from General Headquarters on today's operations on the west front, issued tonight, says:

There have been local successful battles between Luco Brook and the Avre. French counterattacks west and southwest of Montdidier failed with heavy losses.

Following is the text of the day communication, dealing with the fighting yesterday:

On the heights west of the upper Ancre we repulsed a British counterattack. Between the Somme and the Oise we gained further successes in our attack.

On both sides of the Luco Brook we penetrated the foremost British lines, which were strengthened by French regiments, and took by storm the villages of Aborcourt, Hangard, and Demuin, situated in the valley, and, despite a most violent counterattack, threw the enemy back on Moreuil and the wooded heights to the north thereof.

Between Moreuil and Noyon we attacked a newly brought up French army corps. North of Montdidier we repulsed the enemy over the Avre and took by storm the heights situated on the western bank.

Many times repeated counterattacks by the French west of Montdidier, east of Fontaine and against Mesnil, which had been captured, failed with sanguinary losses. Fontaine was taken by storm in the evening, and Mesnil was maintained in stubborn fighting.

Troops attacking from Montdidier as far as Noyon threw the enemy back from his freshly constructed trenches beyond Assainvillers, Rollot, and Hainvillers, as well as on Thiescourt and Ville. Here also strong counterattacks of the French collapsed.

The Renaud Fort, dominating the Oise southwest of Noyon, was taken by storm. From all other points of the front very heavy sanguinary losses of the enemy are reported.

From the other theatres of war there is nothing new.

CALLS ON DOMINIONS TO REPEL THE GERMANS

Before Crisis Is Over "Last Man May Count," Says Lloyd George.

LONDON, March 31.—In a message addressed to the Premiere of Canada and other British Dominions and Colonies Premier Lloyd George says:

"We have been inspired by constant news of the dauntless courage with which the Dominion troops have withstood desperate assaults by vastly more numerous German forces in the battle. The empire has good reason to be proud of all its sons. Our armies cannot have too many of these splendid men.

"As already announced, we propose to ask Parliament to authorize the raising of fresh forces here. I would also urge the Dominion Governments to reinforce their heroic troops in the fullest possible manner with the smallest possible delay. The struggle is only in its opening stages, and it is our business to see that our armies get the maximum measure of support that we can give them. Let no one think that what even the remotest Dominions can do now can be too late. Before this campaign is finished the last man may count."

FIGHTING IN LUCE VALLEY

German Infantry Assaults in That Region Last All Day—Foe Shells Northern Lines.

LONDON, March 31.—That the Germans on Sunday not only failed to make gains against the British troops in France, but lost ground near Feuchy, four miles east of Arras, and suffered heavy casualties in fruitless attacks, is announced in a statement issued by the War Office tonight.

Near Serre, seven miles north of Albert, the British yesterday advanced their line, taking 230 prisoners and 40 machine guns.

At most points north of the Somme the Germans were relatively quiescent today, except for heavy shelling of some sections of the British lines.

South of the Somme they launched an assault in considerable force against the British positions to the south of the main highway leading from Péronne to Amiens. This afternoon a heavy German attack developed in the angle between the Luce and Avre Rivers, where the fighting is still in progress.

Yesterday Demuin, a village in this sector, was recaptured by the British in a series of counterattacks.

Immediately to the south of Demuin, Canadian cavalry and British infantry, co-operating with French troops, yesterday regained possession of Moreuil and the wood to the north of the town.

Foe Slaughtered in Vain Attacks.

Following is the text of the night War Office statement:

North of the Somme the day has been quiet. Immediately south of the Scarpe our line has been advanced to the east of Feuchy, (east of Arras.) It has been confirmed that the enemy's losses in his fruitless attacks were heavy.

South of the Somme yesterday by successful counterattacks we regained possession of the village of Demuin. In brilliant operations yesterday by the Canadian cavalry and British infantry, in conjunction with the French, we recaptured Moreuil and the wood to the north of that place.

This afternoon a heavy German attack developed in the angle between the Rivers Luce and Avre, and the fighting continues. South of Moreuil the Germans are attacking in the direction of Mailly-Raineval.

This morning the French had made some progress from the south of Montdidier to Lassigny, retaking several villages which they lost yesterday.

Tonight's report from Field Marshal Haig reads:

North of the Somme the enemy did not renew his attacks today. Some heavy hostile shelling, however, has taken place on different parts of this front. We secured a few prisoners and machine guns in local fighting.

South of the Somme a hostile attack developed in considerable force about midday, south of the main Péronne-Amiens road. Fighting is continuing in and between the valleys of the Luce and the Avre, where possession of tactical features, woods and villages is at present being contested.

The text of the day report of operations is as follows:

South of the Somme our line in the Luce Valley was restored yesterday, after a vigorously executed counterattack. Two strong attacks made by the enemy in the course of the day against our front from Marcelcave to the Somme were repulsed in each case with heavy loss to his troops.

In his attacks delivered yesterday immediately north of the Somme the enemy's infantry advanced to the assault in four waves, and was repulsed at all points by our outpost line. The enemy's casualties on this portion of the battle front alone are estimated in the thousands.

Early yesterday afternoon a successful local operation was carried out by us in the neighborhood of Serre. Our line in this locality was advanced a short distance, and 230 prisoners and 40 machine guns were captured by us.

Our line also was carried forward slightly on other parts of the battle front, and prisoners were taken.

Hostile artillery was active early yesterday evening in the neighborhood of Bucquoy.

Destroy 14 German Airplanes.

British aerial operations are officially reported tonight as follows:

After noon Saturday the weather completely broke, but our airmen, in spite of the driving rain, continued to take part in the battle south of the Somme. There was heavy air fighting between our and enemy low-flying machines. Twelve hostile airplanes were brought down and three were disabled. One hostile balloon was destroyed, and two other German airplanes were shot down by our anti-aircraft guns. Five of our machines are missing.

COULDN'T BREAK ENGINEERS.

Americans Helped Hold the Germans Till Reinforcements Came.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, March 31.—(Associated Press.)—One of the most spectacular features of the British defense last week was the action of a little army, composed largely of an odd assortment of troops who had been hastily assembled, including American engineers who, as in the battle at Cambrai, threw away their tools and bore arms successfully, had a vital stretch of front to hold and maintained it against furious German onslaughts until reinforcements arrived.

The enemy advanced in force and hurled themselves time after time against the British line in this region, but found no weak spot.

KING GEORGE GIVES PRAISE TO HIS TROOPS

Sends Message of Appreciation to Haig After His Return from the Front.

LONDON, March 31.—King George, on returning to London from his visit to the battle front, sent a message to Field Marshal Haig, in which he said:

"Though for the moment our troops have been obliged by sheer weight of numbers to give some ground, the impression left on my mind is that no army could be in better heart, braver, and more confident than that which you have the honor to command."

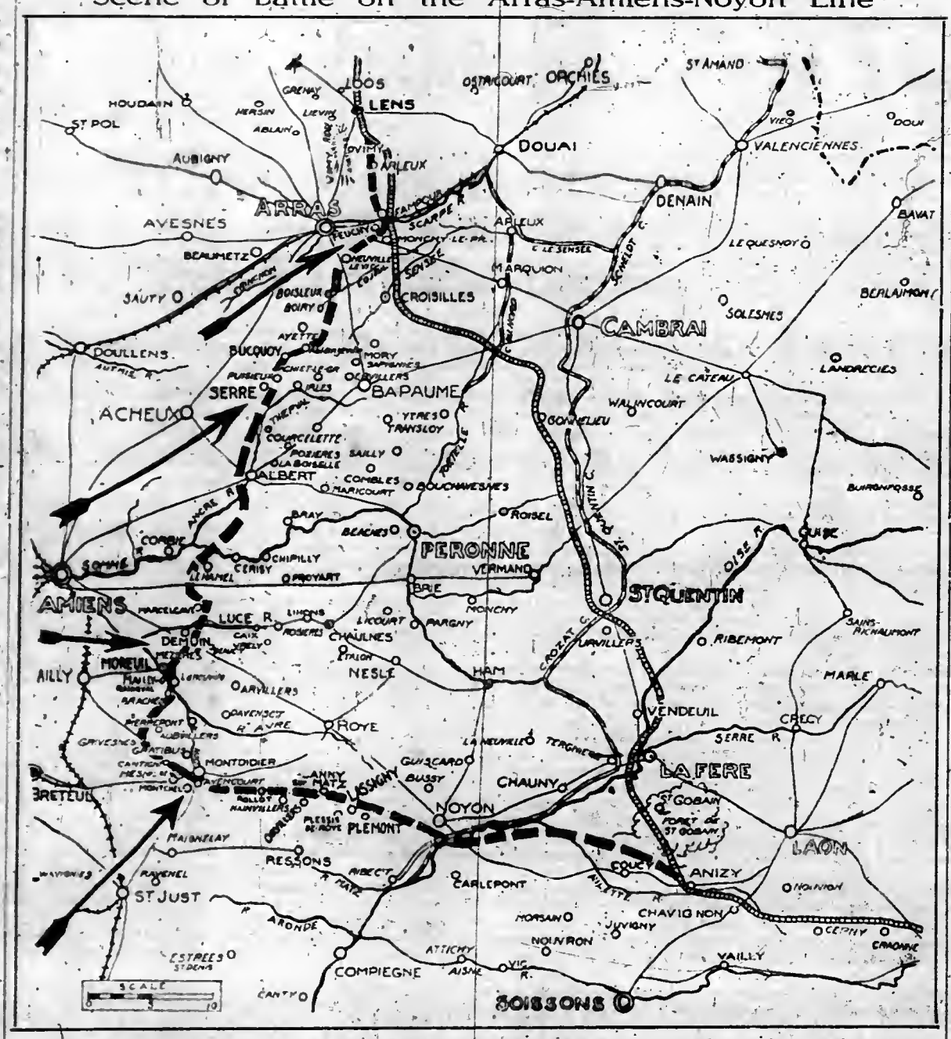
The King recited how he had seen the units recently withdrawn from the front and the entraining of fresh troops, "eager to reinforce their comrades." He said he had listened with wonder as officers and men had narrated thrilling incidents of the stubborn fighting. The King also told of a visit to a casualty clearing station, where "the patient cheerfulness of the wounded was equalled only by the care and gentleness of those administering to their wants." He added:

"With these experiences, short but vivid, I feel that the whole empire will join with me in expressing gratitude to your army for the skillful and unswerving manner in which this formidable attack has been and continues to be dealt with.

"Any one," King George concludes, "privileged to share these experiences, would feel with me pride in the British race and in that unconquerable spirit which will, please God, bring us through our present trials. We at home must insure that the man power is maintained adequately and that our workers, men and women, will continue nobly to meet the demands for all necessities of war.

"Thus may you be relieved from any anxiety by which the support of our faithful and brave allies and your heroic army shall justify that inspiring determination which I found permeated all ranks."

Scene of Battle on the Arras-Amiens-Noyon Line



On this map, in which the heavy broken black line represents the limits of the German advance, as defined by last night's official reports, and the light line at the right the battlefront at the beginning of the offensive, the arrows indicate the location and direction of the allied counterthrusts, the effects of which are recorded in the news from the French and British headquarters in the field.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Germans are finding the going harder and harder as each day passes. Slowly but surely the check in the north is becoming positive, and the battle is dwindling to an effort to push forward the wedge in the south toward Amiens and the railroad between that town and Paris. Had the Germans been able to keep on schedule and advance at a rate which was predetermined and agreed upon by their war chiefs the capture of Amiens or the cutting of this railroad would have meant disaster to the Allies. But the knowledge of this menace is now so old that either event has by this time been discounted to a very large extent. In addition to this, although they are now within five miles of this road, they are still twelve miles from Amiens, and each step along the road is becoming more difficult to take.

However, practically all of the fighting is still taking place in this quarter, and the German effort still goes on. As far as can be seen at present, the German plan has of necessity been seriously modified since the beginning of the battle. At that time, while it was intended to move on to Amiens and either Paris or the coast ports—probably the latter as being the more apt to defeat the British—it was nevertheless a corollary step that the way should be cleared for the advance by a defeat of the British further north, that is north of the Somme. For reasons which have been pointed out before, the line in the south cannot continue to advance indefinitely while that in the north continues to stand fast.

Thoroughly beaten in the north, and in spite of their advance to the old Somme battlefield this northern group of German armies has met with a decisive defeat after suffering appalling losses, the German plan now apparently is to create in the northern part of their active front the same unconquerable bastion as that which marks the northern limit of the British Army. In other words, they are desirous of turning the northern flank into another Vimy Ridge by constructing a new Hindenburg line, in which they can beat off any counteroffensive the British may make. Thus they will secure the northern leg of the wedge they are pushing forward toward Amiens, and prevent disaster that would follow its caving in.

We have definite reports that on this section of the front they are digging in, a process which always betokens more or less surely an intended stability on this section of the front so affected. The principal points to consider in connection with such an operation are, first, that the construction of such a defensive position is a matter of considerable time. The amount of excavation necessary is very considerable, and while temporary shelters may be built these will be readily destroyed by artillery fire and readily overrun. The next point is that if it is intended that the counterattack shall come against this section of the front—and no one can say where it will fall—there is not sufficient time to do the construction work that is necessary in order to turn the northern sector into a formidable obstacle.

Moving southward from the Somme, the first point affected in all of the bitter fighting of Saturday was west of Mezières, where the Germans pushed a loop around the village of Morsuil and the wooded area to the north of it. Their victory here, however, local as it was, was shortlived. Sunday morning the French, who hold this part of the line, counterattacked and recaptured both the village and the woods. Further south along the Avre River the Germans were more successful. Pushing the French back from the river south of Moreuil they deepened the wedge by about two miles, their lines encircling at their most eastern point Grivennes, about five miles from the Paris-Amiens Railroad. They also extended their lines slightly to the southeast and south of Montdidier. The latter gain is, however, entirely unimportant.

Along the southern leg of the salient from Montdidier to Noyon, the French line appears impenetrable. In fact the Germans have made but slight effort to break it due to the unfortunate results their previous attempts produced. Evidently the German purpose here is the same as it is further north, where the British are operating. If they can establish a line here of sufficient strength that the French cannot break it, their salient at Montdidier is without danger. But their failure so far to construct such a line is shown by the successful activities of the French.

Following on the heels of the German successes further west, the French counterattacked near Lassigny and bent the German line in for about a mile to a point near Canny-sur-Matz. While this advance does not endanger the German position, it does indicate that this line is by no means impregnable, so that when an attack is launched—if this should be the section chosen for such an effort, it will be against trenches of a minor character. That is, the principal defense will not be artificial works, but the German soldiery.

A further French effort on the same line resulted in retaking several villages south of Montdidier which the Germans had taken in the fighting of Saturday. Montehel and Ayencourt both were returned to the French, leaving the Germans absolutely nothing in the way of a territorial advance to justify the day's losses.

The cause of the Allies was favored all day by rain, which delayed the German transport and interfered with their movement of troops as well as prevented the movement of big guns. Such delay works to the Allies' benefit, for each day's gain gives them that much more time to perfect their offensive plans and to establish their defenses. Certainly the Germans will find the way but little easier as time passes. There is still no indication that the so-called army of manoeuvre of the Allies, which was formed by them at the Versailles conference, has yet gone into action. In fact there is little danger of this army being thrown in without the result apprising us of this fact unmistakably.

behind the German lines. Whether the gun is camouflaged in the vicinity of the Cathedral or whether the Cathedral in some way acts as a screen for the cannon has not yet been ascertained.

ALL FRANCE DEEPLY SHOCKED.

Good Friday Slaughter in Church Intensifies Loathing of Germans.

A Paris dispatch to the Courrier des Etats-Unis last night said:

"The population deplores the catastrophe which occurred in a church full of worshippers at the hour of the Good Friday service. 'Those who were present,' says the Gaulois, 'and who have seen the priests, standing under the menace of the complete collapse of the vaulted roofs, extending consolation to the wounded, administering the last sacraments to the dying, will never forget the sight.

"'The tumult is at its height; men, women and children lie under the heaps of plaster, instantly killed. The wounded are giving forth agonizing cries, the priests and vicars present multiply their exertions. Between the broken seats a young girl falls beside her aunt. Aid is hurried to her; she is still breathing, but about to die. A priest holds her up; he has barely time to administer the last sacraments—a poignant scene in the great drama which brought tears from those who saw it and those who came to rescue.

"'Cardinal Amette, arriving at the scene of the catastrophe a few moments after the explosion, made himself the mouthpiece of the general feeling when he cried, "The wretches! To have chosen the day of our Lord's death for committing such a crime."

"'Those who fired this cannon, these Germans who have already roused the hatred and aversion of all mankind, knew what they were doing. They know that Good Friday is one of the sacred days of Christendom; that the faithful come together in great numbers in the churches, and that the churches can be struck. That is the German crime. What can the Catholic Bishops and the Protestant pastors on the other side of the Rhine say to excuse such an outrage on such a day?

"Once more German crime will rouse the reprobation not only of the world of believers, but of the whole civilized world. France and Paris will never forget it."

The Petit Parisien says: "The Kaiser has congratulated Krupp on the construction of a cannon which has been able to bombard Paris at a hundred kilometers distance. The Kaiser who calls upon the Boche god will doubtless felicitate himself upon having killed women and children gathered in a church to celebrate the anniversary of the crucifixion of Him who is the symbol of gentleness and love among men."

Gustave Hervé says in La Victoire: "Our Catholic brothers who died at the moment when they were calling from the bottom of their heart for the blessings of the God of love and the God of justice upon the troops who are fighting for the great cause of civilization, right, and justice, have not died in vain.

"The shudder of horror and pity which tomorrow will shake all France and all the allied countries will spread from Paris to the armies. And the most lax of our poilus will feel in the depths of their being that they are in truth the soldiers of civilization against barbarism, and that if they die, if they, too, are crucified, they will die as did Jesus the Galilean for the redemption and the salvation of humanity."

The indignation of the country at this new German crime was expressed yesterday in the Chamber by several speakers. M. Grousseau, Deputy from the Department du Nord, said: "I saw yesterday with profound sorrow that on Good Friday the barbarous enemy had bombarded a church, and I feel that in the present circumstances we must answer that justice and right will have the last word."

FRENCH PUSH BACK GERMANS IN SOUTH

net charge made with incomparable bravery by French and British troops mingled in the same ranks. The woods north of Moreuil also were captured as the result of valiant fighting. In this region the French took many prisoners.

Between Moreuil and Lassigny the checking of the Germans, it has been established, was complete. The French were able to make progress as far as the vicinity of Canny-sur-Matz. A division of picked troops which, as announced last night, recaptured Plemon and held it against all attacks took 700 prisoners.

On the remainder of the front there was intermittent cannonading. Three German raids on the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) were without result.

LASSIGNY FIGHTING CENTRE.

French Guns Did Deadly Execution in Saturday's Engagements.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, March 30. (Associated Press.)—A great flood of German infantry dashed against the French lines today between Moreuil and Lassigny. It was purely a battle of foot soldiers. Heavy masses of Germans were hurled against the French time after time, only to be cast back again by counterattacks.

This was especially the case around Lassigny, the town which formed the limit of the German line before their retreat in March of last year. The battle line fluctuated several times in the course of the day, both sides displaying the greatest obstinacy. The French and Germans met often in hand-to-hand fighting in the villages of Orvillers, Plemont, and Plessis de Roye, where bayonets and hand grenades did deadly work.

The French artillery sometimes found an opportunity for getting into action. It overpowered the much weaker German guns. Apparently the enemy has not been able to bring up his heavy cannon, the British and French, in retiring at the first rush when the battle started, ten days ago, having destroyed roads and small bridges. This prevented the bringing up of powerful German weapons, and also put an obstacle in the way of the bringing forward of supplies.

Moreuil was the scene of some of the hardest fighting of the day. The combatants struggled in the streets until one side or the other succumbed.

At one point German attacking columns came under almost point-blank fire of French 75s, which did terrible execution in their ranks and caused a panic-stricken retreat of the survivors.

The line of attack was extended both northward and southward during the day. Toward evening a slight lull occurred, but renewed activity was observed after dark. German reserves evidently having arrived on the scene.

The ground before the French lines is covered thickly with German dead. The attackers are compelled to advance under a constant hail of bullets from cleverly placed detachments equipped with numerous machine guns, whose presence is hidden from the view of the Germans until they come within a short distance.

French aviators had virtually cleared the skies of their German adversaries, so that the attacking infantry was without the valuable assistance generally afforded from the air.

The opinion is general that the battle will be a long one, perhaps keeping up for months, with a series of pauses between the various phases. Whether the Germans will be able to make a demonstration in another direction while the present struggle is in progress remains to be seen, but indications point to the utilization of a great part of their available troops in this huge effort.

their friends, and had to hack their way through.

The guns were west of Bertincourt. The enemy tried to rush them with machine gun detachments firing at short range, but after shattering the enemy waves the British guns limbered up and got away to new positions.

The unit then concentrated at Barastre and dug in and, as its commander told me, the men were quite happy and not worrying. But the situation all round was serious.

Other British troops on both flanks fighting against great odds were hard pressed, and the enemy was trying to pierce their lines. Another unit, one which had lost heavily in the earlier bombardments before the battle, but had fought like tigers, had been ordered to pass through the unit already mentioned and take up a position near Ytres, but the enemy forced a gap at Bus and Ytres, and pressed his men forward in the hope of striking through that gap and rolling up both these units.

British Leadership Skillful.

On March 24 the position was grave, but it was then that the British troops were most splendid and their generalship most skillful. The officer commanding the second unit referred to was always with his men on the firing line and controlling every disposition, and in the morning he ordered the whole unit to form into columns and march in front of Bus, where the enemy was in strength, to Eaucourt l'Abbaye and High Wood. They marched in parade order with perfect discipline, throwing out a flanking guard with machine guns.

And so those men, weakened by many losses but strong in spirit, went across the battlefield. Masses of enemy were on their flank, and it was a great sight, and one which should be pictured in history. On the way they found food in some of the British stores and burnt huts at Le Transloy, the Commander setting light to them himself, and the men who had been thirty-six days in the line held themselves straight and whistled to the tramp of their feet.

Meanwhile the unit first mentioned was holding off the enemy, seriously menaced by that break through at Ytres. The enemy was advancing from Combles through Morval and Les Boeufs to Le Transloy, which was on the unit's road, at the same time piercing westward from Ytres itself.

A Notable Rear Guard Action.

It was a race for Le Transloy. If the enemy got there first all was lost. The commanding officer manoeuvred his men with fine skill, as on a chessboard, withdrawing one part and then another, turn and turn about, so that always the enemy was headed off, and these wolves could never reach what I have called the second unit or break through the guard of the first unit.

Some pioneers and engineers were ordered to the high ground to cover the transport moving away, and they put up a great fight. The enemy was shelling all the roads around Bapaume and Tilloy, and the transport had to gallop through this fire. One party of the first unit was detached from the rest in order to strengthen the position by Guedecourt, where the third unit was hard pressed, and engaged in intense fighting, and did not reappear until the withdrawal was complete to the present line. There was more hard fighting at Mametz wood and Fricourt.

So on March 26 the first unit reached the journey's end, having fought a continual rearguard action in which they punished the enemy again and again and kept their line intact. It was as fine a feat as anything that has been done in this war.

There was no rest for a time, and both the first and second units were called on to fight on the west bank of the Ancre above Albert, where other troops, badly fatigued, were being heavily attacked. Without a murmur these men who had fought down from Hermies and Havrincourt went to their aid.

There was an hour in the night when it looked as if the enemy would break through toward Martinsart, and the commander of the second unit, who was sleeping deeply after many nights of sleeplessness, was awakened and told the enemy was near. Machine gun bullets were pattering on the roof and walls of the hut. The commanding officer put on his boots, but a sharp counterattack drove the enemy back in time.

The Scots of the Fifty-first Division also reached the final positions, not without losses, after fierce engagements in which the Highland battalions fought in their old way, which put them first on the list of those whom the enemy most fears.

The Londoners had some trying days, but came through at last after killing many of their enemy. I saw many of these men yesterday, and some of them during the days of their fighting, and now that they are washed and have slept they seem like new men and not those who endured through many days and nights of immense bodily fatigue and continual nervous strain. They are wonderful men all of them, and so long as history lasts what I have told and also will tell with fuller detail will be remembered in their honor by those who come after them when the agony and misery of this war shall been passed.

Fighting on Friday and Saturday.

After the heavy fighting around Arras and the minor engagements north and south of the Somme, the battle front quieted down on Saturday, and there was one of those lulls in which the enemy reorganizes and develops new plans. His violent efforts against Arras have been completely repulsed, and he suffered extremely heavy losses in these attacks.

A small party of British who were cut off in Roeux were withdrawn successfully on Friday and the British lines are firmly held. The only German gain was the capture of Marcelcave on the Villers-Bretonneux road and the village of Mezières, below the Amiens-Roye road. The British made a counterattack on this place, but were held up by machine gun fire. Nevertheless they killed many of the enemy, and took twenty-five prisoners.

In patrol work north of the Somme the British troops encountered detachments of Germans, of whom they killed thirty and took five prisoners without suffering any casualties.

During the last day or two it is becoming evident that the German troops are beginning to lose some of the spirit which they had in the first advance, and are becoming depressed and anxious as to the future of their wild gamble for decisive victory. After their first thrust with overwhelming numbers they no longer have so much advantage and their losses are increasing.

Fierce Struggle in Cemetery.

Among the places where they have been hit hard during the last few days is the village of Hebuterne, south of Gommecourt, a little fortified place with trenches running across its streets and beyond a cemetery which I used to visit in the old days when the French held it under the spiritual protection of Notre Dame des Tranchées, and the material aid of the Soixante-Quinze, and afterward when the British used to go down its communication trenches from Fonquevillers, which they called, not without reason, "Funky Villas."

One day last week the enemy tried to rush Hebuterne, and gained a position in the cemetery, a most sinister place of open graves and broken tombs. When he put seven machine guns in position, our troops determined to fling him out, and advanced upon the cemetery, but were checked at first by the tattoo of bullets from those deadly machines. They came back and reorganized, then swept through the village and charged the enemy's line, smashing it to pieces.

There was fierce hand-to-hand fighting, with bombing fights in which many Germans were killed. Fifty prisoners were gathered in by our lads, and some of those whom I saw laughed at the thought of big German noncommissioned officers brought in by little fellows a head shorter than those blonde giants. There was bayonet fighting in the streets of Hebuterne and through an orchard, where apple and cherry trees are now in bud, though many branches have been lopped off by shellfire.

At Bucquoy some of the Yorkshire lads had hard fighting, and with them went two tanks, which cleared a wood of the enemy. There were many German machine guns hidden behind the trees. The Germans made a barrage of machine-gun bullets, and then rushed forward under cover of them to new positions, but round about Bucquoy many of these machine guns and their teams were routed out, and the Yorkshiremen captured a lorry park laden with ammunition.

British Tank Crews Heroic.

There are still reports, mostly from German prisoners, that the enemy has tanks in reserve, but so far nothing has been seen of them. In this battle many of the British tanks have been in action and have done gallant work. When the enemy began his colossal bombardment March 21 and broke through our forward defenses, some of our tanks, hidden in the woods behind the lines, were gravely threatened with capture by surrounding waves of German storm troops, and it was impossible to get them away rapidly enough. To the great grief of the tank pilots, it was necessary to blow them up, this destruction being done so that the enemy could make no use of them.

Fortunately, other tanks were outside the line of the first German advance, and were immediately moved forward to engage the enemy. Some of them went into action against Epehy and Villers Faucon, which were then in enemy hands, and, supported by infantry, cleared Epehy of German riflemen and machine gunners. They also made a counterattack against the village of Roisel, and, with machine-gun fire sweeping from their flanks, drove the enemy out twice and covered the withdrawal of our line. At Hervilly they fought a gallant rearguard action, and for two days defended the withdrawal of the infantry.

Stubborn Rearguard Actions.

The most courageous action by the British tanks was fought at Vaux-Vieaucourt, south of Bullecourt, which the enemy had captured. Our airplanes reported a heavy concentration of German troops for a further advance, and when this news was brought to the tank commander, he took immediate action on his own initiative and advanced his tanks at 4:30 in the afternoon, followed by two companies of infantry. The enemy was in great strength, with machine guns and light field guns, and opened fire at close range as soon as he saw our tanks bearing down on him.

The landships did not alter their course, and made straight for the German trenches, packed tightly with troops, and raked them with fire. Their own losses were not light, for they were close targets for the enemy's field guns, which hit them at point-blank range, but they inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, who fled into ditches and shell craters, seeking cover from these monsters.

Some of our tanks were put out of action and lay derelict among the German dead and dying, but the fight was maintained for several hours, until at midnight the survivors came back to where our lines then stood.

On March 24 the tanks fought a rearguard action between Barastre and Les Bocus without infantry support, holding back German waves which tried to sweep around them and cut off our infantry, then falling back to the new line. Our tanks sloughed among them, taking up positions in the field of fire, raking bodies of German storm troops in open country and holding at bay hordes of men who attacked them with rifle and machine gun fire.

The enemy's light field guns came up later, and it was then that the tank crews needed all their skill and courage and speed of manoeuvre to escape direct hits. They fought their way back, and I happened to meet them near Pozières, where I stood a few mornings ago, when the enemy was in Delville Wood and Montauban and our men and guns were holding the lines around Albert. They came in single file over that barren land, slowly heaving across the crest. Their drab bodies were like the lumps of brownish earth below them, and were only visible by movement. It was a queer, uncanny procession.

Other tanks have done good patrol work, scouting into villages along the Valley of the Somme and through the woods by Serre and Gommecourt, rounding up the enemy's scouts and bringing back some officers and men as prisoners. The tank pilots and crews have fought with utter disregard of their own lives and through many hours of day and night until spent by long fatigue. Their deepest regret is that owing to the quick onrush of the enemy in overwhelming numbers more of them could not stay and fight without being surrounded and caught.

Cavalrymen Scout and Fight.

I am now allowed to say something about another branch of the service which has had bad luck in this war, though always ready for action and eager to play the part which was theirs in the old days prior to the era of high explosives and machine guns. I mean the cavalry. Many cavalrymen have been holding sectors of the line as dismounted troops, and have been splendid in courage and endurance, but as mounted men also they have had a chance now and then and have done a good deal of scouting in the old-fashioned way, especially on the right of our line when the enemy was pushing out around Ham and Noyon.

It was here that I saw them a few days ago when the enemy was reported to be moving down from Ham to Guiscard, where I happened to be. Near by a French regiment was bivouacked after a long march to get to our relief, and the villages and fields round about were flooded with the blue of the French poilus, who stood about trying to gather from the English Tommies what was happening.

Suddenly there was a sound of hoofs, and a body of mounted men streamed through Guiscard. The sun gleamed upon their lances and steel hats, and they were good to see. "Oh, for a horse to ride with them!" said one of my friends. Something stirred in one's heart at the sight of those men going out on the great adventure.

They took a ditch at a jump and rode hard over the open country toward the enemy. One strange little squadron of horse rode out in this way, and with them went a queer detachment of infantry from a variety of different regiments, all under a "Town Major," and eight Lewis guns with a battery. They were "some crowd," as their commanding officer said. They did most gallant work, and in the course of their adventures charged the enemy and took 150 prisoners.

Throughout these battles the Royal Horse Artillery has been magnificent, moving about in the open in front of the enemy, getting into action, firing into German columns advancing on them, coming back, taking up new positions, and repeating their performance at short range upon massed bodies of troops, which were shattered by this fire. Three batteries disappeared for three days and seemed to have been lost in the blue. They reappeared in quite a different part of the line, having fought all the time in these rearguard actions.

BRITONS OF 50 MAY FIGHT.

Some Papers Demand a Limit Of 55 and Irish Conscription.

LONDON, March 31.—How the British public will take the announcement of the appointment of General Foch to the supreme command remains to be seen, but there is little doubt that it will accord to the Government willingly all the powers it needs in the direction of increasing the age limit and in other urgent measures. It is still unsettled what age will be fixed, but it is believed generally that it will be about 48 or 50. Some papers demand 55, but the Government is likely to hesitate at such a step.

It is understood also that the Government has no present intention of utilizing the recruits of 18, who have been trained for six months, in actual fighting.

Ireland, however, is the crux of the recruiting problem, and it is considered not unlikely that the present crisis may have a good effect toward securing an agreement with the Irish Convention. In that case conscription in Ireland might be obtained by consent. It is believed that the view of the Cabinet is that Ireland must be conscripted, with or without consent, but that it would be far more preferable if it were done by consent. Hence, hope is entertained that the nation's crisis may have its effect on the deliberations of the convention.

What a trade acceptance is

It is a draft or bill of exchange drawn by the seller on the purchaser of goods sold, and accepted by such purchaser payable at a fixed or determinable future time.

What a trade acceptance does

It tends to lessen the wasteful use of capital, converts open book accounts into negotiable paper which can be promptly realized upon at a fair rate of discount, and makes for better business and sounder credit conditions generally.

As it is of benefit to all to develop the use of trade acceptances, we shall be glad to explain their advantages to possible users.

Germans Started Drive with Probably Not Less Than 50 Divisions.

THE DASH TOWARD NOYON

Six Columns Took Part in It, One Division Alternating with Another.

CARRIED MANY LIGHT GUNS

"Artillery of Accompaniment" an Important Element of the Method of Attack.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, March 30, (Delayed.)—I am now able to give some more precise particulars of the earlier stages of the German attack. A little before 5 A. M. on March 21, between the Scarpe and the Oise, there began an extremely violent artillery preparation, including barrages largely composed of gas shells, especially near Cambrai, and toward the Oise a strong counter-battery fire and a plentiful bombardment of the allied rear and communications.

At 9:45 A. M. an infantry attack began. Each German division engaged had a front of attack of about a mile and a half, and seems to have been disposed as follows: Two regiments, less a battalion of each, were in the first line, and one regiment was in reserve. Battalions were echeloned in a depth of two companies, each with six light machine guns, constituting the first wave. The second wave of two companies, carrying heavier machine guns, followed at an interval of 100 yards. These were followed at 200 or 300 yards' distance by light bomb throwers and the battalion staff. Finally there came one-inch and other very light field guns, called "artillery of accompaniment," which deployed as required. The divisional reserves consisted of five infantry battalions.

We now know that no new gas was used and that although the enemy has tanks they were not brought into action.

Fifty Divisions in First Attack.

It would seem that the first attack was made by a larger force than I estimated in my last message—perhaps with fifty divisions, or about 750,000 men. Of these at least ten divisions, and perhaps thirteen or fourteen, were thrown into the corner of the field between St. Quentin, La Fère, and Noyon. They were divided into six columns.

The first consisted of a division with three battalions of chasseurs, which, debouching from La Fère, quickly took Tergnier, and on the evening of March 22 came to a stop before Vouel, the next village westward, and a division which came into action on the evening of the 22d, passed the first, and on the following day pushed on toward Chauny.

The second column consisted of two divisions. The former advanced from the old line near Moy, on the Oise, through La Fontaine and Remigny and to the southwest. It stopped at Lies, on the Crosat Canal, on the 22d. That night it was passed by the other division, which, on the 23d, captured Villequier-Aumont, on the St. Quentin-Chauny road.

To the right of this was the third column, composed of two divisions. The first attacked through Cerizy to Benay and Hinacourt, and was stopped on the evening of the 22d at Lamontagne. It was passed that evening by the other division on the canal, which, after occupying Genils Wood, closed up to the second column.

The fourth column included the First and Tenth Divisions, of which the former attacked through Essigny to Jussy, and on the 23d was at the north of Ugny, while the latter on its right passed the canal and reached Ugny and Beaumont.

Of the fifth column, which occupied the region of Villeselve, and the sixth, in the Ham-Noyon sector, my information is slighter, owing to the severity of the trial of the British contingents there before the French took over the front.

One division of the sixth column attacked at Le Plessis, north of Guiscard, on the 24th, and on the following day took Mutrancourt, Rimbercourt, and Crisolles. Its right was then prolonged by a division at Frenilches.

On the evening of the 22d the front of the British Army ran along the Crozat Canal from Tergnier, through Jussy, to the east of St. Simon.

Very well do I remember the bridgehead of Jussy as I saw it after the German retreat a year ago. The town, built almost wholly of brick, was absolutely leveled to the ground, not a single wall standing. I saw it again last Summer, when General X., a fine soldier and an enlightened gentleman, had set up a camp hospital and swimming bath, and the bridge had been decorated to celebrate the entry of America into the war. It was seven miles behind the front, and I confess we never thought to see the boche there again.

French Get Orders to Retreat.

At 6 P. M. on the 22d General —— received the news that the British front had been broken between Benuvois and Vaux, nine miles due west of St. Quentin, and that his corps must fall back to Ham and the villages of Sancourt and Matigny, immediately north of it. At 8 or 9 o'clock next morning the news came in that the enemy was just debouching from the south of Ham toward Esmery-Hallon. The British 5th Corps was then in the region of Guiscard-Beaumont-Guivry ready for relief.

On the morning of the 24th two German divisions, the first and second columns, continued their movements in the Oise Valley, while the third and fourth columns took Ugny and Genils Wood. On the 25th one division reached Croiselles, while another attacked Barocuf on the north of the Oise, half-way between Noyon and Chauny.

On the 26th one division was near Noyon, another at Larbroye, southwest of that town, and a third at Suzoy, two miles west of it. Clemenceau's classic phrase, "Remember that the Germans are at Noyon," had unexpectedly come alive again.

Noyon, unlike Chauny, Ham, and other neighboring places, was not greatly damaged by the Germans before their retreat last year. South of the town rises a conical hill called Mont Renaud, which is capped with a wood hiding the château built on the site of an ancient abbey. Often in passing it I have remarked that in old-fashioned warfare it would have been an important position, overlooking the lower ground toward the junction of the Oise and Aisne at Compiègne.

It now represents, in fact, the point where the front turns to the northwest, and in the beginning of the week in the course of violent combats it repeatedly passed from hand to hand, to remain in those of the Allies.

On Thursday, when the Germans were ensconced on Mont Renaud, a French General expressed in the presence of the English General commanding a cavalry division his intention of retaking it. The British Commander at once asked that his own troops should have the honor of making the attack. This was agreed to, and the British cavalry, dismounted, carried the hill by assault in face of a stubborn defense by the enemy.

I am assured that along the line where the French relieved the British troops, or where they have been acting together, the best relations have prevailed, and that the co-operation of the staffs and field officers has been most cordial. As one of my informants puts it: "The discipline, the spirit of self-sacrifice and the loyalty of the British troops in contact with ours has been beyond praise." Where they had become scattered they quickly reformed and got the road traffic into order. In some places the co-operation is very close and marked by the most devoted spirit. For instance, at a village a little north of Noyon, the Germans were slipping in small parties into a strong position marked on the maps as Hill 160. It was Tuesday, the 26th, the day of the great enemy effort in this district. A group of Canadian cavalry placed at the disposal of the French corps commander was ordered to occupy the hill.

Canadians' Gallant Cavalry Charge.

"This," said my informant, "was a larger proposition than Mont Renaud, but the men, who came from near Lassigny, dismounted, got into line and reached the summit very soon. The Germans, unwilling to lose so good an observatory and stronghold, counterattacked and captured the hill. The Canadians returned to the charge, this time on horseback, and held the summit of the hill until, the allied left having been drawn back, they were ordered to abandon it. The spirit of the British troops was particularly valuable at the outset, when our columns were hurrying up to take their places. It was often a question of minutes."

The French, like the British, aviators, by the boldness of their bombing and their machine gun work on the line of the German advance, have done much to compensate for the allied losses and the unavoidable delay in getting the French batteries into their new positions. Some instances of the heaviness of the enemy's losses lies before me, but they are of too fragmentary a character to justify any attempt to estimate the total. The machine gun sections of the allied armies seem to have done the most effective service. Prisoners say the German 88th Division was nearly wiped out, and that the 206th suffered almost as badly.

Followed Methods of Riga Drive.

Details of the first advance from St. Quentin to Noyon illustrate the new method pursued in this offensive in the particular way in which one large unit passes through another in order to carry the movement forward, as rapidly as possible.

Another feature is its readiness to change the direction of march when great difficulty is found by the Germans or a marked weakness on the allied side invites such a change. Of the divisions named above six disappeared from that front in the course of the concentration toward Noyon. They had been diverted westward when it was recognized that the Oise could not be forced, and Amiens became the chief objective.

It is certain that General von Hutier's plans were based upon his experience in the capture of Riga. The method pursued in that novel manoeuvre is known in detail to the allied staffs, by whom it has since been regarded as a dress rehearsal for a larger action.

It was characterized in the first place by extreme care, and in the second by surprise. Thus, not only were men trained for the assault brought up only at the last moment, but every arm, including the artillery, was forbidden to show any sign of what was impending. Air service was limited so as not to give the alarm, and no telephoning was allowed on the eve of the battle within half a mile of the front of attack.

Two hours beforehand a storm of gas shells burst over the Russian batteries, but it was only with the infantry assault that the destruction of the trenches and other work by the heavy guns began. The River Dwina was crossed under smoke clouds, and light guns and mine throwers were got across and forward very quickly after the infantry.

Finally the passage of secondary units through the primary units in order to carry the attack rapidly forward was successfully practiced.

Western resistance, whether French or British, is a very different thing from that which the Russians put up at Riga. Enormous as are the forces the enemy put into this blow, though for the last week they outnumbered and generally overwhelmed those hurried up to meet them, they had to pay terribly for their success. German war doctrine recognizes this as inevitable in what is intended for a decisive operation against great antagonists. That is one reason for its open praise of the British resistance.

The doctrine is that when the critical moment comes every division, every battalion, every man must be brought into effect so that by an avalanche-like movement, as far as possible aided by surprise, the enemy may be stunned and before he can retire and bring up reserves may be broken and crushed. Against soldiers less experienced, disciplined and inspired than those of the western allies Hindenburg would have succeeded; but let the speed of the blow be checked—and at every stage after the first the attack has been several days late—let any commander hesitate over his losses; let supplies and communications fail or a dangerous flank movement develop, and the whole mass, the whole adventure is endangered.

So it was after the long retreat in the battle of the Marne. The adaptability of direction of attack which I have indicated is remarkable, but the same adaptability in the attack upon Verdun, where the right and left banks of the Meuse were alternately tried, gave no result.

This time the main direction has been thrice changed. It began with the wings at St. Quentin and Croisilles; it then moved to the right centre from Bapaume to Albert, with a shoulder push at Noyon; finally it is concentrated on the left centre on both sides of Montdidier. These displacements may not have much significance, but they are not signs of confidence or of allied weakness.

Because of its methods and speed the battle thus far has been mainly one of artillery. German cavalry has been met in small numbers, but it has not taken a brilliant part. The enemy's aviation service has been notably inferior to that of the Allies. Only light guns with a few four-inch pieces have been able to keep up with the advance, and trench mortars do not seem to have been brought up quickly. On the other hand, groups of allied machine gunners and machine riflemen, taking advantage of the depressions of the ground, have everywhere taken heavy toll of their adversaries. By the time they can transport their heavier guns the Allies will have their former superiority ready to answer them.

MOTONO SAYS JAPAN WON'T FIGHT RUSSIA

Has Deep Sympathy for the People and Is Solicitous Only for Their Wellbeing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Tuesday, March 26.—Following are the principal passages from the speech of Viscount Motono, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in the Diet today:

"The general belief that intervention was proposed by Japan is unfounded. Our Government never proposed that step to any country, though we have, of course, been paying the closest attention to the Siberian situation. Nor has the Government received any joint proposal from the Allies. If Japan's interest in Siberia is threatened, the Government will be bound to take prompt and appropriate measures. [Cheers.]

"But even in that case Japan would not fight against Russia. Our Empire will certainly never imitate Germany in aggression. We declare that Japan has deep sympathy for the Russian people, and that we are only anxious to see that country's safety and order maintained."

TOKIO, Tuesday, March 26, (Associated Press.)—Japan has proposed no military action in Siberia, although if such a move should be suggested jointly by the Allies, it would receive the most careful consideration, said Foreign Minister Motono in addressing a joint session of Parliament today on the eve of its adjournment.

After reviewing the present conditions in Russia, the Foreign Minister said the Japanese Government was not concerned as to what form of Government Russia adopted. At present, however, German influence had permeated almost all of European Russia and was tending to invade Siberia, which Japan must view with the gravest apprehension, he said. Consequently, intervention had been discussed seriously at home and abroad.

In order to prevent misunderstandings arising from false reports, said the Foreign Minister, the Government welcomed the opportunity to make the statement that Japan was not proposing or initiating intervention. He continued:

"The Imperial Government neither suggested nor proposed military action in Siberia. Nevertheless, it regards with grayest apprehension the eastward movement of Germany. Hitherto Japan has received no joint allied proposal, but if such a proposal is received it will be considered most carefully. This will be especially the case if the Siberian situation becomes worse, requiring decisive steps on behalf of the interests of the Allies, in which event the Imperial Government will not hesitate to take prompt and adequate measures in a wholehearted manner.

"It is desired to make it clear, however, that the Imperial Government does not regard Itussia as an enemy. Japan will not adopt an aggressive policy toward Russia, and does not hesitate to declare unreservedly and sincerely the deep and warm sympathy of the nation for the Russia people."

In conclusion, the Foreign Minister said that the dispatching of armed forces to Siberia was a serious question, requiring exhaustive deliberation and extreme caution.

AMERICAN ARMY OFF FOR BATTLE FRONT

German drives in the American sector while the world's greatest battle is in progress.

Anxious for National Unity.

The American commanders are anxious that the nation shall see the need of concentration now on the war, forgetting peace and stopping talk of plans after the war. They want the united nation to win the war, and urge that it will be time enough to plan for peace after the boche has been whipped.

Observers see an unescapable analogy, probably largely psychological but nevertheless actual, between peace talk and military difficulties. They point to the case of Italy and that of Russia. There is a deep desire here that the devitalizing effect of such peace talk may be avoided in America. American soldiers who are to face the Germans on the firing line do not desire the work of pacifists and "peace-at-any-price forces in their behalf.

A frequent expression among the doughboys is the hope that England and France won't whip the boche until the Americans get a whack at him in good style.

The American fighters are in good physical shape and their morale is excellent.

Men in Fine Spirits.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 31, (Associated Press.)—Great activity continued today throughout the zone where the American troops are quartered. It began at 4 o'clock this morning, when heavily loaded motor camions began rumbling through the streets and over the roads which by noon were crowded with camions, both motor and horse drawn, marching men, horses, and artillery.

As on Saturday, some parties were going in one direction and some in another. The Americans passing were cheered by others who stood along the roads watching the virtually endless processions, some of which were miles long.

Out on the open roads the men in the camions sang everything from "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" to "Tipperary." They exhibited the greatest enthusiasm for the work they have in hand, and seemed to be anxious to get it started.

Frequently during the day heavy motor trucks skidded from the muddy roads into ditches, but they were quickly and literally picked up by as many Americans as could get a hand on them and set back on the road and started again toward their destination. A little thing like lifting the end of a five-ton motor truck from a ditch means nothing to Americans who are in a hurry to get into the fight.

Pershing Acts Quickly.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31. — General Pershing's offer of the free use of the full military power of the United States and the official announcement of France's acceptance of this offer, coupled with unofficial information that American forces are already on the move in France, brought a thrill to Washington tonight and has placed the capital on tiptoe for important developments during the coming week.

Official confirmation of the acceptance of General Pershing's offer was not forthcoming from the War Department tonight, although Major Gen. March, the Chief of Staff, was there until a late hour awiting advices from General Pershing. But the fact was generally known, and it is expected that news of the utilization of American troops in the battle will come early this week.

General Pershing is in a position, it is understood, to throw not fewer than 100,000 men into the battle to the extent that General Foch calls upon him for American reinforcements.

While it is not permissible to comment on the movement of troops, it can be stated that plans have been made for sending reinforcements from this country as rapidly as transports can move them, and that from now on the strength of the American forces will be steadily increased by new arrivals of men who have completed their training in this country.

Washington More Encouraged.

The conclusion of the eleventh day of the battle and the opening of the new week finds official and military Washington more encouraged than at any other time since the beginning of the great offensive. It is believed that the turning point in the battle has arrived, that the British and French are now able to throw back the invaders, and that the appointment of General Foch as generalissimo of the allied forces is already producing important results.

The towns recaptured by the British and French—including Moreuil and Mezières—are between the Rivers Somme and Avre on the front along which the Germans came within twelve miles' striking distance of Amiens. The French official announcement dealing with the recapture of Moreuil speaks of its having been accomplished through the "incomparable bravery of French and British troops mingled in the same ranks," and gives an impression of even closer co-operation between the allied forces.

Official and military Washington is not underestimating the size of the task that confronts the allied forces the coming week. Military men, in particular, while confident that the Germans will not be able to break through the allied line and that the enemy has failed in his objective of driving a wedge between the British and French, "turning the British around, and rolling them up toward the Calais-Boulogne coast for destruction, feel that the great battle which began with this drive is only in its infancy and that hard fighting and many sacrifices must be faced by British, French, American, and Italian forces during the coming clear-weather months. However, they are confident of ultimate victory, and more confident than ever of the result of the present battle since hearing of the territory that has been regained by the British and French and learning definitely that the offer of American military strength has been promptly accepted by General Foch.

WASHINGTON, March 31, (Associated Press.)—Too much may not be said about the number and position of the American troops, because of military reasons. It is no violation of the censorship, however, to say that more than 100,000 American fighting men, fully equipped and intensively trained in the school of actual battle conditions are available at once to be thrown into places to strengthen the British and French lines wherever they threaten to buckle under the ferocity of the German onslaught.

General Pershing Reports 28 Casualties; Nine Die of Disease; One Killed in Action

PERSHING'S TROOPS READY AND WILLING

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, March 30.—American troops will soon be fighting in force, side by side with the French and English in the great battle to push back the German drive. Officers and men are enthusiastic over the prospect of early acceptance by the French of General Pershing's offer to use the Americans. The boys in brown are ready and willing to get into the world's greatest battle.

The United States will soon know how its sons fight in a real battle against the Germans. The officers believe their men will give a good account of themselves, especially in open fighting, for, with their superb conduct under shelling, they have got the experience of veterans in gas and trench warfare.

There was rain today, yesterday, and the day before. Despite the weather, the men I visited today were in excellent spirits, ready for anything. American officers are not yet able to tell where or how they will be used. This is entirely in the hands of the French command. Secretary of War Baker held conferences with the commanders of the British and French armies concerning the best use to which the Americans could be put. At the Great Headquarters today he approved heartily Pershing's offer and praised the spirit of the men upon hearing the announcement that they were to be used in the great battle.

AMERICANS' FOES ACTIVE.

Germans Move Troops and Flash Signals on Toul Sector.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 31, (Associated Press.)—Even more activity was observed behind the German lines opposite the American front on the Toul sector today. An entire battalion was seen on the march this morning. Infantry at other points was being shifted about, while the cavalry also was seen again. Numerous automobiles of members of the German staff made their appearance behind the lines. Throughout Saturday night signal lights were flashing from Montsec.

Three American patrols penetrated the enemy's lines last night. One patrol went in until electrically charged barred wire was encountered. This was cut. Enemy sniping posts were warned and opened fire on the Americans, who were forced to retire. No casualties were suffered.

Another patrol inspected German front line trenches, but did not encounter a single German. The third patrol penetrated the enemy's wire field to a French airplane which fell there last week. The engine of the plane was found to have been removed.

The American artillery has kept up a harassing fire on the Germans, effectively shelling work parties and still targets. The enemy gas-shelled the American batteries today, but without effect.

"Pretty Good" ADVERTISING

WHENEVER we hear anyone say of advertising "That's pretty good" we know there is something lacking in that advertising. But when they voluntarily exclaim "That's good!" we know the advertising is hitting the right spot.

At Federal we are never satisfied with the "pretty good" quality of advertising. It must be superlatively good in originality, attractiveness and selling power or it finds no place in Federal plans.

CALLS ALLIED LABOR TO RESIST GERMANY

Junker Triumph Would Menace People's Rights Everywhere, Says Dr. Roesemeier.

PREDICTS A TEUTON REVOLT

Militarists Aim to Head It Off by a World Victory, He Asserts.

By DR. HERMANN ROESEMEIER.

Dr. Hermann Roesemeier, formerly Parliamentary correspondent of the Morgenpost of Berlin and now one of the leaders of the little band of German refugees who are carrying on an anti-Kaiser propaganda from Switzerland, calls upon the workers of the allied nations to lend all their strength to the task of crushing German militarism in an article given out yesterday by the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy. The article, which has already been printed in some Socialist and labor papers of France and Italy and which was translated at the New York office of the alliance, reads as follows:

Workers of the Entente countries! It really seems as if you had not yet comprehended the real character of German imperialism, the plans of German imperialism, the rapacity of German imperialism, the strength of German imperialism, the cruelty of German imperialism! Truly, you laborers of the Entente countries, after three and a half years more horrible than the history of mankind has ever known, you do not yet grasp, in its entirety, the terrible danger which is menacing the world.

There are still many among you who do not see or who do not want to see that the land of Goethe and Kant and Marx and Lasalle has become the land of Hindenburg and of the much more terrible, cruel, and abominable Ludendorff. There are still many among you who have not yet lost all faith in Scheidemann. There are still more among you who far overestimate the influence, strength, and determination of the "independants," who are certainly honorable, but who are, for the present at least, politically impotent. There are many among you who still cling literally to the dogma of Zimmerwald, and unthinkingly put all civil Governments in the same category.

Far too numerous among you are those who permit themselves to be persuaded by Gilbaux and the Morxists, by the Henri Gilbaux who now declares that he is in favor of a peace "without annexations," whereas in 1915, he asserted that for the sake of peace France must agree to the annexations which Germany would impose upon her, and by the Odino Morgari who has been money from the bourgeois capitalists and who finds that the Austrian rule in Lombardy was quite bearable.

Your ancestors, you Socialist laborers, had a different idea; when that Austrian rascal, Haynau, who was called the "hyena of Brescia" and who had women publicly whipped in heroic Brescia, came to England he was beaten up by the Socialists there. And would you be the tools of imperialism?

Germany "Citadel of Reaction."

Workers of the Entente countries, you must see what the issue is. Germany is and will always be the citadel of European reaction. Today it is more so than ever before. The plan of the almighty imperialism whose willing servant is the "old intriguer"—as he was called in my presence by one of his party associates—Count Hertling—is to start revolutions everywhere in order to appear in the defenseless countries as the "savior of society" and to be paid for the rôle of savior by the frightened bourgeoisie in land, to be ceded.

Workers of the Entente countries, does not the turn of affairs in Russia show you that such is the case? Germany permitted Russian revolutionists and German deserters to travel through Germany, and through her Ambassador von Romberg was negotiating with the Swiss Robert Grimm, in order first of all to paralyze the Russian front by sabotage.

This proved only too successful. There was a suspension of hostilities, there was an armistice, there were negotiations. Germany talked of the "right of self-determination of the nations." But when she had the Russian delegates around the table—in a city occupied by Prussian troops—then she threw off her mask. The Prussian General Hoffman rattled his sword and in his insolent Junker tone snarled at the delegates of the Russian proletariat, and it was demanded of the Russian Socialists of the Left that they recognize the so-called "Courland Diet," a conventicle of sleveholders of a foreign race as the legitimate representation of a nation of millions.

But that was not enough. The same German press which could at first not say enough in praise of the Bolsheviki, is now overflowing with insults and affronts against the "Maximalist robbers," and the Wolff Telegraph Agency is circulating message after message in which the owners of those parts of Russia not yet occupied by German troops express the wish to come "under German rule"—as is said with cynically open insolence.

Lesson of Teuton Domination.

What German rule means for the laboring class—must I explain that to you? Look at Riga, where a few days after the entry of the German troops the leading members of the Soviet were shot. Look at the occupied districts of France, where the Germen slave hunters inaugurated razzias against women and children and German officers took great delight in disciplining defenseless children with lashes of the whip.

Glance at Belgium, where countless thousands have been deported and among the remaining population the farce of a "popular vote" is enacted, which is but a new illustration of what the German Government, this abject servant of the General Staff, understands by "the right of self-determination."

And glance at Germany herself, where the noble Liebknecht has been in prison for nearly two years; where the brave Dittmann has just been sentenced to five years' hard labor; where the valiant Kurt Eisner has been arrested; where thousands are in jail, and where starving masses after an attempt to break their chains were returned to the treadmill of war capital.

But—you will surely interrupt me—the strike did show that the German masses do not have the same ideas as the German war party, that the German people are not responsible for the deeds of their leaders and rulers and that the German nation may not be blamed for all the misdeeds which its military despots commit daily and hourly. And many of you will say: You must admit that you are painting the picture too black. The danger is not as great as you make it! The danger will be overcome not by the arms of the capitalistic Entente States, but by the German revolution.

Workers of the Entente countries, certainly there are still in Germany, in all the classes, even in the Junker and officers' corps, many good, honest, splendid men and women. I admit without further argument that there are still many personally decent people, even in the war party—though they are, indeed, far outbalanced by the rascals, scoundrels, rogues, blackguards, and raving maniacs.

Scheming to Crush Revolt.

There are still in Germany—and I say this with both pride and hope—many revolutionarily inclined men and women who are resolved to risk everything in order to break the power of the Junker and military caste, the most brutal class which the world has known since the days of Genghis Khan and Tamerlane. I do not doubt and, in fact, affirm with pleasure and satisfaction—that the revolutionary determination of the brave fighters of the wars of liberation finds a powerful ally in the great fermentation among the laboring classes. I am also convinced that the German revolution will come.

The Junkers and their associates in Germany are also convinced that it will come. But they cherish the hope that the revolution will break out everywhere else first; that this will give them time to win the world war; that this victory will enable them either to nip in the bud the revolution in Germany or to suppress it with terrible bloodshed, and that then the victorious counter-revolutionary Germany will exercise its world supremacy as the nucleus of an authoritative league of nations like the Holy Alliance.

A new holy alliance, which will nullify the achievements of the twentieth, of the nineteenth, and even of the eighteenth centuries, a holy trinity of capital, sword, and holy-water-stick, an "order" of ruling bourgeoisies, who are in turn ruled by Prussian Junkerism, as the topmost stratum of the world, entire humanity doing homage directly or indirectly to the German ruling caste—that is the ideal of the people who despite a "parliamentary ministry," despite strikes and Scheidemann, are ruling Germany and subjecting rich lands and a strong, industrious people from Lille to Mosul and from Riga to Damascus to their will.

Outbreaks of Arrogance.

If you do not believe me, workers of the Entente countries, then read the speeches of the men of the German Opposition or, even better, read the articles, books, newspapers, speeches of the German war party itself. Read in the Kreuz-Zeitung, the organ of the Conservative—that is to say, the ruling party in Prussia—how Wolfgang Eisenhart declares that Germany has the right to make war on the other countries, but that the latter have not the right to make war on Germany, for Germany is destined for world supremacy. Remember that the leader of the same party, the powerful war propagandist, von Heydebrand, at a meeting attended by thousands of people, set up the theory that only the Germans were really human beings.

And do not believe that these are merely theories. The German General Staff acts according to these principles. It has given evidence of it. The enme General Staff which has masses of propaganda dropped into the lines of the Entente army, imprisons English aviators for doing the same thing; the same German General Staff which continually subjects London and recently Paris to air raids, is indignant when "open" German cities are bombarded. The code of laws of the Prussian Junkers and military caste is simply this—unrestricted power for us, for the others no rights whatsoever.

Workers of the Entente countries, do you want to do the new Genghis Khans and Tamerlanes, who far surpass their prototypes, the favor of paving the way for their world supremacy by ruining the power of the Entente? Do you wish to make the scourges with which those despots will chastise you after you have helped them to attain their ends? Do you want to help to smother the coming revolution in Germany by strengthening the power of its mortal enemies? Do you want to bring to yourselves and your children the horror and the misery of Prussian slavery? Do you wish to lay at the feet of the infamous hypocrite William and his scoundrelly son the old homelande of revolutions, England and France, as unwilling victims of their horrible cruelty and their unbounded lust for plunder?

Workers of the Entente countries! Humanity, liberty, the future, the German revolution, the laboring class in Germany itself, in so far as it has come to its senses, implore you to grit your teeth and bear for a while longer the terrible, indescribable misery of this most awful of all wars, until it has been carried to a successful conclusion for the free nations, until the bloody Cerberus of Prussian militarism has been shattered; until the guarantee is given that this most cruel and sacrificial of all wars will be the last war of all!

TROOPERS CHARGE QUEBEC RIOTERS

Big Mob of Anti-Conscriptionists Dispersed by Cavalry and Several Wounded.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN SHOT

Rioters Raid Hardware Stores In Search of Arms—Machine Guns Awe Crowds.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEBEC, March 31.—Anti-conscription rioting, which had been in progress sporadically since Friday night, started afresh at 8 o'clock tonight.

Hardware stores were raided by the mob in an attempt to obtain arms, and a clash with the military quickly followed.

Several thousand persons gathered in the vicinity of the armory determined upon releasing conscription evaders who were held there.

The mob was charged by the cavalry guards, and many persons were slightly injured. Two young girls were among the civilian victims. Both are suffering from gunshot wounds.

Raids of hardware stores on the part of the mob started the trouble. The military followed these attempts by clearing the firearms and ammunition out of the stores. Orders have been issued to the merchants not to have any firearms or ammunition in their places, and the military are enforcing the order.

Quebec tonight is being run on military lines. There is to be no trifling with the patrols. Crowds are moving about, and doing some howling at times, but are not taking the liberties with the soldiers that they did on Saturday night.

The victims of the shooting are two sisters named Roach, whose home is at 3 Blanchet Street. The elder Miss Roach was shot in the right shoulder, the bullet inflicting a slight flesh wound. The younger girl was struck in the left foot. Dalter Quart of 57 Datrigny Street also was shot in the right arm.

Hit by Stray Bullets.

These three were shot while an attempt was being made to loot the Young hardware store in Bridge Street. Quart was on his way home after having left the Roach home, and had just said good-bye when the three were wounded. They did not see any one firing at them, but are of the opinion that the bullets which struck them were fired by persons in the mob.

The military defeated the attempt to get into the Young hardware shop, arriving first and removing the weapons. The crowd then got away and suddenly several men attacked the Martinesu hardware store on St. Joseph Street. They broke in there, but the firearms had been removed. Baffled in this, they set fire to the store.

The flames started in the basement, where there was a great quantity of benzine and other inflammable material. The firemen arrived in time to save some of the property, but the damage was very heavy.

Later in the night the hardware stores of George Brousseau and Samson & Filion, in St. Paul Street, were broken into and some firearms obtained. Definite information as to quantity is not yet available.

Machine-gun companies are on guard at the Post Office on Mountain Hill, just around from the Chateau Fohtenac, and across from the Laval University. This is a very steep hill leading directly into the lower town. The guns have a sweep down the hill. At other points also machine guns were installed this evening and heavy patrols of soldiers grouped about them.

At 9 o'clock a mob gathered at the foot of Mountain Hill, but soldiers dispersed the rioters.

The crowd tonight is working in bands of about 1,000 each and apparently under some system of direction. Of each mob unit the greater portion is composed of boys and young men.

Cardinal Begin issued a pastoral letter to all the parish priests to warn their parishioners to keep the peace.

At midnight the military announced that the situation was well in hand. The soldiers have been very patient, acting with perfect discipline. A considerable number of them have been hurt, especially in the last two days, bricks, ice, stones, and everything that the crowd could lay hands on being flung at them. Of the squad of cavalrymen who operated tonight practically every one was hit at some time or other.

Riots Cause Indignation.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, March 31.—The rioting in Quebec City has aroused intense indignation here. Mayor Lavigeur of Quebec, who refused the proffered aid of the military until it was too late, has come in for bitter criticism. The Military Council has been in session at Ottawa since Saturday morning, and Colonel Machin has been placed in control both of the military and of the conscription enforcement measures.

The question of declaring Quebec under martial law is now under consideration. That there is a widespread demand for such action to be taken, especially throughout Ontario and the West, is undeniable, but the Federal Government does not wish to do anything that might be conetrued as vindictive.

There is a large section of the population of Quebec City that is not only hostile to conscription, but also is antagonistic to French Canada taking any part in the war. These objectors have resorted to all sorts of trickery in order to evade conscription. It is known that the Military Service act has not been operated in Quebec City, or anywhere else in Quebec Province, not excepting Montreal, with the same rigor that has attended its enforcement throughout Ontario and the West. The result of this is that thousands of young men liable for service throughout Ontario and the prairie provinces are already in khaki, while the quota from Quebec province has not yet reached one-tenth of what it ought to be.

The difficulty facing the Federal authorities is obvious—they have to enforce a law in a hostile community which is doing everything in its power to render law inoperative. That the records of the Registrar for the Military Service act in Quebec were not destroyed when the auditorium was burned on Friday night is due merely to a piece of good luck. All the more important records had been removed from the Registrar's office to a fireproof safe elsewhere some days ago. What people here and in Ontario find incredible is that although it was common knowledge throughout Quebec on Friday that an attempt was to be made to destroy the Registrar's office at night, no effort was made to balk the rioters. The word was passed around, "Come and see the fun at the auditorium tonight." This brought Quebec residents out in thousands to witness the riot, and although this was known both to the military authorities under General Landy and the civic authorities, including the Mayor and the Chief of Police, the Mayor refused the aid offered early in the day by General Landy. The Chief of Police, it is asserted, made no disposition of his forces to stop the riot. It was not until the riot was in full swing that Mayor Lavigueur got a copy of the Riot act, hunted up Justices of the Peace to sign it, and proceeded in his automobile to the auditorium, where the building, having been destroyed, he waved the document, but did not read it.

The building was blazing and the crowd was cheering, yelling, and singing "O Canada" when the Mayor arrived and waved the Riot act in his hand. When the military arrived the mob melted away.

All yesterday and today there have been small crowds of onlookers to inspect the ravages of the mob. The Mayor and the city police, however, have taken not the slightest steps to effect any arrests or to trace the ringleaders.

Colonel Machin is now in Quebec, and General Landy has several thousand troops under his command.

VICE WAR IN PHILADELPHIA.

Daniels Calls Gov. Brumbaugh's Attention to Conditions There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Secretary Daniels made public tonight a report of an investigation into alleged immoral conditions in Philadelphia conducted by the Commission on Training Camp Activities. The report gives a list of vice resorts, and charges that the police have been in collusion with wrongdoers.

Copies of the report were sent to Governor Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania and Mayor Smith of Philadelphia by Secretary Daniels, who requests these officials to "use every influence of the city and State to clean up conditions and make a wholesome environment for the young men who are training to serve the country in this crisis." Secretary Daniels pledged the fullest co-operation and support of the Navy and Marine Corps officers and men for such a cleaning up.

The report, after going into details as to the vice conditions in Philadelphia, makes direct charges against the police. It declares that evidence is not lacking to show that vice resorts have paid for protection.

The report is signed by Raymond D. Fosdick, Chairman of the Commission on Training Camp Activities.

Death for Traitors Approved in Greece.

ATHENS, March 31.—Public opinion in Greece strongly approves the action of the court-martial which on Friday sentenced to death the two Greek officers who were apprehended after being landed on the west coast of the Peloponnesus by a German submarine. The sentence of the court-martial is expected to have a salutary effect on those concerned in the activities of former King Constantine.

increasing influence that the Government purchasing has upon prices, by the necessity of providing for increasing supplies for the Allies and the consequent reduction of civilian consumption, and, with all, the due protection of the producer and the civilian consumer. This change of policy may take the form of more definite and systematic direction of the larger packers as to the course that they are to pursue from month to month, or may even take the form of operation of the packing house establishments by the Government.

The general economic forces bearing on the situation appear to me to be:

1. The allied purchases for both civilian and military purposes in meats, as in many other commodities, have been consolidated by necessity of shipping conditions and by necessity of the Treasury arrangement for advances to the Allies until private trading has been of necessity eliminated.

It is also becoming necessary for the Government to co-ordinate these purchases with those of our army and navy, in order to prevent conflict in the execution of orders. This great consolidation of buying has to some extent, and will increasingly, dominate prices.

We have, since last September, recognized that the export purchases of pork products would affect prices, and, after consultation with important committees of swine growers, we last Autumn gave a rough assurance to the swine producer of a minimum price, which we felt that we could maintain from the export buying, and this has been maintained, although with considerable difficulty, and has been beneficial in stimulating production. The indications are that these purchases will now be further increased.

The beef purchases have not, up to the present time, been sufficient in volume to more than temporarily affect price, but the present indications are that for some time in the future they will be greatly increased and to a point where they may affect prices materially.

Injustice of Rising Prices.

2. The increased quantities required for export must be obtained by either increased production or by reduction in civilian consumption, probably both.

The reduction in civilian consumption can be obtained much the most equitably by voluntary reduction by the consumer and by moderate restraints, such as meatless days, &c., and while it may be contended by some that a reduction in consumption may be obtained by increase in price, such conservation is obtained by the elimination of that section of the community with the least purchasing power. In other words, conservation by price becomes conservation for the rich and not for the poor; whereas an extension of the conservation policy now in force places reduction in consumption where it rightly belongs—on those who can save from plenty, not upon those who save from nourishment.

It appears to me also of the utmost national importance that we shall maintain through the country a complete sense in voluntary reduction in the consumption of all commodities if we are to provide the necessary surpluses, either in money, man-power, or material necessary to winning the war. On the other hand, the adjustment of conservation measures of this type and the surplus required from time to time is extremely difficult without these measures themselves affecting price and developing discontent and criticism in sections of the producing community.

I recognize fully the well-founded objection to any theory of price-fixing, but where the purchases of war necessities in a given commodity have reached such a volume that the purchase of these commodities trench into the domestic consumption, the operation of this purchasing power becomes a condition of price-fixing, and, to my mind, all theories go by the board.

Profiteering and Speculation.

3. The Government is thus faced with three alternatives in the matter of control of meats:

a. To free the Government from all interest in price by abandoning direction of war purchases and to abandon conservation measures, because these may also affect price.

This would be a relief to the Government, but with growing volume of purchases the price influence will be transferred to uncontrolled agencies who are themselves price fixing and carries the following dangers:

It will stimulate profiteering and speculation. Prices in the season of the year of large production can be manipulated downward and in the sparse season will ascend to the point where some classes will be eliminated from consumption. The cost of living thus subjected to abnormal fluctuation will reflect in wage discontent and instability. It will destroy systematic saving of the commodity by individuals, and this saving in consumption is a vital national policy. The producer will go through erratic periods of discouragement and of stimulation, which must undermine any systematic policy of national or individual increase in production, for every period of discouragement cuts off production of animals, which cannot be recovered.

b. To continue as at present the direction of these large purchases, with a mixture of partial national policy in production and day-to-day dealing with emergency.

This is an almost intolerable situation for any Government official in criticism from both producer and consumer, and with the growing volume of purchases this criticism must increase. It permits of no constructive policy in production.

c. To stabilize prices based upon cost of production at a fair and stimulative profit to the producer and with stabilization to eliminate speculative risks and wasteful practices and thus some gains for the consumer.

If such a policy is adopted it also follows that it will have a most important bearing on and relation to policies of agricultural production, and a long view can be taken and supported, in assuring the producer of fair returns.

Government's Financial Responsibility.

This course is also fraught with dangers. It leads either to a voluntary agreement with the packers as to prices to be paid producers and charged to consumers from time to time, or to actual operation of the packing plants by the Government. In either case the Government will need to take some financial responsibility in speculative business. In such situation, the Government will be under constant pressure from the producers for enhancement of price and from the consumer for reductions. It necessitates the constant action of a commission to determine such prices. It will mean that all the complaints of trade fall upon the Government. The choice of alternatives is one of determination of the maximum contribution to winning the war and the choice of the lesser economic evil between such alternatives.

4. The legal ability of the Government to give authority to such measures lies in the power to direct contracts for war necessities, to take over and operate plants, and to make voluntary agreements to carry out a definite and constructive policy. When purchases are so large as to cut into civilian consumption, it becomes possible to insure manufacturers a complete market, thus eliminating their risk and thereby eliminating some of the margin that they must take in the conduct of a speculative business, and it also gives sound reason for directing their policies.

5. For these very reasons it has been necessary to set up partial or complete arrangements of this character in iron, steel, copper, explosives, wheat, sugar, and some other commodities. None of these arrangements have evolved out of any governmental policy of price-fixing or any desire to interfere with the operation of natural trade laws, but are simply the result of the Government being forced into the issue of becoming the dominant purchaser, and thereby, willingly or unwillingly, the price determiner in particular commodities.

We have been struggling as intelligently as possible with the situation in the meat industries, with entire inadequacy of definite national policy. Our purchases hitherto have been sufficient to influence the market at times, and in the case of pork products have been sufficient to preserve a minimum price. We have been, however, powerless hitherto to properly protect all branches of the cattle industry, with its constantly changing economic situation, or to give intelligent direction or assistance to cattle production. As you know, I have never felt that when we arrived at a point to determine the broad policy with respect to a commodity, this should be determined at the opinion of any single individual, no matter how sincere and earnest the application of intelligence might be.

Recommends a Commission.

I would therefore like to recommend to you to extend the policy which you have already initiated in the matter of many commodities by early appointment of a board to study the entire situation with regard to the meat industry and the steps that should be taken with regard thereto. I would suggest that, following the precedent that you have already established, a committee should be set up embracing either the following gentlemen or their delegates directly responsible to them:

The Secretary of Agriculture, as representing the producer.

The Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, as representing trade conditions.

The Chairman of the Federal Tariff Board, as representing economic thought.

The Secretary of Labor, as representing the civilian consumer.

The Food Administrator, as having to carry out any given policy determined upon.

This commission should at once exhaustively consider the entire situation in all of its aspects and determine a positive national policy in meats.

I apologize for writing at such length, but the subjects permits of little brevity.

I am your obedient servant,

HERBERT HOOVER.

His Excellency, the President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

SIBERIAN YARNS NAILED

American and British Military Investigators Trace Truth About Armed War Prisoners.

Germany Tells Russians We Call Them to War

MOSCOW, March 31 (Associated Press).—Germany, in replying to the Russian wireless message explaining the statement recently made by the American Ambassador, David R. Francis, says that it does not doubt the sincere desire for peace on the part of the Russian people, but regards the statement as a call to war.

MOSCOW, March 30.—Allied co-operation with the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates in the defense of the Kola and Mourmansk coast and railway is an established fact, according to dispatches which announce that French and British officers are working with Bolshevist troops as instructors, as well as supplying British marines and French soldiers returning from the Russian front.

Apparently the Mourmansk Soviet originally was suspicious concerning allied offers of assistance in resisting the encroachments of Finnish White Guards upon the Mourmansk district, but Leon Trotsky, President of the Revolutionary Military Committee, authorized the Soviet to accept the help of the Allies' forces. The Allies are said to be prepared to supply the food and materials required by the Red Army already forming to oppose the White Guards which are extending their operations in the Mourmansk district, with German encouragement and help.

Captain William Webster of the American Red Cross and Captain W. L. Hicks, a British officer, who were authorized by the Bolshevist authorities to go to Siberia to investigate reports that large numbers of German and Austrian prisoners of war were being organized and armed, telegraphed today from Irkutsk that after visiting all points along the Siberian Railway from the Ural Mountains to Chita, they were convinced that the rumors regarding the extent of the arming of prisoners and the consequent threat to the Trans-Siberian line had been exaggerated greatly. At some places small numbers of Austrian Bolsheviki have enlisted in the Red Guard.

At Omsk, Captain Webster and Captain Hicks saw a trainload of Austrians and Hungarians, armed with rifles and machine guns, on the way to the Manchurian border to fight the Cossacks under General Semenoff, who is holding out against the Soviet authority. These Austrians and Hungarians for the most part are soldiers who deserted early in the war, consequently being unable to return to their country. They are endeavoring to prevent other prisoners from going back to Austria.

Captain Webster and Captain Hicks met Major Walter Drysdale, American Military Attaché at Peking, who had inspected the prisoners along the Amur River and the railway from Vladivostok to Chita. He found only a small number of armed prisoners.

VOLOGDA, March 30. (Associated Press.)—The French, Italian and Serbian diplomatic staffs have arrived here and will open temporary offices. The members of the Belgian, Greek and Portuguese legations have remained in Finland.

More than a million tons of raw material and manufactured goods landed from allied steamships are known to be piled up on the docks at Archangel, and a special dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Paris on Friday last reported that the seizure of these vast stores was being agitated in the French press, together with the occupation of Alexandrovsk at the end of the Kola Railway.

It was pointed out that, the Baltic being closed to them, the natural gateway of the Allies to Russia was Archangel, and that if the Germans planted a military post at the right point they could close the bottle neck formed by the White Sea, and might use it as a base against ocean commerce.

COSSACK LEADER YIELDS.

Bogaevsky Calls on His Followers to Submit to Bolsheviki.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, March 29.—The Cossack Ataman Bogaevsky has surrendered and recanted. He has issued an appeal to his followers to cease useless guerrilla warfare, which, he says, results only in loss of life and terror to the peaceful population, who are unable to work. He says:

"The struggle with the Bolsheviki was a political mistake which caused unnecessary losses to both sides, and was merely harmful to Russia. The Cossack struggle failed because the sympathy of the popular masses was with the Bolsheviki."

Of the whole anti-Bolshevist Cossack movement there now remains nothing but a few small bands of cavalry. This struggle, in which honest men were made tools of politicians working solely for privileged class interests, has been made hideous by excesses on both sides.

With regard to the events on the western front it is remarkable that the bourgeois papers print the German communiqués in large type, whereas the Socialist papers print the allied communiqués and take a definitely pro-Ally tone.

The Central Executive has passed a decree giving right of asylum in Russia to all political refugees from imperialistic countries. The immediate object of this adoption of the old English tradition is to assist revolutionaries in escaping from provinces occupied by Germany.

GERMANS BURN POLTAVA.

Continue Advance in Ukraine—The Republic's Borders Defined.

MOSCOW, March 31.—Regarding the Russo-Ukranian frontier, Germany, in accordance with the declaration of the Ukrainian Rada, has recognized that the following nine Governments constitute the Ukraine: Volhynia, Podolia, Kherson, Taurida, not including the Crimea, Kiev, Poltava, Tchernigov, Ekaterinoslav, and Kharkov. To these, in accordance with the peace treaty of the Central Powers with the Ukraine, is added a part of the Cholm Government.

The advance of the Germans in Ukraine is continuing. Yesterday they captured Poltava, capital of the Government of the same name, which they set on fire and partly destroyed, and are moving inward Kharkov. They are also nearing Ekaterinoslav, where large supplies of grain are reported. Workmen's and Soldiers' troops are offering considerable, but ineffective, resistance, in a vain effort to stem the German tide, which is penetrating the richest of Russia's territory.

Germany has replied to Russia's protest against the recent arrest by Germans in the Aland Islands of M. Kameneva, one of the Russian representatives at the first peace conference at Brest-Litovsk, by saying that Germany had nothing to do with the arrest and repudiating responsibility for it.

German Money in Occupied Russia.

PETROGRAD, March 30. (Associated Press.)—Germany has issued new paper money in the occupied Russian territories in denominations of three rubles, one ruble, and smaller amounts. The money is emitted by the Eastern Bank of Commerce and Industry of Posen. The face bears inscriptions in German, Polish, Lithuanian and Lettish, with no Russian words. The Council of Commissioners has issued a decree establishing State control of insurance companies.

KEEN SYMPATHY IN ITALY.

Outcome of Great Struggle Awaited with Intense Interest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 29. (Delayed.)—The operations in France have kept all Italians during the last ten days in suspense and anxiety, alternating with hope. Even traditional Easter rejoicings are dimmed by the uncertainty of the result of the terrific struggle. Universal sympathy goes out to the Anglo-French armies, and many express regret that America has not yet sufficient forces in France to decide the fate of the war.

The English and French Ambassadors are receiving thousands of messages and visits from Senators, Deputies, and various associations and even humble individuals expressing the admiration of the Italians for the bravery of the soldiers of their allies.

HAVE BAGGED 83 AIRPLANES.

British Aviators on Italian Front Have Lost Only Ten Machines.

LONDON, March 31.—Eighty-three enemy airplanes have been destroyed by British aviators since they have been operating on the Italian front, says a British official communication issued tonight. The British have lost ten machines in aerial fighting. The text of the communication, which tells of the operations of the British in the Italian theatre, follows:

On the Italian front the British holding the Montelo section were relieved in the middle of March, and since have taken a new sector on the Asiago plateau.

Our flying corps since its arrival in Italy has destroyed eighty-three enemy machines and lost ten.

DUTCH OFFICIALLY RESENT SEIZURES

Holland Declares Our Course Will Be Opposed with All the Energy of Wounded Feeling.

CALLS IT ACT OF VIOLENCE

"Indefensible from the Viewpoint of International Law and Unjustifiable."

ATTACKS WILSON'S STAND

Expresses Fear That We Will Seize Other Vessels If They Are Sent Here for Food.

THE HAGUE, Saturday, March 30, (The Associated Press.)—The seizure of the Dutch merchantmen in American ports is characterized by the Dutch Government, in a statement in the Official Gazette, as "an act of violence which it will oppose with all the energy of its conviction and its wounded national feeling." The Government takes issue with the proclamation of President Wilson regarding the decision of the United States, saying it contains assertions which are contrary to the facts.

The statement follows:

"With painful surprise, the Government and the whole Dutch nation have taken notice of the Presidential proclamation and the statement of March 20 relative to the seizure of part of the Dutch merchant fleet. The seizure on bloc of a neutral mercantile fleet, if only for the duration of the war, is an act indefensible from the viewpoint of international law and unjustifiable toward a friendly nation, apart from considerations of legality. But the manner, also, in which the Presidential statement defends this act of violence does not contribute toward lessening the sting thereof, for this defense has plainly been drawn up under the influence of a completely incorrect representation of affairs.

"The manner in which the Dutch merchant fleet has been treated in past months in the United States, the incessant difficulties placed in the way of our sailings from American ports, repeated refusals of bunkering facilities, and forced unloading of cargoes already bought—all this may be within the rights of the United States, (save one case, that of the Zeelandia, which with her own bunker coal entered an American port and has been unlawfully detained there since,) but it surely was against the traditional friendship between the two countries, although on this point the Presidential statement keeps silence.

Deny German Pressure.

"According to President Wilson's proclamation, the Netherlands, owing entirely to German pressure, failed to observe the preliminary arrangement which was proposed for the purpose of leaving no longer idle the Dutch tonnage in American ports and furnishing an opportunity for making voyages within a period of ninety days, pending a definite agreement on Dutch tonnage and rationing. This is distinctly incorrect. It is equally as incorrect as the allegation that Germany had threatened to sink two ships which were to sail from Holland in exchange for two from America which were to sail to Holland with America's approval, and that Germany had made increasing threats to prevent both the observance of such a preliminary arrangement and the conclusion of a permanent one. The real facts of the case are as follows:

"After the (American) War Trade Board had insisted that Dutch ships in American ports make trips pending a definite arrangement, the Netherlands Government proposed that some of the ships should make voyages for the Commission for Relief in Belgium, which Holland has always fostered sedulously for the benefit of distressed Belgium and Northern France. When information was received that Germany objected to America's demand that a Dutch ship sail from Holland each time in exchange for a relief ship sailing from America, the Netherlands Government deemed it a duty imposed by good faith to inform the American authorities thereof immediately, so that a ship which was then on the way toward Argentina could be given a different destination. The direct consequence was that those ships were kept moving, which was exactly in consonance with the provisional agreement.

"Respecting sailings to Cette, (France,) a Swiss interest with which Holland sympathized warmly, the shipowners agreed thereto completely as soon as France gave assurances that the ships would not be detained at Cette. Accordingly, several ships were chartered for this service. The charterings and sailings of all these ships were not sensibly delayed by the aforementioned objections, neither did Germany attempt to influence the execution of the provisional agreement, which affected traffic between transatlantic ports. What did seriously interfere with its execution was the fact that cablegrams to and from shipowners were extremely slow in transmission, and sometimes never were delivered. The cause of this remains unexplained.

"The fact is that a majority of the ships had been chartered under the provisional agreement through the War Trade Board, and part were already sailing to South America, but were stopped enroute by the American authorities, while in the Pacific ships plying between the western coast of the United States and the Dutch East Indies made regular voyages without any impediment, direct or indirect, by the Netherlands Government. The ships now in British ports in and outside Europe and in the Portuguese port of St. Vincent were prevented from sailing by the British and Portuguese themselves.

Questions Wilson's View.

"As shown by the foregoing, the allegation that the Netherlands, owing to German pressure, was powerless to observe the provisional agreement is contrary to fact. That the President was incorrectly advised is proved conclusively on a point of greater importance, namely, where the statement mentions the new demand that Dutch ships would have to enter the war zone, and the seizure which followed Holland's reply.

"After the incorrect allegation that Holland was unable to observe the provisional agreement, the statement continues: 'Great Britain on March 7 made Holland a final proposal, whereupon Holland came forward with a counterproposal which was unacceptable. Even had the arrangement been concluded, Holland would have been unable to keep it in actual practice, for which reason the seizure was determined upon. This reasoning, strange as it may seem, lacks one important link which is indispensable to place the matter in a proper light. What were the facts?

"On Feb. 22 the Netherlands, in view of the food shortage threatened in the coming Summer, asked America to advance 100,000 tons of wheat on account of 400,0000 to be definitely arranged for. It is true that the associated Governments on March 6 replied affirmatively regarding the 100,000 tons, without giving a definite reply about the 400,000 but to that apparent acquiescence they attached the onerous condition that they were to obtain immediately the disposal of all of that part of the Dutch merchant fleet to which, according to the projected London plan, they would eventually become entitled.

"The Netherlands Government, under the stress of circumstances, prepared to accept this condition as soon as the certainty could be had that the fullest reliance could be placed not only on the 100,000 tons, but also on the full 400,000 as the basis of definitive regulation. The Government was in a position to accept because at the deliberations in London and afterward it was understood strictly that Dutch ships would be employed only outside the danger zone and that therefore they would in no cases undertake services for a belligerent which would be an infringement of neutrality.

Feared for Neutrality.

"Suddenly the aforesaid London engagement was broken on March 7, when the cardinal point, that ships given in exchange for the advance of 100,000 tons of grain—ships with tonnage amounting to about 500,000—were not to be used in the danger zone, was revoked. The onerous character of this change lay not in the fact that the Dutch ships were to be sent into the danger zone—for this has nothing to do with neutrality—but because it was evident that to enter that zone, situated as it is around the associated countries in Europe, would amount to a large extent to the transportation of troops and war materials from America to the European co-belligerents. Moreover, the Dutch ships, if armed, would run the risk of armed conflict with German warships. Holland, as a neutral country, could not, therefore, consent to the use of its ships in the danger zone unless the associated Governments could guarantee that the ships would not be armed and would not transport troops or war materials.

"In the light of the foregoing, the reasoning of the Presidential statement, in accordance with which the seizure was held to be necessary because Holland would be unable to observe the contract, cannot be sustained. It is contrary to the true facts. The only true representation is this:

"The powers in question, owing to the loss of ships, felt constrained to replace the tonnage by obtaining the disposal of a very large number of ships which belonged not to them but to the Netherlands. They became aware that the Netherlands Government could not permit the ships to sail in the interest of the associated Governments except on the conditions imposed by neutrality, but which were in the judgments of the Governments not sufficiently in accordance with their interests. Therefore they decided to seize the Dutch merchant fleet in so far as it lay within their power.

"The Netherlands Government deems it its duty, especially in serious times such as the present, to speak with complete candor. It voices the sentiments of the entire Dutch nation, which sees in the seizure an act of violence which it will oppose with all the energy of its conviction and its wounded national feeling.

"According to the Presidential statement, this procedure offers Holland ample opportunity to obtain bread grain. This is so only apparently; for would it not be an irresponsible act, after the experiences of Dutch ships in American and British ports, to permit other ships to sail to these ports without adequate guarantees that these experiences shall not occur?

"The American Government has always appealed to right and justice, has always come forward as the champion of small nations. That it now operates in an act diametrically opposed to those principles is a proceeding which can find no counterweight in the manifestations of friendship or assurances of lenient application of the wrong committed."

Stand Surprises Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—In the view of the American Government, requisitioning of the Dutch ships in American ports was done in full accord with recognized principles of international law, and most generous guarantees were given for the protection of Holland's commerce and the rights of the shipowners. It would have been within the rights of the United States to take the vessels permanently, paying for them a just price, but recognizing that Holland would be handicapped after the war by such action, it was announced that only the use of the ships would be required. After the war they will be returned to the Dutch flag in as good condition as when taken, and if sunk will be replaced.

Caught between the ruthless submarine warfare of Germany and the needs of the Allies for self-preservation against the illegal practices of that nation, Holland is conceded to have had a most difficult time in satisfying the demands of Germany while obtaining food for her own people. The Allies promised to allow from their scant store sufficient grain and other commodities in return for shipping.

Holland was willing, but Germany refused to allow the agreement to go through, threatening to torpedo ships leaving Dutch harbors in return for food ships sent from America. In the circumstances, and after waiting two months, the United States and the Allies took over the Dutch vessels that were idle in their ports in order to restore them to their normal activity. Protest naturally was expected from Holland, but officials frankly were surprised tonight at the tone of the official communication, and were at a loss to explain it. Until this Government has been consulted, however, with Holland's attitude there will be no formal comment.

It has been rumored that Holland might ask arbitration of the shipping question, under the treaty negotiated with ex-Secretary Bryan, which provides for investigation for one year of all disputes before resort to forcible settlement.

Asks Gifts for Belgians.

Senator Henri La Fontaine of Belgium, President of the Executive Committee in America of "Gifts for Belgian Soldiers," for which the Guaranty Trust Company is the depositary of funds, has sent out an appeal for aid in which he says: "All the allied countries have more than they can do, and only the assistance of our friends in America has enabled our men to keep on fighting. Their gratitude knows no bounds." Contributions will received by "Gifts for Belgian Soldiers" at 30 Broad Street, New York City.

PROMISE TO PROVE A DEAL BY LENROOT

Democrats Say They Will Show Republican Candidate Sought La Follette's Support.

EXPECT AID OF STALWARTS

Loyalty Issue to be Emphasized by Davies in Closing Hours of Wisconsin Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31.—In the hours that remain for campaigning before the voters of Wisconsin go to the polls to deliver their verdict in the Davies-Lenroot-Berger Senatorial contest Democratic supporters of Joseph E. Davies, President Wilson's choice, will make a final appeal for popular indorsement of their candidate on the ground that a Lenroot victory almost inevitably would involve the return of Senator La Follette to his old position of leadership in the Republican organization of the Badger State.

Democratic campaign orators are preparing to tell the voters at scores of meetings tomorrow that a victory for La Follette would give as much aid and comfort to the Kaiser as would a victory for Victor L. Berger, the Socialist candidate, who has made his appeal to the disloyal element openly on an anti-war and anti-Wilson platform. A victory for Berger, barring weather conditions which would keep the voters in rural sections of the State at home Tuesday, is now regarded as out of the question by both the Republican and Democratic managers.

By this eleventh-hour attack the Democratic campaign managers hope to sway in favor of their candidate Republican voters of the "Stalwart" faction, which has been as strongly at war with La Follettism since the Wisconsin statesman revealed his views on the war as they have with Bergerism. Lenroot made his appeal exclusively to this element in the Republican primaries. He won his slender majority—a little more than 2,000—over James M. Thompson of Lacrosse, the La Follette candidate, as a result of the political hostility of the "Stalwarts" toward La Follette and their abhorrence of what he stands for in relation to the war.

Promise Proof of a Deal.

The Democratic managers insist that a Lenroot majority in itself would be proof that his victory had been achieved with the aid of the La Follette following. In the primaries La Follette's candidate ran Lenroot a neck-and-neck race, and might have won but for the fact that under the peculiar provisions of the Wisconsin primary law it was possible for Republicans to vote for Socialist candidates. Here it is thoroughly understood that a large proportion of the pro-German element in the La Follette faction supported Berger in the primaries.

As a purely mathematical proposition Lenroot cannot hope to win, except with the aid of La Follette. No Democratic or Socialist votes are likely to come his way. The Democratic leaders declare that they will be in a position to produce proof of an understanding between the La Follette leaders and the Lenroot campaign managers, and that they will produce it before the polls open.

They insist that the editorial which appeared recently in The Capitol Times, La Follette's Madison mouthpiece, summoning the La Follette "halfbreeds" to the support of Lenroot, was the result of this understanding, as was the subsequent visit to the Lenroot headquarters in Republican House of followers of La Follette and the defense made by Lenroot on the stump of Thompson, his rival for the nomination, whom he denounced during the primary fight as unworthy of loyalist support.

"A victory for Lenroot," said O. A. Labudde, Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, "would be a double victory for La Follettelsm in Wisconsin, now that it is clear that the Republican candidate—or his managers—has gone to the La Follette crowd to solicit support. The vote rolled up for the La Follette candidate in the Republican primaries was regarded by the Senator himself, as his subsequent utterances have shown, as a vindication. Certainly, it was proof that, while his views on the war may be held in abhorrence by loyal members of his own party elsewhere, the Republicans did not succeed in the primaries in purging themselves of the charge of a fifty-fifty Americanism. They have it in their power to do so in the election Tuesday."

Predict "Stalwart" Defection.

That the managers of Mr. Davies's campaign base their predictions of a Davies victory in part on their firm conviction that the deal between the Lenroot supporters and the La Follette Republicans will result in a large defection of "Stalwarts" from the Lenroot banner was admited today.

The return of La Follette to his old position of power would make it possible for him to visit with condign punishment those who have taken advantage of his present plight to rise against him within the Republican State organization. No one familiar with his political antecedents doubts for a minute that he would take full advantage of such an opportunity. should Tuesday's election bring it. This it is believed, will have as much effect in determining the course of "Stalwarts" active in the political game as will the patriotic side of the appeal on the rank and file.

Under the provisions of the Wisconsin primary law enrollment is not a necessary qualification for voting, as it is in New York and most other States. Under the circumstances a partisan need not be bound by party lines in voting for the nomination of candidates. Ballots of all parties are handed to each voter as he enters the polling places. He votes one and returns the others to the primary inspectors.

Under the circumstances the vote cast in the primary is more of an indication of the strength of a candidate in the coming election than it would be otherwise. In the recent primaries the returns showed a material gain in the Democratic vote over the latest Senatorial primary in Wisconsin, the Kearney-Husting primary in 1914, in the Republican strongholds in rural sections of the State. In some instances the increase ran as high as 200 per cent.

In the so-called German counties, which are mostly in the vicinity of Milwaukee, along the shore of Lake Michigan, and which in the past have shown a pronounced Democratic trend, there was a falling off of the Democratic primary vote of 1914. Democrats took advantage of this showing in the primaries to make a strong fight in the Republican counties.

Reports coming into the Davies headquarters as the campaign is closing indicate that their fight has told heavily in many localities where a Democratic candidate in other years has been practically out of the running. The Democratic leaders believe that this showing in the primaries was due to an inclination of the loyalist element in the Republican ranks to concentrate on Davies and that loyalists, ignoring party lines, will stick to him in the election as the best possible proof that the State is behind President Wilson in the present crisis.

Showing in German Counties.

Thus, forty-six out of the seventy-one counties in the State showed gains in the Democratic primary vote. But in thirteen counties, where the German element is predominant in the population and where the Socialists have developed strength in the industrial centres, the falling off, as shown by this table, was notable.

County.	Hustings-Kearny, 1914.	Davies-McCarthy, 1918.
Calumet	481	244
Dodge	4,336	1,892
Fon du Lac	2,811	1,541
Jefferson	2,439	1,449
La Crosse	1,998	910
Langlade	1,078	489
Lincoln	751	316
Manitowoc	2,573	1,197
Marathon	2,150	883
Ozaukee	1,454	851
Sheboygan	1,873	836
Washington	1,473	637
Waukesha	1,258	695

In Milwaukee County, which has had a Socialist majority and where there is a large German population, the Democratic candidate did surprisingly well in the primaries. In 1914 the combined Kearny-Husting primary vote was 12,421. In the recent Senatorial primary the Davies-McCarthy vote was 23,083, larger than the Socialist vote for Berger, who ran unopposed, by approximately 2,000. Of the vote in the Democratic primaries, Davies got 19,836, while in the Republican primaries La Follette's man, Thompson, received 12,964, to 7,755 for Lenroot, the winning candidate.

The Democrats look to Milwaukee for a surprise. They assert that Davies will have a plurality of 23,000 over Lenroot in the city and county.

The Republicans say their inside figures show a plurality of not less than 44,000 for Lenroot in the State. The prevailing betting odds are 2 to 1 on the Republican candidate.

53 YEARS IN POST OFFICE.

Assistant Supt. Frank M. Ball Was Appointed April 1, 1865.

When Assistant Superintendent of Mails Frank M. Ball reaches his offices in the Hudson Terminal Building, from his home at 1,980 Anthony Avenue, the Bronx, today he will have completed fifty-three years of continuous service in the New York Post Office, and he will be compelled to find time amid his usual work to receive congratulations on his record of public service. Ball, who was born in 1846, and is one of the few survivors of Reno Post 44, Grand Army of the Republic, had returned from the civil war on April 1, 1865, when Postmaster James Kelly appointed him a postal clerk. At that time the city's general Post Office was at Nassau and Liberty Streets, in what was known as the "old Dutch Church" building. There were only six branch stations, all below Thirty-fourth Street. "The Post Office made no collections of mail matter in those days."

The Rental System

FOR GAS RANGES HAS BEEN THE MEANS OF SAVING MANY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS FOR MANHATTAN AND BRONX LANDLORDS AND TENANTS. IN OTHER CITIES LANDLORDS OR TENANTS BUY THE RANGES AND PAY FOR REPAIRS, ETC.

Increased taxes, together with other greatly increased costs for the proper maintenance of buildings, have resulted in a heavy advance in rentals. Landlords would have had to make a larger increase had they been compelled to invest capital in Gas Ranges, pay for their installation and the necessary repairs, or replace Ranges made unfit for use through careless and improper treatment.

Those Are the Burdens We Carry

under our "rental system," under which we lost $200,000 in 1916, and large amounts in other years. ¶We rent Ranges of the highest standard for $3, $5, $7, and $8 a year. In other words, we rent you a small range for less than 1 cent a day and a large range for a trifle more than 2 cents a day. Due to the increase in the cost of materials and labor, the manufacturers since 1916 have increased the prices of those Ranges to us 128, 100, 116 and 95 per cent., even though our purchases are in large quantities. In addition to the higher costs for repairing, etc., which we now have to meet, we furnish a "service" pronounced by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT to be the best in the country.

Gen. Gorgas Announces Further Plans for Reconstruction of Men Returning.

WORK MUST BE THOROUGH

Mental and Manual Activity to be Required to Fit Patients for Civil Pursuits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Surgeon General Gorgas announced tonight the approval by the Chief of Staff of additional recommendations for the reconstruction of disabled American soldiers when brought back from France. General Gorgas said that these fourteen hospitals would be used in beginning the work of reconstruction mapped out by the army:

General Hospital No. 2, Fort McHenry, Md.
General Hospital No. 3, Colonia, N. J.
General Hospital No. 4, Fort Porter, N. Y.
General Hospital No. 6, Ft. McPherson, Ga.
General Hospital No. 7, Roland Park, Baltimore, Md.
General Hospital No. 9, Lakewood, N. J.
General Hospital No. 13, Dansville, N. Y.
General Hospital No. 14, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.
Army and Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.
Walter Reed General Hospital, Takoma Park, Washington, D. C.
Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, Cal.
Base Hospital, Ft. Des Moines, Iowa.
Base Hospital, Ft. Riley, Kan.
Base Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

From time to time other hospitals for reconstruction work will be added to this list.

For Special Treatment.

Individual hospitals from this group and from those subsequently added will be equipped and staffed, either throughout or in one or more wards, for special work in cardio-vascular diseases, tuberculosis, neurological and other head surgery cases, orthopedics, amputations, insane cases, war neurosis, (and other neurological cases,) blind, deaf and speech defect cases, general medicine, general surgery, and other specialties to be added.

To which hospitals in the foregoing list cases in each of these specialities will be assigned has not been determined except that insane cases will be cared for at General Hospital No. 4, Fort Porter, N. Y.; blind and deaf at General Hospital No. 7, Roland Park, Baltimore; epileptics and neurotics at General Hospital No. 13, Dansville, N. Y., and special provisions will be made for amputation work at Walter Reed and Letterman Hospitals.

In addition to the provisions of staff and equipment for the treatment of physical disabilities, there will be provisions at each hospital, in accord with the best-known practice, for functional restoration and mental rehabilitation.

The following is the statement of policy recommended by the Surgeon General:

"That hereafter no member of the military service disabled in line of duty, even though not expected to return to duty, will be discharged from service until he has attained complete recovery, or as complete recovery as it is to be expected that he will attain when the nature of his disability is considered. The inauguration of this continued treatment will result, during the period of the war, in the saving to the service of a large number of efficient officers and soldiers who without it would never become able to perform duty.

Aims in Reconstruction.

"Physical reconstruction may be defined as the completest form of medical and surgical treatment carried to the point where maximum functional restoration, mental and physical, has been secured. To secure this result, the use of work, mental and manual, will be required during the convalescent period. This therapeutic measure, in addition to aiding greatly in shortening the convalescent period, retains or arouses mental activities; preventing 'hospitalization,' and enables the patient to be returned to service or civil life with the full realization that he can work in his handicapped state, and with habits of industry much encouraged, if not firmly formed."

At each hospital where reconstruction work is carried on there will be a special "educational" officer, whose functions are thus indicated in the approved recommendations:

"The duties of this officer are to arrange for and supervise, under the direction of the commanding officer of the hospital, the therapeutic work, such as curative workshops, classes, &c., to act as technical adviser to the commanding officer on this subject; to recommend the development of necessary means to keep patients employed so far as it is possible to do so; to make the necessary records of work done in his department; and to have immediate charge of any special training of vocational nature which can be given with the means at hand.

"These officers are to be obtained from the ranks of teachers, vocational instructors and others especially qualified, and will be selected for their training, experience and peculiar fitness for the work. Where it is possible to get a man who is himself handicapped by some physical disability, and who has made a success in life, it is expected to do so."

Patients to Be Employed.

As a result of a survey, made by the Surgeon General's office of men already undergoing reconstruction treatment in this country, it is expected that enlisted men who have completed their treatment and retraining, but are unfitted for further field service, will be found worthy of commissions and well-fitted for the work of supervision. No increase in the number of enlisted men in the Medical Department is anticipated for this work, the expectation being that patients, or former patients, will be used.

"Reconstruction aids," consisting of women trained in special features of reconstruction work, and enlisted men are being provided. There are two classes of these: The first are teachers of simple occupations to men who must remain in bed or in wheel chairs for long periods, but who are not acutely ill and whose minds are active; the others are especially trained in massage work. In this connection the approved recommendations say:

"By the employment of educational officers and reconstruction aids it is expected to develop to the highest point the therapeutic work, and it is expected not only to hasten the recovery of the patients, but that an environment will be created in military hospitals which, while in no way relaxing the necessary discipline, will greatly promote contentment and make the atmosphere of these hospitals such that the time spent in convalescence will pass most pleasantly because the minds and hands of the patients are properly occupied in profitable pursuits."

MORE PHYSICIANS NEEDED.

New Appeal for Enrollment in Medical Reserve Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Dr. Franklin Martin, as Chairman of the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense, announced tonight that it was co-operating with the Surgeon General's office in sending out a new appeal to the medical profession for the enrollment of physicians as members of the Medical Reserve Corps. He said there were 144,930 physicians in the country, and that the Surgeon General's report for March 22 gave a total of 18,138 officers in the Medical Reserve Corps, of whom 14,011 were on active duty.

"Weekly reports," said Dr. Martin, "indicate that the officers are being called to active duty in greater numbers than they are being admitted to the Reserve Corps.

"When the declaration of war demonstrated that there would be great need for physicians, the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense began to secure data regarding physicians throughout the country. In all, 22,380 doctors have been recommended by the Surgeon General to the Adjutant General's office for commissions in the Medical Reserve Corps—15 per cent. of the doctors in the country.

"In addition to the members of the Medical Reserve Corps who are called to active duty, others for various reasons—illness, accident, or other unforeseen contingency—are obliged to leave the service. So the margin is constantly being drawn upon, and the need of new members is indicated, as the Surgeon General and the Council of National Defense are desirous of having a safe margin maintained at all times.

"Physicians who enroll are advised and urged not to relinquish their practice until informed by the Surgeon General's office that they are soon to be called to active service. It has been the policy of the Surgeon General's office to allow fifteen days, in order that a physician may adjust his affairs, between the time that he receives his orders and the date on which he will be expected to report.

"The value of having the medical talent of the country mobilized into a carefully selected, thoroughly trained body of medical officers is becoming more generally recognized. The need is not only for the combatant forces, but also for the other branches, including sanitation, hospital, and camp service.

"It is believed that the patriotic physicians in the States which so far are below the 13 per cent. average will see to it that their State takes a higher place in the list when once the need is clearly brought home to them."

EXTENDS HOSPITAL PLAN.

Red Cross to Care for American Troops on British Soil.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Following the announcement that the War Council of the American Red Cross had appropriated £20,000 for the continuance of its work in British hospitals and for British relief work, initial steps have been taken for the construction of rest camps and hospitals for American troops passing through British territory. In accordance with a request from William Endicott of the commission for Great Britain, $41,725 has been appropriated by the Red Cross War Council for the erection of the new rest camps and hospitals, which will be similar to those erected on the lines of communication in France.

The War Council also has provided for the expansion of the Liverpool Hospital of the American Red Cross.

TOWN HONORS MISS MARTIN.

Rockville Centre Holds Memorial for Worker Killed in Paris.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I., March 31.—Nearly all the village turned out today to do honor to the memory of Miss Winona Caroline Martin, the Y. M. C. A. canteen worker who was killed in a German air raid on Paris on March 11.

Miss Martin formerly was in charge of the Public Library here, and men, women, and children of all classes evinced their sorrow over her tragic death and their anger at the useless Hun slaughter of women and children, the latter having been the theme of Dr. James Sullivan, State Historian, who made the principal address at the memorial held in the Rockville Centre Club this afternoon.

Among those on the platform during the services were Edwin W. Wallace, Village President; Mrs. Earl Gray Bennett, President of the Library Auxiliary, and the members of the Memorial Committee. The Rev. Dr. Peter Quealey and the Rev. Dr. Richard Hegart spoke in praise of the woman's sacrifice, and Sarah Haylis Brown read one of Miss Martin's poems, called "Oh, Rose of Yesterday."

The bronze tablet with a relief portrait of Miss Martin and an inscription commemorative of her wartime service and sacrifice soon will be ready for installation in the Public Library.

PLEA FOR AMERICANIZATION.

Miss Dreier Cites Illiteracy in the Army and Among Woman Voters.

Miss Mary E. Dreier, Chairman of the Americanization Committee of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, which has caused bills to be introduced in the Legislature to provide for training teachers to teach English and civics to adult illiterates, offered two reasons yesterday in support of the measure.

"At Yaphank alone there are 1,600 men in the military camp who do not speak or understand English," said Miss Dreier. "As Secretary Lane pointed out the other day, these men cannot read the manual of arms—cannot even understand orders. At the various camps some effort is being made to teach these men. But in later drafts they should be taught before going to camp."

Miss Dreier says there are 225,000 women in the State who are illiterate in any language, yet they have been enfranchised through the naturalization of their husbands and may vote next Fall.

TO MAKE CRIPPLES SELF-SUPPORTING

Red Cross Institute Aims to Teach Disabled Men Some Useful Trade.

PROBLEM GROWS WITH WAR

Director Says Public Must Change Attitude from One of Charity to Practical Helpfulness.

In a discussion of the organization, work, and method of the Red Cross Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men, just completed by its director, Dr. Douglas C. McMurtrie, stress is laid upon the necessity of reform in the public attitude toward the cripple if "reconstruction" work for the maimed, both of military and industrial armies, is to be carried on successfully in this country. At the same time Dr. McMurtrie reports encouraging success of the young institution, thus far, and prophesies that the work it is doing will prove of immense value when the military authorities find themselves confronted with the problem of rehabilitation on a large scale.

The director believes that the foundations for adequate scientific solution of a problem long handled in a slipshod manner in this country are being laid, and that sufficient education of the public will result in the development of ample opportunities for the reabsorption into commercial and industrial life of men who in former years were considered helpless objects of charity.

"In the rehabilitation of disabled men an absolute essential is co-operation on the part of the public. The community must have intelligence regarding the methods and sympathy with the aims," he says.

"Up to the present time the attitude of the public toward the cripple has been singularly pernicious, and of decided hindrance rather than help in his efforts to make good. The people have been ready—all too ready—with sympathy proceeding from the heart but not from the head. There have been alms in plenty for the cripple on the street and public asylums open to shelter him. But there has been no assistance of a constructive nature. The hospitals in which he was treated turned him out before he was in shape to face life again; there have been no schools in which he could be trained for a trade possible to his capacities.

"Employers have considered the cripple helpless and have denied him opportunity of trial at any job worth while. A position as watchman or doorkeeper was about the best he could expect.

To Change Public Attitude.

"It is evident that, if reconstruction work with crippled men is to be successful, this attitude must radically be altered. The employer must be brought to think: 'Too bad, but we must not think of any charity job. We must look around to pick out for you a job at which you can be as useful as before the amputation.' The reaction of the individual must come to be: 'That was hard luck, but you will get along all right. Think of all the cripples, more seriously disabled, who have made real successes and are now happy and self-supporting.'

"The public demand on the cripple must be that he fight for his independence, rather than subside into an object of pity. One duty of a pioneer institution thus becomes clear. The pernicious attitude can be metamorphosed only by an extensive, persistent, and patient campaign of public education. The institute has accepted its share of responsibility in this field and has inaugurated educational effort directed through a variety of channels."

After detailing various methods already in use for bringing the work before the public, Dr. McMurtrie tells of the amplification of efforts to that end through the organization of a speakers' bureau. On this subject he says:

"With interest in reconstruction work growing apace, the demand for speakers to discuss the subject before conventions and meetings of one type or another has been frequent. In order to take the initiative in arranging for discussion of re-education for crippled and disabled men before a larger number of audiences, there is being organized, in co-operation with the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, a speakers' bureau. Volunteers are being recruited."

Much hope of augmenting its usefulness is based by the institution upon the results of a "survey of industrial processes" whereby scientific study is being made of the best opportunities for the utilization of cripples.

"Some important responsibilities in this work have been assumed by the committee of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, which is working with the Red Cross Institute. This assistance will materially increase the extent and value of the work," Dr. McMurtrie writes.

"There are many discouraging features in the work of finding employment for cripples. The employers are prejudiced and there is often but poor material to offer them. Eventually, however, it is hoped that the department will be prepared to deal with every type of cripple and give him really scientific aid toward securing the best kind of job."

Four Trades Found Suitable.

The institute was established in 1917, and is a national activity of the American Red Cross, with headquarters at 311 Fourth Avenue, this city. It is responsible to the War Council through Jesse H. Jones, Director General of Military Relief. Supervision of operation is under a committee composed of Lieut. Col. C. H. Connor, Chairman; Jeremiah Milbank, Vice Chairman; Major Sidney Burnap, Dr. Richard M. Pearce, and Dr. McMurtrie.

One of the principal parts of the institution is the educational department wherein an occupation is selected under these considerations: Its suitability for handicapped persons, the length of time required for training, the standard of wages in the industry, the prospects of employment, and the attitude of the trade toward apprentices. Four trades already have been decided upon and equipment installed for teaching them. They are the manufacture of artificial limbs, oxy-acetylene welding, mechanical drafting, and printing. The manufacture of artificial limbs has been found especially suitable, while there is a great shortage of skilled workers in this trade. At the same time men themselves maimed are found to display sympathetic interest in and understanding of the problems to be solved.

There is a Field Work Department, which gets in touch with cripples and interests them in the opportunities for assistance offered them. There has been held a series of "parties" for cripples, and at these affairs men who are themselves badly handicapped have made new successes of their lives. The institute maintains an employment department, which is doing painstaking, effective work in searching out openings for cripples and broadening the field of receptivity.

LAUDS SPIRIT OF TROOPS.

Gypsy Smith Stirs Audience by Recital of War Experiences.

Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, stirred a large audience at the Century Theatre yesterday by a recital of his experiences as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the fighting forces in France. Gypsy Smith came to America for the first time twenty-nine years ago. When he appeared on the platform yesterday in the uniform of a Y. M. C. A. worker he received an ovation. The evangelist caused much enthusiasm by waving a string of flags of allied nations with the Stars and Stripes in the centre. Speaking of the general developments in the world war, he said:

"Russia has been betrayed. She has been sold even as your Master and mine was sold with the kiss of Judas. And when peace comes, as it will, a peace brought about by the Allies, it will not be concluded until every inch of Russia that has been trodden under foot by the beast of Berlin is returned to its own people."

Describing the spirit of the men at the front, Gypsy Smith said:

"I speak too of your American boys, for they are with us. There were 30,000 of them fighting under the British flag before you entered the war as a nation. They were just a bit ahead of you. But I believe that you entered this war in the right way and at the right time. Your wonderful President, the sanest man that God has given to this generation, came, and he brought all of you with him. And you came with him to stay until the day dawns and the darkness flees away. It will dawn. Don't be despondent; we're not."

Gypsy Smith praised the religious spirit of the soldiers at the front. "They are face to face with the sternest facts of life and death," he said. "They have been suffering more than you at home will ever know, suffering cheerfully, but earnestly, and when they come back they expect to find you different from what you were before the war, because they are different. You must not disappoint them. You must not destroy their faith in you and in your churches and in your ideals. If they come back and find you frivolous and superficial and selfish and mean they will despise you and have nothing but contempt for you, and they will turn their backs on you and your churches and your preachers forever."

SUN SENDS 75,000 TO CONEY

War Tax Uses Up Cent Supply—Too Chilly for Bathers.

Although the official opening of Coney Island will not be celebrated until May, about 75,000 persons visited the resort yesterday. Most of the scenic railways and merry-go-rounds were open, as was Steeplechase Park. On all the rides the managers collected a cent on each fare, as the war tax, and a scarcity of cents was reported. The "hot dog" now sells for ten cents, with none on meatless days, but the bath-house keepers are jubilant because the daylight saving adds another hour of sunshine to the bathers' evening and makes his visit to Coney likely to be more frequent.

Few of the 75,000 visitors ventured into the cold surf yesterday. Although the sun was shining brightly, a cold wind blew up in the afternoon and drove even the "snowbirds" from the water.

While the visitors had little difficulty reaching the island, they had trouble leaving. At the West End and Culver terminals lines of 500 persons long waited to buy tickets from single agents, and there were no station masters to direct the throngs to platforms. Policemen were called to handle the Sunday crowds, and they had difficulty keeping order near the stations.

One Dead, Five Hurt in Auto Crash.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., March 31.—George Hall, of 1 Willow Street, Jamaica, L. I., was thrown from an automobile and killed here yesterday morning when the automobile turned over while rounding a corner at Franklin Street and Fulton Avenue. Three other passengers, Frank Parsons of 78 Gilbert Street, Jamaica; Harry Young of 1 Willow Street, and Private Claude Munderbach, 654th Aero Squadron, stationed at Mineola, whose home is in Oneida, N. Y., and the driver, Charles Hough of 80 Gilbert Street, were also thrown from the automobile and seriously injured. It was said at the Nassau Hospital, where they were taken, that Mr. Young, who is suffering from a fractured skull, probably will not recover.

SEABURY ATTACKS THE HEARST BOOM

Ex-Judge Issues a Statement Warning Democrats of "a Serious Peril."

TELLS OF TAMMANY DEAL

Conference Called at Syracuse of Up-State Democratic Leaders Opposed to the Hearst Movement.

Democrats in the city and State who are opposed to the nomination for Governor this Fall of William R. Hearst are laying plans to make a bitter fight against him should he enter the primaries. Hearst propaganda is being quietly circulated throughout the State with a view of having him chosen as the Democratic standard bearer, and the anti-Hearstites have become alarmed at the spread of the sentiment in his favor. The latest Democrat of prominence to attack the growth of the Hearst boom is Samuel Seabury, ex-Judge of the Court of Apepals, and the Democratic candidate for Governor two years ago.

Mr. Seabury issued a statement yesterday warning up-State Democrats to head off the Hearst boomers. He said that Tammany Hall had secretly aligned itself with Hearst with a view of getting control of the State, and that those opposed to Hearst must arouse themselves speedily if Hearst was to be defeated. Up-State Democrats, he pointed out, have it in their power to head off the Hearst nomination, as they cast more votes than the Democrats in New York City. If Hearst should decide to run in the primaries, Mr. Seabury predicted that a bitter fight would be made against him.

Hearst Plans Kept Secret.

Mr. Hearst has given no indication up to the present as to what he intends to do. Political leaders who are watching the situation say he is playing identically the same kind of politics he played last Fall, when he kept all the politicians guessing for weeks as to whether or not he would enter the Mayoralty race. It was only at the last minute that he refused to make the fight and retired in favor of Judge Hylan's candidacy. Those who are familiar with the Hearst system of playing politics predict that he will keep his plans secret this year as long as possible, so as to give his enemies little opportunity for attacking him. That Mr. Hearst's friends are quietly but effectively building up a machine in his interests throughout the State is well known to the political leaders of all parties.

The announcement a few days ago by William F. Conners of Buffalo that he would support Hearst if he should run was taken to mean that the Hearst agents are going to leave no stone unturned to further his candidacy. Just what Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, is going to do, even Mr. Murphy's closest political advisers say they do not know, but those opposed to Hearst frankly say that there is every indication that Murphy and Hearst have already made a deal, and that Tammany will be found behind the Hearst candidacy at the proper time.

While Tammany's attitude is still unknown, politicians have not overlooked the fact that Hearst has an open advocate in Mayor Hylan. It is admitted that the Mayor's strength, politically, is not great, but it is believed that John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn, who discovered Hylan, will also swing his support to Hearst at the proper time. A Hylan-Murphy-McCooey combination favorable to Hearst in New York City, with strong Hearst combinations in up-State cities, will be sufficient to defeat any anti-Hearst candidate, the Hearst men believe, and it is along these lines that their campaign is being waged.

Seek Opposition Candidate.

The anti-Hearst Democrats are handicapped by the fact that they have no candidate on whom to units at present. A conference of up-State leaders is to be held at the Hotel Onondaga, Syracuse, on April 24, at which it is planned to map out a campaign to oppose Hearst and bring forth a candidate if possible. Several leaders believe that the up-State men will get behind Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Anti-Hearst leaders have been feeling out Roosevelt sentiment in various parts of the State, and it was said yesterday that his name was being well received. Roosevelt is also popular in Tammany Hall, and, as against Mr. Hearst, it is expected that he will get the support of a number of district leaders as well as many of the rank and file. The Republican leaders are convinced that Mr. Hearst will be nominated by the Democrats, and are making their plans accordingly. Governor Whitman, who is an avowed candidate for a third term, has said that he has no doubt but that Mr. Hearst would be his antagonist.

In making his attack upon Mr. Hearst ex-Judge Seabury believes that he will crystallize all the anti-Hearst sentiment and begin a campaign that will bring about the editor's defeat should he decide to enter the primaries.

In the course of his statement, which is addressed "to the Democrats of New York," Mr. Seabury said:

"A serious peril confronts the Democratic Party in this State. When the people are preparing to discard the present Republican administration, our success is endangered by the menace of Hearst's nomination for Governor.

"We find ourselves in a peculiar situation. A Republican Governor presumes to select his Democratic opponent. Perhaps the wish is father to the thought. Governor Whitman is probably correct in believing that Hearst would be his most easily vanquished opponent and hence names him as the most probable.

"To many the very idea will seem incredible, but to say that Hearst is discredited is no conclusive answer. Though neither the Democratic Party nor the public want him, he is willing to spend money, always his chief political asset, through his own agents, to accomplish his purpose. His newspapers prove that he wants the nomination by prominently displaying resolutions, passed by organizations controlled by him and Mayor Hylan, urging him to be the candidate.

"The people of the State have not, as yet, completely mastered the direct primary as a means of expressing their will. Hence a powerful machine, plentiful publicity and an unlimited campaign fund may impose an obnoxious candidate on the party."

Continuing, Mr. Seabury says that there "are over 200,000 Democrats in the State who will not under any circumstances vote for Hearst." He reviews the political history of the last ten years and in conclusion says:

"The Hearst-Tammany combination cannot succeed. If this nomination is forced on the party, it will meet opposition in the primary. The true character of the conspiracy to put this State in the hands of the Hearst-Tammany combination will be made so clear that it will have no chance of success."

TAKE 500 TO UPTON.

Plan for Free Auto Transportation Carried Out Successfully.

About 500 relatives of soldiers at Camp Upton yesterday accepted the offer of free transportation to the camp offered by the American Automobile Association and the Long Island Automobile Club, and, although the eighty automobiles at the disposal of the clubs were used in the journey, hundreds who applied for tickets could not be taken.

Frank H. Newcomb, President of the Long Island Automobile Club, said last night that the free transportation to the camp was accepted so gratefully by relatives of soldiers who were unable to get leave from the camp, and the trip was such a success in every way, that he favored increasing the number of automobiles next Sunday.

Most of the automobiles started on their 150-mile trip about 9 o'clock yesterday morning and arrived at the camp in time for the relatives to have luncheon with the soldiers. The start back to the city was decided by vote of the occupants of the cars, and several of the machines did not return until midnight. No accidents were reported.

The officials of the clubs and associations will exert efforts this week to try to obtain more automobiles for next Sunday. Most of the cars accepted the offer of William K. Vanderbilt for free use of the Motor Parkway.

It was announced last night that all owners who wished to give the use of their cars for next Sunday should send their names and addresses and the size of their cars to the American Automobile Association Touring Department at 501 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-second Street.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., March 31.—Although 12,000 men were in New York on leave, the camp was thronged with an Easter crowd of visitors today, who made their own Easter parade along Upton's boulevard. Eight special trains brought them, and there were scores of motors.

In the morning nearly every man attended religious services. There were twenty-two Protestant services, with flowers and special music. Nine Easter masses were celebrated. The Rev. William T. Manning conducted a communion service this morning.

TO END GERMAN WOOL GRIP.

Alien Property Custodian Aims to Seize All Enemy-Owned Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, tonight announced plans for taking and operating six great German-owned woolen mills in New Jersey, which employ 25,000 hands and represent $70,000,000 capital—about 99 per cent. owned in Germany. The earnings will be invested in Liberty bonds.

The mills are the Botany Worsted Mills of Passaic, the Garfield Worsted Mills of Garfield, the Passaic Worsted Spinning Mills, the Gera Mills, the New Jersey Worsted Spinning Company, and the Forstmann & Huffman Company of Passaic.

In announcing the completion of the Government's plans Mr. Palmer tonight made this statement:

"Other enemy-owned mill properties in other parts of the country, now under examination, will be taken over by the Government from time to time, and the cumulative effect of these Government measures will, it is believed, separate forever the woolen business in this country from the domination, if not complete ownership, of the Woolen Cartel of the German Government."

DIRECT TAX NEXT YEAR, TOO

Rate Will Be About the Same as Now, Controller Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 31.—A direct State tax, with a rate approximately the same as now, is inevitable next year, according to State Controller Travis. The tax will be necessary, he believes, to meet the mandatory sinking fund requirements.

"The ordinary expenses of government, exclusive of sinking fund requirements, will need all of the estimated resources for the year," says the controller. "The levying of a direct tax for the sinking fund requirements is mandatory under the Constitution and, in voting for the issue of bonds, the people of the State themselves pledged a direct tax each year until these bonds are redeemed."

SEES JEW ENSLAVED BY GERMAN VICTORY

Rabbi Wise Says All Should Give Their Best Energies to the Allied Cause.

DR. SCHULMAN ON ZIONISM

Says Israel's Home is Everywhere—Nationality Abdicated as Too Small a Thing.

Predicting the enslavement of the Jewish race as the "vassals of an unscrupulous monarch," if Germany emerges from the war victorious, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, before the congregation of the Free Synagogue, at Carnegie Hall, yesterday called upon the Jews of the country to give all their strength and energies to the support of the allied cause in this war. He pointed out that anti-Semitism had its deepest and most vicious root in Germany, and that for Germany to win would practically set the Jews back 3,000 years.

"We are witnessing again on the world's stage," he said, "the drama of the attempt to enthrall the liberties of the world. The world cannot exist half slave, half free. The clash between the Allies and the German hordes is not a war between nations simply, but a war between two ideas. The Western World has learned that every people should be free, and live its own life. Prussianism decrees that if other peoples are not strong enough to keep away from the yoke of bondage, then they shall be slaves.

"This is a time of human crises. Forty years ago the Jews began to feel the pricks of anti-Semitism in Germany. It was made in Germany and exported to Russia, and there made more cruel and terrible. The Germans believed they were superman, and they regarded the Jews as intramen. Russia would not have dared to take up the idea of anti-Semitism if it had not been canonized in Germany. I honor the Jew because he is singled out as not fitting in with the scheme of autocracy. This war involves the issue for which Moses fought. It is Germany against world freedom, and nothing remains worth while if world freedom is lost."

Dr. Wise touched on the victory of the British which has made possible the occupation of the Holy Land by the Jews as their homeland. He called the Holy Land the "heritage of Israel," and said the capture of it was an answer to the call of "the new world conscience." He declared that the "very stars in their courses were fighting with the Allies," and that the young Jews with the other soldiers in the allied armies, were "transfigured into young gods who have put aside all other precious things in life in their fight for world freedom."

"The War and the Jewish Problem" was the subject of the address of Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of the Temple Beth-El, yesterday. Dr. Schulman discussed the problems that face modern Judaism, with especial reference to Zionism.

"There never was such a momentous hour for the Jewish soul," he said, "since the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem. The 14,000,000 Jews scattered all over the world will have their destiny in great measure determined by the decision which Jewry in western lands will make. This decision will turn on the question whether the Jews desire to be recognized as an historic group—scattered all over the world, which seeks its only reason for existence in loyalty to the everlasting God of the fathers, or whether the Jews wish to declare themselves a secular people like others, a nationality without a home, which in this time when so many little nations are clamoring for recognition, also seeks a soil of its own upon which to express its nationhood."

"Two philosophies of Jewish life are contending for mastery. They are both very modern. They are the expressions of men and women profoundly influenced by modern thought and seeking to solve the Jewish problem in a modern way. Reform Judaism and Zionism are both children of modernity. They both represent the reaction of the Jewish mind to the western environment and the attempt to seek and find durable adjustment. Reform Judaism stands for the thought that Israel is only a religious group. Zionism stands for the idea that Israel is a nation like other nations, and is therefore at present living an abnormal life.

"We can only accept the position of reformed Judaism on this subject. We must say that our home is everywhere. It ought to be everywhere. Despite the sneers at the mission of the Jew, it is the only sound idea which justifies Jewish existence. Our mission is a simple one, to witness to the moral holiness of life, and to the holy God, whom alone we worship. Reform Judaism has given this great, fruitful idea to the work, that Israel is a priestly people, with the right and the duty to live among the nations.

"Reform Judaism has given forth the idea that Israel has abdicated nationality as too little a thing, that it feels itself to be the servant of the eternal among the peoples. The modern Jew is called upon to do one of two things, either adopt the philosophy of secular nationalism, despair of living the Jewish life in the western world, and expatriate himself from it in spirit and seek a refuge in Palestine, or he must bravely and resolutely say 'I will belong to the nations whose life I share, and in the midst of the nations I will still remain a Jew.' Such an ideal seems to many of us much more glorious than for the Jews to become a nation again, to be made into a buffer State, and eventually to be kicked and be buffeted, as was ancient Israel, a football for the world powers which in those days fought on its soil."

LIST ALL BUYERS OF GERMAN BONDS

State Has Names of 40,000 Investors in $500,000,000 of the Kaiser's War Loans.

TO BE SENT TO WASHINGTON

May Be Used for Liberty Loan Comparison—Comes Out Through Bolo Inquiry.

An official index, which when completed, will contain the names of more than 40,000 individuals and corporations, who in the days of American neutrality invested their money in German imperial war bonds, is now nearing completion in the office of Attorney General Merton E. Lewis at 299 Broadway. These 40,000 persons or corporations purchased a total of more than $500,000,000 worth of German war bonds, a great many of the purchasers owning bonds of two and three, and in some instances four, German war loans.

Every part of the United States is represented on the list, with New York and the Middle West leading in the number of subscribers and the value of the holdings. Included in those who invested for large amounts are bankers, manufacturers, lawyers, and college professors, while among the purchasers of lesser amounts are representatives of every branch of industry, capital as well as labor. The former army officer, Captain D. A. Henkes, who was recently sent to the Fort Leavenworth prison for twenty-nine years for his pro-German activities, shows up in the list as not only a buyer of German, but also of Austro-Hungarian, war bonds.

The value of the individual holdings vary all the way from a few to nearly $1,000,000. A great many women are included in the list, some of them well known.

When the list is completed and indexed the original will probably be retained by the State, and copies furnished to the Federal Government in Washington and the United States authorities in New York. It is said that a copy may also be furnished to the Liberty Loan Committee, in order that the committee may, when the rush of work due to the floating of the Third Liberty Loan slackens, have an opportunity to ascertain whether the American citizens on the list were as liberal in their investments in the American as they were in the German loans.

That the State of New York has been able to get a complete list of the German war bond owners, who invested through the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, is another of the developments growing out of Attorney General Lewis's investigation of the Bolo Pacha-Bernstorff-Pavenstedt-Hugo Schmidt operations in this country, which investigation, undertaken at the request of the French Government, led to the discovery of the plot entered into by Bernstorff and Bolo to debauch public opinion in France in favor of Germany, and also led to the conviction of Bolo, in France, as a traitor to his country.

The "wool corner" scheme was another of the results of the Bolo Pacha investigation, as is also a fourth investigation which is now under way to determine whether or not a certain famous French politician has been concerned in a suspected plot to further German propaganda in France. Germany's schemes to get jute, cotton, resin, and other needed materials were also disclosed through an inspection of papers seized by the Attorney General in the course of his investigation of the Bolo Pacha-Bernstorff affair.

In other words, when the State of New York took possession of Hugo Schmidt's papers it came unexpectedly into possession of data which throws light on every phase of German activity in this country up to the time that Schmidt was arrested by Government agents and ordered interned for the rest of the war.

Schmidt's papers, practically all of them originals or office copies of Deutsche Bank documents, will, when printed and bound, make more than a score of big volumes. That German, who was always busy in the interest of the Fatherland, it turns out, was unable to destroy anything in the shape of a document.

"Like von Papen," said a State official yesterday, "he simply could not destroy a letter or other written document."

The fact that some of the greatest woolen mills in America are controlled in Germany was disclosed through a study of Schmidt's papers. Likewise his papers have disclosed the real ownership of certain other great properties in this country, the facts in connection with which will be made public in due course of time.

To revert to the bond owners. As the Attorney General points out these persons or corporations had a right to invest their money the way they did, but the great majority of them never thought their investments would ever be divulged by the Germans. Most of the buyers bought through banks, with which Schmidt had agreements, and in order to get the names of the individual purchasers, the Attorney General, in a number of instances, had to call upon the banks for a list of the individual subscribers who bought through them.

In one instance an Ohio bank, which had a German name before this country entered the war, but which now bears the name of a martyred President, refused to supply the list. However Schmidt came to the rescue, for among his papers was found subsequently the complete list. Among the college professors whose names are on the list are a number from Wisconsin. Whether or not these professors are La Follette followers is not disclosed by the Schmidt papers.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK
Fifth Avenue and 44th Street
NEW YORK

Fair Dealing

A decade ago a billion dollars looked to us like all the money in the world. Moreover, whereas we unquestionably formerly thought in currency, today we think in terms of credit, and we regard with equanimity Government loans in the billions and commercial loans multiplied many times over previous maxima.

It takes more money, and also more credit, to do business today than it ever did before. For one thing, our volume of business is greater, and for another thing, as bankers who are close to their mercantile customers know, current prices for goods are higher and inventory calls for liberal banking accommodation. We have yet to hear, however, of any responsible merchant being turned from a sound bank because of his needs—either the merchant or the bank does not qualify.

The Harriman National Bank is taking care of its old friends, as the phrase goes, and making new friends. The secret of our success is an open one. It is fair and frank dealing; we make no promises today that tomorrow we may be unwilling or unable to fulfill, so that when we receive the compliment of a visit from a merchant to discuss relations, if we cannot do business with him, we frankly tell him so and thus retain his respect.

The Harriman National Bank likes to compare its services and facilities to the merchant's wares. If the prospective customer does not like our goods or our terms of sale, or if we do not like his class of business or terms of payment, we nevertheless look to the day when the circumstances may change.

Liberty Loan Advertising

Guy Emerson, Director of Publicity, Liberty Loan Committee, New York, in an article in The Editor and Publisher of March 2, 1918, said:

"A great deal has been said about the five pages we used in The New York Times in one day at the close of the last Liberty Loan campaign. It has been called scatter-brained advertising.

"But when you remember that The New York Times is the leading paper of its kind in the United States, and the results we got from it, the five pages were not too much to use in the single day.

"Hundreds of thousands of people read The Times, and we went to them with force in five pages. Among the readers of The Times are visitors to the metropolis, foreigners, and the men who control the machinery of the country, and we reached them all with a vigor that was effective."

SETTLE FATE TODAY OF PARK TRENCHES

Loan Committee to Discuss Site and Possibility of Executing the Tentative Plans.

DRAINAGE SYSTEM NEEDED

Construction Would Cause Further Delays—Proposed Diversion of Men from Essential Work Assailed.

Decision will be reached at this afternoon's meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee on the matter of the trench system which the committee has proposed to build in Central Park as a method of advertising the Third Liberty Loan campaign. While officials of the committee refused to indicate last night the nature of the matters to be taken up at the meeting in this regard, it was understood that the committee would have the final word as to the site of the trench system, whether in the North Meadow or the Sheep Meadow of Central Park, as well as the consideration of other elements affecting the possibility of executing the plans of the publicity department. Here are the members of the Liberty Loan Committee:

Chairman, Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.
James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce.
George F. Baker, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank.
Allen B. Forbes, President of Harris, Forbes & Co.
Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank.
Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank.
J. P. Morgan, head of J. P. Morgan & Co.
Seward Prosser, President of the Bankers Trust Company.
Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company.
Jacob H. Schiff, head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.
Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank.
Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States.
James S. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company.
Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank.
William Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank.

Guy Emerson, director of publicity to the Liberty Loan Committee, said yesterday that he expected that the Sheep Meadow would be chosen as the site of the trenches. Various reasons which have led some to believe that this site would be preferable from the engineering and publicity standpoints have been given previously, but Mr. Emerson added that the Sheep Meadow had the favor of the Park Department.

"We have received a letter from Carl F. Pilat, landscape architect of the Park Department," he said, "in which he told us that the present condition of the Sheep Meadow was such that the department had decided that it must be restored and put into good condition again even if the trenches were not constructed, and that in view of that fact, the Liberty trenches had better be placed there rather than in a part of the park which would not otherwise have to be restored."

It has already been indicated that construction of the trench system, which cannot begin before Tuesday morning, is likely to take at least ten days, since it involves the possibility of blasting in places where the rock runs close to the surface, as well as a great deal of excavation, which, under the direction of Thomas C. Desmond, who will be in charge of the engineering work involved in the construction of the trenches, will be carried out with as much care as possible.

The work of building a drainage system to keep the bottoms of the trenches from resembling the channels of mud which are found in the trenches on the western front in wet weather, but which would be inconvenient for sightseers, will also take a good deal of time, and while it has been pointed out that troops could dig themselves in, under fire, in a few hours, they would ordinarily use up their spare time for some days thereafter in the construction of anything like a complete trench system, such as the Liberty Loan Committee has proposed to display to the public.

Some opposition to the plan was suggested yesterday, in view of the fact that the central part of the western front, at least, has ceased for the time being to be the scene of trench warfare. Open fighting of the old style has replaced the constant warfare over No Man's Land in the wide field of operations covered by the present German drive, so the reproduction of a trench system would give only a glimpse of a phase of war which is momentarily in the background, and which may have passed into history.

Digging By Soldiers Was Planned.

Still another difficulty confronts the trench project. It was learned yesterday that the original plan had been to have the trenches dug by American soldiers, who had learned the art at military training camps and who could continue to man the trench system as a permanent garrison during the remainder of the Liberty Loan campaign. It had been thought possible to obtain a certain number of soldiers from camps around New York for this purpose, but under present circumstances this seems to be for obvious reasons a matter of considerably more difficulty than it might have been under other conditions. Recent events have emphasized the necessity of keeping the troops in army camps and cantonments under continuous and vigorous training, and the promise of soldiers for this purpose seems less likely to be fulfilled than it did two weeks ago.

William Guggenheim yesterday protested against the diversion of men from essential labor at this time, when it is so greatly needed in many departments of war work, for an enterprise which he maintained was unnecessary for the success of the Liberty Loan.

"Men are badly needed," he said, "for the building of ships, the manufacture of munitions, and filling the ranks in our army and navy. It seems to me, therefore, that trench digging in our park would interfere with the more immediate demands on the time of our citizens. Furthermore, if the news contained in the daily press, giving extended information of the greatest and most sanguinary battle in history, which is now progressing, will not awaken our interest in the war and stimulate our patriotism, I am confident that nothing else will. The Liberty Loan Committee should abandon the trench project and confine itself to the usual salesmanship methods of advertising and soliciting.

"If any such public display is contemplated at all, it seems to me it could much better take the form of a military recruiting camp, with the sale of Liberty bonds as a quite subsidiary activity. Our men are so badly needed in other ways and for other purposes that it seems to me that the conservation of man-power is of chief importance, and that methods like this are not only of no necessity for the purpose of pushing the loan, but are an unwarranted drain upon our resources."

The statement issued last week by the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, at which its Board of Trustees indicated that they felt that it was no longer possible for them to continue the active opposition to the trench plan which they had hitherto shown, seems to have been understood in some quarters as indicating that the society now favored the scheme.

Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, Secretary of the society, who took an active part in the fight to save Central Park at the Board of Estimate's hearings on the matter, said last night that this was an incorrect interpretation of the position of the society.

"When our Board of Trustees met last Monday night," he said, "it appeared that the trench system was going to be constructed, and that there was no possibility of further opposition. We, therefore, said that 'the society accepts a situation which it has been impossible to prevent.' Our statement was designed to make clear to all the fact that our opposition was purely to what we regarded as a misuse of Central Park, and that whatever might be the decision of the ultimate authority on that point, we intended to accord the fullest support to the third Liberty Loan, as we had done to the first and second. It did not indicate any change of attitude as to the wisdom of the trench scheme itself."

Publicity Value Questioned.

A well-known publicity promoter yesterday pointed out some undesirable features of the trench plan, and suggested that as a publicity scheme it was of somewhat questionable value. "To exhibit the trenches," he said, "and a mock war, as they did in Paris, produces a negative effect. It is known that more than one child contracted St. Vitus's dance from shock. It was too much. It had an extremely depressing effect, and the French people would never stand for its repetition.

"Did you ever notice the confusion at a fireworks display? Besides, fireworks go up into the air and can be seen without standing on boxes or tiptoeing. Our trench display is not to be run off in an arena, hence it can be seen plainly by only a handful of people. If the proposed plans are executed the effect on the minds of a few favored front line spectators will be more than offset by the polite clubbing the police will find it necessary to administer to the public at large. The whole thing is negative, unnecessary, bombastic, and extravagant, to say nothing of its being destructive.

"Much better results could be produced by the extensive showing of authentic moving pictures dealing with the war and with the activities of the German Government under circumstances which would make it possible for as large assemblages as possible to see them."

A considerable number of people wandered over the Sheep Meadow in the afternoon sunshine yesterday and looked over the tentative site of the trench system as it has been marked out with stakes and white cord. The advanced trenches are in the southeastern part of the meadow, and the communicating trench runs back almost to the mineral water stand, a little east of the exit at Seventy-second Street and Central Park West. The crowd examined the outlines of the system and the shallow holes which had been cut here and there to enable the engineers to examine the consistency of the soil with a certain amount of curiosity, but there was not a great deal of comment. Such as it was, it seemed to be divided according to an age limit. Boys under 15 were more or less excited by the prospect of seeing trenches in the park and finding out how the fighting was done, while older persons in a number of cases expressed regret at the damage which it was apparent would be done to the meadow. Several truckloads of lumber which were intended for use in the construction of the trenches were piled on the lower edge of the meadow, and formed convenient seats for many strollers who wanted to rest awhile in the pleasant warmth of the afternoon.

PARIS KEEPS UP PARKS IN THE MIDST OF WAR

An Inspiration to the People and a Lesson for Us Against the Trench Proposal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it not rather in the irony of things that while France, in the fourth year of the very heart of war, plants again and keeps intact her lovely parks and gardens, (and no doubt England does the same,) America, which has hardly yet done more than play with the idea of war, should be preparing to dig up and ruin one of her few and meagre beauty spots?

In all war-torn Europe I saw nothing more touching, and nothing more inspiring as a symbol of France's immortal faith and spirit of victory, then the replanting last Spring of the flower beds in the Tuileries gardens, literally within sound of the guns when the wind blew our way.

If the people of New York (who alone will be benefited by the object lesson) have so little imagination that not even the movies can tell them what a trench is like, why not get up for their benefit an aerial bombardment, (which is far more impressive than a trench,) and make it what the stage directions call "practical." There is a good deal in New York which needs to be destroyed, but Central Park is not one of the items.

GRACE ELLERY CHANNING.
New York, March 28, 1918.

As a Compromise.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article in today's TIMES in regard to placing trenches in Central Park expresses the opinion of the majority of the people. The pictures in the magazine show what will happen if we allow Central Park to be used for any such purposes. Opinions upon the subject can be divided into three classes: (1) those which oppose trenches anywhere as unnecessary, (2) those which advocate trenches but do not insist upon locating them in Central Park, and (3) those which advocate trenches in Central Park. Why not compromise and have trenches in Van Cortlandt Park on the site where the 7th Regiment camped last Summer? It is about as easy to reach as Central Park. The 242d Street station is only about 100 feet from the site. There is more space, and blasting would not be necessary.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Booth Tarkington's "Penrod" stories have been made into a play by Edward E. Rose, and will be produced under the title of "Penrod" by Klaw & Erlanger and George C. Tyler. The piece will be presented in Atlantic City on May 20, and will then be seen in Washington. It will be brought to New York early next season.

The first appearance of Charles J. Carter, the magician, at the Belmont Theatre, has been advanced to next Friday night.

Fania Marinoff, at present leading woman at the Greenwich Village Theatre, has been engaged for the principal role in "Bruised Wings," a drama by Edward Clark. The piece will be produced out of town on June 3.

"Midnight," a comedy by Samuel Janney and Edward Delaney Dunn, will be produced for the first time in Wilmington next Monday night. The Meridian Producing Company is making the production.

Annie Hughes has been engaged for "The Gay Lothario," a musical play now in rehearsal under the direction of the Shuberts.

The Sixty Club will give a ball at the Hotel Astor next Saturday night in aid of the Stage Women's War Relief.

'THE BLUE BIRD' A HIT ON SCREEN

Many Opportunities in Maeterlinck's Work to Exploit Stage Magic.

ALL THE PARTS WELL DONE

Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner"—Other Sunday Openings.

Hundreds of usually prosaic people went to the Rivoli Theatre yesterday and found the Blue Bird, Tyltyl and Mytyl and all the folk and fairies and Things-with-souls of their wondrous acquaintance were there, and they presented "The Blue Bird" to the delighted audience.

M. Maeterlinck's poem has been transferred from a book to the screen, and it is a safe assertion to say that seldom, if ever, has the atmosphere and spirit of a written work been more faithfully reproduced in motion pictures. Those who have read "The Blue Bird" and felt its charm will be exceptional if they do not get from the play at the Rivoli at least a very large part of what they got from the book, and if they are people whose imagination failed them before the printed page, they will get more.

The presentation of "The Blue Bird" begins with an orchestral prelude arranged to create the right mood in the spectators. This music and what follows throughout the action of the picture is made from selections from twenty-two composers supplemented by original compositions by Hugo Riesenfeld, musical director of the Rivoli and Rialto, and Edward Falck of the theatres' musical staff. A special setting designed by John Wenger heightens the mood, and then Robin Macdougall as Tyltyl and Tula Belle as Mytyl appear. From the moment of their first smiles until they turn at the end of the play to appeal to the spectators to find blue birds in their own homes Tyltyl and Mytyl are as delightful as children, real or imaginary, ever are. Robin Macdougall and Tula Belle make them so. A number of times during yesterday's performance the audience broke into laughter and applause when they did nothing at all except be what they were. All in the play were thoroughly pleasing.

Director Uses Magic.

Every one knows the story of "The Blue Bird." How Tyltyl and Mytyl, the poor little peasant children, were awakened one wonderful night by the Fairy Berylune, who told them to get ready and go look for the Blue Bird of Happiness; how they were magically dressed; how Berylune gave Tyltyl a cap with a diamond set in its front which, when turned, permitted the children to see all of the invisible things of the world; how Tyltyl turned the diamond and first beheld the souls of the Dog, the Cat, Fire, Water, Milk, Sugar, Bread, and Light; how he turned the diamond again the wrong way so that the souls could not go back into the Things again, and how the two children, the fairy, and all of the souls of Things went out to look for the Blue Bird.

Their search led them through many wonderful adventures, and Maurice Tourneur, who directed the production of the film, used the art of magic to make the souls appear and act their parts, to cause instantaneous transformations, to show the flight of people and Father Time's ship through the air, to make all sorts of mysteries take place before one's very eyes. There may be some who will talk of fadeaways and superimposing and all of the tricks of the motion-picture trade, but such are the kind of people who don't believe that Things have souls. Mr. Tourneur used magic, and that's all there is to it.

During the run of "The Blue Bird" at the Rivoli the theatre will open at 10 o'clock in the morning for the benefit of children. The play is scheduled to run a week.

Of a different nature, but exciting and realistic are the Official Italian War Pictures, a new series of which is shown at the Rivoli this week. The program also includes an overture composed of selections from "La Bohème," scenes of Southern California and New Mexico, and "The Fortune-Teller Scene" from "The Masked Ball" sung by Jeanne Gordon, contralto.

Mary Garden at the Strand.

Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner"—and, despite her vehicle, still Mary Garden and no other—came to the Strand yesterday for the week. Those who went were glad to see the actress, who was her competent self in a play that, for impossibilities that made its improbabilities seem natural by comparison, "out-movied" the most reekless of movies.

The story is that of a woman who passed through a reformation, married a man who loved her, lost him when her past was revealed, found him again when he was a wounded prisoner among the Germans and she a Red Cross nurse, and finally died bravely facing a German firing squad. How one of the leading characters in the play, a dissipating German in New York, could get from Broadway to Berlin after the beginning of the war and become a General of the Imperial Third Army before more than a few months had elapsed, and why a woman whose sympathies were so strongly for the Allies that she was glad to die for the allied cause, as well as for her husband, should, in the beginning, elect to go to Germany instead of to France, as a Red Cross nurse, are some of the things left unexplained.

But Mary Garden is always Mary Garden, and her support is good, so many not inclined to check up and criticise will enjoy "The Splendid Sinner."

The other numbers at the Strand pleased the spectators. A new series of Ditmars's submarine pictures, James Montgomery Flagg's latest satirical comedy, "The Art Bug"; a second run of pictures showing the horse in action, and orchestral and vocal selections all enriched the program.

At the Rialto Charles Ray appeared in a lively comedy called "The Family Skeleton." Toto, the clown, made merry and merriment in "Fare, Please," and "Wild Bird Pets," a nature study series, was entertaining as well as instructive.

Sergeant Empey in Pictures.

A motion picture dramatization of Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey's book, "Over the Top," was presented last night at the Lyric Theatre with Sergeant Empey taking the part of the hero. The picture was not merely a dramatization of "Over the Top," but had a plot by the addition of scenes in America depicting the work of German spies in this country, culminating in the destruction of a munition plant and the abduction of an American girl to Germany by a spy. Of course Sergeant Empey, or, as he is known in the play, Captain James Garrison Owen, U. S. A., rescues the girl from behind the German lines in an airplane.

Sergeant Empey made a short speech during the intermission in which he urged every one to report unpatriotic utterances to the police.

22,000 HEAR STARS AT SUNDAY CONCERTS

Raisa Sings to Throng—McCormack, Gluck, and Paulist Choir Also Appear.

More than 22,000 persons made a top record of attendance at five principal concerts among yesterday's gala events of Easter Sunday in New York. The greatest of these audiences was that at Rosa Raisa's matinée at the Hippodrome, where a crowd of 6,300, mostly of the singer's Russian compatriots, packed every inch of the vast theatre and stage. Another 6,000 last evening heard Alma Gluck and Efrem Zimbalist there, the total receipts of the day at this house alone running up to $17,000. Of that sum, Raisa drew the lion's share of about $9,000, more than half of which went to the benefit of the Naturalization Aid League.

Daylight-saving for the first time here found many late-comers at all events of the day. Some of those who forgot to set their watches forward missed an hour of John McCormack's matinée to sold-out capacity at Carnegie Hall, where 3,000 welcomed the tenor from his Red Cross tour, including some hundreds seated on the stage. There were 3,000 in the Century Theatre also at last night's return of the Paulist Choristers, singing for the restoration work in France. Max Rosen, Lazaro, and others had nearly 4,000 hearers at the last of the day's big concerts at the Metropolitan Opera House. All the crowds were in holiday humor, and the programs were prolonged with encores.

Miss Raisa, who sings again tomorrow in her first recital at Carnegie Hall, will make a farewell appearance at the Hippodrome next Sunday before sailing for South America. The Chicago Opera Company's brilliant young dramatic soprano was heard yesterday not only in airs from "Ernani" and "Pique Dame," a duet with Rimini from "Trovatore" and Russian songs, but also in the great air, "Casta Diva" from "Norma," recalling the palmy days. Nahan Franko led his orchestra facing the audience and playing violin himself, and he conducted "The Star-Spangled Banner," in which the crowd joined heartily at the start, as it did again in the air of "America" at the close.

Mr. McCormack's program of old Italian and English airs was varied with his customary Irish folksongs and with many encores, as well as a new war song, "In Flanders Fields," to music by Frank Tours, and by request Jules Granier's "Hosanna." Andre Polah played violin solos, and Edwin Schneider accompanied throughout. Among McCormack's added pieces was "Little Boy Blue," of which he owns Eugene Field's original manuscript poem, while Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, whose husband composed the music, was present yesterday in a box.

Alma Gluck sang Haydn's "With Verdure Clad" and other airs to the Hippodrome's second throng last night, and after some Russian pieces she gave two by the late Claude Debussy, and the famous Hebrew lament, "Eili, Eili," with organ. Efrem Zimbalist gave twice over the "Orientale" of Cesar Cui, another composer whose death has been reported from Europe within a week, and he also played Spohr's concerto in D minor and Kreisler's "Caprice Chinois," as well as the violin obbligato to several of Mme. Gluck's later songs.

The Paulist Choristers, under the direction of Father Finn, at the Century, sang a program of Latin church airs, others of the Russian liturgy, and popular numbers, including Elgar's "Angelus," Speaks's version of the negro spiritual, "Deep River," and Converse's "And the Smoke Rose," from a cantata, "The Peace Pipe." At the Metropolitan Max Rosen played the violin concerto in G minor by Bruch, and pieces by Kreisler, Israel Joseph, and Sarasate; Lazaro had tenor airs from "Gioconda" and "L'Africaine," and Perini an air from "Trovatore," while the orchestra was conducted by Adolph Rothmeyer and Vincenzo Bellezza.

FARRAR IN WAR BENEFIT.

John McCormack to Aid Gala Event at Metropolitan on May 5.

Geraldine Farrar yesterday notified the Stage Women's War Relief, of which she is a member, that she will give under her own management at the Metropolitan Opera House on Sunday evening, May 5, a patriotic benefit for this organization's work for soldiers of the American and allied armies, now fighting in France. Miss Farrar will appear with the Metropolitan cast and orchestra in the music of the entire second act of "Madame Butterfly."

John McCormack has volunteered to sing several of his favorite Irish ballads. The program will not be limited to these two, as Miss Farrar has the promise of other stars of international fame. Chairman Otto H. Kahn, of the Opera Board, has started the benefit fund by subscribing $500 for the first box.

Lola Fisher as Juliet.

A program given under the auspices of the Greenroom Club at the Shubert Theatre last night, revealed Lola Fisher for the first time as Juliet, with Lester Lonergan as Mercutio, and Hayden Stevenson as Romeo. Among others on the program were Reinald Werrenrath, Ernest Glendinning, in a new one-act play by Harold Selman; Henri de Vries, in his protean sketch; Rock and White, Harry Fox, Harry Carroll, Belle Story, Herbert Corthell, and Roshanara.

T. W. Lamont to Talk at Palace.

Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. will be the principal speaker at tomorrow morning's mass meeting of stage people at the Palace Theatre, when plans will be made for the conducting of the forthcoming Liberty Loan campaign in the theatres. Others who will speak will be Colonel J. S. Dennis of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, Colonel Moses Greenwood, and Daniel Frohman. All branches of the theatrical profession will be represented.

FRIARS HONOR AL JOLSON.

Canadian Officer Impresses Diners with Seriousness of the War.

A dinner tendered by the Friars to Al Jolson at the Hotel Astor last night was turned momentarily into a patriotic rally by Colonel J. S. Dennis of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and second in command of the British-Canadian recruiting mission in this country. The remarks by the previous speakers had been of a humorous nature, but Colonel Dennis sounded the serious note and brought the crowd of 400 diners several times to their feet. In particular he emphasized the fact that this country had not yet begun to feel the war, and declared that if the war continued another two years the United States would be called upon to suffer to the same extent as have the other allies.

"You must not go away from here with the idea that cheers and cries of 'We'll win' are going to make you the victors in this war," he declared. "It is so far away that it hasn't come home to you yet, but when the time comes that you pick up your morning newspapers to be greeted by four or five columns, or even a page, of casualties, including the names of your friends and the members of your families, then you will know that you are in this fight. England, France, and the other allies are recruited almost up to their maximum; they have no more men to give. We must have men, and they must come from your country. Those who cannot go must pay; they must help in every way possible. The time will come when the man or woman who spends his time foolishly, at cabarets and dance halls, will be socially ostracized."

Details of Jolson's career at the Winter Garden, and prior thereto, were exposed by Rennold Wolf and Grant Mitchell. Channing Pollock was toastmaster, and others at the speakers' table included Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, City Chamberlain A. E. Johnson, R. H. Burnside, William Hodge, Sam H. Harris, Lieutenant H. C. P. Cresswell, and Colonel John P. Finley. The other diners included many men well-known in the theatre.

Drama by Fordham Students.

The students of Fordham University will make their annual production in the college theatre on Wednesday night, April 17, when "If I Were King" will be presented. Daniel H. Sullivan is in charge of the production.

NEWS:
Mr. D. W. Griffith will arrive in New York from Los Angeles this afternoon, to take personal charge of the preparations for showing his latest and greatest masterpiece, "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.
Mr. Griffith spent more than eighteen months in England and France, planning and executing this great work, in which he had official aid and assistance from the British and the French Governments.
Now, at great sacrifice of time and trouble, Mr. Griffith is coming to New York to see that the completed results of his great artistry are properly presented to the public of this great city.
A private invitation presentation of "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" will take place in the Forty-fourth Street Theatre on Thursday night, April 4th, for prominent officials of the United States and the Allied Governments, municipal and State officials, and prominent citizens.
The private presentation will be by invitation only, and despite the fact that HUNDREDS OF REQUESTS for seats have been received, no tickets whatever will be sold for that presentation.
The first public showing of Mr. Griffith's masterpiece will be FRIDAY NIGHT, APRIL 5. Thereafter it will be shown twice daily, at 2:15 and 8:15 P. M.
The box office for the sale of seats will open tomorrow (TUESDAY) morning promptly at 9 A. M. The prices will range from 25c. to $1 for the matinees, and 25c. to $1.50 for evenings.
This presentation of Mr. Griffith's latest and greatest work is unquestionably the most important event of the entire season in the realm of motion pictures.

NEW YORK, MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1918.

ALL OUR RESOURCES.

In the Joint Resolution declaring the existence of a state of war between Germany and the United States, approved by President WILSON on April 6, 1917, it was resolved that the President be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the Government to carry on war against the Imperial German Government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the Congress of the United States.

That pledge of all their resources was given by the people themselves, through their chosen representatives. Again by their own act the American people are marshaling their resources "to bring the conflict to a successful termination." Upon the face of the income tax returns required by law to be filed not later than last night the people have assessed upon themselves a tax of three billion dollars; for it is certain that the estimated yield of the corporation and individual income taxes, $2,600,000,000, will be exceeded by many millions.

It is a transaction without precedent or parallel in the history of Government finance. The law prescribes the rate and method, declares the rule; the people themselves, individual taxpayers, officers of corporations, make to the Collector a full disclosure of their gains and record the sum of their contributions to the Federal Treasury. From his modest wage the toiler tenders a few dollars, from some of the great corporations tens upon tens of millions are forthcoming. All are partners with the Government in this great undertaking to which their total resources are pledged.

It was no empty form of words, that pledge of April 6 one year ago. When the Government engages all the resources of the country it has, for keeping its covenant, the resource of an unlimited use of the taxing power. But here the people are the Government; they gave the pledge, they are faithfully keeping it. By the voluntary disclosures of the income tax returns they avouch the common partnership. Their gains and profits are no longer their own to be employed at will. There is the pledge; the word of their agreement that these shall be paid into the fund that is "to bring the conflict to a successful termination" whatever may be needed for that end. It is an example of collective endeavor a thousand times more potent than the Socialists ever dreamed of, because it is voluntary, eager, and is prompted by a noble patriotism, the antithesis of that artificial, sleazy internationalism which the preachers of German-born doctrines of social leveling and destruction have long offered to the acceptance of the unbalanced and the ignorant.

Three billions in taxes assessed by the people upon their own incomes; eight and one-half billions already paid into the Treasury in exchange for Liberty Loan bonds, certificates of indebtedness, War Savings Certificates, and Thrift Stamps; three billions more awaiting the third Liberty Loan of April 6; and $4,400,000,000 advanced in loans to the nations engaged with us in the war for the destruction of the great enemy of freedom and civilization. These are but early installments on account of the great pledge. They have been extorted by no imperial command, compelled by no irresponsible power. The pledge was self-imposed, the taxes were laid, the Treasury obligations issued in pursuance of the people's laws. Their will spoke in the votes that carried all these measures to enactment, their hearts and souls are engaged with full commitment in the cause to which their lives, their fortunes, and their honor are pledged.

The American people may be a bit deliberate in finding their place, full armed, upon the battle front; unlike the Germans, they have not made war their chief business. But there are one hundred millions of them, and their national resources are the greatest on earth. They are united, they have taken their resolve, they are in the war until it shall end in a peace of justice and security for life and liberty. Germany, at this moment seeing very red, or quite blinded by blood and passion, may now take little note of what we do. But her accounting with us will come. It might be better for Berlin to take some thought about it even while German armies are beating their heads against the wall of British and French resistance. General PERSHING spoke for a hundred million Americans when he promised General FOCH that all the help in our power to give was at his command.

MORE HOPEFUL.

Because all the German armies from the Scarpe to the Oise advanced at once, we necessarily think of them as one army. Yet each army has its objective, and if each had advanced by itself it would be easy to keep those differing objectives in mind. We can measure better what the British and French have done if, instead of thinking of them as having checked one army group, we think of them as having checked at least two which, though they happened to be striking in the same direction, were striking for different purposes. Now that they have definitely checked these armies, and are actually counterattacking and driving them back at certain points, it might be as well to remember that the attack on Arras, for instance, was a campaign in itself, conducted by a great army for a specific strategic purpose. We can think of GRANT'S Virginia campaign and SHERMAN'S Georgia campaign as two different things because, though their object was in general the same, they were widely separated geographically. If they had been able to advance side by side, it would have seemed like one movement, we should have thought of it as one movement, just as we think now of this German advance as one.

But the Britons who pulverized the German offensive against Arras were fighting a whole army with a specific objective, and their achievement was as notable in a way as if JOHNSTON had been able to defeat SHERMAN'S army and keep it from crossing Georgia. The Arras defeat was the most notable and decisive repulse that any of the German armies have received in the advance of these several armies, though there begins to be ground for hope that that army which advanced against PETAIN will receive a still more thorough one. If it does, its defeat will be more important in results than the defeat of the army which moved against Arras. This morning's news gives us no ground for boasting, only ground for hope; but the Allies are no longer merely holding the Germans, they are now beginning to bite into them.

Has the counteroffensive for which FOCH was appointed Generalissimo begun? The time for it to begin is not until after the Germans are definitely held all along the line. They were so held yesterday, and the attacks which are beginning against their front may be the beginning of the counteroffensive, but that is a thing we shall have to wait to find out. If, however, the attack which the British are making on the Ancre, in which they have already scored some successes, proves to be a serious one, it is easy to see how it would link up with the French attack near Lassigny. The two prongs of the pincers, pushed forward far enough at these two points, would pinch off the whole southwestern end of the German Army.

We can only wait and see. But the day's news is cheering. Everywhere the great advance is at a standstill, and whether the attacks on it are local ones or are to link up in a great counteroffensive, they are attacks. In other words, the French and British are so far from being defeated that they are more on the offensive than the Germans are.

UNFAIR TO THE MOTHER OF WILLIAM SMITH.

The Government officially makes known the fact that the army has more than 100,000 Smiths, of whom 1,500 are William Smiths, 1,000 are John Smiths, and 200 are John A. Smiths. There are 1,000 John Browns, 1,200 John Johnsons, 1,040 George Millers, and 262 John J. O'Briens, "of whom 50 have wives named Mary."

The Government cites this as a reason why applicants for Government soldiers' insurance should sign their full names. But it will strike almost everybody else that it is also a reason why the War Department should not persist in its foolish and unintentionally cruel policy of announcing only the name of a killed or wounded soldier, without giving the place of his enlistment. Of these 1,500 William Smiths it is reasonably sure that at least one will be killed or wounded or die of disease before the war is over. His family will be grief-stricken by the news when it comes. Why should the families of the other 1,499 William Smiths also suffer the tortures of anxiety and doubt because the War Department refuses to give the place of the dead or injured William Smith's enlistment?

The War Department replies that they will not suffer these tortures, because they will have perfect confidence that the infallible bureau of the War Department would have notified them if it had been their William Smith, and that the infallible Post Office or the infallible telegraph office would have forwarded the notification. But this is not true. Human beings are not made that way; and it is with human beings the War Department is dealing, not with Martians or inhabitants of the moon.

TAALIM EL ALMAN.

What Turcophobe infatuation is at work in the Caucasus? Why do Nationalist members of the Caucasus Diet bluster that their party will never consent to let a Caucasian district pass into Turkish hands? Why is there "a strong movement" in the Caucasus to declare war on the Turk? He has just been making a demonstration at Trebizond of his good old amiable, tender habits. The Turks who entered that port the other day looted it, committed the conventional "atrocities" against Armenians and Greeks. Trebizond is a favorite butcher shop of Armenians, and Greeks are in the same category as Armenians. Turkey for the Turks!

Caucasian and all other rebels against the Ottoman philanthropists forget the Young Turk apology for a well-known form of Ottoman diversion. That star of mildness, TALAAT BEY, uttered it:

> We have been reproached for making no distinction between the innocent Armenians and the guilty; but that was utterly impossible in view of the fact that those who are innocent today might be guilty tomorrow.

A blanket mortgage to death covering all Armenians, and now, presumably, all Greeks. If anybody in Turkish, or what was Russian, Armenia, if anybody anywhere is not converted by this theory of TALAAT'S, at least fair-minded folk will admit that the responsibility for massacre doesn't rest on the Turks. It was the German missionaries in Aleppo who wrote the German Foreign Office in the Fall of 1915:

> There are forty or fifty emaciated [Armenian] phantoms crowded into the compound opposite our school. There are women out of their mind. They have forgotten how to eat. When we offer them bread they throw it aside with indifference. They only groan and wait for death. "See," say the natives, "Taalim el Alman," (the teaching of the Germans.)

The Nationalists in the Caucasus must not be unjust to the Turks, who but follow their "Christian" teachers of the German tribes.

THE SUBWAY DEFICITS.

Mayor HYLAN'S discovery of the subway deficits has not shocked others as it did him. It is larger than expected through conditions unforeseen by anybody, but not so much larger that such a factor as the war does not suffice both to explain and excuse the excess above expectation. In fact, the costs of the dual subway, including the enlarged deficit, make a creditable comparison with the estimates, and the necessities of the city are such that should the dual subways be bought now, with the deficit added, they would be thought cheap at the price. Certainly they could not be contracted for at that price now, for costs of construction have grown more than the deficit. It does not follow that the deficit demands an increase of fare to make it good. The deficit during the construction period was foreseen and assumed by the city. Nothing now requires the reconsideration of that policy; the increase of the deficit being inconsiderable in comparison with the magnitude of the enterprise.

An investment of $400,000,000 is not affected by a deficit of a few millions before it is finished, and when the deficit is offset by municipal betterments of almost priceless worth. The city is collecting taxes on valuations increased by the subways, and the multitudes who use the Interborough sections are saving thousands of dollars daily in fares. The total of these sums makes the deficit a matter of indifference. The true policy of the city regarding higher fares on the dual subway was stated by Public Service Commissioner WHITNEY in his opinion in the North Shore application for a seven-cent fare:

> With respect to the rate of fare on rapid transit lines, the City of New York, with the aid of this Commission, long ago fixed its policy and accepted for itself the consequences of that policy. Municipal responsibility for financial consequences has been placed squarely behind the municipal insistence on the maintenance of a 5-cent fare.

That separates the case of the subways from the surface lines. The surface lines must stand by themselves, with their hard case set against their objectionable record. The competition of the subways with the surface lines is severe, but not unfair. It takes nobody by surprise, and the owners of the properties must abide by the outcome. To the surface lines relief can be granted either by reduction of taxes, or by making terms for addition to the city system, or by increase of fare. Whether the city wishes to make either arrangement is matter of doubt, considering the deficit which Mayor HYLAN so magnifies.

Possibly the city has had enough of city ownership at such cost. Possibly it might change its mind when the advantages of the dual system are more clearly proved and the hard case of the surface lines puts their owners into a temper to accept a fair offer. It is conceivable that the preservation of the transfer privilege by the protection of the solvency of the surface system is now organized might be arranged either by the payment of a higher fare by riders or by assumption of the deficit by the city for a period. But the case cannot be said to be established as it stands, and there should be a division of the question, the surface and subway systems each being treated on their separate merits.

FEDERAL TAX INSTALLMENTS.

The canvass recently made by THE TIMES of opinion among leading payers of Federal income and excess profits taxes leaves no doubt of their desire for accommodation in meeting a burdensome demand. Banking opinion also favors such relief to taxpayers by the Government as would relieve the banks from advancing money for tax payments by their customers. If the banks are to be required to find the money for taxes, in addition to the Liberty bonds and Treasury certificates, they would rather make advances on Treasury paper than on commercial paper. From the standpoint of the Treasury there is no urgency as respects the money. In fact, if the taxes were all to be paid the money could not all be spent at once, and it would be necessary for the Treasury to put the funds in the banks to prevent a lockup of cash. But the Treasury's estimates are based on the receipt of these taxes in cash, and the third Liberty Loan was reduced on that calculation. Three billions of Treasury certificates should be redeemed before the fiscal year's close.

With so much in favor of what taxpayers desire there is good reason at least for Congress to consider the situation it has created against ample notice to it, and to those affected during the consideration of the tax laws. Without legislative action it is not desirable to create a precedent of playing fast and loose with tax obligations. Moreover, the Treasury naturally would wish legislative sanction for carrying on its accounts a large volume of uncollected taxes. The Treasury must close its books with the fiscal year, and the taxes due must be accounted for in some way. The Treasury's payments must be in cash, and notes in anticipation of taxes are not available until their maturities. In fact, experience shows that it is often necessary to fund taxes for which credit has been given. Secretary McADOO has left no doubt of his personal good-will and open-mindedness toward the taxpayers, but he might well require Congressional action before he assented or took any original action.

In default of action by Congress, and with all regret, it is necessary to incline to the opinion that collections should take the course of which there has been such ample notice that all should have made their preparations to pay in full, or to avail themselves of the ways already provided for discounting taxes by advance payments with allowance of interest until maturity, or by investment in certificates provided for the purpose. Those unaware of these privileges are the only ones discommoded.

THE DEEPS MURMURING IN RUSSIA.

The kaleidoscope of events in Russia shows the Bolsheviki capturing Khorson from a German investing force of 500, the Ukrainians making overtures to the Bolshevist Government for an alliance, rebellious Poles in Minsk cutting telephone lines of communication with German bases, and the Soviet at Moscow planning the raising of a regular army to renew the war with the Germans. LEON TROTZKY realizes that as a defense force the "Red Guards" are "helpless against disciplined troops." He now sees that officers cannot be improvised. Accordingly, he has urged the Soviet to authorize the organization of a regular army of from 300,000 to 750,000 men. "We need," he says, "a strong army to defend ourselves in this critical world-position."

The report that TROTZKY asked the late allies of Russia for funds and equipment has not been confirmed, and judging from his tirades against Great Britain and France it is not true. TROTZKY is still the rabid dog of statesmen, snapping at Russia's friends and sympathizers. A quotation from TAINE'S account of the Terror has been called up to give substance to the hope that the Russians will yet "find" themselves, set up a Government, maintain armies, and march to battle against the Germans who have betrayed and are now oppressing them:

> Of the vast wave set in motion in 1789 nothing remains but the foam and scum. All else has been rejected or has dropped out; first, the upper class, clergy, nobility, and parliamentarians; then the middle class, industrialists, merchants, and bourgeois; then the élite of the lower class, small proprietors, farmers, and artisans; in short, all the notables of every profession, condition, or trade, all that possessed capital, income, position, esteem, education, a mental and moral culture. To make up the picture, there was in June, 1793, hardly anything left save the shifting workmen, the vagabonds of town and country, a degraded and dangerous mob, the outcasts, the depraved, the abnormal; and in Paris, from whence they gave orders to the whole of France, their group—a tiny minority—found its recruits even in that human refuse which infests every capital.

To read this is to feel that Russia is no worse off than France was at the time of the Terror, and to nurse the hope that Russia will yet rid herself of the motley band of fanatics, charlatans, and knaves who call themselves a Government, and work out her salvation not by slow and painful degrees, but swiftly, with the resentment of a people on whom Fortune has played a trick so scurvy that it hypnotized their minds, confused their standards, and paralyzed their energies. But to reason from growing unrest in Russia and the mouthings of the Trotzkys and Leninee that the present arbiters of Russia will come to their senses, experience a conversion of soul and heart, and summon their countrymen to take up the sword again and return to the alliance they abandoned—that is to embrace a delusion.

Militarily Russia is out of the war. Politically and economically she may still prove to be a factor in it. Sporadic rebellion against both the Bolsheviki and the foreign oppressor, chaos let loose, the whole country rocked with disorders, would compel the German Government to employ a large army on the border and in provinces fettered by the fiction of self-determination.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Editor Active at Seventy.

A record nearly, if not quite, unique in American journalism is that of CHARLES HOPKINS CLARK, editor of The Hartford Courant, who today attains, with the seventieth year of his life, the forty-seventh of his connection in one or another capacity with that oldest of Connecticut newspapers—the newspaper that is the oldest in the country in the sense that none other has been as long published in the same place without even temporary suspension or change of name.

In a recent sketch of his own life, written with characteristic modesty and something of humor, also characteristic, prepared by him for The Editor and Publisher, Mr. CLARK told how, soon after his graduation from Yale in 1871, and after a single attempt, fortunately unsuccessful, to get a place as teacher in Chicago, he applied for and obtained employment as a reporter on The Courant, then edited by CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER and General JOSEPH R. HAWLEY. There he has since remained, assuming the responsibilities of full management on the death of Mr. WARNER in 1900.

Today, still vigorous and as alertly interested and concerned as ever in the events and policies of the passing hour, it can be said of Mr. CLARK that between him and The Courant it is hard to distinguish, for he is the paper and the paper is he to a degree more than uncommon now that journalism has become so much less personal than it used to be. Perhaps it would be more nearly correct to say, now that the personality that is and must be behind every newspaper of any influence and importance tends to withdrawal from public knowledge and notice.

To this tendency Mr. CLARK has yielded less than most editors, but he has remained in the older school of editors without allowing either himself or his paper to be less than thoroughly responsive to the spirit of the new age. Nor is all his attention confined to the conduct of The Courant. In listing these other activities Mr. CLARK himself significantly placed first his membership in the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee of The Associated Press, but he is also a member of the Yale Corporation and a Director in many insurance, industrial, and other corporations, several of them of a public character, philanthropic, and artistic.

Coming to Know Her Enemy.

It is a notable fact, not without either meaning or importance, that in the recent references made by the Kaiser and his Generals to the enemies of Germany there is no longer any trace of the contempt which marked their utterances at the beginning of the war. And, curiously enough, at this hour, when the fate of the German Empire, by the admission of them all, is staked on the outcome of one great battle, their former savage hatred of their foes has been replaced by an almost cordially expressed respect for their courage and efficiency.

This change of tone could be variously explained. It might be interpreted, for instance, as due to confidence in the speedy success of the German arms, with domination of the world not long to be delayed. With such confidence it would be both easy and natural for the Germans to emphasize the magnitude of their achievement by proclaiming the prowess of their defeated antagonists. Victorious pugilists always compliment those whom they have beaten. But that can hardly be the only reason for the recognition of British and French valor of which the German Generals and the German press are now so lavish.

Added to that reason, probably, is a real respect, based on the knowledge forced upon them by four years of war, that they were mistaken in thinking the French a worn-out nation, the British a race rotted by luxury, wealth, and a long peace.

On the other side there is, because it is neither needed nor possible, no such change of sentiment to be observed. The Entente Allies have never doubted or denied the military strength of the Germans, nor have they now either occasion or inclination to reverse their judgment, their stern condemnation, of the utter ruthlessness with which the Germans have used and are using that strength. It will take more than German compliments to make the Allies forget the crimes of Germany, her violations of every international law, the innumerable phases of her "frightfulness," so characteristically illustrated, last week, by the wholesale slaughter of French civilians assembled in church on Good Friday.

Peculiarities Menacing Civilization.

Several of the war correspondents whose admirable dispatches in THE TIMES have pictured so vividly the colossal battle now waging in France have in one form or another seen in the way that German troops are treated and in the way they let themselves be treated two good reasons for declaring that Germany must be conquered if civilization as understood outside of Germany is to survive.

On the one hand, the German Generals send their men forward in dense masses, wave after wave, over ground swept by artillery, machine guns, and rifles, indifferent to everything except, not the certainty, but the chance, that the last group will survive and be able to overcome antagonists whose ammunition is expended or whose guns are too hot for further use. And it is hardly more perilous to the world that military leaders exist callous enough to ignore the cost of problematical success attained by such wholesale slaughter than it is that there are troops of the docility required for the performance of service so frightful or that there is a civilian population unable to make effective protest against the ruthless sacrifice of a people to advance or protect the interests of a class.

Slaughters approaching these in magnitude are seen on the other side only when the fighting is defensive—a very different thing, and requiring quite a different kind of courage.

It is not strange that when German soldiers are taken prisoner after participating in such charges they exult that they have fallen into the enemy's hands—that for them the war is over. One such captive is reported to have asked permission to go back and get his brother in an advanced listening post. Of course he was not allowed to do it, but the request hints what possibly might be effected if the German "cannon fodder" knew that as prisoners, instead of being tortured and slain, as their masters tell them, they would be well fed and kindly treated—far more kindly treated than they have any right to expect.

"NO SOFT PEACE."

But One That Corresponds with Germany's Crimes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After each parade of Prussian power and barbarity, the world is systematically told that the Germans are willing to make peace.

The system worked with—and wrecked Russia. It will be tried again, as soon as the Huns have a few gains on the war map, or as soon as the armies are again deadlocked.

The time has come when it is the duty of every American man, woman, and child to resolve that there shall be no peace "made in Germany" until a victorious allied army forces the Kaiser to sue for peace on Prussian soil.

The peace plea is coming as sure as the advertised "offensive." Like the Huns who made the recent attacks, it may be "all dressed up in new clothes." It will appeal to the pacifist, Socialist, Bolshevist elements of all nations. It will exhibit the very horrors of war invented by the Huns as a reason for stopping short of victory. It will plead that the criminals who plunged civilization into the "blood bath" should be pardoned, because it would cost so much to punish them.

Prussianism will use all the arts of cunning, all the technicalities of specious pleading, to convince us that it should be paroled rather than given capital punishment. If we are men, with clear vision of the issues at stake, we will insist that the war must not stop until we have won, until the Prussian outlaw is actually disarmed and imprisoned in a relatively small corner of that "Middle Europe" he has sought to subjugate. All law is based on the ability and determination of men to protect themselves, their wives and children from criminal classes. There can be no more real peace or safety for democracy with the armed bandits of Berlin at large than there can be peace and safety in a town where outlaws overcome the police force.

The Kaiser says he "wants no soft peace, but one which corresponds with Germany's interests." We should remember this for the duration of the war and see that he gets no "soft peace," but one that corresponds with Germany's crimes against civilization.

J. S. EICHELBERGER.

Men Anxious to Fight.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just finished reading the letter addressed to you by Captain Henry H. Georgs, in which he states that we need some fighting men, but not men who seem to expect that their duties will be with the various noncombatant branches of the service. I quite agree with him, but does the gentleman know that there are hundreds of men who are not only willing, but anxious, desperately anxious, to kill Germans? But cannot? I consider myself among them. In view of the fact that not only once, but four different times I have tried to enlist to fight as he said, but to my regret have been always told: "Sorry, young man, but you do not weigh enough." To my knowledge I am physically fit, my only disqualification being the one above stated.

Nevertheless, about three weeks ago I was called by my local board in order to go through the necessary physical requirements, and, as I expected, was found to be O. K., in other words, I have qualified and was placed in Class A1. Therefore, it seems to me that, after all, as I hope and pray, very shortly I will have the opportunity to prove that a man, in order to defend his country, does not need to weigh as much as our army regulations say he ought to do. To my way of thinking, what is most needed in order to serve our country, kill Germans, &c., is the following: Strong will power and, above all things, to be ready to fight and die, if necessary, for, or on, the Frontier of Freedom." ALBERT J. COLE.
Brooklyn, March 29, 1918.

A National Conservatory of Music.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to the discussion regarding the establishment of a national conservatory of music, why not make use of the National Conservatory of Music of America, which was chartered by Congress in 1891? This charter is now in the hands of a competent law firm, which is at work enlarging the plan to carry out my original idea in founding the conservatory, viz., the establishment of the National Conservatory of Music of America in Washington, with branches outside the District of Columbia adequate to serve the various States.

The "Made in Germany" Mark.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Verily it behooves us to be wary, even now, regarding German goods. My experience yesterday on purchasing Easter cards, one special one for a friend who has lost a brother in the war with Germany. On reaching home, preparing to address them, my eye caught sight of a very small mark. It required strong glasses to decipher it. I felt like a traitor on reading "printed in Germany." Those cards went into the fire.

APRIL, 1918.

April's standing tiptoe
Up on the edge o' the world,
With laughing eyes, all full of glee,
A piquant glance—such coquetry!
Finger on lip, head bent a bit,
Body all poised for a pirouette—
April's standing tiptoe
Up on the edge o' the world!

April's peering wistfully
Over the edge o' the world!
But sadness comes, the gladness goes
From dear eyes dulled with Pain's dire throes
As though, all sudden, an Atlas she,
Weighted with wild world-misery—
Dear April peering wistfully
Over the edge o' the world!

April's stealing tiptoe
Over the heart o' the world,
Scanning the earth, the sea, and the sky,
Missing her frolic, but scorning to sigh,
Yearning for other years. Say, what do you see—
Will it be, can it be, Victory?
Oh, April stealing tiptoe
Over the heart o' the world?

THE SEIZURE OF THE DUTCH SHIPS.

Authorities Cited on Principle of International Law Involved—Germany's Use of Neutral Property in War Against France.

By JUSTICE B. RUSSELL, of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It will be a strange thing if some of your more thoughtful readers should not begin to wonder how it can happen that two of the most law-abiding Governments in the world have agreed to seize four or five hundred thousand tons of shipping belonging to a neutral power. The right to seize the shipping of an enemy power well understand. The right to seize contraband of war, although of neutral ownership, we can also understand. The right of a belligerent State to place a neutral under severe restrictions of various kinds has never been disputed, and the numereus disabilities of neutrals of many kinds have, ever sineo the days of Grotius and long before, been calmly and uncomplainingly acquiesced in. But how, it may well be asked, can it ever be legally possible for a belligerent sovereign to take the unoffending property of an innocent neutral out of his own hands and exercise over it what seems like a right of eminent domain which normally one would think must necessarily be restricted to the property of its own citizens or subjects? And yet this has been done with no apparent scruple on the part of those who have done it and with perfect equanimity on the part of the allied press on both sides of the Atlantic. There may have been here or there an occasional protest, but I have not had the fortune to discover a single word of objection or misgiving except in an article in the last number of The New York Nation.

The writer of this article questions the action of the British and American Governments and expresses a serious fear of the consequences. He considers it a dangerous proceeding even from a merely military point of view. Should the Dutch Government be deeply enough incensed at the action of the Allies to throw themselves into the arms of Germany, "what," asks the writer, "would even a million tons of shipping be worth by comparison with a well drilled Dutch army hurled on the left flank of the allied battle line in the west? And might not Holland in desperation come to the conclusion that such a stroke constituted her best hope of salvation from her present impossible situation?"

But it is not merely military considerations that worry the writer of this article. He considers—and rightly considers—that the ultimate strength of the cause of the Allies is its moral quality, and asks how, except in degree, the act of the Allies in seizing the Dutch ships can be distinguished from the action of Germany in overrunning Belgium. "If we must win this war by adopting the principle that might is right, let us prate no more of moral justifications; let us weep no more tears for Belgium and Serbia."

Now, it is an exceedingly strange thing that an article of this tenor could appear in one of the best written periodicals on this side of the ocean and doubtless by one of the most learned publicists on the continent without the faintest allusion being made to the principle of international law on which the action of the Allies is founded. I doubt if there is a text-book on the subject of international law in which this right is not discussed, and there are many in which it is not even questioned. I take the best known work on the subject to begin with—the monumental volume of Wheaton, in Atlay's edition—where I find on Page 416 these words:

> "There is yet another measure," says Sir R. Phillimore, "partaking also of a belligerent character, though exercised strictly speaking in time of peace, called by the French le droit d'angaria. It is an act of the State by which foreign as well as domestic vessels which happen to be within the jurisdiction of the State are seized upon and compelled to transport soldiers, ammunition, or the instruments of war; in other words, to become parties against their will to carrying on direct hostilities against a power with which they are at peace."

In Halleck's "International Law," an American work edited by his Honor Sir G. Sherston Baker, an associate of the Institut de Droit International, the right is recognized and referred to in the following words:

> The jus angaria is a right denoting compulsory service. It is of great antiquity, being referred to in the New Testament. (Matt. v., 41.) By virtue of this right neutral vessels within the territorial waters of a belligerent may be appropriated by a belligerent on payment of a reasonable price for compensation.

In Hall's treatise on International law, also edited by Atlay, the right is thus referred to:

> The general principle that neutral property in belligerent territory shares the liabilities of property belonging to subjects of the State is clear and indisputable, and no objection can be made to its effect upon property which is associated either permanently or for a considerable time with the belligerent territory. But it might, perhaps, have been expected and it might certainly have been hoped that its application would not have been extended to neutral property passingly within a belligerent State. The right to use, or even when necessary to destroy such property, is, however, recognized by writers under the name of the right of angary; its exercise is guarded against in a certain number of treaties; and when not so guarded against it has occasionally been put in practice in recent times with the acquiescence of neutral States.

The most recent cases of the exercise of the right of angery occurred during the Franco-German war of 1870-71. The German authorities in Alsace, for example, seized for military use between 600 and 700 railway carriages belonging to the Central Swiss Railway, and a considerable quantity of Austrian rolling stock, and appear to have kept the carriages, trucks, &c., so seized for some time. Another instance which occurred nearly at the same moment attracted a good deal of attention, and is of interest as showing distinct acquiescence on the part of the Government of the neutral subjects affected. Some English vessels were seized by the German General in command at Rouen and sunk in the Seine at Duclair in order to prevent French gunboats from running up the river, and thus barring the German corps operating on its two banks from communication with each other. The German commanders appear to have endeavored in the first instance to make an agreement with the Captains of the vessels to sink the latter after payment of their value and after taking out their cargoes. The Captains having refused to enter into any such agreement, their refusal was by a strange perversion of ideas "considered to be an infraction of neutrality," and the vessels were sunk by the unnecessarily violent method of firing upon them while some, at least, of the members of the crew appear to have been on board.

The English Government did not dispute the right of the Germans to act in a general sense in the manner which they had adopted, and notwithstanding the objectionable details of their conduct, it confined itself to a demand that the persons whose property had been destroyed should receive the compensation to which a dispatch of Count Bismarck had already admitted their right. Count Bismarck on his side, in writing upon the matter, claimed that "the measure in question, however exceptional in its nature, did not overstep the bounds of international warlike usage." But he evidently felt that the violence of the methods adopted needed a special justification, for he went on to say: "The report shows that a pressing danger was at hand, and every other means of meeting it was wanting. The case was, therefore, one of necessity, which even in time of peace may render the employment or destruction of foreign property admissible under the reservation of indemnification."

It is only fair to say that Wilson and Tucker, in their little text-book on international law, say in a note on page 320 that the practice of "angary" or "prestation" is by most jurists either condemned or regarded with disfavor, and the right in question is no doubt a survival from the days when war was the normal condition of the human race and peace a mere interlude between the successive acts in the tragedy of human existence. It will probably become obsolete when war comes to be looked upon by all peoples and nations, as it is already by all really advanced and civilized communities, as a hideous and barbarous anachronism. As the unreformed law of landlord and tenant was framed by landlords for landlords, the jus angaria was made by belligerents for belligerents. But, surely a practice which was resorted to at the expense of the French and with the acquiescence of the British Government by a statesman of the standing of Bismarck so recently as in the last great war must have some international standing and should be taken into account by any writer who undertakes to discuss the seizure of the Dutch ships under President Wilson's proclamation. And if pressing necessity be all that is required to justify the exercise of the right, what greater emergency could exist than the present need of shipping? Not the Allies only, but the whole world stands in danger of starvation from the ruthless and illegal destruction of shipping, belligerent and neutral alike, by the submarine assassins fitted out in German waters to prey upon the commerce of the world. Holland herself stands in the same danger as the rest of the world and needs the assistance that she will receive from this very act of seizing her ships. Her newspapers will no doubt protest, as they have done, for fear that if they do not they may be suspected by their German neighbors of welcoming the seizure. But her people, as the best informed correspondents are already assuring us, are only too well satisfied to have their tonnage employed in the best interests of humanity, alike neutral and allied.

Inspiring War Slogans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the coming of General Wood, and with our soldiers fighting side by side with the French and British, the phrase-making period of our Administration will soon, let us hope, be as dead as a door nail. We'll leave such phrases as "neutral even in thought," "too proud to fight," "peace without victory," and even "making the world safe for democracy" to the future historian. Today we need concreteness. No man fighting fire cries "I must save my home for future generations!" And if we are to do our part in defending our homes from the Hun the one phrase that we must forget is "making the world safe for democracy." Abstract phrases will not do for battle cries. The slogans that burst from a united country are the ones that get the enemy. "Remember the Maine!" We said it with white lips. "They shall not pass!" That saved Paris and the world. Now we need not abstract phrases, but men by the millions, airplanes by the thousands, transports by the hundreds, big guns in unlimited numbers, munitions in abundance. And we need them now. Soldiers of the Farms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the evening of March 28 I had the pleasure of listening to a very able speech by Vice President Marshall. Among other things he took exception to criticism of the Administration that was not constructive. I fully agree with him, and the following suggestion is not intended as a criticism, but merely as a possible solution of one of our labor difficulties. The farmer is going to be very hard pressed for sufficient labor this year, and as a result the question arises whether the maximum amount of foodstuffs will be raised.

For some time past, in fact, since mobilization, men have been discharged from the army for physical defects. Oftentimes this defect is very slight, and does not interfere with the men's earning a living. Instead of discharging men and officers for shortsightedness, defective bearing, hammer toe, fallen arches, &c., why not retain these men in the service and use them on farms. Men drafted and rejected for physical reasons could also come under this ruling. They may not be practical farmers, but the overseer, or owner, of the farm could certainly direct the work, and a Corporal or Sergeant in charge would see that the work was accomplished. As these men would be part of the regular army, discipline could be maintained. (Incidentally, most farmers would gladly pay $30 a month and board.)

I know personally of a number of men, seven, to be exact, who were discharged from my own company on a surgeon's certificate of disability, who could work on farms without any trouble or any physical ill-effects. The question might arise as to whether the men discharged would not go on the farms of their own volition, but the fact that practically all manufacturing plants are offering high wages would tend to prevent the men from seeking farm labor. Whereas, if they were ordered to this duty while in the army there would be no question about their getting on the job. A. C. O.

THE CAMOUFLAGED CLOCK.

You seem very innocent when, from your shelf,
You tell me 'tis time to retire,
You're not in the slightest ashamed of yourself,
Though, really, you know, you're a liar.

It lacks sixty minutes of all that you say—
With your fraudulent hands o'er your face—
But as we need light to prepare for
The Day
I will pardon your fib with good grace.

'Tis true you curtail, now, the time of the night,
And you probably pilfer some fun,
But you wake us, you bet, by the
"dawn's early light"
For a new strangle-hold on the Hun.

So, camouflaged clock, here's more speed to your works,
Till Judgment Day comes for the Kaiser—
Till the Austrians, Bulgars, and likewise the Turks,
Are sensibly sadder—and wiser!

WAR SPIRIT MARKS EASTER SERVICES

Pastors Devote Sermons to Righteousness of the Allied Cause and Final Victory.

10,000 AT ST. PATRICK'S

Old Trinity Crowded to Hear Bishop Burch Hold Out Hope for Joy After Sorrow.

A wide range of war topics was handled with vigorous patriotism by the pastors in New York's churches yesterday in an Easter celebration characterized everywhere by the victory spirit that has spread over the city during the anxious days of the German drive. Crowds that were limited only by the capacity of the edifices thronged St. Patrick's Cathedral, Old Trinity, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and a host of lesser churches, and despite the silence imposed upon them by the religious character of the ceremonies, manifested unmistakably their response to stirring appeals for sacrifice that the war might be won and the Teuton menace obliterated.

Far less of a holiday spirit marked the day than has been common on other Easters when the nation was at peace, but it was notable that though the worshippers came in a different spirit, they came in as great, if not in greater numbers than before. Almost as if by common consent pastors devoted their sermons as generally to the morality of American participation in the war, and their prayers to pleas for the success of American arms, as though the day had been set apart for that purpose. The parallel between the Resurrection celebrated yesterday and the efficacy of the sacrifice exacted of the civilized world that man's upward progress might not be barred was drawn in many of the sermons.

An exception to the general rule of finding a war lesson in the occasion was that of the Church of the Messiah, where Dr. John Haynes Holmes made only indirect reference to the world conflict. At the end of his sermon, in response to questions about news dispatches from France to the effect that the Germans had circulated alleged extracts from his sermons among American and British troops, Dr. Holmes said:

"I was and am opposed to all wars as wars. But since our entrance into the world conflict I have said nothing, either in a sermon or privately, that is opposed to our entering the fight. The sermon referred to is probably one I preached the week before we entered the war; but from what I have learned from the dispatches my words were absolutely misquoted, and I am certain the truth is not being told our boys in the circulars said to have been distributed among them."

10,000 Attend Mass.

Despite big crowds at the early masses, it was estimated that nearly 10,000 persons attended St. Patrick's for the pontifical mass, at which Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, the rector, conveyed the Easter greetings of Cardinal Farley and the Cardinal's satisfaction at the success of the recent drive for funds for Catholic war welfare activities.

"We hope for the victory of our land over the powers of death and of hell," Mgr. Lavelle told the congregation. "We are fighting for every principle for which our Constitution stands. The war must be won." He pleaded, too, for funds for the support of Cathedral College, pointing out that military needs made it imperative to train more priests.

Father John H. O'Rourke, who preached the sermon, begged for whole-hearted support of the Government, scored "swivel-chair officers" and profiteers and urged that Y. M. C. A. workers of draft age should be made to take their places in the trenches. He pleaded for a lasting spiritual elevation as the result of the war.

At the conclusion of the sermon, Cardinal Farley proceeded from his throne to the high altar and sang the pontifical mass. Its was attended by four Knights of St. Gregory the Great, Justice Victor J. Dowling, John G. Agar, ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, and Dr. Edward J. Keyes. Mgr. Thomas G. Carroll was master of ceremonies. Mgr. Lavelle acted as assistant priest to the Cardinal, while Rev. Bernard F. McQuade and Rev. John Quinn were deacons of honor. Rev. John Corley officiated as deacon, and the Rev. Lawrence Hogan as subdeacon of the mass. At its conclusion, his Eminence imparted the papal benediction. The altar was aglow with hundreds of lighted candles, while the aisles of the chancel were banked with flowers of many varieties, among which the usual Easter lilly was lacking.

Hundreds of soldiers and sailors attended the services. Many well-known persons were among the worshippers at the pontifical mass, among them Ignace Paderewski and John McCormack. The police estimated that 7,000 persons were turned away.

The Right Rev. Dr. Charles Sumner Burch, Suffragan Bishop of New York, preached the Easter morning sermon in Old Trinity to a congregation that filled all available space. Though, as in other churches, the service hour had been advanced an hour in accordance with daylight saving, the edifice was crowded long before the choir entered singing the processional.

History's Darkest Easter.

Bishop Burch pointed out that the world was passing through the darkest Easter season in its history, and urged his hearers, refraining alike from pessimism and groundless optimism, to "listen to the words of Christian experience—after death, life; after defeat, victory; after sorrow, joy." The pastor said the resurrection of Christ was a unique victory for all men and the only victory which contained no sting for any man. He discussed the evidence in favor of immortality, and said that to answer the question as to why God allowed the present world tragedy to proceed one must turn to the history of His dealing with His people, pointing out that every war had been succeeded by constructive and compensative progress. He declared the slogan of President Wilson, "No peace, except it be founded upon justice and liberty for all men," expressed the uplifting thought of millions engaged in the righteous war of America and her allies.

Preaching in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, the Rev. Dr. Malcolm J. MacLeod, in his Easter sermon, asked: "Is Germany going to win this war and go unpunished? Is she to go scot free after springing this human holocaust upon the earth? Is that mad beast in Berlin going to remain in the saddle? Is hell, after all, going to come off victorious?

"You may condemn the boycott and call it immoral, but I want to say that so far as I am concerned I never expect, until Germany officially repents, to purchase another article made in Germany if I know it. I should like to circulate a pledge to that effect. At the beginning of our entrance into the war I noticed there were some ministers who publicly declared they would not pray for victory to our arms. I hope they have changed their minds, and I feel they ought to tell us so; any minister who refuses to pray for the victory of Old Glory is not a true American; he belongs in the other camp."

Dr. S. Edward Young in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, devoted a part of his sermon to denouncing the German shelling of Paris churches; an act which he said characterized the whole Prussian attitude.

Would Abolish German Papers.

Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church defended American soldiers for singing "frivolous" songs, calling "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" one of the most inspirational songs he ever had heard. He urged putting all German newspapers in this country out of business, and said he would put a fine on every German word spoken in this country during the war. He denounced the hypocrisy of German hymns.

In Grace M. E. Church last night Dr. Christian F. Reisner said some "bloodthirsty idiot" made the Kaiser's defeat sure when he persuaded William to adopt the ruthless submarine policy and added that there would be no use in God killing the Kaiser by some miracle, since another leader would take the militarist helm and the German people would not be chastened as they will be by a thorough beating.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo told the Young Men's Bible class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church that the blessings of the war in the end would far outweigh the sacrifices and sufferings.

SOBER EASTER PARADE WITH NATION AT WAR

Simplicity and Conservatism Mark Women's Dress as They Walk with Men in Khaki.

The war laid an arresting hand on the Easter parade yesterday, and suppressed very manifestly the tendency toward gay display in millinery and gowns which usually has characterized such parades in past years. Even on last Easter Sunday, when America was just on the eve of declaring war, the sobering effect of what was to come made itself noticeable in the marked simplicity of woman's dress. And yesterday the same thing was true, only a hundred times more so, as it was quite apparent that many women were making last year's styles serve for this year's wear.

In a sense it might be said that there was no Easter parade yesterday—just the usual throngs that pour out of the churches on Sundays, only much more inclined, by reason of the weather, to linger in the open and enjoy the softness of a real Spring morning. Occasionally there was a sparkle here and there of a brilliant red hat, the flash of a satin or silk gown of unusually bright color, but the wearer in almost every case was a girl just at the top of her teens, who daringly indulged herself, even in wartimes, in a real new Easter bonnet and a new Easter dress.

One mingling with the throngs as they passed up and down Fifth Avenue could overhear now and then an expression sharp of criticism, even resentment, when some woman appeared to be guilty of too lavish display in dress. But such an objection could not be raised to the appearance of the Easter crowd as a whole. Quiet and sombre colors prevailed throughout, the brightest touch in the dress of the women being created by the flowers which they wore.

Many Men in Uniform.

More striking, however, than the dresses worn by the women was the garb of the men. At times it seemed as though every fourth or fifth man was in khaki. Officers with bars on their shoulders, noncommissioned officers with stripes on their sleeves, privates, naval officers with long blue capes, and sailors—these were the men whose dress distinguished yesterday's procession from any Easter parade witnessed in this city in many years. Men and women in the throngs remarked often with a thrill of pleasure the presence of soldiers in such great numbers, and frequently recalled that last Easter practically the only uniforms seen on Fifth Avenue were those of Canadian, English, and French officers.

The Canadian, English, and French officers were there yesterday, too—and even in greater numbers than last year, but this year they were outnumbered by American officers and soldiers.

Fifth Avenue itself was less gayly adorned than it was last year, when flags were displayed in great clusters from every other building. The decorations yesterday were less numerous and more severe. The seriousness of a nation at war manifested itself also in the expression on the faces of men and women as they emerged from the churches, where they were called upon from the pulpits to respond to the demands of the hour. They were neither too gay nor too depressed. The general tone was serious determination to face great responsibilities and to endure, if need be, the great suffering that the war still has in store for the people of this country.

Conservatism in New Styles.

The dominating tendency of the new styles that made themselves apparent in the parade was entirely toward moderation and conservatism. The hats of the women seemed to run largely toward the small turban shapes, many of them obviously modeled after the khaki Winter caps of the soldiers. The poke bonnets of the civil war period also were present in great numbers. Tailor-made suits, in blues, browns, and grays, were prevalent. Military capes and military jackets also formed a popular feature of women's dress. It was apparent, too, that the utilization of wool and cloth for army use had forced the dressmakers and tailors to economize in cloth in making skirts this year, causing a revival almost of the old hobble skirt effect.

Aside from the parade on Fifth Avenue, there was another parade to be seen yesterday on Grand Street. The east side came out in force, clad in its modest finery and as full of Passover gayety as the circumstances of the war and the fact that many sons, husbands, and brothers were called into the army would permit. Khaki struck as dominant a note on Grand Street as it did on Fifth Avenue, the thoroughfare being thronged by Jewish young men back from the cantonments on a furlough and looking ruddier and healthier than they had ever looked before.

Richardson-Castle.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Tuesday last of Lieutenant Lawrence Baxter Richardson, U. S. N., of Boston and Miss Eunice Elizabeth Castle of Seattle, Wash., in the Church of the Transfiguration. They were attended by Lieutenant Thomas Frederick Remington, U. S. N., and Mrs. Remington, who was Miss Gertrude Leihy of Buffalo, N. Y., and for whom they were bridal attendants the day previous at their wedding ceremony in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The bridegrooms were at the Annapolis Naval Academy together, being graduated in June, 1917.

EASTER DAYLIGHT BRINGS OUT THRONGS

Whole City Enjoys the First Extra Hour in Sunlight Recreations.

NO CONFUSION FROM CHANGE

Some Churchgoers Were an Hour Late, but No Baseball Games Were Called on Account of Darkness.

Multitudes of men, women, and children spent the extra hour of daylight yesterday, the first day in which the daylight saving law went into effect, in the city's parks and recreation places. Coney Island was alive with an Easter throng that was estimated at from 50,000 to 75,000 persons. There were plenty of baseball games, and, so far as could be learned, no games were called "on account of darkness." Tennis courts and golf courses were popular, and games were played so long as there was daylight left, which was up to 7 o'clock, according to the clock.

The law, however, did not go into effect without some inconvenience to those who failed to turn their timepieces an hour ahead. Many who failed to read the instructions given in the newspapers to turn the clock ahead awoke yesterday and found themselves an hour late at their usual Sunday activities. The attendance at the churches was reported as unusually large, but many of the churchgoers were an hour behind the new time. Here and there was found a person who insisted on sticking to the "old time," on the ground that it was more nearly "rooster time," but on the whole the change was observed generally. Those who looked toward the sky at nightfall expecting to see a miracle were disappointed. The sun did not stand still at 6 o'clock, but there was sufficient light to read by and to play by until 7 o'clock, which was about an hour more of daylight than there was the previous day.

The change had been announced a week ago in many of the churches, and some pastors had put up signs to notify the public that the Easter sermon would begin according to clock time. In these churches few were tardy.

At the celebration yesterday morning at the Aldine Club, speeches were made before and after the clock on the Metropolitan Tower had been turned in sight of several thousand persons. Among those who spoke after 2 o'clock was Police Commissioner Enright, who took occasion to say that he did not think there was a more loyal body of men than those in the department.

"And, furthermore, I want to say that there is nothing to prevent the man who is swinging his club and tramping his beat from reaching the highest command in the department under the conditions which exist at present," he continued. "The day of mysterious orders issuing from somewhere outside of the department has passed, and we now have a department in charge of practical policemen who have devoted years to its welfare.

"I don't claim to be the best policeman in the world, but when I think that I have climbed up from the ranks and reached the command of over 11,000 men, I cannot but help impress the men of the force with the possibilities for the future. Close attention to duty, a clean record and unflinching loyalty are the stepping stones to achievement in the Police Department as it is run at present."

SAVED FOOD WITH DAYLIGHT

Camp Dix Appetites Fail to Run on New Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., March 31.—Everything but the stomachs of soldiers approved the daylight saving schedule. The camp awoke one hour earlier than usual this morning, and at breakfast the thing was not so noticeable, but at noon and evening mess appetites refused to perk up to their accustomed power. Cooks said their companies ate 30 per cent. below par when summoned to dinner at 11 o'clock, standard time. There was some fussing when "taps" sounded one hour earlier tonight, but officers suggested that after a day's work on the new time schedule every soldier would be ready to "hit the hay" tomorrow night.

Camp Dix is prepared to receive several thousand new recruits beginning tomorrow. The plan adopted for the recent quota of 7,000 Jersey men of allotting the men to regiments without regard to home localities will be followed with the new drafters. The 5,000 Jersey men of the recent quota remaining after the transfer of 2,000 to special units will be permanently assigned to regiments during the coming week.

GRIM EASTER BY THE SEA.

Soldiers Replace College Boys on Atlantic City's Boardwalk.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 31.—More than 400,000 visitors marched under clear, sunny skies in the great Eastern turnout today on the boardwalk. The pageant represented much prosperity, but little individuality in the matter of clothes. To be comfortably and sensibly garbed seemed the thing, and the weird styles of former years were conspicuously absent.

The Easter crowd was not a merry one. The gayety and good fun of the college boys who formerly spent their Spring vacation here was lacking. In their places came boys in sailor uniforms and boys in khaki, and their presence was a grim reminder of the fact that the nation was at war. There were many military men of distinction in the parade, including Major Leon Osterrieth, chief of the Belgian Military Mission in the United States.

Mayor John F. Hylan, Mrs. Hylan, and Miss Virginia Hylan were among the interested spectators. In the Mayor's party were Mr. and Mrs. Grover A. Whelan and John Sinnot. The party has been at the Shelburne since Thursday. Mayor Hylan returned to New York this afternoon. He would not be interviewed, saying he was only down for a few days and had left the cares of office at home.

DRIVE FOR JEWISH ORPHANS

Brooklyn Federation Hopes to Raise Half a Million Dollars.

At a dinner at the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum last night plans were completed for a $500,000 drive to start today in the effort to raise funds for the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities. It is hoped that 25,000 members will be obtained for the federation who will guarantee a fund of $500,000 each year. The drive is to end on April 15.

The dinner, in addition to opening the drive, celebrated the installation of the new kosher kitchen at the asylum. Among the speakers were Louis L. Firuski, President of the asylum; Rabbi Louis D. Gross of Temple Israel, Magistrate Alexander H. Geismar, Chairman of the Campaign Committee; Samuel Rottenberg, Rabbi Wolf Gold of Temple Beth Jacob Anshe Sholem, Nathan S. Jonas, Supreme Court Justice Edward Lazansky, Rabbi Israel Klein, and Meyer Steinbrink. It was reported last night that $75,000 had been pledged already.

CROWD CAPITAL CHURCHES.

Washington Dispenses with the Usual Easter Fashion Parade.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—There was no fashion parade on Connecticut Avenue today, although all the fashionable churches along that thoroughfare had capacity congregations at the morning services, while at the Episcopal Cathedral, where the visiting Archbishop of York officiated, hundreds of would-be worshippers failed to get into the edifice.

Mrs. Wilson attended St. John's Church at the 11 o'clock service, unattended by the President, a departure from their usual procedure, as when the President does not accompany his wife to the Episcopal church of her choice, she usually attends the Central Presbyterian Church with him.

This afternoon the President and Mrs. Wilson took a long motor ride. There are no holiday guests at the White House today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, following the well-established custom of Mr. McLean's parents, entertained a large breakfast company at Friendship, their suburban home, today, and will probably continue this form of entertainment each Sunday throughout the Spring season, although they are still occupying their town house on McPherson Square.

There were also a number of luncheon and breakfast companies at the suburban clubs, one of the largest being given at Chevy Chase by Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Harlow, for their daughter, in compliment to Miss Anne Hopkins and Miss Margaret Fahnestock, who are brides-elect of Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively. Miss Harlow will serve in the bridal party of each.

The marriage of Miss Hopkins and Captain John Gregory Hope of the British Army will take place at St. Thomas's Church on Tuesday afternoon and that of Miss Fahnestock and Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., at the Episcopal Cathedral on Wednesday afternoon.

McADOO GOES TO SPRINGS.

Secretary of the Treasury to Rest at White Sulphur.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., March 31.—Dr. W. T. Elsing of New York, who gave a very interesting talk in the ballroom of the Greenbrier this afternoon on "The Bright Side of Life in Darkest New York," spoke also at the Presbyterian Church to the Sunday school children.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo and Mrs. McAdoo arrived at the Greenbrier last evening from Washington to pass a few days. Mr. McAdoo is resting and preparing for the third Liberty Loan campaign. Oscar Price, publicity promoter for the loan, and J. H. Schaffer are with him.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Steele and John N. Steele, Jr., arrived at the Greenbrier to pass some time. Allen G. Wellman joined Mrs. Wellman and Miss Veda Parker for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Putnam and John P. Terry of New York arrived by automobile from South Carolina and will pass several weeks at the Greenbrier.

Mr. and Mrs. James William Corrigan of Cleveland have come to take the cure.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Hill are here from St. Louis for several weeks.

Arthur A. Kahn is here from New York.

Motor parties were out in large numbers, and among those motoring to Hot Springs were Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bass, who are passing their honeymoon here. Mrs. Cornelius Zabriskie entertained a party of six at Elmhurst Farm for dinner after motoring to Lewisburg. Mr. and Mrs. R. Jay Flick drove through Onkhurst. Dr. John Freeland entertained a party of eight friends at the Log Cabin for luncheon.

A., stationed at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonor F. Loree of West Orange, N. J. Mr. Loree is the President of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad. No date has been set for the marriage.

Announcement has also been made of the engagement of Miss Blanche Leblane, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leblane of North Eighteenth Street, East Orange, N. J., to Cadet Walter Chapman of the Royal Flying Corps and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chapman of Newark, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Dillard of 1,381 Dean Street, Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Dillard Cox, to Willis Hopper Stafford, son of Mrs. Willis E. Stafford and the late Mr. Stafford of 639 East Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn.

The engagement is also announced of Miss Mildred E. Wellhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wellhouse of Atlanta, Ga., to Corporal Lawrence J. Steinhardt, 112th Regiment, Heavy Field Artillery, and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Steinhardt of Newark, N. J.

LAST-HOUR RUSH TO REPORT INCOMES

Mail of the Revenue Collectors Is Swamped with Returns from Taxpayers.

EXPECT CROWDS TODAY

Extensions of Time to be Granted to Those Unable to Report Because of the Crush.

This is the last day on which income and excess profits tax returns may be filed, except in cases where extensions of time have been obtained. The mail yesterday was swamped with returns, and great lines of people are expected today at the Internal Revenue offices, at 1,150 Broadway, and at the Custom House. Every possible effort will be made by a large staff at each office to take care of those who appear to file their returns, and those who make a bona fide effort to file their returns but are unable to do so because of the rush, will receive an extension of time, it was announced.

Collector William H. Edwards of the First District, whose office is at the Custom House, announced that his office would be open until midnight and every one in the building at that time who found it impossible to file his statement would be able to file it later without any penalty.

For the benefit of those who have received extensions of time, however, Collector Edwards announced that he had received a telegram from the Treasury Department, saying that all taxpayers who had received an extension of time must pay their tax when they file their returns. Collector Edwards also said that there would be no further extensions today, except in cases of illness or the absence of the principal and of those who appear at the office to file their statements but find it is physically impossible because of the crowds.

All returns which were received by mail up to 12 o'clock tonight, Mr. Edwards said, would be considered as properly filed. When asked if returns mailed on Monday from this city or from points out of town, which failed to reach his office until Tuesday or Wednesday, would be considered as filed within the time limit, he said that he would consider such cases on their merits.

These directions for the taxpayer who for no fault of his own has failed to file a return were issued by Collector Edwards yesterday:

If for any reason you have tried to get an extension and have failed; if for any reason you are unable to file your correct income tax return, get a blank income tax form at the Custom House, write in your name and address or the name of your corporation or partnership, give as many facts as possible and have it witnessed by one of the Deputy Collectors. This will be considered a tentative return. Thus you place yourself within the rule and avoid penalty. You will be allowed to make a correct return within thirty days. This will be attached to your original papers and sent to Washington. I suggest that taxpayers do this even though they have no figures at all; only write in your blanks that the correct figures will be sent as soon as possible.

This is necessary, it was understood, for the reason that the Treasury Department is anxious to ascertain at the earliest possible date approximately how much revenue the Government will receive from this source.

One of the rulings on income tax, which was sent out yesterday, was that which forbids a divorced husband to deduct money paid as alimony from his taxable income, but does not require the wife receiving alimony to pay an income tax on it.

The following statement has been issued for the information of men who carry on farming as a recreation:

A person cultivating or operating a farm for recreation or pleasure on a basis other than the recognized principles of commercial farming, the result of which is a continual loss from year to year, is not regarded as a farmer. In such cases, if the expenses incurred in connection with the farm are in excess of the receipts therefrom, the entire receipts from sale of products may be ignored in rendering a return of income, and the expenses incurred being regarded as personal expenses will not constitute allowable deductions in the return of income derived from other sources.

In the case of a man having a farm as a speculation, the extra amount of expenses in building up the farm in the way of fertilizing, better fences, and general improvement of the farm, has been ruled to be capital investment, and such items are not deductible from the gross income until the farm is disposed of, the transaction completed and closed, and the profits and losses definitely ascertained.

Collector Edwards said yesterday that the enormous number of returns which had been delayed until the last few days, together with the fact that many of the largest income tax payers had received extensions of time, made it impossible to estimate the collections with any degree of accuracy, but he believed that fully half a billion dollars would be collected in his district.

BIG BILLS READY TO PASS.

Loan, War Finance, and Export Measures Approach Final Stages.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Entering the fifth month of the second war session, Congress this week is expected to complete three more important measures—the new Liberty Loan legislation, the bill creating a War Finance Corporation, and the long pending Webb Export bill. Work will continue on the Overman bill, vesting President Wilson with greater powers for reorganization, and attention will be given during the week to the amendments to the Selective Draft act.

Right of way is to be given in the Senate to the Liberty Loan bill, authorizing $4,500,000,000 more war bonds, $8,000,000,000 Treasury certificates, and further loans of $1,500,000,000 to the Allies. This measure, which goes tomorrow from the House to the Senate, should be law before next Saturday, when the third Liberty Loan campaign begins.

The conference report on the Administration bill for the War Finance Corporation is slated for presentation tomorrow. The Senate and House will act on it in turn, with prospects of its transmission to the President by midweek.

Presentation in the House of the conferees' agreement on the Webb Export bill, which would permit American exporters to combine in foreign commerce and has been pending before Congress for several years, also is planned for tomorrow.

Daniel Moynahan Dead.

Daniel Moynahan, Collector of Assessments and Arrears for the last twelve years, died suddenly at his home, 440 Eighth Street, Brooklyn, on Saturday night in his sixty-fifth year. He had returned to his office recently following a severe attack of pneumonia. His death was thought to have been due to a heart attack brought on by his weakened condition. Mr. Monyahan was appointed Aug. 20, 1906, by Herman A. Metz when the latter was Controller.

DEPLETION OF MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS BY DRAFT WILL GIVE YOUNG PLAYERS CHANCE

RAFT DISRUPTING BIG LEAGUE TEAMS

l Clubs Are Hard Hit by Loss of Stars to Country's Service.

RADE DEALS MAY SUFFER

anagers in Quandary as to Their Lineups—New Players May Get Better Chance.

With Uncle Sam drafting major ague ball players over night, and the ening of the season only two weeks ay, the outcome of the pennant ce in the two leagues becomes a big mble. Events of the last week have akened club owners to the fact that ey do not know from one day to an- her where they stand in regard to eir players.

Just when Bob Shawkey was looming as the best pitching selection of e Yankees for the coming season, received the call to duty, and the st morning one of Miller Huggins's t pitchers was gone. Pitchers vans and Mulligan, two of Pitts- rgh's promising youngsters, have ceived the call to report for war t after having entrained for three eks with the Pirates, and Manager sdek finds a big gap in his pitching aff.

Urban Shocker, one of the Yankee tchers traded to St. Louis, has re- ived his call, and his loss will be a avy blow to the Browns. Chase t was suddenly called from Hot prings just when Manager Robinson d fitted him into his infield ma- inery, and now the Dodgers must t another infielder. The draft is using havoc with many of the trades hich were made during last Winter. d those managers who took a chance players of draft age on the gamble, at they might not be called are eavy losers.

There are four other members of the ankee team who are in Class A1 and e liable to be called at any time. hey are Walter Pipp, the regular rst baseman; Bob McGraw and Ed onroe, two of Huggins's most promis- g young pitchers, and Muddy Ruel, e of his best young catchers.

Huggins does not know but that he ill wake up any morning and find ase players gone. It is the same with anny Kauff of the Giants. He is like- to be called any day and the loss of s batting strength would be a hard low to McGraw's National League champions.

The uncertainty of the tenure of a all player's connection with a club is eing forcibly illustrated every day. han Uncle Sam calls there is no delay nd it is already quite evident that anagers have made a serious mistake n building up their clubs depending on layers liable to draft to fill important ositions.

While it is a hard blow to the clubs o lose their players now, it will be even more disorganizing to the teams o lose players after the season gets nder way. But nevertheless this is oing to happen. The condition of af- airs which will probably confront the aseball clubs after the season gets nder way, or even sooner than that, will upset all the calculations of the rophets, who have already tried to uess the outcome of the pennant races. t is generally conceded that the Chi- ago White Sox will be the leaders in he American League, while the Giants are again favored in the National. These onclusions have been arrived at with- ut giving much weight to the possible hanges in the makeup of the clubs ecause of the draft.

Without Robertson and Benny Kauff he Giants' batting strength is sure to be weakened, and the possibility of Young nd Wilhoit filling up the gap is prob- matical. There is no way of telling hat other players may be called before he Summer is over. The White Sox ave not yet been as hard hit by the raft as other clubs, but there may be mportant developments before the sea- on is over which will change the make- p of the team.

YANKEES TO BREAK CAMP.

Only One More Day of Training Scheduled for Macon.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., March 31.—The Yanks ave one more day to spend in Macon. hey go to Dublin, Ga., for a game with he Braves tomorrow, and return here uesday for the continuation of the eries with the National Leaguers. uesday night they say au revoir to acon.

The regulars have been here two eeks and have not lost a day from raining, although the weather all that ime has not been above reproach. It as been changeable, but has not inter- ered with work. Spells of fine, sunny eather have been interspersed with indy or cloudy days. The first half of ast week was splendid, the latter part isagreeable. Several colds have ap- eared among the squad, but aside from hese the men are in good trim.

What pitchers there are are in pretty t condition to hook up with the Stal- ngs coterie, and Huggins has two atchers in excellent shape. Bowman is he only pitcher who couldn't go into he box in an important game. He re- orted with a sore arm and still has it. Huggins's pitchers against the Braves omorrow will be Mogridge, Russell, nd Monroe. They have come along icely in training, and as Caldwell, eye, and Thormahlen all showed signs f real form yesterday the pitching taff might be worse off. If Pratt, who had laid up yesterday with a cold, does ot go to Dublin, Ward and Beck will e taken, with Ward first substitute.

The most eventful development of the ay from a baseball standpoint had to o with a report that George Stallings nd Buck Herzog were in conference at addock, Ga., where Stallings's farm situated, and that they were in a ay way to patch up their differences. tallings was called by telephone from ere and confirmed the report. More an that, he said Herzog had come to ms and that everything was all right. erzog will have a talk with Percy aughton, President of the Braves, tallings said, and will join the team Augusta on Wednesday ready to play allings is under the weather and ill not go to Dublin. In his absence Konetchy will have charge of the am.

Hagen and Barnes Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31.—Alex- der Ross of Detroit and Herbert La- rbiade of Youngstown, both of whom e attached to the Pinehurst Country ub during the Winter months, took Walter Hagen of Rochester, the new orth and South open champion, and o Barnes of Broadmoor at Pinehurst day and won by 3 and 2. Ross had 35—70 on the championship course. arbiade had a 74.

GIANTS AGAIN BEAT TEXANS.

Get Fewer Hits but Almost as Many Runs in Game.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 31.—The Giants yesterday trimmed San Antonio by the score of 8 to 1 by burying them under fifteen hits. Today the Giants proved to the satisfaction of a much larger crowd that they could win just as easily with far less exertion. They let the San Antonio boys do most of the hitting, the Texans knocking out ten hits against eight for New York, but the Giants won by almost the score of yesterday—7 to 1.

Today's game was rather ragged, but the Giants took full advantage of the bad playing of the locals, whereas New York always settled down and held tight when its pitchers were in trouble. At that the lone San Antonio score was a gift run. Benny Kauff lost an easy fly ball in the sun in the second inning, and it netted Hale a two-bagger. Hale scored when Fletcher obligingly muffed Pier's fly on the foul line.

The grandstand was practically a mass of khaki, and the soldiers picked out Benny Kauff as their hero. Benny made good with the soldiers by twice meeting the ball for two-base hits. However, in the field Benny didn't look so good; he let one fly get away from him, and permitted a grounder to roll through his legs.

George Burns stole home in the fifth inning. It was a pretty piece of work, as the catcher had the ball, but Burns got around him with a hook slide. Burns took a real big part in the afternoon's doings, as he hammered out a double and a single and walked twice.

Slim Sallee, the tall left-hander, and Jesse Barnes, the lean left-hander, attended to McGraw's pitching. Sallee allowed four hits in four innings, but two of them would have been stopped by faster fielding. Barnes was hit pretty hard, and several times sharp support pulled him out of trouble.

OLSON'S ERRORS EXPENSIVE

His Misplays Pave Way for Red Sox Victory by 7 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 31.—The inner defense of Brooklyn broke down in the ninth inning today and the Dodgers allowed another game to slip from their grasp in the exhibition series with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox seized the opportunity to stage a rally and won out by a score of 7 to 4.

The ball game was tossed away on two costly errors by Ivy Olson on comparatively easy chances. He muffed a ground ball and a minute later dropped a throw for a force play at second. The two misplays paved the way for five runs.

Up to the ninth inning Brooklyn had played steady ball, and, behind good pitching by Burleigh Grimes, was leading by two runs. Grimes, who started in the fifth inning after Larry Cheney had worked four innings with a sore arm, had held Boston safely and was breezing along to a victory, when Olson's errors wrecked things.

ENJOY EXTRA HOUR OF LIGHT AT TRAPS

New York A. C. Gunners Have Busy Time on First Sunday of New Law.

Trapshooters of the New York Athletic Club were the first body of outdoor sportsmen to enjoy the extra hour of daylight yesterday. Thirty-two arrived at the firing line at Travers Island. Being the final Sunday of the month, the various cups were presented after the events were finished. F. J. Ham was the only gunner to score a leg on the Monthly Cup, running a straight string of 25. The prize was taken by Z. Rogers, who had scored three times on the prize earlier in the month.

D. S. McMahon, Z. Rogers, and R. L. Spotts all ran straight in the shoot for the Tournament Cup. Each was awarded a leg. The victory gave the first named his second leg on the prize, enough to allow him to take home the cup. Although he did not shoot yesterday, F. R. Holt won the Byronel Cup, having scored four legs during the month.

R. L. Spotts did the best work of the day, winning the high scratch race with a total of 98 out of a possible 100 targets. The best handicap score was made by G. M. Pynchon.

MANY PRIZES FOR BENNETT.

Takes Leading Place in New Rochelle Yacht Club Shoot.

A. P. Bennett and Fred J. Ham, Jr., monopolized the honors of the week-end handicap shoot at the Harrison Island traps of the New Rochelle Yacht Club yesterday. Bennett started by winning the fifteen-bird event, and captured the Take Home Trophy, high scratch laurels, and the March Cup. The latter competition he won with two legs.

Ham gained the high handicap honors and the Accumulation Cup. In the team shooting for the Commodore Marsland Trophy, Team B was victorious by a margin of 130 points over Team A.

The club's shooting season will close next Sunday with a championship event.

MAROONS LOSE YALE GAME.

Conflict in Dates May Prevent Baseball Contest.

Negotiations for a baseball game this season between Yale and Fordham have apparently fallen through, according to an announcement made yesterday. Although the Maroons were listed to play Yale in an early draft of the New Haven team's schedule, released last week, Joseph Kinsley, the Maroon baseball manager, was informed the next day that it was impossible to accommodate the locals on Memorial Day. The Fordham management was offered an April date several weeks ago, but it conflicted with a game already secured.

BOUT LOST TO CONNECTICUT

Willard-Fulton Battle Must Be Staged in Open.

The situation with regard to the proposed heavyweight championship bout between Jess Willard and Fred Fulton, which is scheduled for somewhere in the United States July 4, remained unchanged yesterday. Colonel J. C. Miller, the Bliss (Okla.) promoter, returned to this city from Baltimore after a conference with Willard, but refused to divulge anything concerning his talk with the champion. He did admit that he had discussed the bids that had been received for the contest and a probable location for the match.

The belief that Colonel Miller would dispose of the bout entirely to some promotor was dispelled when he stated positively that he would be a partner in the promotion of the contest. This was taken to indicate that a site for the event had practically been decided upon. That Joe Mulvihill the Connecticut promoter who made an offer of $185,000 for the contest, is practically out of the running as far as receiving a part in the bout is concerned, was learned from an authoritative source. This information was to the effect that Mulvihill's proposition called for the holding of the bout indoors, and that Colonel Miller would not consider such a condition, insisting that the bout must be held outdoors.

MAXWELL NOT TO DEFEND.

Title Holder Will Not Start in North and South Golf Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31.—The North and South amateur championship will open at Pinehurst tomorrow with the playing of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round. Over 180 have entered, and two courses will be used for each round.

Norman Maxwell is not on hand to defend his title, and the prophets have not so far nominated his successor, although E. L. Scofield of Weo Burn, who had a 73 in the open tournament yesterday, is regarded as a likely candidate for the qualifying medal.

The latest entries include Dewitt and George R. Balch of Cincinnati, Dr. C. H. Gardner of the Agawam Hunt, R. M. Markwell of Lake Shore, Arthur Yates of Oak Hill, and Allan Lard of Chevy Chase.

MONUMENT FOR SHERIDAN.

Friends of Former Champion Athlete to Commemorate His Memory.

Friends and admirers of the late Martin J. Sheridan, former Olympic champion, have started a subscription fund for the purpose of erecting a monument to the memory of the dead athlete. Patrick J. Conway, President of the Irish-American A. C., one of the closest friends of Sheridan while the latter lived, is director of the fund. The Police Department, to which Sheridan had been attached since 1901 as a detective, has guaranteed the sum of $1,000 for the fund.

TABERSKI TO PLAY HERE.

Will Compete in Exhibition Pocket Billiard Matches at Doyle's.

Local pocket billiard enthusiasts will get their first glimpse of Frank Taberski, the professional champion, this week, when he will be engaged in exhibition matches both afternoon and evening at Doyle's Broadway and Forty-second Street Academy. Taberski established a record never equaled in the history of the sport, when he won eleven consecutive championship matches in obtaining possession of the diamond trophy.

ROBERTSON TO GO ABROAD.

Veteran Athlete to Join Forces of Y. M. C. A. Directors.

Announcement was made last night of the appointment of William H. Robertson, the local sporting goods manufacturer and old-time athlete, as a chief athletic director and athletic field constructor in connection with the Y. M. C. A. athletic work for the soldiers of this country in France. Robertson is expected to sail for France within the next three weeks.

GUNTHER SETS FAST PACE IN ROAD RUN

St. Jerome C. C. Athlete Takes Annual Brooklyn Event—Kaufman Makes Record.

R. Gunther, St. Jerome's C. C., yesterday won the annual Easter Sunday handicap road race of the Brooklyn A. A., held over the Brooklyn club's Highland Park course of about five and one-half miles. Gunther was aided by the limit handicap allowance of 4 minutes 15 seconds, but it was his endurance which brought him victory. He covered the five and one-half miles in the actual time of 30:36, and at the finish line had an advantage of about five yards on M. Ciringione, Harbrook A. C. P. Zabludofsky of the Morningside A. C., a four-minute starter, brought up in third position.

Harriers, representing the majority of the active clubs in the metropolitan district, got away from various handicap marks at the starting point. Of the field of 137, about 75 completed the course. Others were forced to retire before the race was completed because of the stiff pace. Gunther, Ciringione and Zabludofsky were in the van over the entire distance and the lead alternated between them. Particularly was this the case in the last mile, when they set out on a stiff struggle for the premier place.

The most spectacular display of running was furnished by Louis Kaufmen, Brooklyn A. A., recent winner of the intersectional Athletic League championship road race. He started from the 15-second mark, virtually scratch man, and finished in seventeenth position, gaining the fast time prize. His actual time for the distance was 27:57, eclipsing the old record for the course of 30:59, made three years ago by Tom Gorey, St. Joseph's Y. M. A. His time was 53 seconds faster than that credited to Alex Feher, Hungarian-American A. C., second fast time prize winner.

Villar Kyronen, Charles Pores, both of the Millrose A. A., and Emilio Mayo, Brooklyn A. A., who were expected to run from scratch, did not start. Team honors went to the Paulist A. C. harriers with 53 points.

The order of finish follows:

Edward Lillis of the Glencoe A. C. romped home a winner of the final handicap road race of the season of the Harlem Athletic League yesterday. The chase was held over the Harbrook A. C.'s course of short five-miles and eighteen harriers started. Fifteen of these finished. Lillis made his first competitive appearance in two years and ran an excellent race. He had a handicap of 3:30 and his actual time was 32:38. The fast time laurels fell to M. Tea, who recorded 31:25 from the 45-second mark, and the team honors went to the Glencoe A. C., with 18 points.

The season's final standing gave the Morningside A. C. the point plaque with 110 points. Harbrook A. C., with 70 points, was second; Glencoe A. C., 60 points, third, and Alpha P. C. C., 5 points, fourth. The season's individual laurels went to Harry Brown, Harbrook A. C., as the most consistent winner, with 39½ tallies.

NEW YORK ELEVEN VICTOR.

Joliet Soccer Team, Unbeaten in West, Loses, 2 Goals to 1.

Undefeated this season in the West, the soccer eleven of the Joliet Football Club, leader in the Chicago League, met with a reverse yesterday at Lenox Oval, where the team representing the New York Football Club defeated the visitors by 2 goals to 1. The Illinois players were somewhat fatigued after their 1,000-mile journey and the U. S. F. A. Cup match lost at Bethlehem on Saturday, but they gave a good account of themselves nevertheless.

Smith, Joliet's centre forward, by a fine individual effort, was the first to score sixteen minutes from the start. The equalizing tally for New York came ten minutes later, when Puxty scored from a corner. With the second period in progress fifteen minutes, Puxty, from a cross by O'Halloran, shot what proved to be the winning goal.

Cheered on by 2,000 spectators, the soccer eleven of the Interborough Rapid Transit Football Club obtained the verdict by 3 goals to 1 in a New York State League championship match with Clan MacDuff at Medley Field.

Defeating the Yonkers Rovers on their own grounds in Yonkers by the score of 2 goals to 0, the La Sultana Football Club qualified for the second round of the Southern New York Association's cup tie competition. Scott opened the scoring for La Sultana in the first minute of play, and twenty minutes after the restart Walsh notched the second point.

Play opened yesterday in the annual competition for the cup of the Southern New York Football Association at Woodside, L. I., where the Tyrconnel Colts took the measure of the Fulton-Cameronos by the close score of 3 goals to 0.

SPEARS LEADS BIKE RIDERS.

Wins Two Events at Opening of Velodrome in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., March 31.—Bob Spears, the Australian, won two bicycle races in the opening meet of the season before 8,000 people at the Velodrome this afternoon. Spears took the five-mile open and the one-mile open. He also won the Shanley Handicap, at one mile, but was disqualified for taking the pole from the inside.

Cheerful at morn, he wakes from short repose,
Breasts the keen air, and carols as he goes.

First Men Leave for Camp Today Under the New Draft

Entire Contingent Comprises 6,338 Men, Who Will Undergo Training at Upton.

MORE MEN ARE SELECTED

Whole Number to be in Camp by Friday Night, Under the Present Plans.

Beginning today, the first contingent of the second draft army from New York will go to Camp Upton. The entire contingent numbers 6,338 and the men will leave every day up to and including Friday, when it is expected that all will be in camp.

THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning prints additional names of the men who are in the first contingent of the second draft. In the case of a number of boards, the names of alternates as well as of those originally selected for the army are also printed. The alternates were chosen in order to enable the boards to send out full quotas by filling vacancies which might occur at the last moment.

The names follow:

JEWS RALLY TO AID WAR SAVINGS PLAN

Organizations Pledge Support to Government—Royal Arcanum's Activities.

A rally of several hundred representatives of small and independent Jewish organizations in this city to advance the war savings movement was held in Terrace Garden yesterday. Joseph Barondess, ex-Commissioner of Education, presided and the speakers included Jacob Wertheim, Michael Kley, head of the foreign language department of the War Savings Committee; Nathan Zvirin, Morris Caesar, and Colonel J. L. Winthrow.

The representatives present adopted resolutions pledging their support to the Government and promising to organize among themselves war savings societies that would undertake to promote the sale of thrift and war savings stamps. The various organizations vied with each other in a demonstration of their loyalty. One man took from his pocket four $100 stamp books and said that he would increase the amount before he was through to $1,000 worth of stamps.

Arrangements were made for a larger conference of the small and unaffiliated Jewish organizations of the city to be held in the near future.

The War Savings Committee was informed yesterday that the Government would receive $8,000,000 yearly from the Royal Arcanum through the sale of thrift stamps. This estimate was contained in a statement made to the committee by O. A. Williams, Supreme Regent of the Royal Arcanum. He also announced that the regents of 1,712 councils would undertake to organize war savings societies and would obtain pledges from their members to set aside a definite amount weekly for the purchase of stamps.

The New York War Savings Committee announced yesterday the formation of the first thousand war savings societies outside of the schools. The effort to enroll the people of New York in these clubs for systematic savings to support the Government will be continued throughout the year. During the coming Liberty Loan campaign the actual selling organization of the War Savings Committee will be combined with the Liberty Loan organization, to the end that during this period sales of both Liberty bonds and war savings stamps shall be made in the largest possible amounts to each individual buyer.

SEE END OF STRIKES IN NEW AGREEMENT

Labor Leaders and Industrial Heads Indorse Measure of War Labor Conference.

BOTH SIDES YIELD POINTS

Union Concedes "Open Shop" Principle Under Pledge That Grievances Will Be Heard.

Labor leaders and officials of large industrial companies and railroads yesterday studied the text of the program for settling labor disputes during the war, which was submitted by the War Labor Conference, consisting of an equal number of representatives of labor and of capital, to William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor.

Both groups considered the document as one of great importance, not only because it provided machinery acceptable to both sides for the prevention of industrial disturbances during the war, but because it represented the broadest agreement which had ever been reached between representatives of capital and of labor as to the fundamental principles which should govern industrial relations.

While the agreement generally closely follows the principles for which labor unions have been striving, in the matter of hours, wage standards, equal pay for women, and the right to organize, it also brings labor unions and employers into harmony in indorsing principles which employers have held to be essential for raising production to a maximum. Next to the prevention of strikes, the most important clause to the employer is the one which sets forth that "methods of work and operation on the part of employers or workers which operate to delay or limit production, which have a tendency to artificially increase the cost thereof, should be discontinued." The right of employers to maintain "open shop" conditions, without interference by coercive methods on the part of labor organizations, is a concession by union leaders.

Sees the End of Strikes.

Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, said last night that he believed the recommendations of the War Labor Conference would be adopted by President Wilson, would be accepted by all unions, and would prevent serious strikes to the end of the war.

"It looks to me like a very fair platform," he said. "While it deprives organized labor of the right to obtain redress of its grievances by strikes, it seems to provide full hearings for all grievances under conditions which should insure fair awards. It is difficult to predict how any plan which is only on paper will work out, but I do not believe there will be any more strikes of consequence."

The agreement on this capital-labor platform seemed to make it impossible that further interruption of shipbuilding should occur in consequence of labor disputes. One of the men signing the agreement was W. L. Hutcheson, President of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters, which recently held a strike in Atlantic shipyards. In signing the agreement Mr. Hutcheson yielded one point for which he was fighting, the demand that "closed shop" conditions prevail in the shipyards. He gained, however, another point, and that is the right of the shipyard employes to have their demands heard and acted upon by a body other than the Labor Adjustment Committee of the Shipping Board.

One of the striking facts about the success of the War Labor Conference was that a unanimous agreement could be reached on fundamental principles between representatives of capital and of labor, who were before the war bitterly opposed to compromise. One of the representatives of the employers, for instance, was B. L. Worden of the Submarine Boat Corporation, which has been maintaining an "open shop," and employing practically all non-union men.

Easley Sees Union for War.

Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation, who returned from Washington last night, said:

"This agreement is one of the greatest things which has occurred in this country. It occurred at a most fortunate time, as there is at present no labor dispute of importance under way in the country. It is a permanent agreement on principles which have all been pretty well tested in recent months, and will mean cordial relations between employer and employe from now until the end of the war, in my opinion."

A railroad official who has frequently spoken for the railroads in this territory said:

"While it is highly desirable that the Full Crew bills should be set aside in the interests of railroad efficiency and for the sake of a more vigorous prosecution of the war, the railroads will certainly not take the lead in opening this question. We do not want to reopen any old controversies at this time. I believe that this matter must be allowed to rest entirely between organized labor and the Government."

Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said that he approved of the agreement reached by the War Labor Conference as a whole. He added: "I don't want to be understood as criticising so admirable a document, but one clause in it ought to be more clearly defined. It urges that employers must not discharge workmen merely for their union activities. I never knew a case where an employer admitted that he discharged an employe for union activities. If he gets rid of a man because he is an agitator, it is always explained that the man was discharged because he did bad work."

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Prices That Point to German Defeat.

Most people have been shaken loose from the comfortable feeling which they held toward the war by the engrossing news of the last ten days. They are looking at the situation today with a much broader understanding of the work that lies ahead of the United States. They are beginning to realize that something more than the substitution of palatable whole wheat bread for bread made entirely of white flour, an occasional purchase of a Government bond, and discussions of the faults of German character, is expected by the French and British in the way of support. America was to win the war, but the crucial stage has arrived a full year after this country's entrance and has found the Allies weaker in numbers and in munitions along the active battle front than the enemy. The news of successive gains made by the new German offensive has sobered Americans, but has not discouraged them. It has made them reckon the performance with the promise held out a year ago and determine that from now on they will let nothing distract them from the only business that cannot be neglected on any account. It has made Wall Street concentrate its attention on Government financing, because that is the channel through which its help can be most effective, and has pushed the stock market into the background. The elevation of General Foch to the supreme command and the offer of General Pershing's troops for whatever disposition he chooses to make of them has at last brought the war home.

Had there been inflation other than that unavoidably produced by the growing scarcity of labor and materials, and the consequent rise in prices, it should have been reflected in a much wider break in security prices than took place last week following the receipt of the worst of the war news. The stock market has been on a "long war" basis ever since the abandonment of the peace talk with Germany's ruthless violation of promises to Russia. It has been thoroughly liquidated against almost any conceivable bad news. It opened Monday, after the accumulation of a fairly large volume of selling orders, induced by the fears of worse news to come, with a moderate break, and, after a recovery which held through the first half of the week, fluctuated only moderately. At the same time the amount of business offered was itself the best evidence of the firmness of the underlying situation. The amount of selling induced by the new alignment of the forces on the western front was small, in the first place because the market has not been deaf to the talk of great preparations making for the drive these many weeks past, and, in the second place, because no one really believed that the allied retreat could be turned into a disaster.

Secretary McAdoo listened to a great deal of advice before fixing the terms which he has asked Congress to authorize for the Third Liberty Loan, and then decided against the almost unanimous opinion of financiers that the interest rate should be made 4½ per cent. A half dozen leading bank executives in New York had met just before the loan announcement, and all of them professed to know the terms. It developed that they not only had six differing plans, but that Mr. McAdoo's made the seventh. The difference of one-quarter of 1 per cent. in the rate is not serious. The issue could be sold on a 4 per cent. basis, but it would involve a needless outlay of energy. In banking circles any disappointment over the adoption of the rate of 4¼ per cent. was more than balanced by gratification over the small amount of the bonds which must be taken, the provision for a sinking fund to be used to support the market, and the new advantage given this issue by making bonds under it acceptable in payment of Federal inheritance taxes. The Treasury Department will accept subscriptions in excess of the minimum asked, and should be in receipt of a sum considerably larger than $3,000,000,000. The new spirit of service which has been aroused throughout the land by the tales of heroic resistance offered by the British and French troops can express itself in no fitter way than through liberal subscriptions to the new issue. No amount of publicity and advertising could have so prepared the public mind for the new offering.

On the basis of the Treasury Department's own estimates of last December it was at first expected that the third loan would amount to $8,000,000,000. The figure was later revised to $6,000,000,000. The Secretary's decision to ask for but half the latter sum is a formal recognition of the failure of industries, manufacturing and shipping, to meet the expectations of the War Department. The authorities made generous requisitions for everything they wanted without regard to the limitations of production. It now appears that the December estimates of purchases for the year ending June 30 were at least double the sum that can be spent. On the other hand, the Treasury's expectations in the matter of tax receipts erred on the other side. It is freely predicted now that in place of the $2,500,000,000 which it was thought should be produced by the income and excess profits taxes, the Government will be in receipt of not less than $4,000,000,000. The measure offered in Congress to enable taxpayers to spread their payments over two or more installments should be adopted. The Government can anticipate revenues through sales of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, and the stringency that threatens if the banks are called upon to finance the tremendously increased payments at one time would be avoided. Recent reports of industrial corporations have shown on the balance sheets reserve set aside for taxes in some cases several times the amount of cash on hand. The corporations will be in receipt of funds to make their payments as contracts are completed, but they will have to borrow at an expensive rate to meet their taxes in June.

If it were not for the fact that the sum total of all economies in administration and operation falls far short of the estimated increase which must be made in the railway payrolls this year, the results so far achieved under the consolidation of all the lines into one Government system would be ample justification for the change in control. The New Haven situation would have proved troublesome had the Government not intervened, for bankers were not willing to grant the extension on terms which mean a profit to the railroad revolving fund.

BANKS ARE LOOKING FAR INTO PEACE TIME

American Exchange and Guaranty Trust Caution America to Prepare for Trade Contest.

HINT OF A GERMAN FRAUD

Empire's Population Thought to Have Been Misstated for Years—How to Help Post Office.

The American Exchange National Bank, discussing the general world situation in respect to military and business developments, voices a suggestion which has been heard in the allied and neutral countries for some time.

"Germany's display of reserve strength and resources," says the bank's April letter, "tends to confirm the belief that her Government has concealed the true population of the country for many years, and that it probably exceeded 80,000,000 at the outbreak of the war. In addition to this, large numbers of Germans were living in Poland, Russia, and Bohemia at that time, and the reservists and those of military age were called home shortly before the war began. Observant Americans in Germany were surprised at the heavy passenger traffic and other train movements in June and July, 1914. In the first week of August they had the explanation."

The German population has conventionally been estimated at 70,000,000. The bank urges that American manufacturers and exporters organize to take advantage of the Webb bill for pushing foreign trade in competition with other countries.

"Germany is strengthening her cartel system," the letter continues, "and England and France are organizing syndicates for this purpose. It will not do to wait until peace is restored. Hereafter competition in international markets will be national rather than individual, and the race is likely to be won by the nation that is best prepared before the declaration of peace.

"Printing houses in New York and other cities turn out a vast amount of literature for the Federal Government which is shipped to Washington and mailed from there to all parts of the country. This is lost motion and wasted effort. Such printed matter could be mailed or shipped direct from the cities where it is produced with a great saving of money and time. It would pay the Government to maintain branch printing offices in various parts of the country.

"Business houses with heavy mails could serve themselves and save delays at their local Post Offices by disposing of as much of their outgoing mail as possible by midday. The Post Office Department says that the practice of holding outgoing mail matter until the afternoon forces the Post Offices to handle from 60 to 80 per cent. of their total volume within three or four hours, and it often swamps the clerks."

The Guaranty Trust Company describes in its monthly letter, to be issued today, the strenuous efforts being made by Great Britain to restore her commercial and financial position after the war. No secret is made of the fact that she expects a period of intense competition for the markets and the carrying trade of the world, the letter states, nor of her intention to be as fully prepared for it as possible.

"Upon the surplus of resources in goods and services," says the trust company, "which she can dispose of to other countries depends Great Britain's ability to get out of debt and resume her commercial and financial leadership. Through the length and breadth of the empire the idea is being fostered that the future rests upon increased production and reducing consumption, upon having more and requiring less.

"In preparation for this intensive development of her resources, Great Britain is taking what is probably the most remarkable inventory ever attempted. Under the general direction of the Ministry of Reconstruction, the Ministry of Munitions, Department of the Foreign Office and Board of Trade, and other Governmental agencies, nearly a hundred committees are busy collecting information regarding agricultural, mining, industrial and commercial conditions within the empire. The inquiries of these committees touch the life of the British people in all its phases."

The British banks are preparing for the demands which will be made upon them for capital to finance the program of restoration and new developments. By amalgamations, the letter says, they are concentrating great reserves of capital for a vast credit structure.

To the holders of Six Per Cent. Coupon Convertible Debentures of
THE NEW YORK, NEW HAVEN & HARTFORD RAILROAD COMPANY
Convertible between January 15, 1928, and January 15, 1948, Whether or Not Registered as to Principal:

The advertisement of this company regarding the issuing of preferred stock was followed on March 21st by the enactment into law of the bill for the operation of railroads when under Federal control. Under this law this company must first obtain the approval of the President of the United States before the preferred stock may be issued. The financing of the company having been arranged with the Government upon a different basis inconsistent with the authorized issue of preferred stock, the offer to issue such stock has become ineffective and is withdrawn.

CREDIT MEN START FIGHT ON FRAUDS

Association Finds That War Conditions Have Developed Many Crooks in Business.

PRISON AIM OF CRUSADE

Dealers Buy on Time, Sell at Less Than Market Value, and Then Fail to Pay for Purchases.

Determined to eliminate commercial frauds, thus reducing the high cost of living, the investigation and prosecution department of the National Association of Credit Men will today launch a vigorous campaign against crooked business men who have been reaping a fortune through illegal trade practices.

"The situation brought about by the war has increased the number of commercial frauds," says a statement issued by F. Brown Snyder, Chairman of the committee, who points out that the present drive is aimed to reduce the losses of legitimate tradesmen and prevent unfair competition. Once the trade crooks are wiped out there will be a decline in the present high prices of merchandise, the statement holds.

Calling upon the 140 local credit associations throughout the United States to co-operate, Mr. Snyder has sent communications asking that they take part in the educational work of conveying to the 100,000 credit men in this country the information that the Investigation and Prosecution Department is at their command to follow up all reports of cases in which there appear to be evidence of commercial fraud. Immediately upon hearing of such instances, the department will assign a representative to look after the matter and, if the evidence warrants, to prosecute. No settlements will be made once it becomes manifest that a crime has been committed.

"Because of the present high prices that are charged for merchandise the crooked dealer finds it particularly attractive to obtain goods on credit, for which he never intends to settle," says Mr. Snyder's statement. "Once the dealer obtains goods on credit he finds no difficulty in disposing of the merchandise at less than the market value. This means that not only does the man who sells his goods to the dishonest dealer lose his wares, but the honest merchant who is competing with the rogue is at a disadvantage.

"We intend to educate the credit men in this country through our national and local associations to be more careful in giving credit, and when a crime has been committed not to accept offers of a settlement. When a settlement is effected in a case involving crime it is an injustice to the honest merchant, for the crook can go ahead and repeat the performance. We want to protect the competing honest merchant through constructive work. We do not intend to prosecute people who cannot pay their bills, but to prosecute those who deliberately seek to defraud honest business men.

"The National Investigation and Prosecution Department will justify its existence in the trying days to come, when business reacts from inflation and the false prosperity of war profits. The knowledge of its existence will then keep many a weak man from yielding to the temptation of an easy and profitable way out, and will deter many of the criminally inclined from making a getaway."

GROWTH OF MIDVALE.

Annual Report Shows Great Gain in Earnings and Assets.

The Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company shows in the pamphlet report for 1917, to be issued today, that the value of its assets increased $55,254,000 during the year, with a total on Dec. 31 of $270,009,516. The property account, amounting to $158,900,900, showed an expansion of $23,201,000, and cash totaling $18,833,078 increased approximately $7,000,000. The item to show the greatest increase was marketable securities, which, at $27,500,106, were $26,214,375 larger than a year before. Presumably investments in Liberty bonds and Treasury certificates accounted for the bulk of the increase.

The income account, which was made public a few weeks ago, displayed net earnings before depreciation and taxes of $69,838,254, an increase of $33,121,435. Federal taxes absorbed $25,731,910, and the final balance for dividends was $35,-578,558—a gain of $4,116,347. The surplus account was increased by $22,804,-150, making the aggregate surplus at the end of the year $41,461,561.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on January 9, 1918, W. Freeland Dalzell et al. filed their petition praying for limitation of liability as owners of the tug C. P. RAYMOND, for any loss, damage or injury arising out of an accident which occurred on or about July 23, 1917, when the barge P. B. No. 8 collided with the steamship SAN GIOVANNI near Pier 22, Brooklyn, in consequence of which said SS. SAN GIOVANNI and said barge P. B. No. 8 are alleged to have sustained damage. The petitioners have stipulated to pay into this court the value of said tug C. P. RAYMOND and pending freight as appraised, viz.: $20,000 with lawful interest according to law. All persons claiming damages by reason of said accident are required by the monition issued to me by said Court to prove their claims before Max Rockmore, Esq., U. S. Commissioner, at his office, Room 349, Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before the 15th day of April, 1918, at 10:30 A. M.; And that persons not so proving claims will be then defaulted.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY, U. S. Marshal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.
At the suit of the United States demanding forfeiture thereof under the provisions of the Pure Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, Sec. 10, I have seized and hold 100 cans each containing one pound of a product purporting to be SACCHARINE. Notice is hereby given that the cause is appointed for trial at the U. S. Court and Post Office Building, Manhattan, New York, on April 8th, 1918, at the opening of Court. All persons are notified then and there to appear and defend their interest, if any, in said goods. All not appearing will be defaulted.
Dated March 27th, 1918.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY, U. S. Marshal.
FRANCIS G. CAFFEY, U. S. Attorney.

SURVEY OF BUILDING MATERIAL STOCK

Big Increase in Demand Expected When Work Begins on Shipbuilders' Homes.

CEMENT STOCKS VERY LOW

Three Thousand Small Permanent Dwellings to be Built on Staten Island with Government Aid.

There is every indication that work will be started within the next sixty days on thousands of small dwellings in and about Greater New York to house shipyard workers and others employed in Government work.

On Staten Island no less than 3,000 permanent structures are to be erected by the Civic League with Government aid. An equal number of housings will also have to be erected to accommodate the employes of the Newark meadows plants.

With this demand in view the building industries of New York has made a survey of the building material market in New York city for the purpose of providing first hand, reliable and concise information regarding the quantities of basic materials on hand in New York City and vicinity available for construction work essential to the war program.

The following is a digest of the condition of the market as applied to some of the products.

Asphaltum.—The largest distributers, the Standard Oil Company and the Barber Asphalt Company, are not selling any Mexican asphaltum to the trade and have none on hand. The latter company is selling a substitute, Dulcanite, for road and paving work.

This product has to be used with a flux. The wholesale price of Mexican asphaltum as of March 1, 1918, is $25 a ton, as against a normal base, New York, of $15 a ton. Spot base price Dulcanite as of March 16, 1918, carload lots, $20; less than carload lots, $22. Flux, carload lots, March 16, 1918, $20; less than carload lots, $22.

Brick.—Hudson River common brick, not contracted for, to ship between Haverstraw and Mechanicsville, N. Y., totals about 200,000,000 and 300,000,000. The normal supply at this time of the year is about 700,000,000. There was on hand in dealers' yards, New York City, March 15, 1918, about 25,000,000 brick, sufficient to care for the New York building situation.

There are about 225,000,000 Raritan River common brick on hand. The normal supply for this period of the year is about 400,000,000 brick. These plants can manufacture all the year round if labor can be obtained.

About 100,000,000 Long Island common brick are available. This commodity can be shipped to Manhattan if the price goes to about $11.50 a thousand, wholesale.

Hackensack, N. J., common brick on hand, is about 2,000,000. The emergency construction work at Port Newark, N. J., has used up large quantities of material. Manufacture this year will be as near the maximum as labor and fuel supplies will permit. About 60,000,000 Staten Island brick are on hand, but of this, 80 per cent. is contracted for or is being held in reserve for Government needs.

Fuel shortage has practically closed down Portland cement manufacturing plants in the two Eastern zones supplying New York. On March 15, free cement in Lehigh and Hudson districts indicated a shortage, based on shipments and curtailed production of 2,161,000 barrels on April 1. On Feb. 1, 1918, in Zone 1, there was on hand 3,000,000 barrels, on Feb. 1, 1917, 3,500,000 barrels, and on Feb. 1, 1916, 4,500,000 barrels.

Stocks on hand of Portland cement throughout the country on Feb. 1, 1918, were only 85 per cent. of what they were in February, 1917. The cost of production in 1917 a barrel, in the two Eastern zones, was about $1, while today the price is almost $2. The increasing cost of cooperage in cotton bags will force this price up to $2.25 during the Summer.

Copper is being held for Government requirements. List prices as fixed by the Federal authorities govern the entire market, but deliveries are uncertain. The production for the first three months of this year was about 75,000,000 pounds a month.

Window and plate glass is being produced at about 25 per cent. of normal capacity, and the continuation is uncertain. At times during the present "fire" the industry has been about 80 per cent. closed down. Small window panes especially are hard to get, as cantonment work and Halifax reconstruction work has sapped the supply.

There were on hand at various plants owned by members of the Face Brick Association on Feb. 1, 1918, the following quantities over and above brick sold on accepted orders: Red shades, 12,000,000; flashed or iron spot shades, 13,000,000, and gray or buff shades, 18,000,000.

The gravel supplies in New York Harbor have been held under Government option. The authorities have taken options on the outputs of two large producing companies after an attempt was made to bring prices down to the upset level set by the navy. The quantity on hand is about 2,000,000 yards, less 500,000 yards taken out of the market by the Government. Of the 1,500,000 remaining, about 800,000 are under contract.

Practically all the local output of hollow tile is being held for Government requirements. The supply is about 55 per cent. short, according to manufacturers. Labor and fuel shortage is affecting the output.

About 2,000,000 barrels of lime are available for the Government's use in the market. In the matter of mortar in any possible shortage of cement, lime can be used for non-bearing walls in many sections.

Lumber stocks vary. Shortage of ships and cars has made stocks very meagre. There is sufficient on hand, however, to meet all requirements.

While lath and reinforcing material, as reported by the association compiling these data, is in ample supply for any emergency that may develop through Government requirements, there is in stock at present between 300,000 and 400,000 square yards of wire lath, also a large quantity of sheets available.

Wire nails, like some other products, are under Government price control.

There is no question about an adequate supply being on hand for both Government and private demands. The price today is 3½ cents a pound, cut nails 4 cents, and fence wire, Pittsburgh, 3¼ cents. Plaster, which has large possibilities for emergency construction work, has not yet been called upon for Government work. Its use largely releases cement, lumber, and expanded metal for use in quick housing, and is to a certain extent fireproof.

Sand, a by-product of gravel, mined simultaneously with gravel and grits, is scarce. Eastern plants bordering upon New York harbor are in a position to supply Government work with any quantity of sand desired. Private work, however, is not taking large quantities.

Favoring weather has helped in the last few weeks the increasing of the production of pig iron, but the steel shell tonnage of 2,500,000 for the second half of the year, as against 1,500,000 for the first half, plainly indicates that structural work is secondary in importance at producing centres. The Government is about to place the first of 150,000 cars and 2,500 locomotives in its program, which will probably result in further replacement of construction orders.

Small lots of steel available for immediate construction work are on hand in many New York plants. One concern reports 1,000 tons of standard and Bethlehem shapes, plates, and also a large stock of bolts, nuts, rivets, &c.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Low pressure prevails generally except on the Pacific Coast, with principal centres of depression over Lake Superior, Northeast Wyoming, and New Mexico. The weather, however, was generally fair, only light local showers having been reported in the South Atlantic and east Gulf States and the north and west upper lake region. Quite high temperatures for the season occurred over all districts except east Gulf and South Atlantic States, although it is considerably cooler than on Saturday in the Northwest. Showers are probable Monday in the east upper lake and the lower lake regions, extending Monday night or Tuesday in Northeast New York and Northern New England. Showers are also probable Monday morning in South Carolina, Eastern Georgia, and Northeastern Florida. With these exceptions fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi River.

It will be cooler Monday in the lake region and on Tuesday in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England.

Winds for Monday and Tuesday along the North Atlantic and Middle Atlantic coasts, moderate to fresh south, fair; South Atlantic coast, moderate variable, mostly south over north portion, probably showers Monday, fair Tuesday; East Gulf, moderate south and southwest, generally fair; West Gulf, moderate south, generally fair.

Disturbance over upper Michigan moving east.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy Monday. Southern New England—Fair Monday. Tuesday fair.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Monday. Tuesday fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

FILL COAL BIN NOW, IS GARFIELD'S PLEA

Fuel Administrator Asks Householders to Buy Next Winter's Supply This Summer.

PRICE DOWN UNTIL AUG. 31

Must Have a Steady Demand to Keep Mines Running at Capacity—Profiteering Barred.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Harry A. Garfield, Fuel Administrator, has issued an appeal to householders to provide their supply of coal for next Winter during the Spring and Summer months to keep the demand normal, the mines working at capacity, and prevent overburdening the railroads later in the season.

The Fuel Administrator says he must have the support of the public now to keep the mines at capacity, and he promises every aid in return in the way of preventing profiteering and requiring the mines to furnish clean coal. The zone system providing short hauls is in effect now, and as an inducement to early buying the prices of all domestic sizes of anthracite coal are reduced 30 cents a ton from April 1 to Aug. 31.

Mr. Garfield's statement follows:

"We begin the new coal year of 1918-19 with an obligation resting upon every citizen of the United States to do his part, in order that the coal supply of the country may be made adequate to meet the home needs of our people and the ever increasing demands for coal for fuel which grew out of the conflict in which we are now engaged. The Fuel Administration must have the support and the active co-operation not only of those who are engaged in production and distribution of fuel, but of every coal user in the country. Each must bear his share of the patriotic sacrifice which must be made if the coal supply is to be properly increased and adequately distributed.

"An adequate coal supply is vital to the winning of the war. Without it we cannot make munitions or other war supplies or build the ships which must carry men and materials to the battle front. Without it industries will be stopped, labor thrown out of employment, and the homes of the people will be cold.

"Guided by the experience of the past Winter, the Fuel Administration has taken the necessary steps to clear the way for the ceaseless activity of the mines of the country in increasing the supply and for the steady, swift distribution of the nation's fuel as rapidly as it can be taken from the ground and moved over our overburdened transportation systems.

Prices on Stable Basis.

"The prices fixed by the Government for coal at the mine have now been established on a stable foundation, which will not be disturbed during the coming coal year except in cases of extraordinary urgency. These prices have been adjusted by scientific and practical investigation based upon uniform cost sheet reports to insure the greatest possible stimulation of production while maintaining a reasonable and equitable price of coal to the consumer.

"By carefully drawn regulations the Fuel Administration has insured the shipment of 'clean coal' from the mines. Coal containing an undue amount of foreign matter will be penalized in price, and producers who take extraordinary measures in the preparation of their coal will be recompensed. These measures will keep off the railroads and out of the bins of the consumers a large amount of unburnable material which was included in last year's coal production.

"Every effort has been made by the Fuel Administration so to arrange the distribution of the coal supply that it will impose the least possible burden upon the railroads of the country. Through the zone system of distribution, which becomes effective April 1, the movement of bituminous coal between the mine and the producer will be restricted to the shortest possible transportation lines consistent with the maintenance of an adequate and proper coal supply to all consumers.

"In arranging these restrictions the Fuel Administration, in many cases, has allotted to consuming territory producing fields which can only fill the demand of the consumers they must supply if production is maintained steadily throughout the coal year. The Fuel Administration expects the coal consumers, continuing their patriotic co-operation with the Government in all its war measures, to maintain a steady and constant demand for coal in order to attain this result. Consumers must buy their Winter supply of coal during the Spring and Summer for storage during the Winter if the production is to be maintained at a maximum and the country enabled to avoid a serious coal shortage this Winter. The Fuel Administration will co-operate with all communities in an effort to provide storage for emergency stocks of coal to be set aside during the Spring and Summer to meet emergencies of weather and transportation which may arise next Winter.

Must Build Up Home Reserve.

"But the great storage capacity of the country lies in the bins of the individual consumer, and there the country's coal reserve must be built up during the Spring and Summer when coal production is unhindered and the transportation facilities of the country operating at their highest efficiency.

"As an inducement to 'early buying,' the prices of anthracite coal have been reduced 30 cents a ton on all domestic sizes from April 1 to Aug. 31, and in many of the bituminous fields prices have been cut to an even greater extent.

"To safeguard the consumer, the Fuel Administration has prescribed regulations to prevent profiteering and to govern the distribution of coal by licensed jobbers and by retailers. Each domestic consumer will be permitted to secure a full normal supply of coal, but no more.

"Every ton of coal that is hoarded against future needs and is not used during the Winter is actual waste. The labor and transportation used to bring the coal to the consumer, and the actual energy of the coal itself are withheld from doing their part toward speedy victory. Consumers should secure just a little less coal than they believe they need, and should make every shovelful give its full value in heat and power. Every shovelful saved means help for the industries in turning out supplies for our troops abroad, help for the ships that must bridge the 3,000-mile gap between our shores and the battle front, and help toward ultimate victory."

HOPES TO DETER WILSON.

East Asiatic Complications Emphasized by German Paper.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 31.—The Cologne Volkszeitung comments on the report that Japan will not intervene in Siberia, saying that this sudden change within a week may be ascribed to America's opposition.

The paper calls attention to the significance of "America's control" in Russia, especially in Siberia, and argues that the fact that a considerable portion of Russian soil is in American hands and that Russian mines are owned by Americans is often entirely overlooked. It states that America makes loans to Russia only in return for material securities, but that this is comprehensible in view of Russia's increasing financial weakness.

Japan looks on this economic policy with increasing suspicion, the Volkszeitung says, as she would like to play the same rôle herself, and that apart from his economic policy President Wilson also has his political policy. The paper asserts that President Wilson and the Entente have been diplomatically beaten by Japan in recent years, and that the President hopes to influence the turn of events by his present Russian policy, and to drive a wedge between Russian-Japanese accords, calling attention to Mr. Wilson's "extreme patience" with the Maximalists.

"Thus," says the Volkszeitung, "Wilson's East Asiatic policy extends into Europe. Japan's intervention was not only a menace economically but also a menace to far-reaching plans in the future."

The paper considers that the situation in the East is serious, and expresses hopes that the pressure in East Asia will increase to such an extent that President Wilson will decide that the European war is an "impossible burden" from which he will go to any extent to be free.

I. W. W. TRIAL STARTS TODAY

Fate of Syndicalist Movement in America Hangs on Outcome.

CHICAGO, March 31.—More than 100 Industrial Workers of the World will go to trial here tomorrow before Federal Judge Landis, charged with conspiracy to disrupt the Government's war program. A total of 165 men and one woman were named in the true bill returned by the September Grand Jury, but forty have escaped capture, cases against ten have been dismissed and three, including the woman, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of New York, have been granted separate trials.

The Government's charges comprise sabotage, including the slowing-down of production and the wanton spoiling of material; propaganda for strikes to delay the output of war munitions, and covert intrigue against military service.

The trial, upon the outcome of which is declared to hang the fate of the syndicalist movement in the United States, may last for six months, in the opinion of Federal officials.

The I. W. W. will be represented at the trial by George Vanderveer of Seattle, Otto Christensen of Chicago, and Miss Catherine Lowe, a member of the Kansas City bar. The Government will be represented by Assistant Attorney General William C. Fitts of Washington, D. C.; District Attorney Charles F. Kline of Chicago, Frank K. Nebeker of Salt Lake, and Claude R. Porter of Des Moines, Iowa, special assistants to Attorney General Gregory.

The men on trial include William D. ("Big Bill") Haywood, the general Secretary-Treasurer of the I. W. W. and a leader in radical movements for the last quarter of a century; Vincent St. John, his predecessor in office, once active in organizing the miners, and Arturo Giovannitti, a leader of the I. W. W. strike at Lawrence, Mass.

FLEW WITH LIBERTY MOTOR.

New Engine Acted Perfectly on Long Trip, Officers Report.

HAMPTON, Va., March 31.—A Liberty motor installed in a Curtiss machine was used today by Major Roy L. Brown, chief flying officer at Langley Field, in a flight to Annapolis, Md., and back. Major Brown carried three passengers.

Army officers said the motor acted perfectly throughout the round trip, and splendid time was made. No other details were given out.

Dartmouth War Seniors Get Degrees

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., March 31.—The trustees of Dartmouth College have ruled that the men of the present senior class who have left college and joined the army or navy shall receive this June the degree which they would have earned had times remained normal. The 1918 class has been depleted by more than half its members by the war.

PUBLIC IS WARNED OF GLASS IN BREAD

Administrator Williams Calls for Careful Examination of Flour and Pastry.

NO TRACE OF A PLOT YET

Chairman Mitchell Will, However, Confer with Governor on Legislation to Punish Offenders.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams issued a warning to the public yesterday that many instances of glass in bread had been reported to the Food Board and that all bread should be carefully inspected. The occurrence of glass in bread has been so frequent during the last week that Mr. Williams decided yesterday to warn citizens as follows:

"Jagged bits of glass having been found in flour and bread and bread wrappers, the public is advised to be most careful in the future when eating bread, rolls, cakes, and pastry. Housewives should examine bread after it has been cut and made ready for the table. Where bread is baked at home, the flour should be thoroughly sifted for foreign substances. Owners of bakeries and those handling flours and substitutes used in baking are asked to have a rigid inspection made before these commodities leave the shipping rooms in bulk or in manufactured form. Where suspicion is excited there should be immediate investigation.

"Complaints of this character have been sufficiently frequent to warrant the board in publishing this warning, much as it dislikes to be put in the position of seeming to unduly alarm our public. These complaints have been authenticated by thorough investigation. It need scarcely be added that the board has already taken action to protect the public, and that any person or persons discovered placing foreign substances in eatables to the injury of the public will be prosecuted to the limit of the power of the State and Federal authorities."

The finding of glass in bread was first brought to the attention of the board about three weeks ago. It was then thought that it was purely accidental. But similar complaints continued to come from the same sections of the city and the board set its investigators at work. One large baking concern of the city was summoned before the board to explain the appearance of bits of glass in some of its bread. The officials of the company were amazed at the discovery and immediately put a corps of detectives at work.

Mr. Williams said there was as yet no evidence of an organized plot. He believes it is the work of malicious individuals employed in bakeries. Some inspectors insist that further investigation will prove it is largely the work of pro-German fanatics, who allow themselves to be worked up by the war into a frenzied hatred of the American people. Hundreds of German-Americans are employed in the bakeries of the city.

It was announced that John Mitchell, Chairman of the Federal Food Board, would confer with Governor Whitman this week about obtaining some special legislation of a penal nature to cover this new problem.

Housewives in Manhattan are invited to bring their problems of wartime adjustment to the meetings which are to be held this week by the two food demonstrators of the Bureau of Conservation of the State Food Commission. Miss Amy Meinhold, in lower Manhattan, and Mrs. Louise F. Nellis, in upper Manhattan, will meet groups of women, give all the information desired on the regulations of the Food Administration, and illustrate the making of wartime dishes.

The demonstrators are calling the attention of the housewives to the milk exhibit at the Grand Central Palace, and are putting special emphasis in their demonstrations on the liberal use of milk as being at this time not only patriotic, but economical and healthful. The demonstrations for the coming week will be held at the following places:

Miss Amy Meinhold, afternoon, Monday, April 1, Strikers Lane, 552 West Fifty-third Street; 8:15 P. M., Spring Street, Neighborhood Association, 244 Spring Street; Tuesday, April 2, 1 P. M., Young Women's Hebrew Association, 31 West One Hundred and Tenth Street; 8:15 P. M., University Settlement, 184 Eldridge Street; Wednesday, April 3, 2:30 P. M., Charlton Memorial, 34 Charlton Street; 8:15 P. M., Bowling Green Neighborhood Association, 45 West Street; Thursday, April 4, 8:15 P. M., Hudson Guild, 436 West Twenty-seventh Street; April 5, afternoon, Wesley House, 38 Fulton Place; 8:15 P. M., Lenox Hill House, 511 East Sixty-ninth Street.

Mrs. Louise F. Nellis, Monday, April 1, 2:30 P. M., Grace Methodist Church, 104th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue; Tuesday, April 2, 10 A. M., National League for Women's Service, 259 Madison Avenue; 2:30 P. M., School Farms, Fiftieth Street and North River; Wednesday, April 3, 3:30 P. M., Ethical Culture School, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West; Thursday, April 4, 2 P. M., Church of the Saviour, 111th Street and Lexington Avenue; 8 P. M., Adams Memorial Presbyterian Church, 207 East Thirtieth Street; Friday, April 5, 2:30 P. M., North Presbyterian Church, 155th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue, and 8:30 P. M., Church of Intercession, 155th Street and Broadway.

It was announced last night that one thousand medals are to be awarded by the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense to that number of housewives who can show they observed the greatest number of wheatless, meatless, and porkless days between March 15 and June 15. Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Chairman of the committee, received the following letter from Food Administrator Hoover indorsing the committee's food saving program:

"To furnish food to our army and to a world of women and children abroad requires two things—ships and food itself. Providing ships is the duty and work of the Government. But providing food is the duty of each and every one of us. All that we can send until the next harvest must come from the savings of the people, from the little savings of each of us all added together."

CHAPLAIN GOING TO FRANCE.

Columbia's Religious Director Will Help with Y. M. C. A. Work.

The Rev. Raymond C. Knox, who has preached to thousands of students in his ten years' service as Chaplain of Columbia University, announced yesterday afternoon that he was going to France in the interest of the Y. M. C. A. and that yesterday's services were the last he would conduct here for a long time.

Dr. Knox said he was not certain yet just what his work was to be, but his friends say he is prepared to engage in athletic activities, pile logs, direct a canteen, and then put on his coat and preach on Sunday. In the opinion of Mr. Knox's friends the Y. M. C. A. selected him for the mission because of his adaptability to all sorts of work. He takes a keen interest in all athletic sports, especially baseball and rowing.

Chaplain Knox was a member of the Class of 1903 Columbia, was graduated from the Union Theological Seminary in 1907, and spent two years in study abroad. He was University Preacher at Harvard before coming to Columbia.

Chaplain Knox is known as "the militant minister." He has tried in every way to forward war work of the country and in the recent student movement for religion and world democracy he lent his influence toward connecting the movement with a more vigorous prosecution of the war.

WOMEN PLAN DRIVE FOR LIBERTY LOAN

Committee to Work to Arouse Local Pride in Small Towns and Villages.

WILL APPEAL TO WORKERS

In Metropolitan District Household Employes Will Be Especially Sought After for Subscriptions.

Plans for the active co-operation of hundreds of women of the Second Federal Reserve District for the success of the third Liberty Loan campaign, which begins April 6, were announced yesterday at the headquarters of the Liberty Loan Committee. Under the general charge of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee the district embracing New York, twelve counties in New Jersey, and a portion of Connecticut will be covered by the women's committees. Features which were not incorporated in the previous campaigns, such as the institution of a Liberty Loan service flag and "honor roll" campaigns to spur subscriptions by appealing to local pride in smaller cities, towns, and villages, will have a prominent part in the third selling campaign.

Mrs. John T. Pratt is Chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of the Second District, and Mrs. Courtlandt D. Barnes heads the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of the Metropolitan District, which is made up of the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, and Brooklyn. Mrs. Barnes said yesterday that the metropolitan district had been divided into eight divisions, comprising committees of women's organizations, women's trades, booths, house-to-house canvass, theatres, speakers, publicity, and household employes.

"The Committee on Women's Organization," said Mrs. Barnes, "has to do with clubs and the various leagues in which women are interested. One of the plans is to have these clubs go after as many life memberships as possible and invest the funds of the clubs in Liberty bonds. The Committee of Women's Trades will try to organize working women in all industries. Through these women many homes will be reached that could not be touched otherwise. The Committee on Booths will place them in public squares, department stores, and throughout the city. We also plan to have classes in which women will be taught to sell bonds in these booths.

"The Committee on Household Servants is a most important body. I wish I could tell you the number of chauffeurs, cooks, and lady's maids who have produced sums of money that would be fortunes to many persons and put them into bonds, besides mortgaging their pay for months ahead to buy Liberty bonds on installments."

Through a personal and direct appeal Mrs. John T. Pratt believes that the loan may be oversubscribed. She said:

"No woman in the United States wanted war, but now it has come, and for a whole year it has been a great shadow upon every hope, every pleasure, and every happiness. Every home that buys a bond shows that it realizes that this is a war that must mean but one thing—victory for the United States and democracy. Every home that buys a bond is doing its part to win the war. The glory of the country is its womanhood. The glory of the women should be their country."

The three Vice Chairmen of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee are Mrs. Otto H. Wittpen of Jersey City for Northern New Jersey, Mrs. Theodore E. Pomeroy of Buffalo for New York State, and Mrs. L. S. Stillman of Greenwich, Conn., for Fairfield County, Conn., the only portion of Connecticut within the district. The members of the Executive Committee for the Metropolitan District are Miss Virginia Potter of the Advisory Trades Committee, Miss M. Louise Dixon of the Committee on Booths, Mrs. Oscar Stevens of the Committee on Theatres, Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Miss Virginia Furman, and Mrs. James F. Curtis. Many other prominent women have offered their services, and they have been formed into the Central Committee, as follows:

Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. John F. Hylan, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Miss Mary E. Dreier, Miss Ethel Bowers, Mrs. James S. Cushman, Mrs. William Kinnicutt Draper, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheimer, Miss Anna C. Maxwell, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. John Francis Yawger, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. Charles Stone, Mrs. Francis Louis Slade, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman, and Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer.

In answer to a call made by the Liberty Loan Committee, plans were discussed at a meeting of the leading rabbis of this city at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth Street, yesterday afternoon for making an appeal to the Jews throughout the country to support the Liberty Loan even more generously than they did before. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, rabbi of the Shearith Israel Congregation, was chosen Chairman of the Rabbis' Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee. A committee was appointed to draft a telegram which will be sent to rabbis in all parts of the country urging them to take action similar to the rabbis of this city. Among the speakers were Sam C. Lamport, Chairman of the Jewish Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee, and Louis Marshall.

To encourage competition among towns in the country each will be provided with an honor roll on which will be inscribed the names of all subscribers to the loan, it was announced yesterday by the Liberty Loan Committee. In addition to the honor roll the right to display a flag will be granted to every subscriber to the loan. The town which obtains its quota first will be the first to have its flag raised, and will be the first name on the list of cities which have subscribed their quota. This honor list will be kept at the State capitals.

At a meeting of the representatives of the different branches of the baking industry on Friday at the Shults Bread Company, 26 Beaver Street, it was determined that the bakers would pledge themselves to contribute at least $5,000,000 to the Liberty Loan. A Bakers' Liberty Loan Committee was elected, with J. F. Hildebrand, President of the Shults Bread Company, as Chairman; Frank W. Meyer, sales manager of the Fleischmann Company, as Vice Chairman, and Albert Klopfer, editor of the Bakers' Weekly, as Secretary. The committee will open headquarters at the Hotel Breztell, 3 East Twenty-seventh Street.

Colonel Roosevelt will address 250 Liberty loan workers, most of them from the banking institutions and houses in the financial district, who will visit him at Oyster Bay on Tuesday. The Party, headed by Guy Emerson, Publicity Director of the loan, will go to Sagamore Hill by special train. The title of the Colonel's address will be "Give the Money and Beat the Huns."

THREATEN SHIPYARD STRIKE

Hampton Roads Men Decide Demands Must Be Granted Today.

NORFOLK, Va., March 31.—Carpenters and joiners employed at the Hampton Roads Naval Base, the Pig Point Ordnance Depot, and the Bush Bluff Army Depot voted at a meeting held here tonight to strike tomorrow unless their demands for higher wages and an eight-hour day were granted by the Government.

Union leaders said between 5,000 and 6,000 men would go out.

Aged Couple Die on Same Day.

BOSTON, March 31.—Timothy Smith, an aged department store merchant, and his wife died suddenly at their home here today under unusual circumstances. Aroused by a noise in Mr. Smith's bedroom, Mrs. Smith investigated and found her husband suffering from a paralytic shock. She summoned a physician, but her husband died. As the doctor entered Mrs. Smith's room to break the news to her he found that she, too, had been fatally stricken. Mr. and Mrs. Smith celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary last month.

SENDS UNDERTAKER TO SISTER SHE SLEW

Trained Nurse Calmly Announces Killing, Then Becomes Violently Insane.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 31.—Cornelia Consolloy, a trained nurse, called at the office of Clifford P. Taylor, an undertaker, this afternoon and said: "I want you to go get my sister and bury her. I have just killed her."

Investigation disclosed that the sister, Miss Estelle Consolloy, 40 years old, a teacher in the Joseph Wood School here, was dead. The confessed slayer, now a raving maniac, is under guard at the State Hospital for the Insane.

The case is among the strangest with which the Mercer County and Trenton police authorities have had to deal.

Estelle Consolloy came to public notice this morning, when newspapers published stories that she had filed charges with the local Board of Education against Miss Ella MacPherson, her principal, alleging that she had been struck twice by Miss MacPherson, with the result that her face was bruised and discolored for several days. The complainant had refused to be interviewed, and her sister had referred all questioners to the teacher's counsel.

When Miss Cornelia Consolloy made her astounding declaration to the undertaker he summoned Assistant Prosecutor James Hammond and County Detective James Kirkham. In the presence of the woman the undertaker repeated what she had said.

"It must be fiction," said Mr. Hammond.

"Indeed, it's not," was the retort of the nurse, who, according to the prosecutor, added: "Her body is at home and you can see for yourself. She was the martyr of the other teacher, and I thought the best way to end it all was to kill her. I let the blood out of her wrists after giving her an opiate. The electric chair is the highest honor the people of the State can bestow on me, but I don't want any Irishman to have anything to do with it."

Realizing that the woman was crazy, and hoping that her story was imagined, Hammond sent the detective and the undertaker to the Consolloy home in the model apartments on North Clinton Avenue, where the body of the victim was found. The nurse was thereupon arrested, but became violent, and had to be removed to an asylum.

The body, fully clothed, was found in bed. The left wrist had been punctured with a pair of small embroidery scissors, while the arteries in the right hand had been severed with a larger pair, which were found on a bureau in the room. The smaller scissors were found under the body. There was no sign of a struggle, except for a broken electric light globe. An autopsy showed that death was due to loss of blood. An analysis of the stomach will be made to determine what drug, if any, was administered.

The circumstances surrounding the alleged disagreement of Miss Consolloy and her principal have not been revealed. Miss MacPherson, according to Miss Florence Dickinson, a teacher in the school, is in a serious condition in a hospital, where she went last week to undergo an operation.

Last evening friends of the Principal, who learned of Miss Consolloy's charges, came to her defense, and six of them who were in town issued a statement calling Miss Consolloy's charges "absurd."

EMPLOYMENT ZONES NAMED

Federal Service Divides Country to Equalize Labor Supply.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Division of the country into thirteen employment districts to facilitate the transfer of labor of all kinds from districts where a surplus obtains to those where a shortage exists was announced today by the United States Employment Service. Homogeneity of industries and employment problems governed the division. The districts and States included in them follow:

1. Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island.
2. New York, Connecticut, and New Jersey.
3. Pennsylvania and Delaware.
4. Ohio and West Virginia.
5. Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina.
6. Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana.
7. Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa.
8. Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, and Arkansas.
9. Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Montana.
10. Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, and Wyoming.
11. Texas and New Mexico.
12. Arizona, Utah, Nevada, and California.
13. Washington, Oregon, and Idaho.

DIES IN FIANCEE'S HOME.

Lieut. Hunt Stricken on Eve of His Departure for France.

On the eve of his departure for France Lieutenant Charles LeRoy Hunt of the Quartermaster's Department was suddenly taken ill yesterday at the home of his fiancée, Miss Martha Rahner, 124 Jefferson Street, Union Hill, N. J., and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Lieutenant Hunt was 31 years old, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hunt of 310 Montgomery Street, Jersey City. He was attached to the 69th Regiment in the Mexican border campaign, and received his commission at Plattsburg last Summer.

WAR HITS CIVIL SERVICE.

Ranks Depleted 1,117 by Employes Entering Military Service.

ALBANY, March 31.—A considerable inroad into the civil service of the State and counties has been caused by the war, according to the State Civil Service Commission, which reports that 1,117 persons, not counting laborers, holding positions subject to State civil service rules had entered the military service on Jan. 1.

The falling off in the number of competitors for civil service positions last year was more than 25 per cent. This was due, the report says, to the demand for employes in private business and to the absence of persons in military service who otherwise would have been candidates.

ATTACK ON ENGLAND RENEWED BY IRISH

As Americans Are About to Enter Great Battle Meeting Assails Our Ally.

SILENT ABOUT U. S. ARMY

But 2,000 Men and Women Favor Washington's Interference in Behalf of the Sinn Fein.

At a moment when American troops are ready to enter the greatest battle in history alongside the French and British some 2,000 Irish men and women and a few children gathered in Carnegie Hall last night to denounce England and to further a propaganda the purpose of which is to flood official Washington with letters and petitions calling upon the Government to interfere in the controversy between the British Government and the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland.

In the course of the meeting Jeremiah A. O'Leary, who goes on trial before a Federal Jury today, charged with having conspired to cause insubordination and disloyalty in the military and naval forces of the United States, John Devoy, editor of a paper several issues of which have been recently excluded from the mails for violation of the Espionage act, were among those who received ovations when they appeared on the stage. Devoy, who gave a letter of introduction to a German spy sent to Buffalo to prepare for the blowing up of the Welland Canal, was one of the two principal speakers.

The Very Rev. Father Peter E. Magennis presided. He said that the meeting was one for the holding of which those present had no desire or intention to apologize. He described Devoy as one of the "most eloquent of our Irish blood here in New York." He made no reference to the sacrifices now being made on the battlefields of France, nor did he utter a word concerning the American Army now going into battle there and the war burden that the American people are shouldering. All he had to say concerned the Sinn Fein movement and the propaganda in this country to bring the United States into the Irish quarrel.

The meeting was timed to start at 8 o'clock, but it was nearly an hour later before it got under way. O'Leary appeared on the platform at 8:30 P. M. Great applause greeted his entry. He stood up and waved his hand at the audience with an "I thank you" attitude. At 9:45 P. M. Father Magennis, John Devoy, Mrs. H. Sheehy Skeffington, and L. J. Rice came on the stage, and another demonstration followed. When the applause died down Mr. Rice stepped forward and introduced Father Magennis as the permanent Chairman of the meeting, and after a short speech Father Magennis introduced Mrs. Skeffington.

She said she had known all the Sinn Fein leaders who died in Easter, 1916, except Roger Casement, who was executed some weeks subsequent. When she mentioned the name of the man who went to Germany to plot and who was brought back to Ireland in a German submarine the audience applauded wildly. When she mentioned the name of Lloyd George the audience hissed and booed, and it did the same thing a moment later when she spoke the name of the late John Redmond.

When the war began in 1914, she said, England tried to cajole Ireland and she added that the same power is now trying to cajole "another and much greater republic." The atrocities committed by English soldiers in Ireland, she said, equaled any ever committed by Prussian soldiers. There was no hissing at the mention of Prussia. There was another hostile demonstration when she referred to the Scottish Borderers and said that the regiment had been wiped out when it was sent into Ireland to crush the rebellion.

"There will be more of them wiped out," a man in the audience shouted and there was wild applause.

She said that there are at the present time 150,000 British soldiers in Ireland.

"What are they doing there," she exclaimed, "at a moment when Great Britain is clamoring for American soldiers to go to France? Begin to ask yourselves that question. Is it not time that the United States asks that British troops be sent to do their duty before your own are sent?"

At another point she said that the Irish are not "sufficiently quarrelsome to transfer their fight to Flanders," and again she was greeted with an outburst of applause. She made the old charge that American newspapers are Northcliffe owned, and said that an effort was being made to estrange the people of the United States from those of Ireland. She said there would be another meeting in Washington next Sunday in support of the movement to get the Government to interfere in the Sinn Fein quarrel.

John Devoy read a carefully prepared speech, which was confined to the propaganda in favor of American intervention. Referring to the Easter 1916 uprising, he said that "it was a question whether Irishmen were to die on their own soil fighting for Ireland or be slaughtered for England in France and Flanders."

The resolutions, which were read by John Jerome Rooney, contained the mildest utterances of the evening. They recited the splendid part the Irish have played in American history, and appealed for a continuance of sympathy on the part of the American people for "the struggle for Irish freedom." They were unanimously adopted. A "monster mass meeting" under the auspices of the Irish Progressive League will be held, it was announced, on May 4, in Madison Square Garden.

O'LEARY'S TRIAL TODAY.

Editor of Bull Faces Espionage Charge In U. S. Court.

The case of the United States versus Jeremiah A. O'Leary, who is charged with violating the Espionage act, will be called for trial in the United States District Court this morning. O'Leary, it is reported, will in the course of the trial address the jury, and it is said that his speech will be the "oratorical effort" of his life. The indictment is based on certain articles which appeared in a publication called Bull, of which O'Leary was editor.

In that paper O'Leary, before the United States entered the war and for months after this country went in, preached rebellion against England, and as late as August of last year he wrote in a signed article that public opinion in this country had changed as to the result of the war, and added that "the feeling that the Allies must win, so prevalent in the United States during the first two years, has now disappeared," and that "the best informed of our military and naval men whisper their real opinions among themselves."

As editor of Bull O'Leary published cartoons and articles in which he bitterly attacked England, as well as the war policies of the United States, and the indictment on which he goes to trial charges that with others he conspired "to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, and refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States to the injury of the service and of the United States."

The indictment also mentions a letter written by O'Leary to Bernard H. Ridder, President of the Staats-Zeitung Company, in which he upbraided Mr. Ridder for his attitude, and told him not to "worry about the Government suppressing your paper," but to take heart and "fight," and urged him to "above all fight for your German language, &c. guage," etc.

CAPT. ROOSEVELT LAY 14 HOURS, UNATTENDED

Hit at 5 A. M. and Not Taken to Hospital Till 7 P. M., American Surgeon Says in Letter.

Captain Archibald B. Roosevelt, who was wounded on March 11, when about to lead a platoon of raiding troops toward the German lines from an American trench, lay for fourteen hours without medical attendance where he had fallen when hit by shrapnel, it became known here yesterday through a letter received by a New York surgeon from a medical officer serving with the American forces in France.

Captain Roosevelt was wounded in the leg, and his arm was broken in two places at 5 o'clock in the morning, but it was not until 7 at night that he was reached and carried to a hospital.

No explanation was given in the letter for this delay in giving him assistance, but it was intimated that continual bombardment of the trenches made it impossible to get aid to him.

The medical officer with the American forces, who was a New York surgeon before entering the war, wrote that he had seen Captain Roosevelt on March 12, the morning following his rescue.

"The Captain was wounded at 5 o'clock the morning of the previous day," writes the surgeon, "but it was not until 7 o'clock that night that he could be taken from the trench. He was taken to a base hospital, where on the next morning, when I saw him, he was operated on."

Captain Roosevelt's left arm was broken in two places, and shrapnel had penetrated his right leg and kneecap. In the mud and confined space of the communicating trench Roosevelt, it was said, suffered considerably from his wounds, as the men with him, cut off as they were, had no means to ease him in any way.

The New York surgeon who was present at the operation wrote that treatment had brought the wound to a satisfactory condition, and that the Captain's speedy recovery was looked for.

This letter was the first direct information as to Captain Roosevelt's injuries other than mention in the press reports. Mrs. Roosevelt, who was at the home of her parents in Boston, yesterday received her first message from her husband since he was wounded. It read:

"Am resting finely. Everything O. K. "ARCHIE."

Mrs. Roosevelt telephoned to Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, repeating the message to him. The surgeon who received the letter concerning the Captain also informed the Colonel of his son's condition. The only comment from Colonel Roosevelt was that he was proud of the grit shown by "Archie" under uncomfortable conditions.

K. A. Wallenberg and Wife Establish Uplift Fund in Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, March 31.—K. A. Wallenberg, former Foreign Minister, and his wife have given 20,000,000 crowns for a permanent fund "to further religious, charitable, social, and cultural work and to promote the commerce and industry of Sweden." Another million crowns was given to the municipal library at Stockholm.

The gift (approximately $5,400,000) for the permanent fund is the largest in the history of Sweden, except that of Dr. Nobel.

GERMANS MASSING TROOPS NEAR ALBERT FOR RENEWED DRIVE; BEATEN BACK IN LOCAL ATTACKS BY FRENCH AND BRITISH; NEW PLAN INCREASES AMERICAN FORCES AT THE FRONT

$3,000,000 RISE IN WAGES IS GIVEN BY STANDARD OIL

Announcement Marks the First Union Meeting Between the Officials and Workers.

10 PER CENT. FOR 30,000 MEN

They Will Also Get Old Age and Service Annuities, and Sick Benefits.

PATRIOTISM MARKS DINNER

Entire Harmony Between Capital and Labor Predicted as Result of the New Movement.

A 10 per cent. wage increase for nearly all the 30,000 employes of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, together with a series of old age and service annuities, sick benefits, and an elaborate plan for improvement of sanitary conditions of working and living were announced last night when, for the first time in the history of Standard Oil, officials of the company and delegates elected by the workers, dined and conferred together. The dinner, held in the Standard Oil Building at 26 Broadway, marked the beginning of industrial democracy for that organization, and benefits conferred by the company were of such import to its workers that the occasion was regarded by oil men of high authority as marking a new era in the whole oil industry.

That John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is taking a personal interest in the promotion of better relations with the company's employes was shown when it was announced that he had subscribed $50,000 worth of the stock in the new Bayonne Housing Corporation which is to build model tenements for the working people in Bayonne and had donated that stock for extension work in connection with the new Bayonne Y. M. C. A. toward the construction of which Mr. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000 was announced at the same time.

A feature of a new era between the company and its men, which was emphasized last night both by officers of the company and by representative working men, was the prospect it offered of complete harmony during the war. All branches of the company's workers were represented last night except the boilermakers of one plant, who have made wage-increase demands. Their representatives refused the invitation, but at the time they had no idea of the extent to which the company was prepared to go, and other workers last night believed that they would adopt a conciliatory attitude in view of the concern's concessions. They are, however, a very minor portion of the workers. The wage increase was announced by W. C. Teagle, President of the company, who said that on the bulletin boards of the concern today will appear this notice:

"Effective April 1 an increase will be made averaging 10 per cent. in rates of pay, applicable to all wage-earners except first-class bricklayers and watchmen, whose rates will be increased 5 per cent., and lead-burners, whose rates were previously increased. On account of the urgent demands for output due to war conditions, beginning as soon after April 8 as practicable, and subject to supplies of material being available, the mechanical department will until further notice be given an opportunity to work fifty-six hours per week, and time and one-half will be paid for all work in excess of the present schedule of forty-eight hours per week."

70 Per Cent. Average Increase.

With this advance the company in the last two years and seven months has granted total raise in wages averaging 70 per cent. in all classes of labor and 98 per cent. increase in common labor. At the same time it makes an annual readjustment of the payment of salaried employes. The increase just announced is estimated roughly at $3,000,000 a year. If extended to all Standard Oil plants it will equal many times that sum.

The dinner was held in the big dining room on the fifteenth floor of the building, heretofore used only by important officials of the company. There were about 150 guests, including the seventy-five delegates representing the workers, and these officers of the company: A. C. Bedford, Chairman; W. C. Teagle, President; F. H. Bedford, F. D. Asche, S. B. Hunt, O. T. Waring, G. H. Jones, Directors; G. T. White, Secretary; C. O. Swain, C. J. Hicks, C. G. Black, G. W. McKnight, C. E. Graff, J. P. Krebs, H. L. Gerstenberger, F. H. Baldwin, W. C. Koehler, R. T. Hewitt, and T. R. Parker.

One official presided at each of the seventeen tables about which the diners were grouped. The hall was decorated with American flags. An orchestra

Navy Has Plan of Supergun; Report It Will Shoot 105 Miles

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Plans for a supercannon, a great gun of long range, possibly similar to the one with which the Germans have been bombarding Paris, have been submitted to Secretary Daniels by naval ordnance experts after months of experiment. It, is understood, however, that the report includes a statement that the ordnance officers do not believe the military value of such a weapon would compensate for the time and money which must be spent in perfecting and developing it.

American ordnance officers have been interested in the possibilities of long-range gune for the last ten years. The belief that the "game is not worth the candle," as one officer expressed it today, prevented rapid progress, but experiments were not dropped, and since the entrance of the United States into the war added interest has been evidenced in the Navy Department. Reports were heard in some quarters today that a range of 105 miles was expected of the gun now under consideration.

General Lessard Establishes Military Rule in City and Host of Troops Pours In.

QUEBEC, April 1.—Four civilians were killed and four civilians and a number of soldiers were wounded in fighting tonight between anti-conscriptionists and the military. One hundred men, charged with rioting, were arrested.

The fighting between the military and the anti-conscriptionists lasted from 8:30 o'clock this evening until midnight. The men, opposed to donning the khaki, fired revolvers haphazard from doorways and behind snow banks and the military answered as best they could through the thick fog with machine guns.

Despite warnings from the military that the rioting would be put down with a stern hand, and urgent appeals to the people not to repeat the disorder of the last three days, crowds assembled in several parts of the downtown section of the city tonight.

Soldiers were ordered out early from barracks and stationed in different parts of the city. The upper section of the city was cut off from St. Rochs, where the disorderly element resides, by a line of troops. Four hundred men of the Second Central Ontario Rifles, under Major Mitchell, were stationed at Jacques Cartier Square. A squadron of Royal Dragoons under Lieutenant Arnoldi was also held in readiness in the neighborhood.

Pistols Fired at Soldiers.

The rioting began soon after the soldiers were posted. Bricks were thrown from housetops and revolver shots were fired from alleyways. The soldiers arrested seven men at this time.

Several men took shots at the military and escaped into the mob. The cavalry repeatedly charged the mob with drawn swords, but the moment the troopers' backs were turned the crowd renewed its disorder.

About 100 yards away, near the Canadian Pacific station, the soldiers were greeted by a mob with a fusillade of revolver shots, bricks, and ice. Several WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Monday, April 1.—The battle of which I have been trying to give a daily narrative has been on so vast a scale, filled with so many episodes of terrific adventure, and with so many hundreds of thousands of men moving along its lines of fire that I find it impossible to give a picture of the emotion and spirit of it. We out here, who knew this thing was coming upon us, creeping nearer every day with its monstrous menace, held our breath and waited. When at last the thing broke it was more frightful in its loosing of overwhelming powers than even we had guessed. Since then all our armies have lived with an intense understanding of the greatness of these days, of their meaning to the destiny of the world, and every private soldier, or transport driver, or lineman, or inborer, has been exalted by an emotion stronger than the effect of drugs.

They do not say much, these men, but there is a queer light in their eyes, shining out of faces grayed by sleeplessness or streaked with blood. They laugh in the same old way at any joke on the road, and sometimes when shells are bursting close. I heard bursts of laughter following crashes of high-velocity shells about some groups of men a day or two ago. They go marching up to the battle line with unfaltering feet and their bands leading them to the edge of its fire zone, and it is like a pageant as they pass—these long columns of men in steel hats, shouldering heavy packs with rifles slung, and these miles long of transports, and these endless mule teams and wagons and streams of mounted men.

Exalted Spirit of British Troops.

As an onlooker I have been caught up in these tides for hundreds of kilometers from south to north, and the spirit of these armies on the move seems almost visible and as though all the emotion in these men's hearts were vibrant about one. The men, who have just moved up to hold the linee, are hoping for another attack, so that they can smash more enemy divisione. Anger moves in them because the enemy threw them back in places by overwhelming odds. Now they swear he will be stopped and broken. Their own losses do not make them mournful. They wipe out of their minds for the time all the horrors and tragedy through which they have passed. Fierce exultation at the destruction of the enemy, grim pride in repulsing his bloodiest attacks, resolution to pay back and take back have changed the gentlest fellow into a man who handles a rifle or machine gun with a secret promise to himself, ready to stop with his own body another German advance. Passion has taken possession of these men, because they know that if the enemy broke through them, all they had fought for would be jeopardized, and this four years of war would be in vain for us. That seems to me the only explanation of the things that have been done by masses of the British troops or by small bodies isolated in rearguard actions—astounding things in endurance and sacrifice.

Yesterday I saw some of those men who had been fighting in the battle of Arras-Hermies, the scene of the biggest check the enemy has received since March 21. There were some London regiments among them and their bands were playing tattoo as the evening set in. The Colonel of their battalion—it was the London Rifle Brigade—came out after a sleep and wash and shave. All his kit had been lost in his dugout, but he had borrowed a razor from his batman, and nobody would have guessed that this smiling man, with bright eyes and easy maaners, had just come out of a battle where many of his men fell around him under frightful shelling, where he had been firing a rifle all day long at crowds of Germans, and where he had seen dead bodies piled on dead bodies as the enemy came up in waves against the blasts of machine-gun bullets and the fire of field artillery.

Germans Hoped to Capture Arras.

He spoke just a word or two about the tragedy of losing many of ble best and bravest men, and then put that thought aside and told of their heroic defense and their slaughter of the enemy. It was a great slaughter in that battle of Arras. From documents found on a German airman brought down within the British lines it is now certainly known that the enemy had moet ambitious objectives, including the capture of Arras and the turning of Vimy Ridge. Two German divisions were holding the line north of the Scarpe from Gavrelle to Oppy, and three special shock divisions were assembled to pass through and turn the ridge from the south, while further south one division was to take the heights east of Arras and a Guards division to take Arras itself. After that the objectives were indefinite.

This battalion of Londoners was holding the foremost line by a system of posts in advance of the battle line—among them Mill Post, Bradford Post and Towle Post. The enemy began the battle by concentrating his bombardment on these, while he gassed the support linee and field artillery positione and brought his barrage backward and forward over the British main defenses down there by Gavrelle and Bailleul and Oppy Wood.

Most of the posts were blotted out utterly. From one hard by Westminster a small body of men surrounded by the enemy fought its way back. An officer of the London Rifle Brigade who has been out since the beginning of the war says he never saw so intenee a bombardment.

When it lifted the Germans came over in close formation, wave after wave. Behind them at some distance were their company commanders on horseback, and behind them the field artillery. Each man carried a full pack and an extra pair of boots, as for a long march, and rations for six days. They did not travel far; they were caught by machine-gun fire and mown down on the wire.

The British field guns made targets of them and tore gaps in their waves. Some of them got into the front line, but the London riflemen pulled down parts of their parapets, made blocks in their trenches, and kept them back by bombing and rifle fire. An enemy battery was unlimbered, and German officers strolled up with sticks to point out the gaps in the British wire to their men and were shot down like rabbits.

These London men fell back to the main defensive line, a short distance to the rear, and the enemy never penetrated this, though all day long he made fresh efforts, from 9:45 in the morning till 7 in the evening. The

Sees Need of Allied Council Continuously in Session

PARIS, April 1.—The getting of military unity was hard because of human sensibilities. It has been brought about, and the allied armies face the German attack with new confidence and improved prospects.

Political unity involves no such peculiar difficulty, but it is no less important. Now, without losing a minute, and while our Generals and armies are in the final conflict of eavs humanity, a council with power for spot action and composed of European and American representatives, should be set up at Versailles and kept in daily session to deal instantaneously with the dangers and opportunities that are arising hour by hour in this last stage of the war.

The importance of this is so obvious to any intelligent person that it is difficult for those here to understand how such a plan can be deferred a single minute in view of what is at stake. That it must come soon or late admits of no doubt. Who is to take the terrible responsibility of deferring such action?

PARIS, April 1.—Following General Pershing's announcement, which has electrified France both for what is told and for what it implied, it is proper now to state that the present great emergency has brought to quick maturity plans which have been under discussion since Colonel House's visit last December.

The Colonel went home and put before President Wilson the pros and cons of the proposal which had been urged in Europe having in view the establishment of two lines for the flow of American man power toward Europe—one based on a separate organization with its own lines of communication and supply and the othor for a supply of infantry, trained and untrained and without artillery or other organization, direct to the front.

The main argument favorable to the double-barreled scheme was the saving of time and tonnage and the utilization of the surplus resources of war machinery possessed by the Allies.

The real shortage has been in man power, and all eombing-out processes are attended with danger to shipping and munitions manufacture. These matters had the careful attention of President Wilson, who weighed contentions that a large percentage of the tonnage assigned to transport of the army was necessarily used in a single-barreled plan to bring over materials and to crente facilities for handling and supplying a projected army so large that it probably couldn't be landed in France in time to get into the game.

General Pershing naturally had the final decision, and it is believed here that his announcement on Friday means that new methods have been adopted suitable to the situation created by the Germans on the western front, and sacrifices of all countries, such as England has been making recently in food and luxuries, will supply means for bringing great forces of American infantry direct to France.

MARCHING AMERICANS FILL THE HIGHROADS

Pershing's Men, Eager for Open Fighting, Envied by Comrades Not on the Way.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—The muddy roads were jammed again today with Americans on the move. In eome cases they were marching in double lines, taking up the road, from side to side. For obvious reasone, it le inadvisablo to disclose where the troops are going, where they are coming from, or even the direction in which the movements are being made. It may not be many days, however, before the United States will know. It is probable that the first news will come with the report of the American forces in action, but when that may be is another subject which cannot be discussed.

Whenever it is, it is certain that the troops will give a good account of themselves, for they are husky, hardy, trained and completely equipped, and on their toes for a clash with the enemy. If this clash should be in the open the troops will like it all the better, for they say "That's our game."

All are determined to get into the fight if possible. The correspondent saw men marching, limping along on both feet, but refusing to drop out for fear

London Announces Large American Forces Will Be Brought to Allies' Aid in Present Struggle

LONDON, April 1.—An official announcement issued here tonight says:

"As a result of communications which have passed between the Prime Minister and President Wilson; of deliberations between Secretary Baker, who visited London a few days ago, and the Prime Minister, Mr. Balfour, and Lord Derby, and consultations in France, in which General Pershing and General Bliss participated, important decisions have been come to by which large forces of trained men in the American Army can be brought to the assistance of the Allies in the present struggle.

"The Government of our great Western ally is not only sending large numbers of American battalions to Europe during the coming critical months, but has agreed to such of its regiments as cannot be used in divisions of their own being brigaded with French and British units so long as the necessity lasts.

"By this means troops which are not yet sufficiently trained to fight as divisions and army corps will form part of seasoned divisions until such time as they have completed their training and General Pershing wishes to withdraw them in order to build up the American Army.

"Arrangements for the transportation of these additional forces are now being completed.

"Throughout these discussions President Wilson has shown the greatest anxiety to do everything possible to assist the Allies and has left nothing undone which could contribute thereto.

"This decision, however, of vital importance as it will be to the maintenance of the allied strength in the next few months, will in no way diminish the need for those further measures for raising fresh troops nt home, to which reference already has been made. It is announced at once because the Prime Minister feels thnt the singleness of purpose with which the United States have made this immediate and, indeed, indispensable contribution toward the triumph of the allied cause should be clearly recognized by the British people."

GRIVESNES HELD AGAINST GERMANS

French Troops Retain Possession of Village Northwest of Montdidier.

FIGHTING THERE VIOLENT

Hindenburg's Men Are Also Pressing Hard in the Region of Moreuil.

PARIS, April 1.—Practically all the German activity on the French front today was in the region of Montdidier. Heavy German attacks against Grivesnes (west of the Avre) have all been repulsed, according to the War Office announcement tonight.

The Anglo-French troops have made appreciable progress at various points between the Somme and Demuin, it is stated.

The day report of the War Office told of the violent combat in this district and to the northeast around Morcuil.

The night bulletin reads:

The battle was maintained along the whole front north of Montdidier, where the enemy artillery was particularly active. The enemy carried out new attacks against Grivesnes, all of which were repulsed with heavy losses.

In the course of spirited engagements the Franco-British troops made appreciable progress at various points between the Somme and Demuin.

On March 29-30 our aviators, despite rain and mist, carried out numerous sorties. Five thousand kilograms of explosives were dropped on enemy cantonments and etations in the region of St. Quentin, Cuiscard, and Roye. Our airplanee frequently attacked with machine guns and bombs enemy concentrations, which they dispersed. Nine German airplanes and one captive balloon were destroyed by our pilots.

Italian bombing machines took an active part in these expeditions; and recently carried out with splendid audacity numerous raids on the enemy lines.

The day statement of the War Office reads:

Yesterday and last night the battle continued with extreme violence north of Montdidier. The enemy directed his efforts in particular along the front between Montdidier and the Péronne-Amiens road, and threw forward important forces with the particular object of enlarging his gains west of Hangard-en-Santerre. Franco-British troops broke up the assaulting waves, which were not able to debouch. A brilliant counterattack, in which our allies gave proof of their valor, enabled the French to throw back the enemy completely and recapture this village.

The fighting further, south was no less violent. Grivesnes was the objective of powerful attacks, which were renewed incessantly, leading to hand-to-hand fighting. The town remained in the hands of the French, who inflicted considerable losses on the Germans.

Between Montdidier and Lassigny there is nothing to report.

Terrific Struggle for Grivesnes.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Comparative calm reigned this morning between the southern flank of the battle front and Montdidier.

More Gains on the Avre Are Reported by Berlin

BERLIN, via London, April 1.—German troops have captured the heights north of Moreuil, according to today's headquartere report, which reads:

On the battlefield north of the Somme artillery and mine-thrower firing revived during the evening.

Between the Luce Rivulet and the Avre we continued our attacks, and captured the heights north of Moreuil. British and French troops which several times vainly came forward in counterattacks suffered heavy losses.

A local attack on the western bank of the Avre placed us in poesession of Arrachis Wood.

Yesterday French divisions in repeated assaults attempted to recapture lost villages and heights to the west of Montdidier, as well as between the Doms and the Matz. Their attacks broke down with sanguinary losses.

With the fighting during the last few days the number of prisonere brought in since the beginning of the battle has increased to over 75,000.

AMSTERDAM, April 1.—It has been practically impossible during the last ten daye or so to gain anything like an impression from the German press as to the feeling in Germany regarding the tremendous events on the western front. Comment in the newspapers has been most carefully supervised and very greatly restricted. The dispatches of the war correspondents are generally as much as four or five days late in appearing, and then add little to what has been learned from the official communiquee, the amount of matter published regarding the offensive being comparatively small.

Writers, of course, indulge in the usual joyful and patriotic expressions and mild paregraphs on the Kaiser's exuberance, but though the times recall those preceding the battle of the Marne there is nothing in the German press which corresponds to the wild joy it showed in those distant and stupendous days.

Now, however, there has been time for information to find its way through various channels to Holland, despite the most carefully guarded frontier. Sifting all the matter to the best of one's ability, one obtains an interesting picture.

The first thing that stands out in the German attitude, broadly speaking, is

ALSO ACTIVE NEAR ALBERT

Assaults There Are Repulsed by the British—Guns Resume Fire at Arras.

LONDON, April 1.—This has been a day of slackened activity along the front of the Somme battle line, except in the crucial area east of Amiens, between the Somme and the Avre.

Here brisk and at times violent fighting has taken place between the Germans and the allied forces around Moreuil and Hangard. Attacks and counterattacks have followed in rapid succession, and the night bulletin from Field Marshal Haig asserts that the British have gained some ground.

Both in this area and in the district around Albert Hindenburg is massing large bodies of troops apparently with the plan of making a fresh drive for Amiens.

From the same source comes word of the arrival of large quantities of allied artillery. The enemy also is getting his guns up, but apparently more slowly.

There were local attacks by the Germans today near Albert, which resulted in the loss of most of the enemy's forces. These followed two futile assaults last evening on the British positions in the western outskirts of Albert.

Field Marshal Haig's report tonight says:

The day passed comparatively quietly.

Local attacks, undertaken by small bodies of the enemy this morning in the neighborhood of Albert, were repulsed with the lose of the greater part of their number. We secured a few prisoners.

South of the Somme local fighting has taken place in the neighborhood of Moreuil and Hangard. We gained ground in this area by successful counterattacks.

Tonight's report of the War Office says:

Between Moreuil and Hangard British cavalry in a brilliant counterattack retook a wood which had been lost previously.

North of the Somme there has been no change in the situation.

South of the Somme there has been hard fighting in the neighborhood of Moreuil. On the French front an enemy attack was beaten off south of Moreuil.

Otherwise the day was comparatively quiet.

The official communication of the War Office today reads:

The enemy twice attacked our position in the western outskirts of Albert yesterday evening. Both attacks were repulsed.

South of the Somme the enemy is persisting in his attempts to advance along the valleys of the Rivers Luce and Avre, but has made little progress. Attacks and counterattacks followed each other in this section throughout yesterday afternoon and evening with varying success, and the fighting is expected to continue.

In the local operation in the neighborhood of Serre, which was reported in yesterday morning's communiqué, the total number of machine guns taken was 109.

Big German Forces Gathering.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters in France telegraphed this evening:

"The enemy movements and the fighting of the last twenty-four hours indicate the development of an attempt to work toward Amiens, down the Ancre Valley and also from the southwest. Great masses of troops continue to concentrate in the region of Albert, and fighting is progressing toward Villers-Brettoneux (north of Hangard.)

"The enemy is finding serious difficulties in transport work, owing to the ceaseless destructive activity of our

Celtic Is Torpedoed But May Be Saved; Liner Attacked Off Irish Coast On Way Here

The White Star liner Celtic was torpedoed by a German submarine when off the Irish coast on a voyage from England to America, according to information received here yesterday. The announcement was made in a brief cablegram received at the office of the company here. It stated that efforts were being made to save the vessel.

The Celtic is one of the largest vessels in the transatlantic trade. She was built at Belfast in 1901, and has a gross tonnage of 20,904. She was requisitioned by the British Government and was placed in the transport service between England, New York, and Halifax. About a year ago she was turned back to the White Star Line, and she has been plying between New York and English ports. She last arrived here on Feb. 27, and she sailed again on March 6.

More than a year ago the Celtic hit a mine off Liverpool. She was only slightly damaged. In 1916 it was reported that bomb had been found on board her on her arrival at an English port. This was denied by the officers of the White Star Line. It was the Celtic which brought $25,000,000 worth of American securities from England in October, 1916.

If there were any American soldiere on board the Celtic, it was reported from Washington, they were very few in number, and were carried as "casuals" in returning home. It was said there were no sick or wounded on board.

LONDON, April 1.—The British armed boarding steamer Tithonue was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on March 28, according to an official statement issued by the Admiralty. One mercantile officer and three naval ratings were lost.

airmen, and also, owing to shortage of animals, is bringing up his artillery comparatively slowly.

"Meanwhile he is largely employing trench mortars. Trench mortars, however, have a very limited range and require enormous quantities of ammunition, which is very bulky.

"Australian troops are now appearing in the thick of the fighting and doing magnificently. Despite the southwardly trend of the battle the greatest weight of the enemy remains north of the Somme.

"A captured document now reveals that the enemy expected to reach the Somme the first day of the offensive.

"Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon no fresh infantry attacks of importance had been reported against the British, although the enemy artillery was very active, Arras being heavily shelled.

"The delayed resumption of grand operations is of supreme importance to the Allies, giving opportunities to continually strengthen the weakest spots and improve the defense works.

"The weather is fine and the visibility exceptionally good.

"It may be recalled that today is the date von Hindenburg told a number of German newspapermen that he would enter Paris."

ALLIES GETTING ARTILLERY.

Six-Inch and Heavier Guns Are Arriving in Line.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Telegraphing from French Headquarters in France today, Reuter's correspondent says:

"Our artillery, which is now beginning to arrive on the battlefronts of the Somme, Avre, and Lassigny-Montdidier in great strength, is opposing an effective barrier to the German mass attacks. Hitherto, as the battle shifted northward, we, like the Germans, had been obliged to fight with the support of our field guns only. Now the six-inch and heavier pieces are arriving and working terrible havoc among the enemy's attacking columns, which have no means of protection against shells of these calibres.

"The repulse of the German assault Sunday between Lassigny and Montdidier was the severest blow that the enemy had suffered since the beginning of the offensive. Dense aggregations of men marched up to assault by battalions and literally melted away under the fire of the French 75s.

"Describing Friday's battle in this sector, eyewitnesses say that the British infantry fire worked terrible destruction among the Germans who advanced to the attack, division after division in dense waves, during twenty-four hours. The fury of the fighting was indescribable. Aviators who hovered over the field say it looked like a stormy sea, in which wave after wave of infuriated men marched up to assault by batorder. Villages were conquered and reconquered again and again.

All Day Fight for Moreuil.

"The fight for Moreuil lasted a whole day. The Canadians actually intermingled with their French comrades and fought like lions to keep the place. It was twice captured by the Franco-Canadians, and twice lost. In the end the khaki and horizon blue had the better of it, and the village, which was the nearest point that the enemy had reached on the way to Amiens, and a point particularly coveted by the German staff, remained in allied hands."

Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters in France telegraphed concerning the fighting of Sunday:

"A counterattack north of Lucerieuer re-established our line between Aubercourt and Marcelcave. There was incessant fighting all day long in this district. Villers-Brettonneux, which is the next place west on the main Amiens road, was heavily shelled.

"Masses of Germans yesterday afternoon advanced from the direction of Vrely and Boucheir. Despite our artillery concentration, they penetrated to the wood northeast of Moreuil.

HOW THE GERMANS FAILED.

Expected to Reach Somme Line the First Day of the Battle.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Some interesting facts are now available from captured documents and prisoners' statements regarding the plans of the Germans and their actual achievements.

The Germans had expected to reach the line of the Somme on the first day of the drive. On that day the weather greatly favored the attacking troops, for a heavy mist shrouded the country and made it impossible for British machine gunners to engage the enemy at long range. Despite this drawback for the defenders, they inflicted such heavy casualties on the enemy at close quarters that the Germans progressed only one-quarter of the distance they had expected on that day.

The heavy attack delivered by the Germans astride the Scarpe on March 28 was executed in all particulars as had been the assault on the opening day. On the 28th, however, there were no mists to assist the onrushing hordes, and they came under such punishment from artillery, machine guns, and rifles that their progress was checked after they had made comparatively small gains.

MOST OF FOE IN NORTH.

This Fact Probably Presages a Heavy Attack There.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1. (Associated Press.)—Up till noon today little fighting of importance had been reported north of the Somme. The probabilities are that the enemy is not quite ready for another big attack north of the Somme, although the fact that he still has the majority of his available divisions there presages further activity.

There are at present something like forty divisions in the battle zone north of the river, and about thirty-seven engaged in the struggle further south. Ten of the latter have been used against the British and the rest against the French allies.

COUNTING HEAVILY ON US.

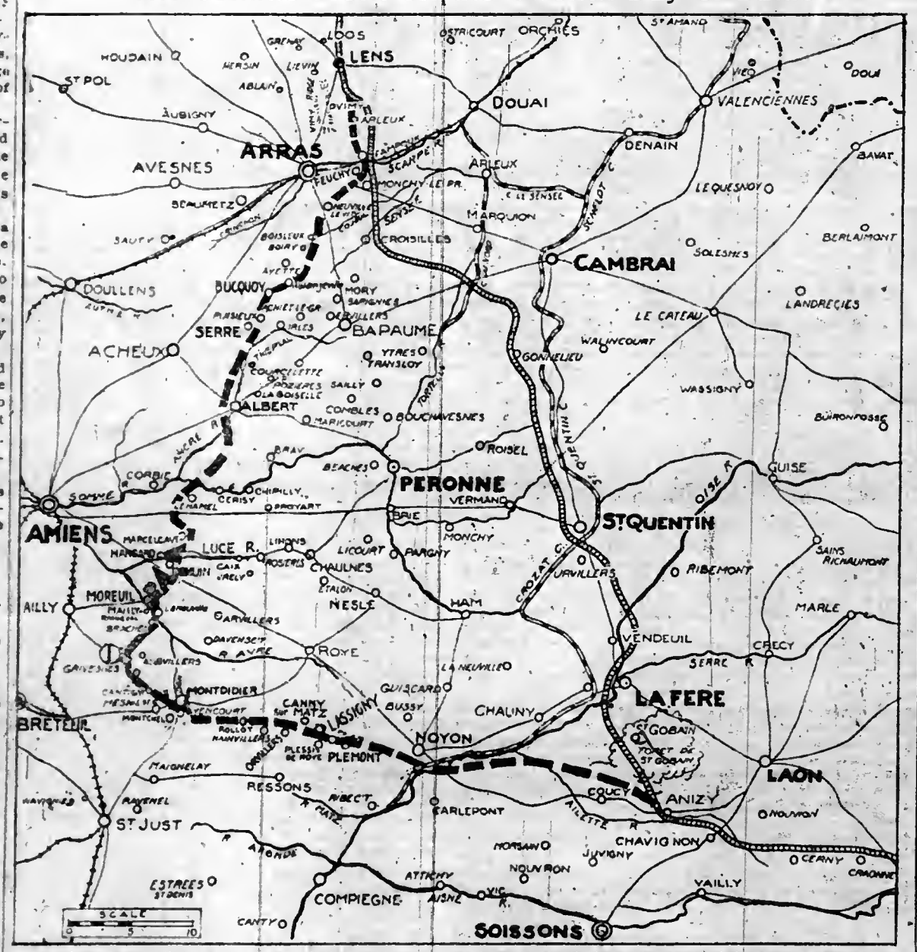
London Papers Keenly Interested in Our Plans.

LONDON, April 1.—The newspapers are occupied with the new man-power proposals and America's expected participation in the fighting.

The Standard advises the Generals to "think in the offensive." It says their forces are ample to regain the initiative after the present German effort is frustrated. By calling up all men of military age and raising the age limit, England can have an additional million men by Autumn, it says, and adds:

"With the gathering forces of the United States there should not be less than 2,000,000 news troops available for warfare in the Autumn."

The Somme Front on the Twelfth Day of Battle



The front from Albert south to Montdidier continues to be the most vitally important area of the Somme battleground. While there have been some attacks around Albert, and there are reports of a huge concentration of German troops in that region, the heaviest fighting for the moment is in theSomme-Avre district. Here the arrow-heads indicate the general position and direction of Hindenburg's pressure on the allied lines. Hangard, Demuin, and Moreuil, and a forest northeast of the latter town have been the centres of the conflict.

To the southward across the Avre there has been a violent contest for Grivesnes, but the French say they are still holding the village, which is the point nearest to the Amiens-St. Just-Paris railway.

The Germans have captured a wood west of Aubvilliers, in this same district. This wood is indicated by the figure 1.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

As the allied line continues to hold and local counterefforts are made to throw the Germans back here and there, the problem presented to the new allied commander, General Foch, becomes more and more important, more and more vital. It is the problem of just when and where to make his counterattack. There are a number of elements to be considered, and now is the time they are up for consideration.

The theory upon which the allied defense has been conducted up to the present time has been to stop the Germans with local reserves drawn from different points in the line, leaving still free for action the general reserve army which it is known the Allies have organized. That this has been done we are assured in the reports of Sunday's fighting, which indicated the presence of Canadians as far south as Moreuil, and which stated that they took part in the attack which retook that town. These forces could have come only from the Arras front, the nearest point to the area south of the Somme at which the Canadians are present. If the so-called army of manoeuvre were being used the references to it would have been of a different character and the probabilities are that the Canadians would not have been mentioned; this because there are only about 250,000 Canadians in Europe, if that many, and these are already holding places in the line and are not part of a mobile reserve.

This theory of the defense must be borne in mind when we consider the time of launching the counterattack. If the reserve army is thrown into action too soon, this entire theory of the defense breaks down at once. The time is at hand for accurate judgment as to the situation with the German Army. This army has been stopped once more, as so often before, just as it was about to achieve a success, the cutting of the Paris-Amiens road and the capture of Amiens. But is the step a permanent affair or is it merely a pause while Germany gathers her resources for a renewed effort? If the latter is the case, has Germany sufficient strength at her disposal to create another such rupture as in the first attack or has she suffered such heavy losses that her next attack will be weaker and without the tremendous driving power of the first?

If Foch reasons wrongly the result may be complete failure of the counterattack when it does come. Suppose the Germans are not weakened to the extent that now is apparent, suppose they still can summon the same power in the attack which they have already manifested. Throwing in the reserve army then would accomplish little and leave the Allies with no weapon with which to parry the final blow.

Foch's problem, then, is to delay using his last resource until the Germans can be beaten with it, and not to delay using it so long that Germany will be able to construct defenses with which to sustain the shock rather than to have to depend upon men alone. There is a distinct advantage in refusal to use this force as matters stand now. In the first place, there is apparently no necessity. The Allies are holding well, the Germans are continuing to attack with but little if anything to show for their efforts. By their own exertions they are becoming more and more weakened. The longer Foch waits the better are his chances of winning, provided they keep on attacking.

This appears to be the keynote of the entire situation. The Germans cannot keep up their frontal attacks against the nose and sides of the Montdidier wedge, and dig in at the same time. Moreover, counting upon an advance, which is the only reason why the attacks continue, eliminates any reason for it.

Therefore, Foch can well afford to delay. He knows his own strength. He knows further the number of men per mile of front the Germans can use and the probabilities of this number achieving the object for which the attack was made. Therefore, if with this knowledge, he holds back his attacking forces it is because he is confident that the Germans can bring no peril to the Allies in their present attack, and that they are merely being weakened by their own efforts to the point where his counterefforts have growing probabilities of success.

These are the time elements involved, and with such knowledge of the situation as is available, there is no human way of figuring when or even about when the counterattack will come. But that it will come is almost a certainty.

The German wedge is assuming a tempting form, a form which offers the opportunity for a most disastrous stroke. The German line is approaching a point—the line of the railroad from Amiens to Paris—where a much further gain will cause the Allies grave embarrassment in their transportation system. Moreover, if the Germans should settle down in trenches on their present front this danger will be a continuing affair, and will accordingly pin down a heavy force of the Allies through fear that once again the Germans might make such another titanic effort. Or the Germans might indeed reach this point, if halted in their main effort, by a series of short pushes such as marked the battle of the Somme or Verdun. Therefore, there can be no doubt that at some stage of the fighting Foch is going to strike with all his resources and undo much of what Germany has accomplished.

As to the fighting of yesterday, just as in the three or four preceding days, the Germans concentrated their efforts on the Montdidier wedge, endeavoring to widen its northern side and remove from it the danger inherent in its peculiar form. They succeeded in pushing their lines about Morsuil and Demuin, encircling both towns, but the gain is of little importance, being represented merely by the depth of these places, not more than a few hundred yards. Elsewhere the lines hold about in the same position as when the day began.

Philip Gibbs's Narrative of the Great Battle

London men lost many of their comrades in all those terrible days of bloody, costly fighting, but by their heroic defense they foiled the enemy's most ambitious plan. The machine-gunners say they were sick of killing. The Colonel of the Rifle Brigade used 300 rounds, and each bullet found its mark. London troops on the right of these bore the brunt of most formidable attacks, following the same methods as those indicated above. Essex men fought like demons, their officers say, in the foremost trenches, and one body of them sent back a message that they were going to fight to the death. They did, and not a man came back. Some Scottish battalions were hard pressed, and had to withdraw a short distance till nightfall. Since then counterattacks have restored a good deal of the ground lost.

All day long the British airplanes reported concentrations of troops pouring down the Arras-Cambrai road and other routes of march, and the artillery had so many targets that they could hardly switch on to them fast enough. The enemy losses were fantastic in their horror.

Meanwhile on the right again, below the Cambrai road, the British troops were putting up that heroic stand which I partly described in other messages. The Suffolks on the Wancourt-Tilloy road fought the enemy both ways, back to back, with Germans on each side of them. Parties of Northumberland Fusiliers fought until all were killed or wounded. There was a battle of eight hours around their battalion headquarters. Company commanders fought with rifles until they fell. Scottish Fusiliers at Henin gave ground slowly under enormous odds, and killed the enemy all the way back. The crew of one of the machine gun batteries counted 400 German dead opposite their position. Around Neuville-Vitasse and Henin Hill enemy bodies lie in heaps.

Heroic Deeds of Canadians.

Away from Arras and down on the south of the line a certain body of Canadians have been having some of the most astounding adventures in all this battle, and fighting with valor and heroic audacity. They are officers and men of a machine gun detachment organized in the early days of the war by a French Canadian officer at the expense of himself and ten friends, and they had been looking forward to the day when they would be wanted for great service. That day came March 21, and when I saw this French Canadian officer yesterday—a tall, dark, quiet man, speaking with controlled emotion—he knew that his idea had been justified, and that his officers and men had made good to the uttermost limits of gallant service. For ten days these Canadians have fought running fights with the German artillery, have engaged German cavalry and smashed them, have checked enemy columns crossing bridges and pouring onward, have scattered large bodies of men surrounding British troops, and in ten days of crowded life have destroyed many German storm troops and helped to hold up the tide of their advance.

Their own losses have not been light, for these Canadians have been filled with a grim passion of determination to die rather than yield to any odds. When the supreme test came they fought and died. After the first call on March 21 and the orders on the morning of the 22d, eight cars were in action the same day 100 kilometers away, after a night without sleep, and other detachments followed them quickly.

Sometimes they fought in these long gray open cars, which I saw early in the battle, wondering at them, and sometimes they fought dismounted, with machine guns on the ground; but always they fought through the ten days and nights, with less than twenty hours' sleep all that time. These cars near Maricourt gathered together 150 men who had been cut off and held the enemy at bay, covering the withdrawal of some of the British heavy guns and tanks. At that time they fought dismounted, with Vickers guns, in front of the barbed wire.

The enemy's frontal attack was stopped, but he worked around the flanks, and the Captain of an armored car battery ordered his men behind the wire. The Germans had to come through a narrow gap and were killed as they came.

The Canadians had many casualties, and a Captain's arm was torn away by an explosive bullet, and at last only a Sergeant and two men of the battery were left unwounded. One of them mounted a motor cycle and brought back cars and took back the wounded. Two cars found the enemy massing up a road, and their machine guns enfiladed the field-gray men and killed them in large numbers.

Near La Motte they fought heavy bodies of German cavalry, killed a number, and put the rest to flight. They have not been seen since. At Cerlay a battalion of Germans, 600 strong, was encountered at a cross-roads by one car, which brought them to a standstill and dispersed them with heavy losses.

There was a fierce action around Villers-Carbonnel, where these armored cars stopped a gap of 2,500 yards. They were commanded by a Canadian officer, who was twice surrounded in a village crowded with Germans, and fought his way out. The second time all the crew were killed except the driver, but the officer dismounted, took his gun, posted himself at a street corner and fired on the attacking Germans until they were quite close, when he jumped into the car and drove away.

Fought Germans With Gun Barrels.

One battery, which was in action on foot, ran out of ammunition, but fought with bombs until these were spent, and then charged the enemy with fists, revolvers, and machine-gun barrels.

Everybody is ready to help these cars and their crews carry their loads, for they know what terrible casualties they have caused the Germans. At times the enemy, like sheep without a shepherd, walk blindly into their guns, only to be mown down.

Everywhere they have been these Canadian armored cars have helped to steady the line and give confidence to the infantry. They are the darlings of the troops—these grim fighting fellows, with jests on their lips and utterly reckless of life so long as they kill Germans.

One of their officers is called by the nickname of Canada, and a groan of regret went up when it was learned that he had been blown off his motor cycle by a shell burst. He is thought, however, not to be seriously wounded.

OUR INFLUENCE POTENT IN RUSSIA

Henry P. Davison Regards the Situation There as Being Still Very Much Alive.

ARMY REFORM IS SERIOUS

Germany Demande Withdrawal of Russian Red Guards from Finland—Americans Now Safe.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Monday, April 1.—News reached Paris from Moscow that the Soviet Government is organizing an army for the defense of the Russian Socialist Government. Ambassador Francis is believed to regard the Soviet as sincere and their effort for the reconstruction of the forces as serious and deserving of the prompt support of the allied powers. Reports of the rising of German prisoners in Siberia and of German control of Petrograd are German propaganda to confuse Washington and other Entente Chancelleries and prevent co-operation.

As the Red Cross is maintaining an organization in Russia and knows what is going on there, I brought the foregoing reports to the attention of Henry P. Davison, who said their recent advices were to the same effect. They regard the situation in Russia as still very much alive. American influence there is potent, and the Red Cross representative, Raymond Robbins, knows Russian conditions and is closely in touch with all the Allies' representatives.

Mr. Davison gave full credence to the foregoing advices.

LONDON, April 1.—Germany has protested to the Russian Government against the continuation of the movement of Red Guard forces from Russia into Finland, and asks the withdrawal of such Red Guard detachments as have passed the frontier, according to a wireless dispatch from Berlin today. The text of the message of the German communication reads:

According to information received from Finland, important masses of Red Guards continue to pour into that country from Petrograd. The Imperial German Government protests against such action, which is contrary to Paragraph VI. of the peace treaty, and requests the immediate withdrawal of those guards who have passed the frontier, the punishment of the guilty, and the taking of efficient measures for preventing the further overrunning of Finland.

If the Russian Government is not able to fulfill its obligations then the Imperial Government will be forced, to its regret, itself to take the necessary measures with a view to creating conditions as provided for in the peace treaty.

A Stockholm dispatch says that all Americans are now safely out of Finland, except Consul Haynes and Vice-Consul Waldo at Helsingfors. A group which was marooned at Bjorneborg has reached Stockholm. It includes Captain and Mrs. Cressley, Captain and Mrs. Norman Stines, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Corse, Edgar Sisson, Arthur Bull, Roger Simmons and John Tice.

The party passed from the lines of the Red Guard to those of the White Guard, or Government troops, under the American flag and a flag of truce. The members were well treated by both the Red Guards and White Guards.

There is a complete look of discipline among the Red Guards, the members of the party say, and this will cause the rebel faction to go to pieces with the first serious reverse. They believe the end of the fighting in Finland is only a matter of a few weeks.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Captain Crossley was American Naval Attaché at Petrograd; Captain Stines is an American mining engineer, who was made a member of the American Military Mission in Russia; F. C. Corse was the representative in Petrograd of a New York insurance company, and Edgar Sisson has been in Russia representing the Committee on Public Information. The other members of the party could not be identified here, though Arthur Bull is supposed to be Arthur Bullard, who was in Russia for the Committee on Public Information, but was thought here to have remained and gone to Moscow.

GERMANS NEAR KURSK.

Sebastopol Threatened by Forces of Turks and Kurds.

PETROGRAD, April 1. (Associated Press.)—It is reported that a German army is within thirty-three miles of Kursk. Ekaterinoslav has been cut off from railway communication, and Poltava has been bombarded and is burning. The city has been abandoned by the Soviet forces.

It is reported that Sebastopol is threatened by the Turks, who are within sixteen and a half miles of the city, and from the east by the advancing Kurds.

EX-CZAR'S BROTHER SEIZED.

Moscow Commander Plans Army of 1,000,000 in Two Months.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 2.—Former Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former Emperor, has been arrested and imprisoned in Perm by order of the Perm Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Petrograd.

Rear Admiral Sablin has been elected Commander in Chief of the Black Sea fleet.

General Payoff, who has been appointed commander of the Moscow military district, says a Reuter dispatch, has announced that he expects to form an army of 1,000,000 men within two months.

SEND DELUGE OF SHELLS OVER AMERICAN LINES

Germans Renew Bombardment of Our Positions Northwest of Toul.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (By The Associated Press.)—A deluge of gas, shrapnel, and high explosive shells fell on certain portions of the American sector northwest of Toul for four hours last night, and this morning a number of towns, trenches, and roads were targets for the enemy, who began firing before midnight. First one place was "straffed" and then another. At one location alone 4,000 shells, 2,000 of which were gas projectiles, fell.

Toward the end of the shelling the Germans let down a barrage in front of one of the American front line positions for good measure. It is surprising what little damage was done, for the enemy was not only a poor marksman, but the information upon which he was apparently acting was bad.

The American artillery retaliated and dropped many shells near a track carrying supplies to an advanced post before the driver abandoned it.

Two American patrols penetrated the enemy lines last night. Both found the belts of wire heavily electrified, one reporting that the strands of wire were connected with interrupters, which gave off sparks as a warning to the enemy sentries.

NEW AIR BASE IN BAVARIA.

Project to Make It a Centre for Middle Europe System.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 1.—Paul Gratz, a well known African explorer, has managed to interest certain Bavarian circles in founding at Munich a company which is to serve as a basis for "Central European aerial traffic."

The participants so far include the Prince of Thurn and Taxis, the cities of Munich, Nuremberg, Augsburg, Regensburg, Bamburg, and Lindau, and representatives of industry, finance and commerce. Gratz has also interested the Austro-Hungarian Government, the Austrian Lloyd, and the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, as well as the Hamburg-American Company.

Bavaria's location in the heart of Europe, Gratz thinks, ought to justify establishing there a central station for mid-European aerial traffic, especially since the atmospheric conditions are very favorable. The first two aerial stations will be erected at Munich and Regensburg. They will serve for testing the plan.

BRITISH MENACE ALEPPO.

Mesopotamian and Palestine Armies Moving on Turkish Base.

LONDON, April 1.—British troops operating on the Euphrates River, in Mesopotamia, continue their pursuit of the Turkish troops. An official statement issued today by the War Office says the British forces have advanced 73 miles beyond the town of Anah to a point about midway between Bagdad and Aleppo.

The text of the statement reads:

On the Euphrates our pursuing troops have advanced 73 miles beyond Anah and have captured a few more Germans and two 10.5-centimetre guns.

H. P. Davison on Trip to Italy.

PARIS, April 1.—Henry P. Davison and several members of the Paris staff of the American Red Cross left for Italy tonight for an inspection of Red Cross activities there.

IMMENSE LOSSES OF GERMAN UNITS

Several Divisions Withdrawn—Others Exhausted, but Forced to Fight.

VAIN CALL FOR RESERVES

French Machine Gun Fire Reduced Some Companies to Thirty Men Each.

VARYING SOUTHERN BATTLE

Villages in Montdidier Salient Repeatedly Change Hands in Furious Fighting.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Monday, April 1.—German prisoners say that in many of their divisions the proportions of killed and seriously wounded are unprecedented. In the course of three days of the offensive several divisions were so exhausted and depleted that they had to be withdrawn—among them the 37th, 9th, 13th, 47th, and 211th and the 5th Division of the Guard. Despite its losses relief was refused the 84th Division. The 45th Reserve Division, of which half the effectives are said to have fallen on March 22, was relieved on the next day, but has since been re-engaged. The 208th Division has been heavily punished and the 88th smashed.

I spoke yesterday of how the Crozat Canal was crossed. It now appears that on the afternoon of the 23d the enemy troops were asking for their units to be relieved. Some of their companies had been reduced by the French machine guns to thirty men. The request could not be granted for lack of available reserves.

In-and-Out Fighting in the South.

"In this crisis, when the fate of France and civilization is in the balance, every man must be prepared to die in his tracks, and no failing will be tolerated." In some such words as these Joffre summoned his harried armies in September, 1914, to take the road which ended in immortal victory, and they may be recalled today, when the issue is the same and is perhaps as near a decision as we imagined it to be then.

I have heard it suggested today that the battle may be long. It would be folly to attempt to prophesy when it is all one can do to keep a cool head and assemble such evidence as is to be obtained from men half dead with anxiety and weariness. But the struggle has now reached such a degree of fierce intensity that its long continuance in this character is to me unimaginable.

The swift march of the three Imperial armies from March 21 to 26 was followed by a slight pause on the 27th, and on Thursday afternoon the French struck out south of Montdidier, which had been taken by Von Hutier, and drove the enemy back two miles on a front of six miles. A series of desperate counterattacks was repulsed that night, and it seemed that the French front was established along the Avre at Neuvillers, Sire Bernard, Mezieres and Marcelcave. The capture of the hamlet of Montchel, two miles south of Montdidier, enabled the French to push forceguards to a station on the south edge of the town.

Montdidier, quaintly seated on a steep hill beside the Amiens-Clermont Railway, is an important crossroads. On Friday the enemy had pulled himself together and delivered along twenty-five miles of broken country from Demuin to near Lassigny a new, mass attack supported with a considerable number of field guns. On the French left the British held Demuin, but were driven out of Mezieres. The French bore the main shock heroically. Step by step they fell back, leaving masses of German dead and wounded before their lines.

The combat continued throughout yesterday, spreading out a little at both ends, and it is impossible for me to piece together the fragmentary and often incoherent reports from the field so as adequately to represent its wild fluctuations.

Savagely set upon breaking through to Amiens and the Amiens-Paris railway, von Hutier's columns succeeded in reaching the Avre at Moreuil. Between Montdidier and Lassigny, where the front curves to the southeast, the enemy put no less strength into his outward thrust. Hand-to-hand fighting continued for hours in the villages of Orvillers on the west and Plessis de Roye, near Lassigny, and the neighboring hamlet of Piemont, all of which repeatedly changed hands. The German troops which got into Piemont and part of Plessis were driven out by a magnificent charge of the French, some units flying in disorder. The slaughter of yesterday's fighting is said to exceed anything seen in the preceding days of the battle.

BOTH SIDES DIGGING IN, GEN. PERSHING CABLES

Report Shows German Check in Montdidier Region—News of Americans Lacking.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Official reports on the great battle in Picardy which were received from Generals Pershing and Bliss today told of a continuation in the improvement of the situation and carried considerable encouragement to Administration and military men. In the afternoon a dispatch was received from General Pershing describing the battle line as it stood March 30. This message concluded with the statement:

"After a day of heavy fighting all along the line the situation continues to improve."

Major Gen. March, Chief of Staff, tonight received another favorable dispatch from General Pershing, which showed that both sides were digging in along the French part of the line between Montdidier and Noyon—a front of twenty miles. This dispatch also gave an accurate delineation of the line as it stood last night. General Pershing's telegram was as follows:

Summary of battle to March 31. No new attacks launched by the Germans north of the Somme. South of the Somme and on the front from Marcelcave to Montdidier the Germans made heavy attacks. Between Montdidier and Noyon both sides are digging in. The battle line on the 31st was the same as reported yesterday north of the Somme. South of the Somme it was as follows: Hamel, Marcelcave, Demuin, Moreuil, Mailly, Souvillers, Cantigny, Fontaine, Mesnil, Aincourt, Rouliot, Orvillers, Piessier, Passel, and along the Oise to Barisis. PERSHING.

The only part of this line in which there was any gain yesterday was between Moreuil and Mesnil, where the Germans made an advance of two miles along a seven-mile front, which took them to the line of Mailly, several miles southwest of Mireuil, Souvillers; about two miles southeast of Mailly and Fontaine, and about three miles northwest of Montdidier.

General March said tonight that there was no mention about the movement of American troops in any of the dispatches received from Generals Bliss and Pershing. General Bliss sent this message, bringing the fighting up to last night:

North of the Somme the situation is unchanged. South of the Somme the enemy on the afternoon of the 30th attacked heavily between Lajuts and Mont Renaud. On a front of 60 kilometer (37 miles) ground gained by the enemy in this attack is reported by the French as insignificant and the enemy's losses as enormous. This morning the French by counterattacks gained Le Monchel and Assainvillers. Everywhere else the line is practically unebanged.

GERMANS STUDYING AMERICAN TROOPS

Captured Document Shows a Teuton General's Order to Learn Minute Details.

FIGHTING TRAITS WATCHED

Full Instructions Given to Analyze the Differences from the French Methods.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, March 31.—A striking illustration of the thoroughness of the German intelligence system is given in a document captured from a Bavarian Landwehr regiment, showing the pains taken to gather information concerning the American troops. It shows the almost uncanny use which the German command can make of scraps of facts and also the anxiety to learn details about the American forces.

The document begins by saying that "every observer and patrol must do his best to bring in information about the new enemy." It then gives detelle as follows:

"The infantry is armed partly with American and partly with English rifles. The American rifle is a magazine rifle of 6.5 millimsters bore with five cartridges per clip, sidearms, and trench knife. The English rifle is of 7.7 millimetera bore. The srtillery probably consists of French guns, but the Americans have in part other calibres.

"The training of the American troops is continuing. As to their training in France nothing is known yet, nor of their own methods of leadership or fighting."

Minor Details Eagerly Sought.

Then the document, which is signed by a German Gensral, says:

"From the preceding meagre details it is evident that sectors K and M have the honorable task of obtaining as much information as possible on the particular features of American fighting and outpost attacks. Any obssrvation or identification, however insignificant, may be of the greatest value in connection with information already on hand."

The ingenuity of the German Intelligence Department is shown by the instructions issued relative to finding out American methods. For instance, under the heading, "The Enemy's Security," the documsnt aska: "Are sentry posts merely sentry posts or stronger posts? Further advanced reconnoitring patrols? Manner of challenging? Behavior on posts during day and night? Vigilence? Ambush tactics and cunning? Do they shoot and signal on every occasion? Do the posts hold their ground on the approach of a patrol or do they fall back? Do they give barrage fire signals? When are the reliefs and what is the behavior during them? Have they any light signals other thsn French ones?."

Under the heading of "The Enemy's Patrols" the General asks for information on the strength of these patrols, methods of their advance, behavior on meeting an ensmy, and initiative.

Observing American Trails.

As to the "General Behavior of the Enemy in Line," he asks:

"Careless or cautious? Quiet and careful or noisy? What is the behavior during dugout smoke screens? Behavior at mealtimes and when are these? Can concentration be observed? Is there much reconnoitring and how is the behavior? How is it at night? Is there much machine gun firing? Is there more or less transport material than formerly?".

Under "The Enemy's Reliefs," the Germans are instructed to find whether there are more troops in the rear than is customary with the French, and also to ascertain the times and sounds of relisfs.

As to "The Enemy's Material," the document says that used infantry or machine gun bullets, as well as unexploded shells and splinters are of special value. Under the heading "Shelling by the enemy," the General asks for its peculiarities compared to previous shelling, what objectives are preferred other than those formerly sought, the expenditure of ammunition and night shelling. The document says that it remains for the Landwehr infantry regiments to report specially any trustworthy observations in respect to the above or any other points, and the Gsneral adds:

"I shall issue important information for further use in this connection."

Another captured German document tells of anti-tank plane and of the participation of tanks in German field manoeuvres.

Soldiers Need Wigs and Costumes.

Theatrical properties, wigs, grease paints, costumes, &c., for entertainments to be given among themselves by soldiers in the camps havs been asked by Mrs. George J. Gould, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee for the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense. These contributions may be sent to Mrs. Gould at 857 Fifth Avenue.

AMERICAN WOMEN KILLED IN PARIS

POPE SENDS OFFER OF AID

Bombardment of City Continues—Berlin Disclaims Responsibility for Loss of Life.

Pope Protests to Berlin Against Shelling of Paris

OTTAWA, April 1.—"Pope Benedict has lodged a protest with Berlin against the bombardment of Paris, and especially against the destruction of churchea and the wholesale massacre of people," says a Reuter dispatch received here from London tonight."

PARIS, April 1.—The bombardment of Paris by long-range German guns was resumed this afternoon. Four persons were killed and nine injured by the bombardment, according to the official announcement this evening.

Among the victims killed on Good Friday, when a shell struck a church, were Mrs. Lucy Landon and Mrs. Marie Grinnell, whose residence was 6 Rue Balzac. Both were born in New York. Another victim was Mlle. Germaine Francière, an auxiliary nurse of the American Ambulance at Neuilly.

Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, yesterday received the following telegram from Rome:

"The Holy Father, deploring the fact that the bloody conflict, which already has caused everywhere so much suffering, has again, on the very day of the Saviour's Passion, found more innocent victims, who are still dearer to his heart owing to their faith and piety, expresses his deepest sympathy. He sends the apostolic blessing, to all the faithful in Paris, and desires to know if it is necessary to send material aid to the families in mourning."

The Cardinal has received the following letter from Grand Rabbi Israel Levi:

"Your Eminence, I am the interpreter of the feelings of all my French coreligionists in saying that I share in the mourning which has come to so many families devastated by sacrilegious barbarism. We are one in pious indignation at the crime, which seems to have been intended as an insult to what humanity holds most sacred."

ROME, April 1.—Pope Benedict expressed deep concern, on receiving reports today of the occurrence at the loss of life in the Paris church which was struck by a German shell. The Pope visited Cardinal, Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, who is confined to bed with a cold, and discussed with him the attitude which the Vatican should take, it being felt that the situation has assumed a new aspect, inasmuch as shells from guns, instead of bombs from airplanes, are being used to bombard Paris.

LONDON, April 1.—Speaking of the loss of life in a Paris church from a shell fired by a long-range German gun, a semi-official Berlin dispatch, forwarded from Amsterdam by Central News, says it is to be deplored, but that every church within an attacked fortress necessarily is subject to incidental hits. The responsibility for the security of the inhabitants of Paris, the dispatch says, must rest with the French Government.

SHELLS INTEREST CROWDS.

Foe's Long-Distance Projectiles a Feature of Easter Holidays.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Monday, April 1.—The most extraordinary characteristic of Paris at the present moment is the incredible indifference of the vast mejority of the population to danger from the German long-range gun bombardment. Immense holiday crowds filled the boulevards the whole of Sunday afternoon, and today a large proportion of them were eagerly awaiting the dull crack which would tell of the arrival of another shell on the city.

One shell struck a house on the edge of a crowd. The passersby, several hundred strong, made an immediate rush for the spot and were greatly disappointed to find nothing visible from the street, the missile having hit the building in the courtyard, high up on the reverse side from the road. One apartment was wrecked and others fronting on this street were covered with dust. The crowd cheered to the echo as a woman on the story below calmly came to a window five minutes after the shell fell and began shaking her rugs into the street with an expression of bored annoyance on her face.

A similar scene occurred this afternoon in another side street within half a block of where THE TIMES correspondent was.

No bombardment can suppress the cheerful spirits of the holiday crowd. The big gun and its doings have become the most popular holiday show now running here.

AMERICANS FILL ROADS ON MARCH

they might be left behind. If there was a single straggler in the long marching lines today he had effectively hidden himself.

Definite official announcement that American troops will actually fight side by side with the French and British in Northern France reached the American troops tonight in Paris newspapers. It was greeted with cheering. The men who will go are envied by the rest of the American forces.

As they passed by on the roads they were speeded on their way with cries such as "Eat 'em up," and "Say, you fellows are in luck."

Orders to proceed toward the Plains of Picardy were received from the French high command three days ago, but until it was officially announced no mention could be made of it.

ACCLAIM AMERICA'S RESOLVE.

French See Difference Between Us and Kaiser's Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 31.—The notion of General Pershing in offering the whole American Army and all that it means to General Foch has touched French opinion as have few things since the war began. France sees in Pershing's action confirmation of America's firm resolve to pursue the war, cost what it may, to a victorious conclusion.

The Temps points out that Germany can only feel sure of her ally when she is victorious, whereas American troops on the contrary "run spontaneously to the aid of their allies when there is danger." The German offensive, it is further pointed out, was launched to break up the Allies, but has had the contrary effect, leading Americans to offer sooner their help of their soldiers, to pledge solemnly their military prestige, and to give the world an example of their discipline and unity.

"A year ago President Wilson told the world that America was pursuing no selfish object," the Temps says. "Since then Russia has collapsed. The American people have lost some illusions which we have known and have submitted to privations which we do not know enough about. In their eyes, however, the war has assumed the aspect of a crusade, which in fact it is. They are fighting for a faith and peril even exalts their courage. What aberration could have induced Germany to imagine she could conquer strength like that?

"When the Germans started their offensive in Picardy they were full of scorn for American troops. 'These Americans are sportsmen, not soldiers,' wrote one of their war correspondents on March 15. The Frankfort Gazette last Sunday asserted that the bulk of the American soldiers were worthless, but consented to admit that the American military railways and hospital service, &c., might occasion Germany some losses of energy and time.

"General Pershing has upset all these hopes of the enemy in two sentences: 'All we have is at your disposal. Do what you please with us.' German journalists who described American soldiers as mere sportsmen would do well to gather a little information about them from German troops who have come in contact with them. They would then be fully edified as to the facts."

GRISVESNES HELD AGAINST GERMANS

man forces, however, were thrown against the village of Grivesnes, about half way between Montdidier and Moreuil, evidently with the intention of forcing a passage toward the railroad running into Amiens from the south.

All efforts by the enemy were in vain. The French troops held firm throughout a long and constantly renewed struggle in the outskirts and streets of the village, where the soldiers came to closest grips with bayonets and hand grenades. At noon the village was still in the hands of the French, the Germans having been repulsed on several occasions with the heaviest losses.

At no period of the war has the fighting been so fierce. The Germans had intended to reach, at any cost, and destroy the railroad communication at Amiens connecting the north and the south. Today, the twelfth day of the battle, they find before them a solid wall of allied troops, which is daily becoming firmer, as artillery is advancing from all directions to support the infantry, which has stood the entire shock up to the present.

Still further northward the British and French fought shoulder to shoulder in the vicinity of Hangard-en-Santerre, preventing dense columns of the enemy from gaining ground and later recapturing some positions with a number of prisoners.

Wherever the Allies regain territory they find heaps of German dead which the invaders had no time to bury. They appeared to have suffered terrible losses from the fire of the French field guns. They, themselves, had hitherto been short of artillery, but more guns were brought up today.

Sanguinary engagements, in which the combatants again came to close fighting and individual combats, took place yesterday about the Lassigny sector. Here the French field artillery caught the advancing German columns under a tempest of shells, which drove them back, but only after the ground was strewn with hundreds of bodies.

At Piemont two German divisions, which had received strict orders to execute an advance, whatever might be the cost, and capture a height, found themselves confronted by a French division. For a moment the French were forced back, and they took breath and came at the enemy again with such a rush that the Germans were driven from the height, leaving 700 prisoners, including twenty officers, in the hands of the French.

Nearly all the bridges crossing the Oise have been destroyed, and the French hold strong positions on the southern bank, while all possible fords are covered by artillery.

It appears that some of the German forces possess many tanks, but so far they have been used little. A captured order shows that five of these were placed at the disposition of one division, while prisoners say that a large number of tanks have been constructed since Fall.

It is believed that the Germans intend to use these tanks to follow the first waves of infantry and deal with the resistance on the centre.

Behind the lines what strikes the imagination vividly is the immensity of the movements of the troops and the order with which these are regulated. Traffic directors stand day and night at every crossroad, giving directions so that every vehicle and cannon can reach its proper station with clock-like regularity.

The whole scheme is superintended by special officers, who have sat in small cabins for days without a moment's rest, receiving directions from the various staffs and transmitting them along the line.

Any vehicle breaking down is immediately ditched; otherwise the whole scheme would come to naught and the battle array be endangered.

ABRAMI PREDICTS NEW PUSH BY GERMANS

Says Unfavorable Tactical Position Makes Further Attempts to Break Through Imperative.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 1.—Discussing the possibilities of the German offensive last night with a representative of Premier Clemenceau's Homme Libre, M. Abrami, Under Secretary of War, said:

"It is expected that they will again attack with violence. They are caught, as it were, in a glove finger, and are forced to go on. They will go on; on their side it is black with troops. Without doubt all these battalions are preparing for a new and desperate effort. It will be made tomorrow, perhaps."

Although in other newspapers the words, "a bloody defeat," are beginning to be applied to the German effort, those best informed do not consider the battle won yet. "A bloody check," says the official communique, and that sums up the situation. The enemy is checked, but not yet defeated. The Journal says:

"The game is not yet played out—that is certain, but at this moment the enemy cannot advance. Let us expect another heavy effort, the really dangerous point being the centre. When that effort is repulsed we may begin to think the game is won."

As M. Abrami and the Journal writer indicate, the position of the Germans is tactically so unfavorable, especially on the left flank, that, despite losses which are conservatively estimated at two-thirds of the enemy's whole strategic reserve—though, of course, a large part of the divisions technically used up will be able to return to action before very long—they will be forced to continue their desperate attempt at breaking through. This opens the way to the possibility that, if the Allies can resist them at the present comparative scale of losses, the time may come when a rupture of equilibrium will be produced sufficient for Foch actually to win a decisive victory. This factor may upset predictions of a continued hammer-and-tongs struggle for months, with victory going to the side whose reserves last longer.

One thing is certain: the Germans at present are losing far more than their adversaries, especially the French, M. Abrami says:

"I have just talked with Generals back from the front who have taken part in the war from Verdun to the Somme. They have never seen so many German dead as now. Over two kilometers in the district of Saturday's fighting there were literally heaps of corpses."

The Under Secretary concluded with the statement that French reserves, artillery, and munitions continued to arrive in profusion, the French transport service working admirably. The German transport service, on the contrary, already suffering from lack of grease for trains and lorries and of rubber for tires, has been thrown into further confusion by the fire of French long-range artillery now in position and by the superiority of the allied airplanes. Both airplanes and artillery are shelling every depot continually and breaking up troop concentrations wherever signaled.

LOTH TO ATTACK AT VIMY.

Germans Are Kept at Bay by Canadian Guns.

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, (Canadian Press, Ltd.,) April 1.—On Easter Monday a year ago Canadian soldiers, moving mightily to the attack, captured Vimy Ridge. This Easter Monday the soldiers of the Dominion are united with British troops north of the Scarpe in defence of the southern flanks of these heights, which dominate so much of the coal areas of Northern France.

Canadian guns played a part in defeating the German onslaught against the positions opposite Oppy and Gavrelle Thursday. Early yesterday morning German preparations for a further attack were defeated by the massed fire of the artillery. At 3:45 o'clock, at 4:30 o'clock, and again at 5 o'clock the southern flank of Vimy, stretching out toward Arras, was alive with fire from the guns, which rained shells on the enemy's front lines, communication trenches, and assembly areas.

The "Stokes" were directed chiefly upon hostile communications, the machine guns maintained a hail of fire across No Man's Land and upon the enemy's front line, while the heavy artillery kept up a harassing fire for two hours, increasing to battle barrage at stated times, when every gun was firing shell upon shell as fast they could be fed to them.

After such a concentration of fire the Hun attack never developed, although the unquestioned concentrating of troops proves beyond question that Arras and Vimy Ridge are among the chief objectives of the enemy's Spring offensives.

Yesterday there was a lively artillery duel between the Canadian guns and those of the enemy, but no hostile attack developed.

Last night and today things have been very quiet. Indeed, the shelling in the Vimy area for eighteen hours has been lighter than at any time since Thursday. Whether the enemy is hesitating to attack since the reception he received from the British troops last week, or whether he is reorganizing for a further offensive against Arras and the ridge, the Canadians look to the future with a morale which never was higher among all ranks.

EXPECTS NEW BLOWS ON WESTERN FRONT

War Department Thinks Germans Are Determined to Force a Decision.

RUSSIANS LOSE IRKUTSK

20,000 Teutons Reported to Have Seized the Important Strategic Centre in Siberia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—In its weekly review of the war, issued today, the War Department says:

"The period under review has naturally been one of anxiety for the Allies. Under the pressure exerted by the enemy, who has put into action picked units, long and carefully trained in mobile warfare for the particular tasks they were to undertake, the British have been compelled to give ground.

"Field Marshal Haig in the face of grave difficulties has been able to maintain his basic order of battle, at the same time withdrawing his troops to more secure positions.

"In spite of the successes gained, the large area of terrain overrun and the great number of prisoners and war material captured, the enemy has been unable to force a decision.

"Though the Allies have been compelled to retire and the enemy has occupied some points of primary strategic importance, as long as the allied armies are able to manoeuvre with the consistent unity and flexibility which they have shown during the engagements of the last week, so long will victory elude the enemy.

"However, as the German higher command has staked its fortunes on the success of the Spring campaign of 1918, and is apparently determined to force a decision or prove to its own satisfaction that it is unable to do so, we must be prepared, in case of his failure to obtain major results in the present theatre of operations, that he will attempt further offensive assaults in adjacent areas.

"Our own resources have been placed unreservedly at the disposal of the Allies, and our divisions will be used if and when needed. Our troops are taking their places in other parts of the line, thus relieving veteran French units for emergency service.

"Much of our troops as have received a sufficient amount of training will cooperate with the latter, and in so far as they are able will assume a share of the great burden now so valiantly borne by the French and British armies.

"From Italy information reaches us that fresh Austrian divisions are arriving along the Italian front, coming from Rumania, and important troop movements are taking place in the Val Sugana. Renewed activity along the entire front is recorded, and the Austrians were able to conduct a successful operation in the Frenzela Valley.

"In the eastern theatre the Germans are continuing their advance in the Ukraine. A number of engagements are reported in which Austrian forces were driven back. In Siberia the important strategic centre, Irkutsk, has fallen into the hands of the enemy, and a hostile detachment, believed to number 20,000, is in full possession of the town.

"Turkish units under German leadership are believed to be advancing in the vicinity of Teheran. This must be taken into consideration owing to the possibility of the enemy executing a flanking movement against the British operating in Mesopotamia."

ITALIAN COMMAND SEES SIGNS OF NEW DRIVE

Expects Thrusts at Brescia and Verona and Attempt to Turn Piave Line.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Information reaches Italian circles in Washington that the Italian high command is expecting the early opening of a big offensive against the Italian front. From what can be ascertained here, it appears to be the Italian staff's expectation that this offensive will branch out around both sides of Lake Garda, the western movement being aimed at Brescia and the eastern movement having Verona as its ultimate object. If the Italian command is correct in this assumption, it may be the purpose of the Central Powers in the expected new offensive to drive in the Italian armies which now protect Lombardy, and also turn the left flank of the Italian army defending the long line from the lower Piave to the mountains. Italian military men here feel that the Italian front is part of the western front, and that it should be considered as one full of latent possibilities.

It is asserted that if the Central Powers were able to make a successful drive on Brescia they would strike a hard blow at the industrial areas of Northern Italy and render it difficult, if not impossible, for the Italians to continue their present manufacture of munitions in Lombardy and Piedmont.

Italy is represented in the Interallied War Council, and it is believed that the Entente military leaders are fully alive to the possibilities of an offensive on the Italian front.

Wheat Price in Conference.

MERCHANTS TO PUSH NEW LIBERTY LOAN

Every Department Store in City Will Have Booths to Take Subscriptions.

PLAN WIDE ADVERTISING

Rabbinate of New York Joins in National Appeal—Mass Meeting of Loan Workers.

The department stores of the city have mapped out plans for their participation in the Liberty Loan campaign that is to be started Saturday. It will be their aim to reach every patron, and various means will be employed to attain that result. Booths will be installed in every store, signs and posters will be displayed in all conspicuous places of their establishments, and Liberty Loan literature will be inclosed in parcels. In addition, the stores will mail out circulars to their charge customers. At a meeting held yesterday at the offices of the Retail Dry Goods Association, 21 West Thirty-eighth Street, the department store representatives announced that they would contribute thousands of lines of newspaper advertising to the Liberty Loan, and that a considerable amount of newspaper space would be placed at the disposal of the Liberty Loan Committee.

The Chairman of the Department Store Division of the Liberty Loan is Louis Stewart of James McCreery & Co., the Vice Chairman is S. F. Rothschild of Abrahain & Straus of Brooklyn, and the Secretary is Lauren Carroll. The other members are: Samuel J. Bloomingdale of Bloomingdale Brothers, Clarkson Cowl of James A. Hearn & Son, Michael Friedsam of B. Altman & Co., Bernard F. Gimbel of Gimbel Brothers, E. V. H. Koch of H. C. F. Koch & Co., Edgar A. Baum of A. I. Namm & Son, Brooklyn; Isaac Levy of Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Samuel W. Reyburn of Lord & Taylor, Horace Saks of Saks & Co., Butler Shelden of John Wanamaker Company, Franklin Simon of Franklin Simon & Co., Louis Stern of Stern Brothers, Jesse L. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co., H. A. Weatherbee of Arnold, Constable & Co., James M. Speers of James McCutcheon & Co., Hubert T. Parson of F. W. Woolworth Company, Alexander New of the Mercantile Stores Corporation, Herman Lubet of J. S. Bailey & Co., Brooklyn; Louis Stewart, Jr., of James McCreery & Co.; William G. Cooper of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, and Albert L. Levi and H. M. Wykes of The Berlin Store, Brooklyn.

The Committee on Advertising consists of Samuel W. Reyburn, Jesse L. Strauss, Franklin Simon, and Butler Sheldon.

Following the meeting of the Rabbinate of New York at the Central Jewish Institute on Sunday, a committee of the leading rabbis sent a message yesterday to every rabbi in the United States, reformed and orthodox, asking that from their pulpits, either on Thursday, the last day of Passover, or on the coming Saturday, the first day of the Liberty Loan campaign, they appeal to their congregations for united support for the war loan.

The American Defense Society sent out a letter yesterday to its 300 Vigilance Corps throughout the country calling upon them to co-operate in every possible way with the Liberty Loan Committees of their respective localities. "It is America's part," said President Hurd in his message, "to replace Russia's 8,000,000 men and put her weight on the scale until the enemy is wholly vanquished."

A mass meeting of Liberty Loan workers will be held at Carnegie Hall tomorrow evening, when addresses will be made by Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank; Thomas W. Lament of J. P. Morgan & Co., and George Wharton Pepper of the Philadelphia bar. The Four-Minute Men, who will attend the meeting in a body, have been asked to assemble at their headquarters, 53 East Forty-fourth Street, at 7:15 P. M., and will march from there to the hall.

Colonel Roosevelt will be the host of Liberty Loan workers at his home in Oyster Bay this afternoon. The delegation will leave the Long Island section of the Pennsylvania Station at 2:50 P. M. by special train.

ATLANTIC CITY FIRE CAUSES $350,000 LOSS

Six Buildings in Heart of Business Section Destroyed—Explosions Add to Hazard.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 1.—An early morning fire today destroyed six three-story building in the heart of the business zone on the south side of Atlantic Avenue, between Tennessee and South Carolina Avenues, back to Central Avenue. The loss is estimated at $350,000, with insurance of $125,000.

Fanned by a strong wind the fire raged four hours. It started, it is believed by spontaneous combustion in the Oliver H. Guttridge Building, 1,320 Atlantic Avenue, which is occupied by a hardware company. The structure was heavily stocked with oils, paints, and varnishes. The blaze smouldered for probably fifteen minutes when two turpentine tanks exploded and the outbreak became serious.

GERMAN FLIER BROUGHT DOWN IN OUR LINES

Sought to Destroy Observation Balloon, Blamed for the Accuracy of American Shelling.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, April 1.—American Signal Corps officers are congratulating themselves on the bringing down of a German aviator, out to destroy the one observation balloon back of our lines. The Boche had circled around behind the balloon station and was on his way toward it when a French aviator circled above him and fired bullets into his petrol tank, forcing a landing.

The pilot was captured. He had written instructions to destroy the balloon at all costs. He said the Germans blamed the balloon observers for the accuracy of the American artillery fire recently.

MUST WIN, SAYS PRESIDENT.

Tells Methodists He Has Not Changed Attitude on War.

President Wilson has not changed his attitude concerning a negotiated peace with the Central Powers, as expressed in his Flag Day address, his reply to Pope Benedict, and his message to Congress on the declaration of war with Austria, according to a letter he has written to Bishop Theodore S. Henderson of the Methodist Episcopal Church, made public here yesterday by the National War Council of the Church.

Bishop Henderson wrote to the President in behalf of 20,000,000 American Methodists, asking in particular whether his present unwavering purpose as expressed in the following words from his messages: "The German power, a thing without conscience, honor, or capacity for covenanted peace, must be crushed. . . . Our present and immediate task is to win the war, and nothing shall turn us aside until it is accomplished." Here is the President's letter:

"In reply to your letter of March 21, may I not say that you are perfectly safe in using the words which you quote from my messages as expressing my unaltered thought and unbroken purpose? It is always our duty to find out what the expression of a desire for peace from one opponent really means, but unless it means a complete and convincing program of justice upon which a lasting peace can really rest, and we have had as yet no evidence that it means anything of that kind, it means nothing."

GERMANY ANXIOUS, BUT DETERMINED

the impression of intense determination in circles that matter that the offensive will be continued, pushed, and persevered in to the very utmost. The popular belief is that it has no more than begun, yet all Germany is ringing once again with talk of "The Day," but the tone is decidedly different from that of 1914. The utterance now comes from strained lips and is pervaded with a monotone of the most intense anxiety.

There can be no doubt that the very greatest anxiety does exist in the Fatherland as to the outcome of the offensive. That feeling is strongly mirrored in German circles in Holland. The Germans appear to be convinced that this is the last desperate throw, and if it does not go well with them, then there will be nothing left but internal disruption.

Germany is putting her all, and it is a gigantic all, into the struggle and there can be no talk of the crisis having yet been reached, let alone passed. One has only to recall her tremendous effort at Verdun to be convinced that she will not call a halt until the last hope has more than gone. Everything goes to point to the correctness of the belief that a tremendous effort will yet be made and that in comparison with what is to come what now has been done will be comparatively unimportant.

All Germany believes that a far greater battle than that of the Marne has yet to be fought out. The higher German command naturally will not consider losses. How great the losses have been up to the present time it is impossible to say, though no one says they are anything but tremendous.

There was talk in Germany to the effect that the German high command was prepared to sacrifice 800,000 men in the offensive and it is probable that that number has been very considerably passed, but that, it is believed, will not cause the army heads to hesitate. Grim stories come from northern Belgium of vast numbers of wounded arriving in villages there.

What effect these losses have had is another question being discussed in Germany.

It is taken for granted that it was originally intended to attack on a big front at another section of the western line, probably before or beyond Verdun. Germany has been wondering whether that idea has been abandoned owing to the extent of the losses in men on the front of the present offensive.

"Who can say," remarks the military critic of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, "that a second blow by Hindenburg elsewhere will not strike the enemy down?!"

That second blow is certainly expected by the Germans, but then the army command has a habit of getting military critics to say things it merely wishes the enemy to believe, and one comes across such remarks as that just quoted in every article commenting on the situation. The war correspondent of the Deutsche Tageszeitung expects a "new decision on the Paris-Amiens railway line."

However all those things may be, there is no indication from Germany of anything but a determined continuation of a struggle with every man and every method at the disposal of the high command. Germany is not shouting victory yet; indeed, every paper refers to the great strength still at the disposal of the Allies, and warns the country that the stupendous struggle will not be ended with a few days or weeks of battle, however successful.

This great offensive is always described as a great peace offensive. It requires little imagination to gather what the result will be should it fail, should hope of peace be vain. It is plainly recognized that such an offensive is a thing that cannot happen again.

Even now there are whispers, only whispers, and I report them under the greatest reserve, of some German troops having funked it who hesitated to wade knee deep, as it were, over their dead comrades' bodies. How long the military machine can throw democracy to slaughter is an important point. Certainly not long if the cost continues to be high and the ultimate ends are not achieved.

There is another curious thing about German public opinion these days. That is the deep impression made by the memoranda of Lichnowsky and von Jagow. They have been discussed almost as much as the offensive, and while the offensive has been on the readers of many papers had put before them articles bitterly complaining of German diplomacy before the war and even going as far as can be expected toward the admission that England did not really cause the war after all. Members of the Reichstag lament in the Vossische Zeitung that the German Government was silent in the face of the numerous speeches made by Entente statesmen.

In short, I think I am right in thn belief that German public opinion is in such a condition that if the offensive is held up peace will be very near. But as the militarists have all at stake, they will certainly make the most stupendous effort the war has yet seen.

BIG GERMAN TANKS ARE 45 FEET LONG

Reported to Carry 3-Inch Guns and Flame Throwers—Can be Sealed Up in Gas Zone.

OTTAWA, April 1.—A dispatch by the Reuter correspondent from French Headquarters says:

"Although the soldiers believe that enemy tanks did not participate in the first German shock, it is certain that tanks actually took part in the operations, and the failure to see them by the soldiers was because, instead of accompanying the infantry waves, the tanks advanced later with specialist troops to destroy islets of resistance holding out after the German hordes submerged the British main defenses.

"It is known that the enemy has tanks of three classes. The first class consists of repaired captured tanks from the Cambral battle and tanks manufactured according to the model of the British machine. The second type is a German model, smaller than the British, but swifter, better armed and more heavily armored. The third type is a land cruiser, or large model tank.

"The swift tanks are said to be 26 feet long, 10 feet wide and 11 feet high, weighing ten metric tons. The land cruisers are 45 feet long, 13 feet wide and 13 feet high. The speed of the German tanks varies from four and one-half to nine and one-half miles per hour. The armament is believed to consist of a shortened 77 millimeter (three inch) gun, machine guns, and a flame thrower. The latter is an innovation which must add considerable efficiency to the tank in clearing trenches, owing to the capacity of the tanks to carry reserves of combustile liquid.

"It is understood that the Germans have introduced a number of improvements, including heavier protection against shells and a device enabling the crew to close the tank hermetically when traversing an area of gas.

"German tanks are commanded by Majors. The officers are volunteers, and the men motor specialists, gunners, and machine gunners.

"In attacks the tanks are designed to advance behind the second or third wave of infantry, while detachments of infantry cover their flanks."

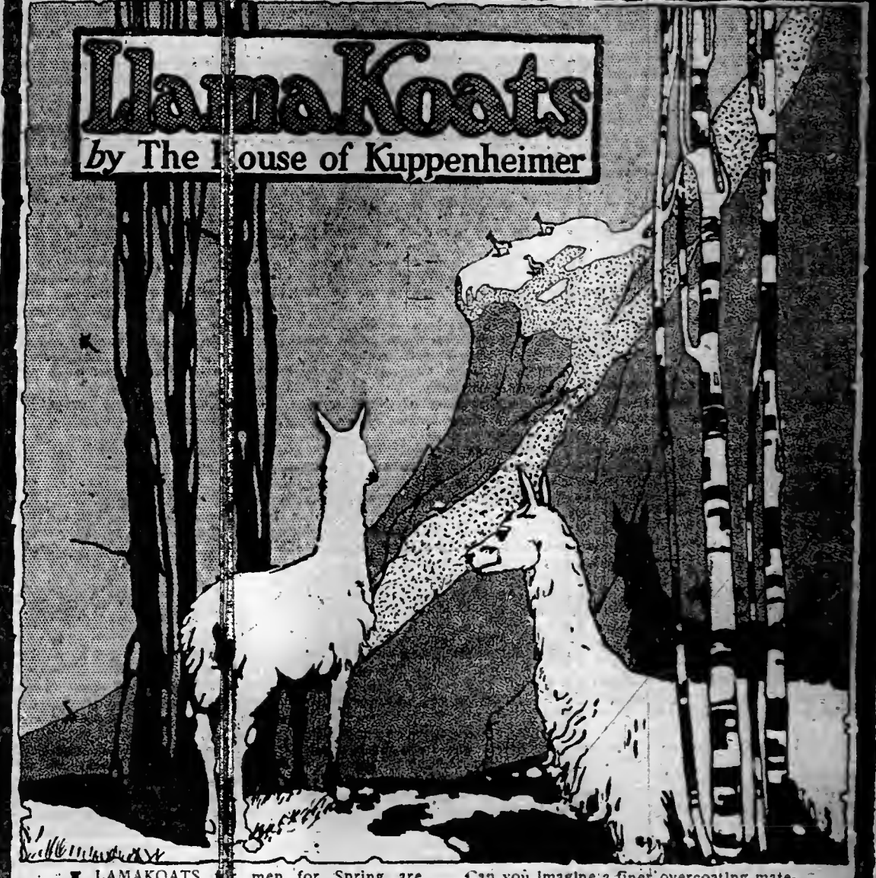
LlamaKoats
by The House of Kuppenheimer



LLAMAKOATS for men for Spring are made from the fleece of the Llama—a camel-like animal found only in the Andes Mountains of South America.

To protect the Llama from the cold winds and snow, nature provides it with an abundant coat of fawn-colored fleece, very thick and soft and from eight to ten inches long.

Can you imagine a finer overcoating material for man, for Spring, than that with which nature has furnished the hardy Llama? A most practical warmth-without-weight overcoating introduced by the House of Kuppenheimer, and already one of the most dominant and smartest novelties of the season.

In twelve colors—Caps to match.

Equipment and Cargoes of Dutch Ships Included by President in Commandeering.

EXECUTIVE ORDER ISSUED

Ends Talk of Any Change in Government's Attitude—No Threat Seen in Dutch Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—That there will be no change in the determination of the United States Government to retain control of the commandeered Dutch shipping and use it to the full in meeting the military needs of the allied nations was made positive today by the publication of an Executive Order, prepared by President Wilson, authorizing the Navy Department to take possession of all equipment and cargoes on the seized vessels.

The owners are to be compensated by the United States Shipping Board for all materials seized. No restriction is placed by the President upon the use to which the requisitioned property shall be put.

The publication of the official protest of the Netherlands Government was read here today by Government officials with the deepest interest, but it is definitely established that there will be no change in the attitude of the United States Government. There is no thought here that Holland, as a result of the requisitioning of the ships, will go to war with the American Government or its allies. A protest along the lines of that published was not unexpected, as it was generally understood that Holland, as a neutral nation, would go on record against the use of her tonnage in fighting Germany.

The Official Text.

Here is the President's Executive Order:

EXECUTIVE ORDER.

In pursuance of the authority conferred upon the President of the United States by the act approved June 15, 1917, entitled, "An Act Making Appropriations to Supply Urgent Deficiencies for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1917, and for Other Purposes," the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized and directed to take over, on behalf of the United States, possession of all tackle, apparel, furniture, and equipment, and all stores, including bunker fuel, aboard each of the vessels of Netherland registry now within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, possession of which was taken in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States promulgated March 20, 1918; and in every instance in which such possession has heretofore been taken of such tackle, apparel, furniture, equipment, and stores, such taking is hereby adopted and made of the same force and effect as if it had been made subsequent to the signing of this executive order.

The United States Shipping Board shall make to the owners of any tackle, apparel, furniture, equipment, and stores taken under the authority of this order full compensation, in accordance with the principles of international law.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, March 28, 1918.

The State Department received today from Minister Garrett at The Hague a copy of the declaration of the Netherlands Government relating to the seizure by the United States of Dutch tonnage in American waters. Mr. Garrett said the document was presented to him by the Netherlands Government for his information and contained what would be published in the Official Gazette. The impression was conveyed that the protest was not made in the usual diplomatic manner—by presenting it to this Government as such.

Secretary Lansing declined to comment on the protest, saying he desired to study it word for word. The impression was not gathered anywhere, however, that the protest would in the slightest influence the course this country was pursuing.

No Open Threat Detected.

Neither at the Dutch nor any other diplomatic establishment was it thought that the protest contained any open threat; rather it was taken to constitute an expression of Holland's attitude because of the action taken by the United States and to put her on record as holding that the action was contrary to international law.

From statements previously made by an Entente Ambassador here it was believed that the Netherlands Government would receive, upon making the request, guarantees of safe passage for the ships it might designate to come to this country for the 100,000 tons of grain promised.

It is understood that the United States and Great Britain both stand ready to furnish the guarantees, but it is still a question whether Germany will grant Dutch vessels immunity from submarine attack, even when dispatched for foodstuffs for home consumption. In consideration, however, of the fact that the supplying of Holland with certain commodities will enable that country to release others for exportation, it was considered likely that Germany would permit the sailings.

It is not known whether this Government has decided to arm the Dutch merchant shipping taken over, but it is believed that it will be devoted to every war use, and that in order better to protect it and its possible freight of war supplies and troops, every measure will be taken assuring such protection, including the furnishing of armed guards.

INQUIRY TO FIND OUT IF DR. BUENZ IS REALLY ILL.

Government Skeptical as to Seriousness of Convicted Plotter's Condition.

Is Dr. Karl Buenz, ex-German Minister to Mexico, at one time German Consul General in New York, and when the United States declared war on Germany the chief official of the Hamburg-American Line in the United States, as ill as he is reported to be? This is a question that the Federal Government wants answered, and steps to get the answer have been taken. More than two years ago Buenz was convicted of having entered into a conspiracy with other German subjects, some of whom are now in the penitentiary, to make the Port of New York a supply base for German commerce raiders which at that time were in the Atlantic.

Dr. Buenz is now the only person living in the German Club at 112 Central Park South. All the other members who made their home there moved out about ten days ago when Federal agents invaded the place and looked over certain data belonging to some of the permanent guests. The German Club was Boy-Ed's home when he was in New York, and was also the headquarters of Captain von Papen, who was Boy-Ed's chief colleague in the German plot system. Other well-known enemy subjects, who are now interned, who made the German Club their home, included Adolph Pavenstedt, the friend of Bernstorff, and Hugo Schmidt, the agent of the Deutsche Bank.

When Buenz, along with several other Germans, was convicted in 1915, he pleaded severe illness, and seven doctors are said to have certified to the Government that in the event he was taken to Atlanta to serve his sentence of eighteen months the railroad journey would probably cause his death. Recently the Circuit Court of Appeals rendered a decision upholding the conviction and all of the conspirators except Buenz were taken to Atlanta. He remained at liberty in New York in $25,000 bail because of his illness.

It was said yesterday, however, by a high official of the Government that Buenz has lately been spending much of his time automobiling around New York, and the Government is now to determine for a second time whether to send him to Atlanta to serve his sentence the same as the other Germans, who were his underlings in the supply base plot.

"Atlanta is one of the healthiest cities in the United States," said a Federal official yesterday, "and there is a fine hospital operated in connection with the prison. The city is high in the air and is one of the health resorts of the South. If Buenz is taken to Atlanta there is no reason why he cannot be made comfortable in the prison hospital. It certainly will be much pleasanter for him in the Summer time than to spend the hot months in New York."

The funeral of Mme. Despina Davidovitch Storch, who was believed to have been the leader of a band of clever German spies, and who died on Ellis Island last Saturday, was held yesterday afternoon at 14 East Thirty-ninth Street. The funeral arrangements were made by the parents of Baron de Beville, the young Frenchman who was Mme. Storch's companion, and who was arrested as one of those suspected of being concerned in her activities in behalf of the enemy. De Beville, Count de Clairmont, and Mme. Charlotte Nix, a German woman, are waiting deportation to France on a warrant issued by President Wilson.

The services lasted only five minutes. Baron de Beville was present, in custody of a Secret Service agent. A small crowd of curious persons gathered in the street outside the funeral chapel. The body was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Count de Clairmont, one of the dead woman's intimates, is seriously ill in his apartments in East Fifty-eighth Street, and it was said yesterday that Mme. Nix, the German member of the band, is also ill. She is on Ellis Island waiting deportation.

The nature of the illness of Mme. Nix was not disclosed yesterday. The fact that she is the third of the four members of the band to be taken ill caused some talk in Federal circles, and it is understood that Marine Hospital surgeons went to Ellis Island last night to investigate. The authorities stated again yesterday that there was no ground for the report that Mme. Storch was a suicide. Pneumonia, contracted on Ellis Island, was the cause of death given in the burial certificate.

C. J. Hicks, executive assistant to the Chairman of the board, laid before the diners, who included two women delegates, the plan for annuities and benefits, and announced that the company proposed to make arrangements with the Equitable Life Assurance Society whereby all employes, after one year's service, without cost to themselves, shall be given an individual life insurance policy. One year's service carries a death benefit equal to three months' full pay; two years' service, five months' full pay, and so on progressively, until five years and over carries the equivalent of twelve months' full pay, with a minimum of $500, and a maximum of $2,000. A feature of the plan is that these policies do not necessarily lapse when an employe leaves the service. The former employe can continue the policy himself by paying the required premiums, without the need of undergoing further medical examination.

Annuities are planned on the basis of a regular allowance of 2 per cent. of salary for each year of service for all employes at the age of 65 years, after twenty years' service, with a minimum of $300 per annum and a maximum of 75 per cent. of salary. Special provisions are made for employes less than 65 years of age, retired after twenty and twenty-five years of service. Accident disability is covered by the provisions of the State workmen's compensation law, while in cases of sickness employes of one year's service and over are to receive for disability of more than seven days half pay for periods ranging from six weeks to a year, depending upon length of service.

To Examine All Applicants.

A feature of the duties of the employment department is the proposed medical examination of all applicants in order to determine that a man is in fit condition and is not assigned to a job to which he may be unequal. Emphasis was laid on the point that "no discrimination is to be made on account of membership or nonmembership in any church, society, or fraternity or union."

Mr. Hicks then detailed proposed regulations governing the discharge of employes, aimed to insure every man a feeling of full security in his job. A definite list of offenses was agreed to for which alone a man shall be subject to summary dismissal. Those included obvious violations of law, such as fighting, carrying concealed weapons, drunkenness, stealing, and violation of safety rules. For offenses other than those listed no employe is to be discharged without having been notified that a repetition of the offense would make him liable to dismissal. It was made plain that any employe who felt he had been unjustly treated, or subjected to unfair conditions had the right of appeal either in person or through his selected representative to the general superintendent, and on up to the higher officials of the company.

Mr. Hicks explained in detail the plans for sanitary improvement inside the Bayonne, Bayway and Eage plants and the Bayonne housing improvement plan which is being worked out by the Bayonne Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with representatives of the Standard and other large plants in that city. W. C. Tagle, President of the company, devoted his address to the workers largely to a discussion of the company's participation in the war. In part he said:

"There are two outstanding points in the policy of the company in this respect. First, fair treatment and fair working conditions. The company is proud of its record in these matters. We hope that this meeting tonight will strengthen the confidence of all employes in the company's sincerity and good faith. Our company was one of the first of the larger industrial corporations to voluntarily adopt the eight-hour day, paying for the eight-hour day the same wage as was previously paid for twelve and nine-hour days.

"Second—The policy of the company has been that welfare work is not regarded in any sense as a substitute for fair wages. I cannot emphasize this too strongly. The company stands for paying its employes as high wages or a little higher than is paid by other employers of labor in the same localities. In establishing such comparisons it should be borne in mind that nearly all our employes have steady work, and therefore uninterrupted incomes, and the company is constantly striving to extend this policy.

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of Directors, told the gathering of the elaborate organization of the company for war work and pointed out that the time had come when the politician and the executive must work together, and that capital and labor, likewise, must join hands, the final responsibility for the maximum war-time production falling upon the shoulders of the individual workers.

"I have no doubt whatever of the loyalty of our workers," he concluded. "I know that they are willing to do their full duty and that not because they are guided by a selfish spirit of personal gain, but because the workers are inspired with a patriotic desire to do their full share for the good of their country."

The Workers' Side.

The first to speak for the workers was Superintendent Kohler of the Bayonne refinery, who said:

"The newspapers have seen fit to call this John D. Rockefeller's 'New Republic in the Oil Business.' While that is well enough, I think it might be called the 'introduction of Industrial Democracy in the Oil Business,' founded on humanitarian principles.

"There is no possibility of getting close co-operation and the best harmonious dealing in business unless the man above works shoulder to shoulder with the man below, but the men above are not the only ones who are under obligations. The workingmen, each and every one, must do their full duty for the many things the company has done. I want to say a few words for the men from Bayonne, who in the past have been made to suffer for the sins of their fathers. I want you to know these men as I have found them. Never in the history of the company was any body of men keen more faithful, more honest, than those on the pay rolls of the Bayonne contingent.

Others who spoke for the employes were Joseph A. McDevitt, John Stephens, and J. McCoy. After the dinner, Mr. McDevitt, a stillman, said to reporters that while the employes had not yet grasped the full significance of all the company had done, he felt certain they were immensely pleased and would meet their employers more than half way. He predicted that labor troubles in the company would be reduced to a minimum if not eliminated altogether.

GLOATING GERMANS ARRESTED IN A RAID

Government Agents Swoop Down on 40 Who Were Celebrating Drive of German Army.

LINED UP AGAINST A WALL

Eleven Who Were Drinking Success to the Kaiser Had No Registration Cards.

For the last ten days agents of the Naval Intelligence Service have been quietly investigating several German restaurants in this city which are known to be the haunts of enemy aliens and other persons whose sympathies in the war are with the Central Powers. When the great German drive began ten days ago and the news from overseas showed that the Teutonic hordes were pressing forward these enemy subjects and their sympathizers became more brazen in their expressions of sympathy and admiration for the Kaiser. They gathered in small groups in their favorite German eating and drinking places, gloated publicly over what they thought was the rout of the allied armies, drank the health of the Kaiser, Hindenburg, and other Prussian leaders, and when the wine flowed freely sang lustily the war songs of Germany and Austria.

For the first few days the Government agents watched these places and took notes. They worked on the theory that if they got "plenty of rope" the merrymakers would disclose themselves in their true colors, and this theory proved correct. The result is that the Secret Service is today in possession of a list of Germans, Austrians, and Bulgarians who are under surveillance, and the first false move on the part of any of them will result in immediate arrest. Sunday morning a crowd of these anti-American shouters gathered in a German restaurant in East Eighty-fourth Street, not far from Third Avenue.

Four agents of the Naval Intelligence Service who had been ordered to watch the place quietly waited in the immediate neighborhood. At about 2 o'clock in the morning the jollification was at its height. The crowd inside was "hoching" the Kaiser, Hindenburg, von Below, and everybody of importance in Germany. When they were not drinking toasts to the German leaders they were singing the Watch on the Rhine, Deutschland Uber Alles, and other favorite songs of the German warriors.

It was 2:05 A. M. when four Naval Intelligence men entered the Eighty-fourth Street place. They found forty persons, most of them men, in the room. Everybody was speaking German, and the big beer steins were continually being lifted to the health and success of the Hun hordes.

The four Americans—they were in the uniform of the United States Navy—entered the place quietly. For a moment they stood silhouetted in the door and looking over the enemy aliens who were having such a good time, as good times are understood on the enemy side of the Rhine.

"That'll be about enough," a big athletic sailor in the uniform of a chief petty officer announced in a loud commanding voice.

The Germans were just swinging into the second verse of "The Watch on the Rhine" when the command rang out. The singing instantly stopped and the sailors stepped forward.

"Stand up!" the senior of the American party commanded.

The enemy aliens sullenly obeyed.

"Now march over to that wall, lean against it, and stand at attention until we are through with you," the chief petty officer ordered.

Two or three of the enemy aliens hesitated.

"Get to that wall and get there quick," said a quiet spoken master at arms, and the reluctant ones meekly obeyed.

Forty men were lined up against the wall when the naval agents began the search. Ten of them were unregistered aliens who had failed to comply with the enemy alien regulations promulgated by the President. Two of these were described yesterday as "defiant and cocky" in attitude. They were the first two placed under arrest. Eight other subjects of the Kaiser were arrested immediately afterward. The eleventh man taken into custody was an Austrian who was also defiant.

These eleven, who were the leaders of the celebration, were taken to the Federal Building and turned over to Charles F. De Woody, Chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation for the New York District. He began an examination of them yesterday morning and they were still being questioned at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. It was said that the Government agents are seeking to ascertain whether there are any active German spies among them and that it will probably be this afternoon before the investigation is concluded. In the meantime the suspects are locked up in the Tombs.

It was reported yesterday a number of other "gloaters," as the Secret Service men call the German and Austrian celebrators, are under arrest, but no information was given out concerning this phase of the case. It was stated that the Government is determined to put an end to these enemy celebrations and any German or German sympathizer detected shouting for the Kaiser or his allies will be promptly arrested.

The eleven men arrested Sunday morning gave their names as Johann Fakler, Philipp Loyh, Albrecht Helfer, Felix Kott, Otto Beere, Georg Deindorfer, Josef Zoltz, Friedrich Baarme, Ernst Wolters, and Joseph Baumenkempff.

Wilhelm C. Bautz, a German subject who has been living in New York for more than thirty years, was brought to the Federal Building yesterday as a result of his failure to register as an enemy alien. His excuse was that he did not consider it necessary to comply with the President's regulations. He was ordered locked up in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, for twenty days.

BATTLE FOUGHT IN QUEBEC STREETS

soldiers fell in this attack, slightly injured.

After patiently enduring the bombardment of the crowd, the soldiers received orders to fire. A number of shots were sent over the heads of the mob near Jacques Cartier Square.

As the evening advanced a dense fog settled down. The rioters, who had been broken up by the infantry and cavalry, gathered in doorways and fired at random down the streets. The soldiers answered the shots whenever they could find the source, but this method of dealing with the snipers failed to stop the shooting, so machine guns were fired in the direction of the revolver shots.

The soldiers bore their ordeal with great calmness and fortitude. Leroy Johnston of Toronto, shot in the jaw, asked for leave to go on duty again after having his wound dressed, but a doctor sent him to a hospital.

General in Charge.

Major Gen. Lessard arrived here today and took over control of the city by virtue of a special order in council under the War Measures act, which gives him the virtual position of Military Governor. One of his first acts after inspecting the dispositions made by General Landry, the officer previously in command, and receiving editors of local newspapers and out-of-town newspaper men, whom he requested not to exaggerate the circumstances, was to warn Armand Lavergne, the Nationalist leader, and to issue a proclamation forbidding all public assemblies.

Lavergne had called a meeting of the rioters for tonight, and had threatened to lead them himself if the authorities did not recall the military forces which have come here from Ontario and other localities and appoint other officers than the Dominion police to do the work of enforcing the Military Service act. He was promptly put face to face with the problem of calling off his meeting or disobeying the Military Governor's proclamation. He decided to make no address.

It seems to have been established clearly now that the trouble in Quebec has been organized by outsiders. It is an elaborate organization, not the result of local feeling. Who is behind it is not yet plain, but there are hints of the I. W. W. and of German money carefully camouflaged.

It is said that organizers are in town from Montreal, Three Rivers, and St. Hyacinthe. For the last week many new faces have been observed in St. Roch and St. Sauveur. Old Quebec residents watching the rioters of Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights saw men in the front ranks whom they had never seen before.

Thousands of Troops Arrive.

Martial law has not been proclaimed. This step will not be taken unless there are further dangerous developments. The military are now in sufficient strength to deal with any probable emergency, and the officer in charge, while keeping his arrangements secret for obvious reasons, announces that everything has been done to prevent a recurrence of the riots. The military forces in the city have been strongly reinforced since Friday. While it would be indiscreet to state their exact strength, the number runs into the thousands at present, and fresh troops are still arriving. It is no novelty to see big gray motor trucks loaded with men passing along the streets that lead from the railway stations, the soldiers armed to the teeth and ready for anything. Several units from Ontario have arrived as well as units from Montreal and other places in Quebec.

The feature of the military work so far is the fact that the brunt of it has fallen on French-Canadian draftees, many of them raw recruits, and they have stood the test well. Officers who have been active in suppressing the riots say that the French-Canadian troops have made a splendid record for themselves.

Missiles Strike Soldiers.

Patrols of French-Canadian draftees returned to barracks last night with faces cut by stones and pieces of ice and glass, but with their morale undiminished and big smiles on their faces. Some were bleeding copiously. Throughout it has been the policy to put the French-Canadians in the forefront on the principle that by opposing Ontario men to the French-speaking rioters more bad feeling would be aroused. The Ontario men have for the most part been kept in reserve.

The local damage done throughout the city since the rioting began is estimated at $150,000. This will have to be met by the city through a specially levied assessment.

The Toronto and Western troops sent here to supplement the local forces arrived yesterday afternoon. The Toronto unit consisted of a battalion under the command of Major E. Gooderham Mitchell of the General Staff at Toronto. With the infantry came a section of the Royal Dragoons, which have been stationed at Toronto. The Westerners comprise a corps of engineers voluntarily enlisted from all parts of the prairie provinces. They were moved here yesterday from St. Johns.

The battalion from Toronto was not long in getting into action. When the trouble started last night these men threw out a line, cutting off the upper town, where the disturbances have hitherto taken place, from the lower town, in which reside most of the forces behind the mob faction. The rioters were slowly rounded up and were isolated.

Mayor Lavigueur has sent a reply to Premier Borden, who wired him on Saturday asking for particulars of the alleged lack of tact and discrimination shown by Dominion police in the administration of the Military Service act. In this connection accusations against the police include a charge that in arresting men they have torn up exemption documents when produced. It is also alleged that the police were recruited from the ranks of improper elements.

Firm Policy of Ottawa.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Both Sir Robert Borden, the Premier, and C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, gave an absolute denial today to the statement made by Armand Lavergne that he had intervened in the Quebec situation at the instance of the Government. The Premier described Lavergne's statement as "an absolute fabrication," and added that the Government had no dealings with him in regard to the matter.

Mr. Doherty said that the Military Service act, without any irritation over or references to the happenings in Quebec, would be enforced firmly. The view is held here that such a course is more than ever rendered necessary by what is in effect a defiant challenge to law and authority.

When Parliament reassembles tomorrow the Quebec situation is bound to come up, and doubtless Sir Robert Borden will make a statement as to the measures which the Government has taken. The time may be considered opportune for a discussion over the general enforcement of the Military Service act. Since the session opened there have been murmurings and criticisms over the way things are going and the results which have been attained. The riots in Quebec serve to focus attention on this situation and to make more probable a discussion of the question in Parliament.

PARCELS FOR SOLDIERS HAVE MILITARY LIMIT

Must Now Contain Only Articles Asked for by Men and Approved by Officer.

Postmaster Patton issued a notice yesterday calling the attention of relatives and friends of soldiers and sailors on duty in Europe, to the following postal regulation, which became effective at noon yesterday. The notice reads:

"On and after April 1, 1918, parcels for members and individuals connected with the American expeditionary forces in Europe shall not be accepted for mailing or dispatched unless they contain such articles only as are being sent at the written request of the addressee, approved by his regimental or higher commander or an executive officer of the organization with which he is connected. Postmasters must obtain the assurance of the sender in each case that all the articles contained in the parcel are sent at the addressee's approved written request, and that such request is inclosed in the parcel, by requiring the sender to place on the wrapper of the parcel under his name and address the following indorsement: 'This parcel contains only articles sent at approved request of addressee, which is inclosed.'

"Parcels containing articles not in accordance with such approved written request shall not be accepted for mailing."

WILSON TO SPEAK FOR LOAN

Will Open Drive at Baltimore Saturday and Review 18,000 Troops.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—President Wilson today accepted an invitation to open the Liberty Loan campaign in Baltimore Saturday, the first anniversary of America's entrance into the war. While in Baltimore the President will review 18,000 troops from the national army cantonment at Camp Meade.

The occasion of the address is the Liberty Loan "cantonment" being held at Baltimore to stimulate interest in the loan drive. Secretary Daniels will speak at the "cantonment" tomorrow night. During the next few weeks the speaking list will include other Cabinet officers and diplomatic representatives of the allied Governments.

Menorah Members to Dine Jurists.

A dinner at the Biltmore on Sunday evening to Justice Irving Lehman of the Supreme Court of New York and Judge Julian W. Mack of the United States District Court is planned by officers and members of the Intercollegiate Menorah Association in recognition of the prominent part played by the jurists in advancing the Menorah movement throughout the country until the organization now numbers sixty-two undergraduate societies in the leading universities of the country and eight graduate societies in principal cities. The Dinner Committee consists of George S. Hellman, Sam A. Lewisohn, Joseph M. Proskauer, James N. Rosenberg, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Max D. Steuer, Sol M. Stroock, and Louis Wiley.

Jersey Recruits in Camp.

CAMP DIX, N. J., April 1.—The first of the 10,000 New Jersey recruits due at Camp Dix this week began to arrive today on special trains. Most of the men came from South Jersey, Passaic, and Bergen County. No mishaps were reported as to the railroad trips to camp.

ERROR FOUND IN LOAN BILL.

Senate to Correct Exemption of State Banks from Taxation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The bill authorizing the third Liberty Loan was rushed through the House so quickly last week that Section 5 was not perfected. In its present shape, according to the Secretary of the Treasury, State banks are entirely exempted from State taxes, and the bill must be recalled from the Senate or amended in that body to correct the language so as to exempt from State taxation only the Liberty bonds held by State banks. Representative Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has asked the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee to make the necessary correction.

The section which exempts State banks from State taxation, according to Treasury officials, reads:

"In determining the value of shares of any national bank, State bank, trust company, or other banking institution by any State, or any of the possessions of the United States, or any local taxing authority, the par amount of any bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States owned by such bank, trust company or banking institution shall be deducted from its assets."

It is declared that all Government bonds owned by State banks would be exempt from State taxation under this section. The section will be amended to exempt only those bonds purchased during the war.

The idea of the Secretary of the Treasury is to encourage State banks to buy Liberty bonds and make it certain that such bonds, purchased in the war period, shall be free from State taxation. The section will be amended to make it certain that only these bonds are exempted from State taxation.

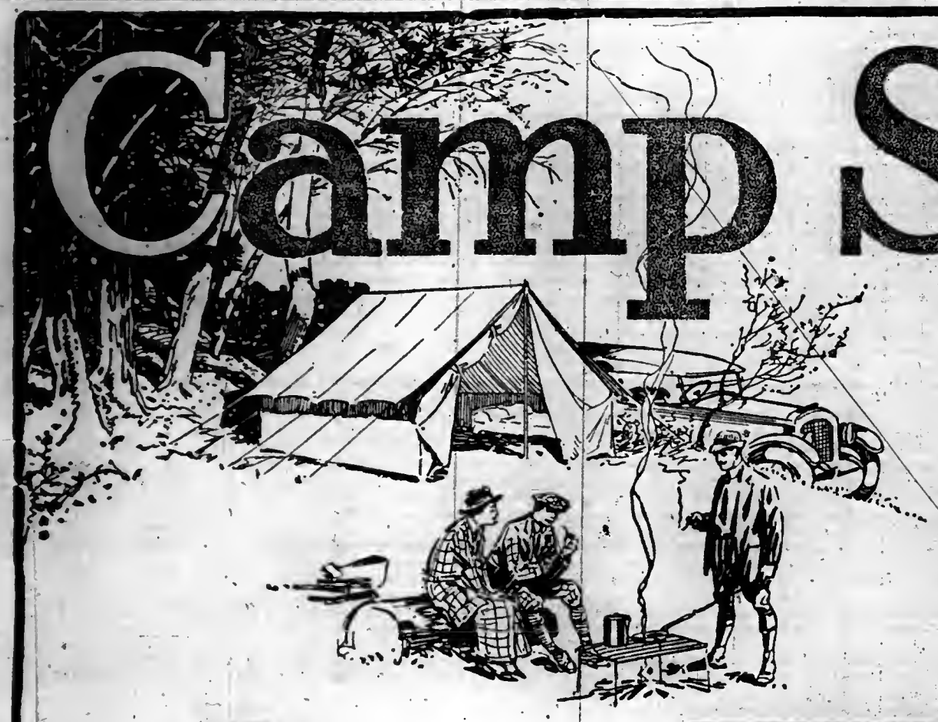
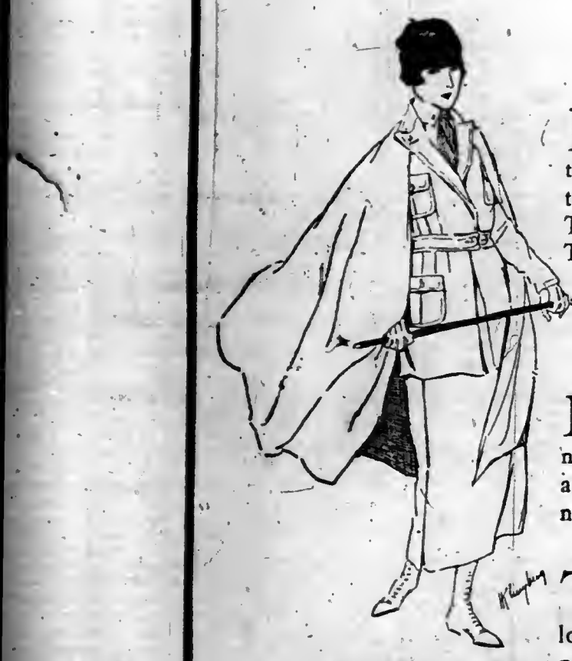
Camp Sunshine



It Is Anywhere Out of Doors—Somewhere Near You—the Cantonment of the Great American Army of Citizens Courageous. Its Rejuvenating Breezes and Its Greenswards Invite Every Man and Woman to Keep Brain Clear and Body Active. The Sturdy Town-and-Country Suit Is the Outfit of the Hour. Tweeds and Homespuns Are the Inspiriting Comrades of Khaki

"The Golfer" is a suit of Adara tweeds, in blue, brown and green mixtures, at $65. The split straw hat to blend with it is $12.



This "Cape Suit" is of many-sided usefulness. In French grey, tan and aviation green gabardines, at $95. Worn with or without cape.

EVEN on the Avenue, with the Spring sunshine flooding the throngs, the Sam Browne belt and the silk hat have little in common. Tweeds and khaki go arm in arm. The church chimes in town and the carrolling birds in the country are singing the song of the comradeship of courage.

MEN and women realize more than ever that the world needs their optimism—their mental and physical level-best. And they need the sunshine and cheer.

THERE is a great, national uplift which tells us that we must look, and act, and feel as our partners at the front would have us look, and act, and feel. The photograph which we send across the seas must be full of encouragement, reflecting the rough-and-ready smartness and the smile which the soldier treasures.

IT makes no difference where your "Camp Sunshine" may be. It may be on the banks of a trout stream. It may be on the golf course. It may be in an aeroplane. It may be on the bridle path. It may be in the driver's seat of a motor car. It may be on the tennis court. Wherever it is and whatever its requirements—all the things needed are to be found in this commissariat for life's sunshiniest hours.

THIS includes the clothes, for both men and women, most closely linked in sentiment with the soldier's khaki—the outgrowth of daily contact and demand from both sides of that admirable comradeship—the military officer and the sportsman.

"The Avoncourt" is a cheery war-time suit of imported Scotch tweeds, at $45, and a hat can be made to match at $8.

ABERCROMBIE & FITCH long have been headquarters for tweeds, in the new world—for the town-and-country suit, the travel suit and the sport suit. Women, as well as men, who are looking for the cheery, all-purpose suit of tweeds, which one may wear on the train, on a visit to the camp, in the country, and which will be equally smart and appropriate for the hotel and town wear, will find this Spring that our assortments have grown to unprecedented proportions.

TO wear outdoor clothes, commonly called "sport clothes," this Spring and Summer, does not mean simply to don parti-colored stripes and fancy weaves. It means thoroughbred outdoor apparel, actually combining the service and smartness demanded by genuine sport. Such clothes have been the natural development of the greatest specialists in sporting clothes.

BY a very natural and fortunate coincidence, this house is also recognized as the world's leading establishment for the personal equipment of military men. We first heard the War's call from officers here who scented in advance our participation in the struggle. Abercrombie & Fitch equipment began going to Canada, England, France, Russia, Italy and Greece. And for many months now we have worked diligently with American military men, to assist to our utmost in providing American officers with their personal needs.

ALONG with this has come an equally diligent work with the women's units constantly going abroad in war activities—responding to the appeal for clothes which answer the real call of war. Here were the fabrics and here the designers—thanks to the leading sportswomen of the world, whom we have been supplying with their equipment for many seasons.

AMONG the women's suits, ready to wear, are town-and-country models of English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh imported tweeds and men's-wear fabrics—many in the desirable brown colorings and shades which answer all purposes. There are serviceable all-purpose suits of white—durable and appropriate for country club or town.

TWEED topcoats for motoring; reversible leather coats, with the reverse side of checked and plaid tweeds; gabardines—new models with a military flavor—and the new and exclusive "Roundabout" coat of the softest, most serviceable, warmth-without-weight camel's hair and Shetland fleeces—the truest all-purpose Summer topcoats of all.

SLEEVELESS jackets for the golf player and sleeveless-jacket suits, which are to come in for a big share of town wear with women who will make one costume do many things well; sweaters in all their new and varied forms; special hats and boots for every costume; hundreds of those smaller requisites of the outdoor wardrobe which ordinarily you would be at your wit's end to find.

"The Knockabout" is a topcoat of genuine Donegal tweeds—grey, brown and green mixtures, at $30, and the ribbon trimmed hemp hat is $10.

RIDING Clothes—the most complete department in the country, for habits and all the accessories to make the woman of the saddle thoroughly comfortable. Coat-and-breeches suits or the side-saddle habit, on positively correct lines; riding shirts, waistcoats, stocks, collars, gloves, hats, boots, belts, crops, cuff-links, ties and stock-pins.

IT is to the Abercrombie & Fitch custom department's work in developing models that the ready to wear clothes owe their individuality and charm, their thoroughbred character and exclusiveness. Materials are presented for made-to-measure suits and coats which are not available in any other establishment in the country. From riding habit or woods outfit to the smartest all-purpose, country-town-and-travel suit imaginable, this woman's custom department stands in a class by itself.

THE shoe department, from tennis Oxford to trench boot, has no equal, either in this country or Europe.

WRITE for "The War Note," our booklet, illustrating, describing and giving prices of these Spring and Summer war-time clothes for women.

CITY'S INCOME TAX NEAR $800,000,000

Internal Revenue Officials Base Estimate at Close of Last Day of Drive.

WEALTHY MEN FILE BLANKS

J. D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, H. P. Whitney, and G. J. Gould Among Those Waiting Till the End.

New York City will "go over the top" with income and excess profits tax collections in the neighborhood of $800,000,000, according to the confident prediction made late last night by Internal Revenue officials at the close of the final day for the filing of returns. The flood of returns nearly overwhelmed the collectors and their staff. Big and little payments go to make up the huge total which New York will turn into the Federal Treasury between now and June 15, the limit set for settling with the Government. This was illustrated yesterday when blanks filled with William H. Edwards, Collector of the Second or Wall Street District, called for payments, ranging from 1 cent to an amount expressed in eight figures.

The first-named return was filed by a seaman, who was single. He was allowed an exemption of $1,000 on a stated salary of $1,[illegible].91, while the return carrying the eight figures was reported to have been filed by John D. Rockefeller. Representatives from J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker, Harry Payne Whitney, George J. Gould, Bernard M. Baruch, and other prominent Wall Street men also filed returns yesterday in the Second District.

Collector Elsner received a return covering the taxes due the Government from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which, due to the extensive industrial features of its business, will pay the largest single tax levied against any similar concern in the country. As on other days of the drive, Mr. Elsner received individual income tax returns from residents of as much as $1,-[illegible].

In this connection it was pointed out yesterday that some of the largest individual payers in the Third District, among them Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt and Ensign Vincent Astor, are in the military or naval service of the United States. As an indication of the way some of these men view their obligations to the Government, attention was called yesterday to the fact that many of these, although serving in France, caused their agents to file income tax returns without extensions, while others not only filed returns but paid their taxes as well.

It was learned, for example, that Mr. Astor, although attached to the naval service and understood to be serving in European waters, yesterday filed, through his agents here, his complete returns for the calendar year 1917. Neither Collector Edwards nor Collector Elsner threw any light on the payments called for under the returns made by the big taxpayers of the country.

"The majority of the great financiers in my district," Collector Edwards said, "are waiving their right to deduct the personal exemption of $2,000 and $4,000, and also the charitable contributions which they made during the calendar year 1917, which they are allowed to deduct to an amount not to exceed 15 per cent. of their taxable net income. In several cases which have come to my attention the taxpayer's net income was considerably over $2,000,000 during the year. This means that he is paying a tax of 63 per cent. the total amount of his huge contributions plus the amount of his personal exemptions, which he is fully entitled to deduct under the law. This is indeed a patriotic contribution."

Collector Mark Eisner of the Third District, after watching the returns come in near midnight, was of the belief that the uptown district would make a new record for income and excess profits collections. While no official estimate could be given out, it was reported that the tax collections in the Third District probably would reach $[illegible],000,000, against $30,000,000 last year.

Over in Brooklyn Collector Henry F. Keith of the First District was of the belief that collections there would reach $[illegible],000,000, but until detailed estimates have been forwarded to Commissioner Roper at the end of the week nothing will be given out officially.

Collector Edwards said shortly before midnight that income and excess profits tax collections in the Wall Street district would be about $800,000,000, this, with the collections expected from the other New York districts, bringing this city's grand total to more than $800,-000,000.

CORPORATION WAR TAX MAY BE 25% OF INCOME

Examination of Statements of Representative Concerns Indicates High Average.

The United States Government's claim through war taxes upon the profits of corporations in 1917 grows rapidly into the hundreds of millions of dollars as the annual reports of the companies appear and are examined. A survey of the statements of twenty-five representative concerns shows that, if the average is maintained throughout the industrial corporations of the country, they will surrender to the Federal Treasury nearly one-fourth of their net profits in Federal war income and excess profits impost.

From the twenty-five concerns listed in the subjoined table the war taxes will take in excess of $331,000,000, or an average of $13,268,300 for each company:

*Not limited strictly to Federal taxes.
†For year ended June 30, 1917.

The Steel Corporation stands out most prominently with more than 46 per cent. of the net income set aside for transfer to the Federal Treasury.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—This being the last day for filing income tax, excess profits tax and corporation tax returns, it has been, according to all official reports, the busiest day of the fiscal year in the offices of the various Collectors of Internal Revenue throughout the country and possibly the quietest in the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington.

The estimate of collections from income tax stands at $750,000,000. There is a feeling based on various results in collections that this grand total will be increased by several millions. Excess profits taxes are estimated to yield $1,200,000,000.

It is believed by revenue experts that there are many surprises in store for students of taxation, and that there will be a very heavy excess of collections over estimates. The estimate of the grand total of collections from income, corporation, and excess profits taxes is $3,500,000,000. Sanguine estimators take the view that collections will go to $4,000,000,000.

LABOR TROUBLE MAY HALT NEW SUBWAYS

Contractors Meet with Service Board to Discuss a Critical Situation.

Fearing that a general strike on the new subways would delay for an indefinite period the progress of the work, a delegation of contractors, representing the General Contractors' Association, called on Chairman Straus of the Public Service Commission yesterday and conferred with him until late in the afternoon. The conference will be continued today.

It is generally admitted that the situation is very serious, and that unless the demands made by the cheaper classes of labor now employed on the work are settled, all of the other classes of workmen will quit. If all these men leave, the contractors do not believe they will ever return. The Government is offering high rates of pay for workmen in every grade and class, and there is work enough at high wages to be had in the various industries. Therefore the contractors have asked Mr. Straus to intercede with the laborers and induce them to keep on working.

Efforts are being made by the Public Service Commission to have the Legislature enact a law permitting the commission and the Board of Estimate to make an agreement with the contractors to finish the job at the precise cost, and for the contractors to forego profits on any of the contracts made before the United States entered the war. Up to the present time the Board of Estimate has not displayed any indication of a willingness to co-operate in procuring such legislation.

A week ago there were 7,000 men working on the new subways, 5,000 less than could be used in the work. Yesterday this number had dwindled to 1,600, 900 men who had been at work up to closing time on Saturday having failed to report for work. The men who failed to return have demanded the following increases in pay.

Timbermen, now receiving 37½ cents an hour, want 50 cents; timbermen's helpers, 25c. to 43½; wood concrete form makers, 37½ to 50¾; concrete laborers, 30 to 43¾; laborers, 30 to 40½; drill runners, 50 to 56¾; tool sharpeners, 50 to 56¼; tool sharpeners where pneumatic tools are used, 50¼ to 62½.

CITY MAY LOSE $700,000 TAX

Government Taking Over Bush Terminal Is Loss to New York.

United States Government control of the Bush Terminal properties in Brooklyn may result in a loss of nearly $700,-000 a year in taxes to the city, according to Jacob A. Cantor, President of the Board of Taxes and Assessments, who spoke last night at the meeting of the West End Association, in the Hotel Ansonia.

"The exemption of Government-owned real estate from taxation has raised the question of the taxability of the Bush Terminal," said Mr. Cantor, "but, regardless of the arrangement made between the Federal authorities and the Bush Terminal officials, the city should not lose so large a tax return from that source."

Mr. Cantor then outlined the taxation difficulties confronting his department, and declared that practically all efforts at this time were being directed toward the levying of a workable tax on personality. He declared that the six personal property tax bills introduced in the State Legislature sought to establish three things—a lower rate, the reduction in the number of exemptions, and a compulsory return.

"The adoption of this legislative program in its entirety would reduce the tax on real estate to the 1.50 rate, as compared with the present rate of 2.36," he declared.

INTERNED ALIEN ESCAPES.

Hoboken German Gets Year in Jail for Seditious Remarks.

United States Marshal Albert Bollschweiler of New Jersey has sent out a general alarm for the arrest of Johann Roudin, an enemy alien, who escaped from the Mercer County, N. J., prison last week. Roudin, who is described as a dangerous enemy alien, is a native of Alsace, 28 years old, six feet one and three-quarters inches in height, and before his arrest lived at 315 East Eighty-first Street, this city.

Friedrich Pawlik of Hoboken was sentenced to one year in Hudson County Penitentiary yesterday for uttering seditious remarks against the President and the Government of the United States. Pawlik is a second paper citizen of German birth.

Stanley Rapiz, 50 years old, of 423 Scott Street, Brooklyn, was also sentenced to the Hudson County Prison for one year for insulting the crew of an American transport.

Five Hindus and one American girl, Salindra Nath Ghose, Pulin B. Bose, Taraknath Das, Jadu Gopal Mokejee, Bhai Bhagwan, and Miss Agnes Smedley of San Francisco, were indicted in New York yesterday for attempting to stir up rebellion against British rule in India and for representing themselves as diplomats.

Dr. Philip Becker of 145 West Eighteenth Street and Harry Walters, an ex-millionaire of Bath Beach, were indicted yesterday for prescribing for and furnishing to William Weinert and Clarence T. King drugs intended to enable them to evade the draft law.

BIG VOTE EXPECTED IN WISCONSIN TODAY

Campaign Closes with Rousing Rallies and Each Candidate Claiming Victory.

BETS 2 TO 1 ON LENROOT

Head of Loyalty Legion Comes Out for Davies—Bainbridge Colby's Loyalty Plea.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 1.—A big vote is predicted at the special election tomorrow, when, after a bitter three-cornered contest, which will long live in the political annals of the Badger State, the seat in the United States Senate which became vacant through the death of Paul O. Husting will be filled.

It is evident as the campaign is closing that the voters of Wisconsin will realize as they go to the polls that the eyes of the nation are upon them. Through the appearance as one of the principals in the fight of Victor L. Berger, the Socialist leader who has been indicted for disloyalty and has made his campaign on a platform bristling with appeals to the pacifist and disloyal element, and through the indorsement of Joseph E. Davies, the Democratic candidate, by President Wilson, the fight has taken on a national aspect.

Political wiseacres here in some instances place the total vote at 400,000, only 50,000 less than the aggregate in the last Presidential election, when a high record was established. A week of splendid weather has dried up the country roads and created conditions which should make for a big vote in the rural sections. In some thirty cities, outside of Milwaukee, wet and dry elections should contribute to the interest and help bring voters to the polls.

Eleventh-hour predictions from the Republican campaign managers favor the election of Congressman Irvine L. Lenroot, the Republican candidate, by from 30,000 to 40,000 plurality. In the Democratic forecasts the plurality of Mr. Davies is placed at "30,000 upward." The Democratic campaign managers maintain that their candidate will carry Milwaukee by 23,000, and that he will run even with Lenroot or do better out in the State.

Berger tonight declared that he would receive 180,000 votes, which would be ample to insure his election. Both Democratic and Republican campaign managers, however, assert that the danger of a Berger victory has been averted.

While the betting odds still favor Lenroot at 2 to 1, and while the Republicans, in predicting this election, seem to speak with more assurance than do the Democrats in predicting a Davies victory, the managers of both parties admit that the campaign has been too short and the conditions to unusual to permit of a canvass that would accurately reflect the sentiment throughout the State. Many uncertain elements enter into their calculations, and uneasiness will prevail in both camps until the outcome has been settled by the returns.

This city was the principal battleground tonight, the closing night of the contest. Congressman Lenroot was the only one of the three principals absent from the city. He wound up his campaign at Baraboo. Mr. Davies addressed a final Democratic rally at the Orpheum Theatre in this city, at which he was cheered by a large audience as he pleaded with the voters to stand behind the President. Berger made his closing appeal at a series of largely attended meetings.

On the Republican side the principal speaker at the meetings tonight was ex-Controller William Prendergast of New York, who in 1912 threw in his political fortunes with Colonel Roosevelt, later returning to the Republican Party. On the Democratic side Bainbridge Colby, erstwhile Progressive and now a devoted follower of President Wilson, made an appeal for Davies. He spoke with Davies at the Orpheum and made his appeal on patriotic grounds.

"It is a matter of vital concern to the nation that it present a united front to the enemy," said Mr. Colby. "Unfortunately, you have in Mr. Berger a candidate for Senator who would furl the flag and make a coward's peace. Incredible as it seems, he has a following that is numerous, organized and callous to the shame that they would put upon the nation. It is therefore the duty of the great mass of patriotic Americans which constitutes your citizenship to bury the treasonable proposals of Berger under an avalanche of loyal votes.

"It is plainly our duty, in my opinion, to seize every opportunity to give emphatic and repeated expression to the fact that the people are solidly behind their President. I sincerely hope and I confidently expect that a good deal of this mischievous talk about disloyalty in certain sections of the people of Wisconsin will be finally silenced by the vote to-morrow. Nothing could happen that would so firmly establish our citizens of German extraction in the confidence and regard of their fellow-citizens throughout the country as a strong vote for Mr. Davies to-morrow."

Its Artistic Helpfulness

THERE'S a fine type of room to be found in a growing number of American homes that defies analysis while it challenges your admiration.

An old table and chair, or an inlaid cassone and painted screen, may compose the main lines of its picture in memory.

Yet you know there was something more—and that every detail of porcelain, wrought metal, tapestry and painted or carven wood had a personal interest all its own. It was the consummate art that harmonized these unrelated pieces that made this room what it was and is.

The abiding charm, the inviting ease, the hint of accustomed well-being that characterize these unforgetable rooms find sympathetic expression in the eleven galleries of Hampton Shops.

"Judging the landslide by a pebble"

When America Woke

JUST a year has passed—a year since the Kaiser laughed at our "contemptible little army" then scarcely 160,000 strong—and 3,000 miles away.

But that was a year ago!

What have we accomplished? How has America taken to War?

Mark Sullivan answers your questions. His resumé in this week's Collier's, tells you how an army of 160,000 became a million and a half. A navy four times its former size. Airplane production increased probably 10,000%.

Sullivan gives you the figures that prove America will be the deciding factor in this world war—will produce the greatest fighting machine the world has ever known.

For America has turned to war with greater energy than she ever devoted to commerce. The American Spirit has entered this war—to win.

ZIONISTS CELEBRATE NEW JEWISH FUTURE

2,500 in Carnegie Hall Pledge Loyalty to America and the Allies.

CHEER PALESTINE SOLDIERS

Dr. Wise Says Jewish Freedom Is Secure Because It Is Written in the English Language.

In a tremendous demonstration in Carnegie Hall last night the Zionists of New York attested their patriotism to America, their loyalty to the cause of the Allies, and their joy over the prospect of a land for the Jews in Palestine. The meeting was arranged by the Zionist Council of this city and it was preceded by a parade in which 2,500 Zionists marched.

As the marchers filed into Carnegie Hall the banners they carried were ranged along the wall and their flags hung out from platform and galleries. The meeting was full of enthusiasm from the start, and there were three periods when it reached the greatest pitch. One of these was when the blue and white flag of the House of David, the flag of the new Jewish home land, was raised, and again when Louis Lipsky, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Federation of American Zionists, mentioned the name of President Wilson. Then again when the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise declared that the charter of Jewish freedom was secure and sacred because it was written in the English language by the English people.

Over the stage there was a great American banner and stacked to one side of the stage were the flags of the Allies. Hung from one side of the stage was the Jewish flag. This is a white field upon which are two broad blue stripes. In the centre is the six-pointed star of the House of David. When this flag was put up the entire audience, from boxes to topmost gallery, arose and cheered. Among those on the platform were young men in the khaki of the Jewish Legion. There were about 250 of them and they were honored by the speakers.

Morris Rothenberg, Chairman of the meeting and President of the Zionist Council of New York, said in opening the meeting that the arrival of the Zionist Commission in Palestine to lay the foundation of the new Jewish national freedom was worthy of celebration. Nathan Straus spoke briefly, but he called upon Dr. Wise to deliver to the Zionists the message of patriotism and devotion to the cause of America and her allies.

The storm of applause and the cheering broke out again when Dr. Wise declared that Germany would never win the war. It came again when, lifting his hands above his head, he said: "England, France, and America have said to Germany, 'Thus far shall thou go, and no further.'"

"If Germany could win the war," he said, "as she cannot, she would give Palestine back again to those hands so which our Holy Land under God shall never be restored—to the Turks. And, gentlemen, there was a time when some of you would have felt differently, but I speak for myself tonight, not for you. I speak not as Chairman of the Provisional Zionist Committee. I speak as a Jew; I speak as an American. I say to you, the charter of Jewish freedom is secure, is sacred, because it is written in the English language by the English people, and if men say to you: 'How do you know but if Germany could win the war Germany might give Palestine to the Jews?' I answer, 'We want never to be the receivers of stolen property, we want never, never; never will we accept any gift from foul and murderous hands. We are going into Palestine with heart directly facing the world as self-revering free men. We will go to Palestine as one of the victorious Allies, or else shall stay out until another and better day dawns.'"

Mr. Straus was applauded when he said: "We are going to Palestine this year and we will stay there." In referring to the arrival of the Jewish Administrative Commission in Palestine, Mr. Lipsky said:

"While jubilant over the change in our national status, the Zionist organization desires to express its feelings with regard to the Governments and peoples that have made this change possible. The magnanimity of the British Government in making its historic declaration on Nov. 2, 1917, will never be forgotten by the Jewish people. Relations have been established that will forever link our destiny with the interests of the great empire. In the days to come Nov. 2 will be a day of Jewish rejoicing, and our traditions will be enriched by the memory of the act of reparation achieved by a great Government in the midst of a gigantic struggle, in which its own future had to be defended by its heroic sons. As a token of that relationship the sons of Israel, under their own banner, will soon stand shoulder to shoulder on the Palestinian frontier with the gallant and heroic English nation. The blood there shed will be an everlasting covenant between the two peoples, which nothing shall ever erase."

LAMPOONS GERARD BOOK.

Berlin Paper Ridicules His Sources of Information.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 1.—Commenting on ex-Ambassador Gerard's second book, "Face to Face with the Kaiser," extracts from which, published in The London Times, have now reached Germany, the Berlin Zeitung am Mittag ridicules the sources from which the former Ambassador sought to obtain State secrets and information for the guidance of the United States Government. The paper says that Gerard actually quotes "one of the servants in the house" for information about the situation on the east front, while "our washerwoman" is his authority on affairs at the west front.

Seeking to characterize the Gerard book, the writer in the Zeitung am Mittag publishes samples from an imaginary fragment of a diary which Gerard is made to pretend he left behind. Here are a few dated September to November, 1915:

"At last they have succeeded in caging the lion of Flanders. He is said to roar terrifically. Our washerwoman says that to punish him for it he gets only cucumber salad to eat. They will probably exhibit him at the Zoo, which would make Berliners even more arrogant.

"The German police examination of travelers at the frontier is getting very severe. They are now pumping every traveler's stomach, even those of children. Our washerwoman says that this is being done wholesale by a Krupp machine that can pump a thousand stomachs at the same time.

"I don't believe all this atrocity dope, but the story of the execution of a 17-year-old girl who attacked the German Army is true. Our washerwoman happens to know the name. My informant is a very distinguished officer, the Captain of Köpenick.

"Our washerwoman does not attach any importance to the riots on the Rumanian frontier. They are said to be due merely to a strike of laborers in the caviar mines."

The Zeitung am Mittag closes its article as follows:

"France had her Little Corporal, Prussia the old Fritz, America has 'our washerwoman.'"

COAL AT CUT RATE IS NOW ON SALE

Consumers Expected by Fuel Administration to Lay in Supply for Winter.

The season of reduced prices for coal, when the Fuel Administration expects many consumers of anthracite will lay in a supply for the Winter, opened yesterday. Orders began to come in to the coal dealers, but were held up awaiting the official schedule of prices, which County Administrator Reeve Schley will issue in a few days. The National Fuel Administration has decreed that, beginning April 1, coal shall be 30 cents a ton cheaper until cold weather arrives. Arthur Rice, Commissioner of the Coal Merchants' Association, said most of the dealers have received a large number of orders.

At the office of the County Administrator, 65 Broadway, the office staff were busy answering inquiries. Persons who wanted advice on laying in coal for next Winter were told in every case that the procedure for buying coal had been fixed, and the whole transaction, including the price, was covered by regulations of the National Administration. These regulations are aimed to prevent hoarding just as much as to prevent overcharging. It is necessary for the consumer to fill out a numbered order blank which will be a check against duplication.

This order, up to six tons, will be filled as soon as possible. When the order is above that amount the dealer will fill it up to one-third of the amount ordered. The remainder will be filled as soon as it is reached in the ordinary course of business. Every dealer must report to the Administration all sales of coal over fifty tons to a single purchaser. Unless special permission is obtained the dealers are forbidden to deliver coal except in the ordinary storage bins of the consumer.

According to Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the State Fuel Conservation Committee, the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted an increase to the railroads of 15 cents a ton for hauling coal from the mines to points throughout the country. This pertains, he said, to both steam and domestic sizes.

NO PROHIBITION ACTION IN ALBANY THIS YEAR

Failure to Convert Wets Makes it a Dead Issue—Legislators Plan to Adjourn April 13.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Definite announcement of the intention to bring the 1918 Legislature to a close on Saturday, April 13, was made tonight by Spenker Sweet of the Assembly. This means that the prohibition question is dead this year, since, over the week-end, efforts to defeat Senators Wicks of Oneida, Newton of Livingston and Argetsinger of Monroe from the ranks failed.

The Assembly tonight passed the Caulfield bill amending the general election law. It advances primary day two weeks, and if it becomes a law would designate Sept. 3 as primary day this year. It also provides for the canvassing of soldiers votes on general election day. These votes are now canvassed on the sixth Tuesday following election.

The lower house also passed Senator Slater's bill requiring the State Board of Regents to prescribe patriotic courses of instructions in all the schools of the State.

Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson's bill, designed to remove German influence in the control of the Herkimer Home, passed the Senate tonight in amended form and now it goes back to the Assembly. The measure increases the Board of Trustees in charge of the home so that control is taken out of the hands of the German-American alliance members.

ADMITS PLANE WAS BURNED.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 1.—The first Bristol airplane made at the plant of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation was burned at the aviation field on Thursday, according to a statement given out today by officials of the company and the United States Signal Corps. The fire was accidental and in no circumstances could he attributed to the work of spies, it was said.

The airplane was not entirely destroyed, but in view of the fact that production was sufficiently advanced to have a new one in the field within a few days, it was decided to dismantle the damaged machine.

CALLS PACKERS' GAIN SMALL

Less Than Half Cent a Pound of Meat, Armour Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—President Wilson's action looking toward stabilization of meat prices through the naming of a survey commission of five members strikes at the heart of all trouble centred in the packing industry, according to J. Ogden Armour. In a statement issued today Mr. Armour says:

"Mr. Hoover's proposal to the President made plain the most important and one of the least considered facts in relation to the whole meat situation. It brings forth the fact that producers cannot be paid more for their meat animals if the consumers are going to pay less for meat.

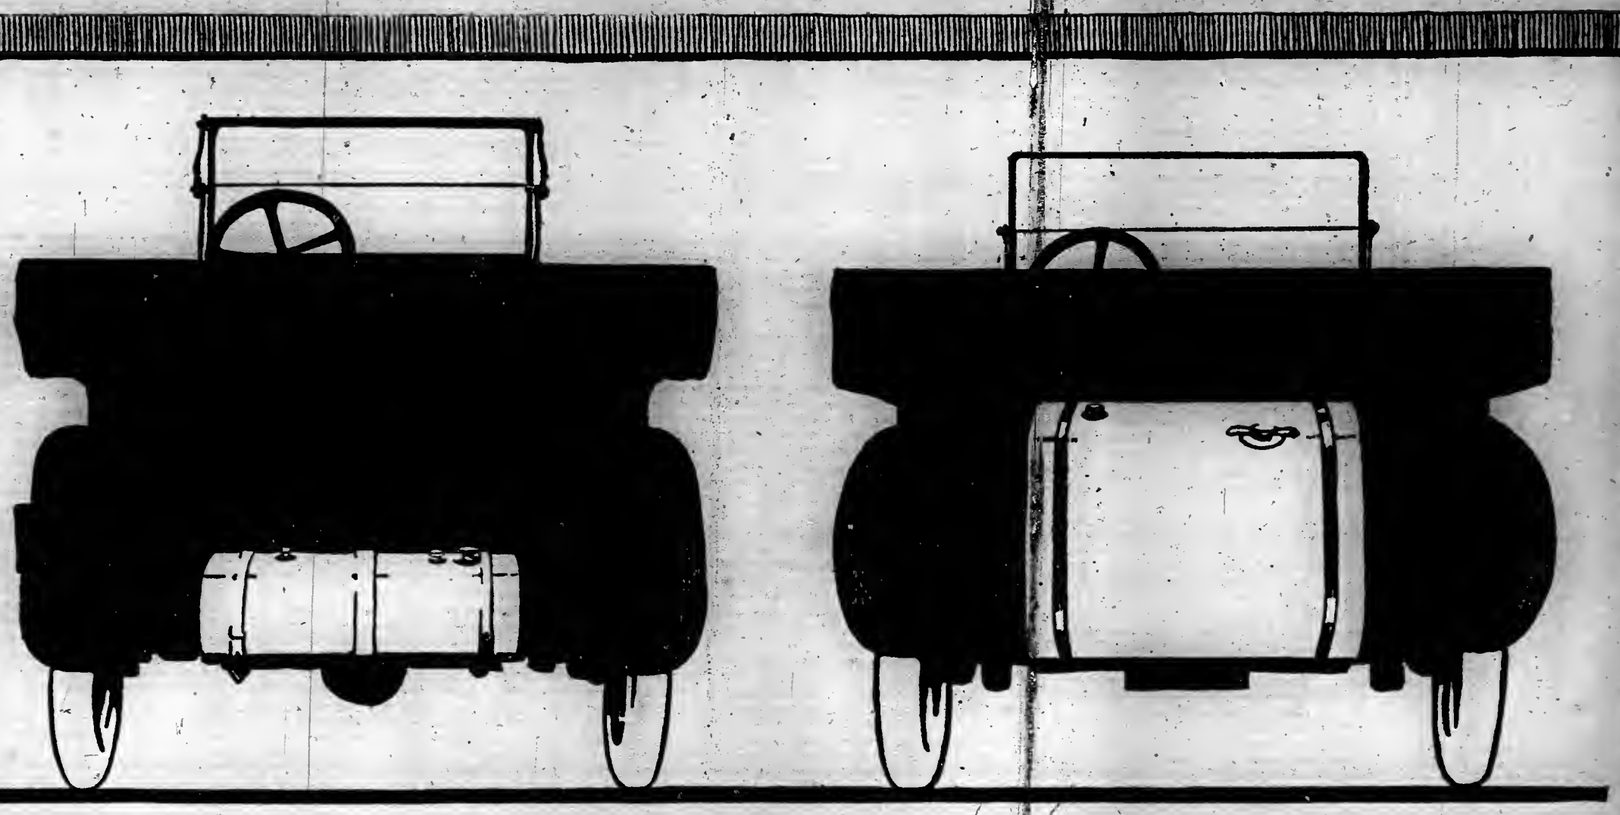
"The profit of the packers averages less than one-half cent a pound, and so is a negligible factor in the determination of prices. The industry's operating costs, too, compare favorably with those of any other industry, and if both profit and operating costs were eliminated from the meat bill of the average consumer his saving in a whole year would not buy a $5 Thrift certificate.

"There is need for an understanding on the part of the public of what the packers do and what their profits really amount to when brought down to a basis of pounds of meat and dollars of sales and service rendered.

"For over fifty years, due to the inherent character of our business, we have been compelled to stand between producer and consumer, and this long experience has taught us to expect to be the target of both. We have sincerely endeavored to conduct our business to the best interests of all concerned, and if able counsel can improve upon our methods or results it will be most welcome and have our heartiest co-operation. Our aim is the greatest good to the greatest number and the winning of the war, and to that end we shall bend every effort and direct every energy."

Negro Troops at Camp Devens.

AYER, Mass., April 1.—Several hundred negro troops, the first of a detachment of 2,000 to arrive at Camp Devens, were assigned today to the depot brigade and will be organized into a separate battalion under command of white officers. The soldiers came here last night from Florida.



How Big Should the Gasoline Tank Be?

With one filling—270 miles to go—how big should the Gasoline Tank of a car be?

Your answer to the above question would undoubtedly be: "it depends on how much gasoline a car needs."

Exactly.

The Franklin Car (on the left) scientifically free from unnecessary weight, runs 270 miles on its gasoline tank capacity of 13½ gallons, at the rate of 20 miles to the gallon.

The average heavy car (on the right) to run the same distance would require a cumbersome gasoline tank of 27 gallons, at the rate of ten miles to the gallon.

Why?

Simply because of the mechanical law—as old as the ages—that weight requires power in proportion to move it. And the more power needed, the more gasoline consumed. Wherever there is excessive weight, there is friction, wear and drag—and it always shows up in the gasoline tank.

The heavy car is bound to burn up fuel dragging around its own excessive weight. The Scientific Light Weight Franklin, with its balanced, flexible construction, uses fuel to deliver power to the rear wheels in driving force.

Why Franklin Sales Increased Last Year 135%

These are acid-test times for a product of any kind. A motor car, merely to justify its existence, must prove that it is not wasteful or extravagant.

But when a car not only does this, but increases it sales—135% last year against the 12% increase of all other fine cars—it conclusively proves one thing: that a great many thoughtful people have selected that car as meeting the needs of today.

You've heard people all around you talking Franklin and High Gasoline Mileage; your common sense tells you that it can't be an accident—there must be facts back of it.

Drop in the Franklin Sales Room and get the facts. The Franklin story is short and simple, and there isn't an "if" or "but" in it. The remarkable Franklin Sales increase is just the culminating triumph of a car that has been piling up Economy Records for sixteen years.

The FRANKLIN CAR of TODAY

—has many Features of vital interest to every motorist, no matter what car he drives

Low Grade Gasoline!
The Franklin owner has the new Electric Primer, which makes low grade gasoline act like the high-test grade of years ago.

Good-bye Grease Cups!
Ever try to take hardened grease from an oil hole with a nail or wire? Not on today's Franklin! New Oil Reservoir and Wick System now in use obviates this trouble.

Strained Air.
Franklin Air Intake keeps road dust, grit, etc., out of internals of engine. Prevents wear in cylinders, pistons, valves, etc. Repair bills kept down by this Franklin device.

Tire Mileage!
33x4½ inch cord tires on all Franklin types assures astonishing mileage. Larger tires mean even greater tire reliability which on Franklin Cars always was remarkable.

"Low" Battery?
In cold weather, the Franklin owner simply cuts in the buzzer on his Master Vibrator, boosts the voltage and gets a fat, hot spark that fires the mixture.

Quick Warming-up.
Intake Yoke Heater uses exhaust gases to warm the mixture—original with the Franklin. Perfected in today's car. Smooth, even action assured in least possible time.

Responsiveness.
Franklin retains snap of a well-worked in car, even after long running. Latest construction automatically takes up cylinder wear, which in average engine usually means leaks in compression.

Big Reserve Capacity.
Larger Starter and Battery. Engine turns over without hesitation when you switch on the starter. Starting device has vigorous action and battery has a big reserve.

All These Latest Features Now on Exhibition in our Salesrooms. The Franklin Car is designed to meet the big preponderance of motoring requirements—eight types

In these days of revues "The Rainbow Girl" comes as something of a relief. This new musical play at the New Amsterdam has not a specialty artist in its ranks, it contains no khaki-clad hero, and it cannot boast of anything even remotely resembling a patriotic song. On the contrary, it tells a simple story simply, and it does not outrage the probabilities at ten-minute intervals by marching the chorus girls into a room where they do not belong. In short, it is quite exceptional, and, in the main, rather a good show. As entertainment it ranks well above "The Riviera Girl," one of the season's earlier tenants of the New Amsterdam, and probably a notch or two below the engaging "Miss Springtime."

The basis of "The Rainbow Girl" is a comedy by Jerome K. Jerome entitled "The New Lady Bantock," which Fanny Ward acted here some eight or nine seasons ago. It has been turned into a libretto by Rennold Wolf, who had done considerably better than the average musical comedy author, and furnished with some tripping tunes by Louis A. Hirsch of "Going Up" fame. The performance is gingery, the cast satisfactory, and the scenery by Joseph Urban quite in that artist's best style. Than all of which no musical comedy could be expected to supply more.

No satisfactory explanation is given for the title, and one is left to assume that it was selected because it was a good name for a musical show. The heroine was an actress who sang in a piece called "The Rainbow Girl," but that fact alone is hardly sufficient reason for so naming the child. At all events, Mollie marries a lord, without knowing his identity, while the troupe is in England, and goes to live with him in the ancestral home. There she discovers a family of servitors by the name of Bennett, twelve of them, and it so happens that she was one of them herself before she ran away to America. Out of which grow the complications.

The complications which ensue are not numerous, but they are sufficient to keep the story alive for a couple of acts. Probably the most noteworthy achievement of the evening is the fact that the chorus is kept out of the way from the beginning of the last scene of the first act to the very curtain of the second act. One explanation of this phenomenon is that the author was privileged to gaze upon the young women selected as choristers before he wrote the play.

The heroine's rôle is sung extremely well by Beth Lydy. Last night she was inclined to be a trifle self-conscious, and this fact marred her performance somewhat. Billy B. Van manages to be really funny when he ceases to talk about his matrimonial troubles and embarks upon an experience with a pair of somebody's maiden aunts. Harry Delf and Lenora Novasio execute some neat steps and are intrusted with the singing of several of the best numbers of the evening—in particular, "I'll Think of You," the most melodious of Mr. Hirsch's compositions. Harry Benham is hopelessly amateurish as the incognito lord, and Laura Hamilton is a somewhat annoying soubrette. Robert G. Pitkin, however, makes a good theatrical manager—of a type new to the stage, incidentally—and valiant assistance is also lent by Jane Burby and Margaret Merriman, as the maiden aunts.

Mr. Wolf's libretto contains many bright lines. "The Rainbow Girl," in short, is a musical show well above the average, and as such it is quite certain to be popular.

INDIANA GOES DRY TODAY.

Ban on More Than One-Half Per Cent. of Alcohol in Drinks.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 1.—This State goes "bone dry" tomorrow. Features of the new law include the following:

It defines intoxicating liquors as beverages containing more than ½ of 1 per cent. of alcohol.

The sale of patent medicines with high alcoholic contents, where they are to be used as a beverage, is forbidden.

The law prohibits the sale or manufacture of powders that might be used as a mixture in making intoxicating drinks.

No sale of liquor may be advertised in Indiana in any manner.

The holding of a United States liquor tax receipt is to be prima facie evidence that the holder is engaged in the sale of liquor.

A man testifying regarding violation of the law by others becomes exempt from prosecution.

STRANSKY ATTACKED AS KARL MUCK WAS

Philharmonic Conductor Defended as Pro-Ally, and Society Takes No Action on Letter.

It became known yesterday, following the Philharmonic Society's annual meeting at the executive offices in Carnegie Hall, that Mrs. William Jay, who was recently active in the campaign against Dr. Karl Muck of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, had resigned from the Philharmonic directorate, and that a similar attack had now been made upon Josef Stransky, leader of the Philharmonic.

Mrs. George L. Cheney, one of two women members now on the Directors' board, presented at the meeting a letter received by her calling on the Philharmonic to follow the Boston Symphony and other orchestras in dismissing foreign conductors hitherto active in America. No action was taken on the letter, but Secretary Leifels said after the meeting that Conductor Stransky was born in Bohemia and was "pro-ally" in the war.

Under President Wilson's proclamation regarding the Bohemians or Czecho-Slavs, some of whom are now fighting on the side of the Allies, the United States Government has not held persons of that nationality as enemy aliens, though they are Austrian subjects, Mr. Leifels said.

"Mr. Stransky," he added, "has conducted under our service flag all season; he has played in the national army camps, and has been received as the guest of American officers there. He has applied for American citizenship, and the Directors believe that his conduct has been 'on the square.'"

The Directors at yesterday's meeting announced the election of several officers for next season, and of members of the Board of Directors for five years to come. The office of President, from which Oswald Garrison Villard resigned on Jan. 4 last, was not filled at this time.

The officers re-elected were: Vice President Richard Arnold, Secretary Felix F. Leifels, and the new Treasurer Henry E. Cooper. Mr. Cooper has been acting Treasurer since the retirement of Rudolf E. F. Flinsch on Jan. 16, soon after Mr. Villard.

Mrs. Cheney, Messrs. Arnold and Cooper were re-elected for a five-year term as members of the board, numbering fifteen in all. Howard Taylor was also elected for a full term, having become a member of the board three weeks ago, on the resignation of Mrs. Jay.

Among the Philharmonic Directors, other than those elected yesterday, are Miss Anne D. Duane, and Messrs. Arthur Curtiss James, F. W. Krafft, Thomas L. Leeming, Ludwig Manoly, Robert Alfred Shaw, Nelson S. Spencer, and Clarence Mott Woolley.

CAINE PLAYLET AT PALACE.

Author's Son Appears in "The Iron Hand," a War Melodrama.

Hall Caine's war playlet, "The Iron Hand," which was given a solitary performance at a Hippodrome benefit several weeks ago, is being played this week at the Palace by Derwent Hall Caine, the author's son, and A. E. Anson. The piece is a fairly effective melodrama dealing with an incident of the German invasion of Belgium, and revolving around the not altogether new situation of the refusal of a soldier to surrender the password, even on pain of death. Mr. Caine plays well as the heroic soldier, and Mr. Anson makes an awesome figure out of a German Captain, who threatens even the soldier's wife and mother with death in an effort to achieve his ends. A sudden happy denouement robs the sketch of a little of its force as a patriotic piece.

Bessie McCoy Davis's dancing and the Kouns sisters' singing have been honored with retention for a second and third week, respectively. The versatile Herman Timberg presents a new act, and others on the bill include James and Bonnie Thornton and Floras La Due, the last named a young woman whose specialty is riding and roping.

CARUSO IN "LE PROPHETE."

Meyerbeer's Opera Opens the Final Three Weeks at Metropolitan.

Signor Caruso opened the final three weeks of the Metropolitan opera season last evening in Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," completing this spectacular production's round of the local subscription. The same work is to start a week's visit of the company in Boston on April 22 next. In the cast with the tenor last evening were Mmes. Muzio and Matzenauer, Messrs. Rothier, Mardones, d'Angelo, and others, and Mr. Bodanzky conducted.

Owing to the illness of Rosina Galli, the dancer, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Le Coq d'Or" cannot be given next Saturday afternoon, as announced; in its place, "I Puritani" will be sung, while the Russian ballet will be the matinée bill of the following week. A special performance of "Coq d'Or" in Philadelphia today is postponed likewise until April 16.

CAINE WAR PLAY APPLAUDED

"The Prime Minister" Aided by the Fine Acting of Ethel Irving.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 1.—Hall Caine's war play, "The Prime Minister," which already has been seen in America, was produced here at the Royalty Theatre Saturday and was given an entirely favorable reception.

It promises to become a popular success, toward which the fine acting of Ethel Irving as the girl spy Margaret Schiller, who reforms and saves the Prime Minister's life from her brother's bullet, will largely contribute.

HENRY MILLER IN HIS NEW THEATRE

'The Fountain of Youth' Sprays Brilliants of Wit and Rainbow Charm.

MR. MILLER'S OWN COMPANY

An Excellent Group of Players Lend Their Substance to Slender Comedy.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH, a comedy in three acts, by Louis Evan Shipman. At Henry Miller's Theatre.

At the opening of Henry Miller's Theatre last night good taste was lapped in luxury as seldom before. Every detail of the new house is studied with intelligent regard to comfort of the body and repose of the eye. The single scene which suffices for "The Fountain of Youth" is perhaps the most solid and satisfactory drawing room ever presented on our local stage. It was the only place conceivable which would have lured the audience from their orchestra chairs.

"It is a poor week," said Mr. Miller in his very graceful curtain speech, "in which no new theatre is opened on Broadway." Then he added: "And it is a rich one in which none is closed."

In this casual afterthought there may have been a subconscious premonition, for the little comedy of the evening is slight indeed. This fountain of youth plays a very slender stream, and even that is of intermittent vigor. But fortunately the water is pure and there is a prevailing sense of blue sky and sunlight. Best of all is a vagrant wind of wit and fancy that catches the fountain jet in its catspaws and shatters it in brilliants of wit, suffused with rainbow charm. The play is in thorough keeping with the new house and bids fair to last out the season most pleasantly.

In the life of man there are four ages of this fountain, as Louis Evan Shipman tells us—in some of his happiest lines. At 14 the fountain of youth is a soda water fountain. At 23 it is a pair of blue eyes in which (as it seems to 23) a soul wells up. At 35 it is a syphon which mingles not with souls but with spirits that make us believe for the moment that what youth promised is true. At 47, alas! the fountain bubbles up from a five-grain lithia tablet.

Gerald Place, (which is the present alias of Henry Miller,) is 47. He has spent his youth in the rubber country amassing millions, and has now returned to revive his illusion of 23. She has two children, to whom he is guardian; and, as she is a widow, it devolves upon Gerald to take a hand in their young love affairs and put them right.

This he does with his familiar good humor and masculine charm. Especially there is question of a playwright and his play, to whom Mr. Miller becomes angel. There is thus occasion for many bright sallies, wise and satirical, upon modern aspects of the drama—a field in which Mr. Shipman has already shone, and in which once more he delights his hearers. Moreover, with Mr. Miller's collaboration in their angelic trade, it is shown how a "highbrow" drama may become, in one angelic month, worth many, many thousand dollars. And that revelation the audience accepts quite seriously, as do also, apparently, Mr. Miller and Mr. Shipman. But second thoughts reveal the odd circumstance that they themselves have fought shy of any such play as this one which, in their new comedy, they angelize so profitably.

In his traffic among the hearts of youth and their high brows, Mr. Miller falls in with Elizabeth Crichton, alias Olive Tell. What happens is what generally happens to old loves and new ones. For oh, and for oh, the widow is forgot. The fountain flows again to its source; the hands of Oh Time turn backward in their flight. Daylight saving is so thriftily managed that Gerald gains not hours but long years of sunlight and love. His course as he does so is of a certainty not smooth.

There is one tragic moment when Gerald is trembling on the verge of the lithia tablet. But he takes instead a draft from the syphon, mingled with a good heel of the old familiar spirits. And then things all come right. At least these are the facts of the case, though Dr. Shipman may not have intended his symbols to tinkle quite so literally.

Mr. Miller's company is as richly ornamental as his theatre and his stage, and some of the ornaments seem almost superfluous. Frank Kemble Cooper comes on for no other purpose than to deliver certain conversation, notably that on the four ages of the fountain, which he does with distinguished ease. Hilda Spong has an even less structural part in the whole, unless she may be reckoned needful as a talking mate to Mr. Cooper, whom eventually, as it seems, she marries. Lucile Watson as the widowed mother and Frank Sylvester as a low-brow theatrical manager have parts that, though more substantial, make no considerable draft on their sterling abilities.

The play is, indeed, mostly conversation, and though in its kind it is of the very first water and highly effervescent, one misses at time the clash and reaction of character that go to make up the very best sort of comedy. It is, after all, a lithia tablet play, rather short of aqua fortis, however wholesomely effervescent.

112 I. W. W.'S PUT ON TRIAL.

Defendants Manacled and Heavily Guarded in the Courtroom.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Leaders and organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World entered pleas of not guilty today at the opening of the trial in which the Government will attempt to prove that the defendants violated the espionage act, plotted to destroy industries, and conspired to hamper prosecution of the war.

With but one exception, the 113 defendants were in court when Judge Landis ordered their names called for pleading to the charges brought by the Government after the sensational drive on the organization's district offices last September. Albert Kimball, who was out on bail, was reported seriously ill.

Examination of prospective jurors will be continued when court reconvenes tomorrow.

Poets, lumber-camp captains, political writers, and speakers were among the defendants, who, manacled and heavily guarded, were brought into the courtroom in groups of ten. Their queer raiment, ranging from overalls to flowing ties, and fancy waistcoats, attracted crowds of spectators, but only a few gained entrance to the courtroom.

Witnesses have been called by the defense from all parts of the country with a view to proving that the I. W. W. is simply an organization of workers. The defense will attempt to show by these witnesses that while the organization feels that the present political system is too slow for industrial and social reforms there has been no attempt to cripple industry or block war plans.

Arturo Giovannitti, former editor of The Masses and one of the leaders in the Lawrence, Mass., textile strike, against whom charges by the Government were withdrawn today, held a number of conferences with I. W. W. leaders who are out on bail. He said he would not be able to remain during the trial, however.

Marcelline Is Back with the Circus.

The Barnum & Bailey Circus began its second week in Madison Square Garden yesterday. Two audiences, both of capacity size, enjoyed the performances. Among the clowns who are in the circus this year is Marcelline, who was the feature of the first spectacles given in the Hippodrome. He is not mentioned on the circus program, but the fact is known because hundreds of people at every performance recognize him the moment he appears in the arena. He still does the same tricks that made him a favorite of the children during his Hippodrome days. The big service flag, with its 596 stars, will be shown for the first time today.

Adele Braden's First Song Recital.

Adele Braden made a first appearance in song recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, a début marred by nervousness that cost the young church choir singer some soprano topnotes, though she showed agreeable voice and stage presence when at her best. She sang in English three lyrics of the late Hugo Wolf, many old French and also modern French and Russian airs, as well as "The Brownies," by Franco Leoni, composer of "L'Oracolo," and "Sing to Me, Sing," by Sidney Homer.

New Strand Theatre for Brooklyn.

The Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, owner of the Strand Theatre in Manhattan, yesterday broke ground at Fulton Street and Rockwell Place, Brooklyn, for a new theatre, which, it is said, will be one of the largest motion-picture houses in the country. The new house, which is also to be known as the Strand, will have a seating capacity of 4,500, with a roof garden seating 1,500 people. It will occupy a plot of land measuring 110 by 175 feet.

Clean Up in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—Orders to "clean up" their districts within forty-eight hours or suffer dismissal were issued to all police officials in the city by William H. Wilson, Director of Public Safety, after a conference today with Mayor Smith, at which the alleged vice conditions in Philadelphia were discussed. Both the Mayor and Mr. Wilson said they did not believe conditions were as bad as set forth by Chairman Fosdick of the Training Camps Activities Commission in his report to Secretary Daniels.

SILENT ON GERMAN INQUIRY.

N. Y. Athletic Club Governors Hear Explanations of Accused Members.

The Board of Governors of the New York Athletic Club met last night, and it was reported that several of the members who were suspended last week on the suspicion of being pro-Germans or pacifists appeared and offered explanations. The meeting lasted almost three hours, and when it broke up it was announced that what transpired would not be made public. There was a rumor current that drastic action had been taken, but this could not be confirmed.

At the annual meeting of the Lotos Club, the following resolution offered by Colonel John J. Carty was adopted:

"Resolved, that absolute and unconditional loyalty to the Government of the United States, or in the case of one not an American, to that of one of its allies in the present war, is an indispensable condition of membership in the Lotos Club, and that the directory shall do whatever is necessary to give full effect to this declaration."

Gorgas Needs Women Scientists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Surgeon General Gorgas authorized the statement today that the army needed the services of about 100 women bacteriologists to take the place of men in cantonment laboratories in this country. A good, practical knowledge of clinical pathology and diagnostic bacteriology is required for the work. The salary is $720 with maintenance, and $1,200 without maintenance, transportation furnished by the Government. Applications should be sent to the Surgeon General of the army.

NINETEEN MONTHS AGO—

D. W. Griffith set foot on the shores of France and prepared to take the first scenes of his latest and greatest motion picture masterpiece, "HEARTS OF THE WORLD."

Aided by the officials of the British and the French armies, Mr. Griffith, his camera man, his assistants, and his players, moved forward until within actual sound of the roaring of guns and the bursting of shrapnel shells. Here, with grim war as a background, Mr. Griffith began the filming of the sweetest LOVE story ever told.

Here, with death on every side and destruction in the air, Mr. Griffith unfolded upon the screen the eternal and never-dying story of a great love which could not be destroyed.

Mr. Griffith, with the ingenuity and genius of the greatest master director in the world, utilized the wonderful pictorial background of the Great War as a scenic setting for his drama of LOVE.

Here were real trenches, real battles, real war scenes, taken amid the fire and smoke of conflict; here were no moving picture "supers," such as one sees in a studio picture, but real, flesh and blood, soldiers of France, of England, fighting with their last drop of blood in defense of civilization; the only "supers" used were German soldiers, prisoners of war, filmed back of the firing line, tickled to death they were in such good hands with D. W. Griffith to direct them.

This superb and magnificent motion picture, Mr. Griffith's greatest achievement, will be shown at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre beginning FRIDAY NIGHT, APRIL 5th.

A private invitation presentation for officers of the United States and the Allied Armies will take place on Thursday night, April 4th, but NO TICKETS WILL BE SOLD FOR THAT PRIVATE SHOWING.

The sale of seats to the general public begins TODAY (TUESDAY) MORNING at 9. Two presentations daily (at 2:10 and 8:10) will be given after the FIRST PUBLIC PRESENTATION FRIDAY NIGHT.

The presentation of "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" means the beginning of a new epoch in the world of motion pictures.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF

The New York Times

Published daily at New York, N. Y., for April 1, 1918.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:
Before me, a Registered Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Adolph S. Ochs, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of The New York Times and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, and circulation of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in Section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher—Adolph S. Ochs,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Editor—Charles R. Miller,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Managing Editor—C. V. Van Anda,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Executive Manager—George McAneny,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Business Manager—Louis Wiley,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Treasurer—Charles H. Grasty,
The Times, Times Sq., New York City.

2. That the owners are:
Owner—The New York Times Company.
Stockholders holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of stock:
Adolph S. Ochs, majority stockholder, The Times, New York City; Charles R. Miller, The Times, New York City; Elisabeth Luther Cary, The Times, New York City; C. V. Van Anda, The Times, New York City; Louis Wiley, The Times, New York City; Estate of John Norris, The Times, New York City; Walter S. Sullivan, 154 E. 74th St., New York City; John G. Agar, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Annie M. McClymonds, Morris Plains, N. J.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:

JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

Justly disturbing to Japan and China, whose security and interests are not distantly threatened, have been the collapse, surrender, and partition of the Russian Empire; Germany's exercise of and preparation for dominion therein; the replication in Siberia and on the Manchurian marches of Russian disorder, civil war, chaos; German propaganda and penetration, the presence in Siberia of considerable, if variously estimated, bodies of German and Austrian prisoners of war. To Japan, as the stronger military Power, the task was suggested, properly to be fulfilled in co-operation with China, of landing troops in Vladivostok to protect the wealth of stores there from the Germans.

Such an immediate military purpose, involving an intervention for the benefit of all the Entente Powers and proposed by some of them, has been regarded with divided feeling even in Japan. In the United States, and finally in Great Britain, France, and Italy, intervention was dreaded or opposed by many because of its effect upon the Russian people. Certainly the Bolshevist ruin-makers, spreading their insane performances in the East, are not the Russian people to be considered. Would intervention by Japan in the interest of all the Allies tend to alarm and alienate the Russian people?

The speech of Viscount Motono, Minister of Foreign Affairs, shows substantially the feeling we all have for Russia, for the Russian people restored to sanity. Viscount Motono said that, contrary to the common opinion, Japan had not proposed intervention in Siberia, nor had any joint proposal from the Allies been received. Should such a proposal be made, it would be "carefully considered." Japan has seen with apprehension German influence reaching into Siberia, but has not thought of intervention on her own hook. "If "the Siberian situation becomes "worse, requiring decisive steps on "behalf of the interest of the Allies, "* * * the Imperial Government "will not hesitate to take prompt and "adequate measures in a whole-"hearted manner," with no view to aggression. Intervention would not be against Russia as an enemy. "The "deep and warm sympathy of the "[Japanese] nation for the Russian "people" is declared.

It is an attitude of "watchful waiting" which Viscount Motono indicates. Japanese intervention, if made, would be made on the proposal of the Allies, and for the benefit of the Russian people, the benefit of the Allies, the injury of Germany, the enemy and oppressor of Russia. For the moment the struggle in the west engages the attention of the world, but Siberia as an appanage of Germany is no pleasant thought for the nations bound to beat her. But it must be kept in mind that other ways of protecting Siberia than that by the military action of Japan alone are open to consideration.

A SENSIBLE CONCLUSION.

No trenches will be dug in the park. The Liberty Loan Committee of the Federal Reserve District of New York, at its meeting held yesterday, decided definitely to abandon the plan.

The committee adopted this method of bringing the actualities of war vividly before this community in the belief that the spectacle of trench life, reproducing as nearly as might be scenes at the battlefront, would stimulate subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment gave its assent. Surveys of the park fields were made, preparations began for actual construction. But there was a storm of public protest. Opposition to the trench plane was based upon the argument that Central Park, a precious possession of the people, should be held inviolate, and also upon the very practical ground that trenches in the park were quite unnecessary as an aid to the placing of the loan. It has been the opinion of The Times that this method of bringing home to the people the need of supplying the Government with funds for the prosecution of the war was a superfluous reinforcement of other and vastly more powerful appeals that will carry this loan to triumph and success as it has carried the others. And Central Park should never be yielded up for any use foreign to its plan and purpose save under compelling necessity admitting of no delay or argument.

We have been confident from the beginning that the committee would reconsider the project of the trenches and abandon it. Its members are practical men of affairs, ripe in experience. Their patriotism is beyond all question, but they share that feeling of pride in the city's public pleasure grounds which makes all New Yorkers jealous of any encroachment which would impair their beauty or diminish their usefulness to the people. The decision taken by them yesterday was wise and sensible; in taking it they have earned the hearty and unreserved commendation of the community, and they will themselves share the feeling of general satisfaction their decision against the trenches has inspired.

BINS WILL YAWN FOR IT.

"Guided by the experience of the past Winter," as he admits, Fuel Administrator Garfield appeals to householders to put in their next Winter's supply of coal this Spring and Summer, promising "clean coal," and a reduction of thirty cents a ton in the price. As the consumers, who were humble petitioners for coal in the most arctic Winter recorded in the States and from week to week came near freezing to death, have been wondering how they could get any fuel at all another season, they will not need to be told a second time that Mr. Garfield is ready to fill their bins. It is the most welcome news they have had for many a long day.

The offer is open for four months, from April 1 to Aug. 31. It sounds almost too good to be true that "the "Fuel Administration expects the "coal consumers, continuing their "patriotic co-operation with the Gov-"ernment in all its war measures, to "maintain a steady and constant de-"mand for coal," in order to maintain production during the whole year. In the past Winter thousands of families knew what it was to see a quarter of a ton, sometimes a single bushel, between them and several degrees of frost in the house. They besieged the local Fuel Administrator for "orders"; they often hired a wagon to take away from a reluctant dealer the prized nuggets. To be invited now to "secure a full normal supply of coal" for the Winter of 1918-19 is to be raised to the seventh heaven of bliss. It seems like a dream that waking will dissipate. But Dr. Garfield will not change his mind. He has learned a lesson of experience in the first Winter of his trust, and it is he who petitions now.

The Fuel Administrator is planning to keep the mines working at full capacity for twelve months. "An adequate supply of coal," he says, "is "vital to the winning of the war. "Without it we cannot make muni-"tions or other war supplies, or build "the ships which must carry men and "materials to the battlefront." During last Winter the needs of the householder were often in collision with the demands of the munition plants, factories, office buildings, shops and ships. The average householder does not fill his bins in Summer. It is the householder with a well-lined purse who does that. But the average householder has had his lesson, too. This Summer he wants to buy his next Winter's coal and store it in the cellar; and, as Dr. Garfield desires to eliminate the "home reserve" from the greater problem of supply and transportation that harasses him, there is a meeting of minds. Thrift will find the price, and the Administrator will have the coal ready. When the householders get the Winter's store in their cellars they will listen to nothing to the discredit of Dr. Garfield.

AMERICA ON THE MARCH.

From somewhere in the neighborhood of Toul a stream of motor trucks is pouring across 150 or 200 miles of France toward the Oise or the Somme. It is doubtless only one of many such streams, but it is one of poignant interest for us, for these motor trucks are crammed with American soldiers on their way to help in the defense of liberty. Are the whole 100,000 that General Pershing offered going, or only a part? We do not know, but we know that if General Foch needs them they will all go.

It is a little army, not an army at all as those gigantic things are counted nowadays. But it is made up of our best. We know enough about some of its units to know that we never had and never shall have anything better to offer than they are. They have gone to prove that America is still the America of 1776 and 1861, and to wipe out the painful memory of her long laggardness, of her long willingness to let others fight first when the liberty of this nation, this hemisphere, and the world was at stake. There are some things in the record of the last four years that we cannot be proud of, but there is nothing that these brave young souls will ever have to blush for, and whatever we have to blush for we will never have to blush for them. Whatever we are, they are America, the America of Bunker Hill and Gettysburg, America undefiled by selfishness, sloth, or timidity. Even today, perhaps, they are to prove their devotion, many of them to give the last full measure of devotion, to that ideal we raised at Philadelphia in 1776. God be with them!

LABOR AND CAPITAL AT PEACE.

The adjustment between labor and capital is all the more welcome because it comes tardily, and at a time when there are signs of the continuance of disturbed relations between these partners in production of war material. On the day of the announcement of the adjustment, order was kept in Kansas City by troops. Some thousands of ship workers at Norfolk and of marine workers in New York Harbor threaten a strike. In the first six months of the war alone there was a loss of over six million hours' work in more than a thousand establishments, and the record of labor disturbances has been almost continuous.

There is a curious contrast between the labor record in Germany and the Entente nations. In Germany there was as sudden and great a decrease of labor troubles as there was an increase in the Entente nations. The German pre-war average was 2,595 disputes annually. The greatest number in any war year was 240 in 1916, when the record stops. The German way is to end strikes by military control, peremptorily upon the outbreak, without awaiting disorder. That way may answer in Germany. France's way also is rather imperial than republican. The English and American ways are alike in their preference for agreement over authority. More than once the British Premier has appealed to the patriotism of the workers, and never without success. At the end of March it was officially reported that the British strike situation was better than it had been before during the war, "the great body of laboring men "working with a steady devotion "never before known in this country."

The significance of that statement on this side the ocean is that it shows conditions prevailing under a British agreement for an industrial truce so like our own that similar results may be anticipated. The aim of both agreements is a truce, during which masters and men shall devote their best efforts to production on the basis of their relations as established before the war. There are to be neither strikes nor lockouts. If there shall arise disagreements they are to be arbitrated, and in case of dissatisfaction with the award there is to follow submission to an umpire whose decision shall be final. Union shops are to remain union and closed shops to remain closed, without prejudice arising from membership or nonmembership in unions. The wage is to be a "living" wage for an eight-hour basic day whenever the law requires it. The minimum is to be sufficient "for the subsistence of the worker "and his family in health and reason-"able comfort." Women are to receive equal pay for equal work, with restrictions against overtasking their strength, and there are to be no restrictions upon production.

This agreement is better worth being called labor's Magna Charta than some previous arrangements which were one-sided in their nature, or even excepted labor from laws equally applicable to labor and capital. It is adopted unanimously by representatives of labor and capital and the public. It has the good-will of all three parties, and its success will depend upon the good faith of the observance of the agreement by all. The meaning is plain enough if interpreted reasonably, but controversy will be easy if the industrial war is preferred to the war on the Hun. The work of the new mediators is cut out from the beginning, and the question is whether the leaders on both sides can control their followers.

FOUND!

Mr. Edward P. Foster, Secretary of the Universal Language Society of Marietta, Ohio, wants to know if newspapers don't realize "that it is "absolutely impossible to have per-"manent peace or to make the world "safe for democracy so long as in "three thousand conflicting tongues "are chanted the songs of mutual "misunderstandings and of hate."

Wouldn't "a scientifically con-"structed language advance educa-"tion more potently than a hundred "leading universities can do"?

It would. It must. It shall. And Mr. Foster has the language that some happy day will leap from every larynx on this terraqueous globe. Which its name is Ro, never-enough-to-be-celebrated, suaviloquent as batrachian serenades, beautiful as choruses of all the guinea fowl on earth:

Zao ud zec ys zaf.—Two and two are four.
Zaf ud zaf we zar?—Are four and four nine?
Ne, zaf ud zaf ne zer ub ye zaq.—No, four and four are not nine, but are eight.

Speech of fire and honey, whereby all the world shall be one; rah, rah, rah, Ro, Ro, Ro!

OVER HERE AND OVER THERE.

At Camp Lee, Va., the 80th Division of the national army publishes The Bayonet for the information and amusement of the rank and file. In the last number Major Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, who commands the cantonment, discusses the German "drive" in Picardy. The General is confident that the enemy, though he may bend, will never shatter and break through the line of the Allies. But as the General does not think himself infallible, he adds that "if we "are beaten in France the next bat-"tlefields will be in the United "States." But it is what he has to say about American support of our men at the front that should have a wider circulation:

> The men at the front must feel that all America is back of them. If they get it into their heads that a good many of the people at home are slackers and profiteers and not patriotically concerned in the war—well, you can't expect them to put up the best fight there is in them. Our people at home—every man, woman, and child—must back the war. It's their job to make the men on the battlefronts know that they—everybody in America—are with the soldiers; that they're all on the side lines, cheering and rooting and pulling. If they'll keep shouting, "Go to it, my boy; keep it up; you can whip him!" this American Sammy of ours will go "over the top" so hard that Fritz won't know what hit him.

General Cronkhite is right. He is a fit leader for a division of the national army. Men like him are an inspiration. There cannot be too much "cheering and rooting" among the stay-at-homes. The belief that our soldiers are invincible is a patriotic duty. If the people "over here" believe it, our soldiers will believe it, and they will prove invincible. General Cronkhite declares that "history has "never recorded anything to excel the "behavior of the British soldiers in "pure heroism," and "our French "allies," he says, "have been fighting "with the same fine heroism as the "British." In the trinity American valor will shine with as bright a lustre. But the duty to encourage and cheer on our soldiers must never be lost sight of. Pride in them is half the victory. Expression of it should always be heard "over here": at camp and cantonment, wherever troop trains pull in, when regiments march through the streets, and when the khaki-clad figures are seen massed on the great ships as they go out to sea.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wonderful Records of Battle. It is not necessary, of course, but it is certainly permissible, to call attention to the fact in the last ten days—ever since the beginning of the greatest of conflicts in the greatest of wars—the dispatches in The Times from its special correspondents on the western front have been such in both quality and quantity as to enable the readers of this paper to see and understand the progress of events better, probably, than any except a few of the highest commanders in the allied armies.

The men directly participating in the enormous fight know nothing and hear little except what goes on in their immediate neighborhood. From personal observation, the individual war correspondents learn something more than this, as they are able to move about in some degree at will, and they are privileged to get such information as is provided for them at the headquarters to which they are particularly attached. No one of them, however, either sees or hears all that all of them see and hear, and it is the grouping of their several dispatches in one paper that alone presents what might be called a panoramic picture of the whole field of operations.

That these men are writers in the literary sense as well as observers has been made more than plain as one after another of these momentous days has passed. And often—too often—journalists write as beings apart, and with a professional rather than a human interest in what passes before their eyes. There has been no trace of that tendency in these dispatches. Accuracy has not been sacrificed to feeling, but feeling, and feeling of the most intense sort, has been there, and as a result these "documents" have been moving in the way that productions of their kind can be only when the producers themselves are moved. Presumably, these well-trained and competent reporters of the battlefield are conscious that they are themselves a fraction, and a fraction by no means inconsequential, of the armies whose heroic achievements they chronicle. It is not history, exactly, that they are sending us, but it is material for the future historian, and material of the most precious sort.

A Culminant German Achievement. A dispatch from Switzerland summarized yesterday an article in which a German ordnance officer, writing for a German magazine, explains to its readers the construction of the great cannon that throws shells what until now was considered an impossible distance. As to the accuracy of the details he gives, one must remain a bit doubtful, as it is not the habit of such men as he to reveal the secrets of their business, either for the information of their own people or to satisfy the curiosity of foreigners. But this Lieut. Gen. von Rohne evidently thinks that the long-range gun is an object of admiration, and, as the dispatch says, "it appears the Germans are extremely proud of the bombardment of Paris."

They naturally would be. The use of such a weapon as this illustrates "frightfulness" in the simplest and purest form which the Germans have yet been able to give it, and whether surpassable or not—only time will tell that—it marks a long advance in the carrying out of a policy in which, so profitable to themselves, they still have a confidence that is in its way distinctly touching. The sinking of the Lusitania was "frightful," indeed, and so was the wholesale slaughter of Belgian civilians at the beginning of the war, but in both cases the frightfulness was complicated by the fact that, at least in German eyes, the thing done was of more or less military efficacy. So, too, the air raids on London had the military consequence of keeping at home airplanes and anti-aircraft guns that otherwise would have been on the western front.

The bombardment of Paris from seventy or eighty or ninety miles away is different. It is killing just for the sake of killing, without even a chance of having a measurable effect on the war except in the way of terrifying the French. To their mingled surprise and indignation, the Germans will learn that the French are not terrified, but their failure to react as German psychologists knew all human beings would when thus assailed only proves, of course, what the Germans have long suspected and occasionally have said—that only Germans are really human.

Familiar Charges Are Made. Except for the fact that Philadelphia has so often had public attention called to the peculiarities of its public officials and to the consequent existence there of conditions the reverse of admirable, as viewed from the standpoint of outside observers, a good deal of excitement there could confidently be expected to follow the report just made to Secretary Daniels by agents of the Commission on Training Camp Activities. As it is, though the report is about as bad as a report could be, Philadelphia will probably remain calm. The inculpated policemen of high and low degree will enter a solemn denial that they are in the business of "protecting" vice for the usual reward, and if that does not satisfy the ruler of our navy, they will investigate themselves and bring in the inevitable verdict of "Not guilty." But Secretary Daniels is not likely to be satisfied with an acquittal of that familiar origin, and he may be moved to take action that will deprive the business of protecting vice at once of all its profits and all its charms.

The only penalty as yet threatened—that of declaring Philadelphia "out of bounds" for the young men in training near the Quaker City—does not seem a very ferocious one, but presumably it is all the law allows, and it is a course that would fill with humiliation a town with a reputation to lose.

If Philadelphia were only as sensitive as little New Rochelle, what commotions there would be there today, and how prompt would be the doing of the "something" that takes away all reproach and turns shame into glory!

THE DAY AT THE MORN.

Its Charm Known to the Few Now Shared by the Many.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Those of us who are accustomed to rising early in the morning are going to miss some of the charm of former years this Spring, for half the joy of being up and about at dawn came from the quiet and peace of those early morning hours when all the world was asleep.

We had a sense of pity and almost scorn for our fellow citizens who were sleeping those glorious hours away. We experienced the same complacent "holier than thou" feeling that those heroic ones have who take daily cold shower baths and sleep on zero nights with all their windows wide open, or do anything else that seems hard to people who like to be warm and comfortable like tabby cats.

This Spring, unless we rise at 4 o'clock—old time—we can no longer enjoy the hush and peace that heralds the rising sun, for all the world will be astir and the honk of automobile horns and the footsteps of passing pedestrians will drown the matin songs of the birds. We have a slight tinge of envy, however, for those late sleepers who this Spring for the first time will see the "day at the morn" when "the hillside's dew-pearled" and "the lark's on the wing," for at that time it almost seems as if "all's right with the world." English Strength in a Crisis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of your editorial article of today, entitled "Play Up to Them," I send you a quotation which I have treasured from childhood. It was spoken of England by Emerson in a time of severe commercial depression in 1847:

> "I see her not dispirited, not weak, but well remembering that she has seen dark days before—indeed, with a kind of instinct that she sees a little better in a cloudy day, and that in storm of battle and calamity she has a secret vigor and a pulse like a cannon. Seeing this, I say, All hail! mother of the heroes with strength still equal to the time."

THE "BATTLE HYMN."

A Discarded Stanza Has Been Put Back.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I, as a daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, add my word about the "Battle Hymn of the Republic"?

In 1899 my mother published her "Reminiscences," giving the story of her life and work up to that year. While she was correcting the proofs of the volume, the Houghton Mifflin Company asked her permission to insert in it a facsimile of the original draft of the "Battle Hymn," which was at that time in their possession. My mother wrote me of their request (Sept. 6, 1899,) adding, "I hesitate to allow it, because it contains a verse which I discarded, as not up to the rest of the poem."

She asked me to consult various literary friends, which I did, she taking counsel with others. It was the general opinion, if I remember aright, that though the first draft was manifestly inferior to the poem as it received the author's final sanction, it was still extremely interesting as showing the development of a lyric which had become one of the world songs. My mother yielded, albeit with reluctance, and the facsimile was inserted without comment or explanation. In the same way it appears in her "Life," written by my sister, Maud Howe Elliott, and myself.

The author of "The Grapes of Wrath" (Boyd Cable, E. P. Dutton & Co., 1917,) has printed the "Battle Hymn" in the front of his book, with the discarded stanza added. This action is much to be regretted. The stanza is a fine one, but the poem is complete without it, and in any case, I conceive, no one has a moral right to publish as the work of an author anything which that author has deliberately discarded. My mother's judgment was final: I feel sure that public opinion will respect it.

Still more, I am confident, will it wish to protect the integrity of the "Battle Hymn" in the case of Dr. van Dyke's proposed "occasional" stanza. On this proposition in general, my sister, Florence Howe Hall, has already expressed the opinion of our family; I can only add this to her protest—our mother rejected, for the reason given above, her own ringing stanza. She alone had the right to reject or to add; that right we, her children, still claim for her, and we feel sure that the country she loved and served will uphold our claim. LAURA E. RICHARDS.

THE QUEBEC RESISTERS.

Are They Unmoved by the Good Friday Massacre?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The behavior of the French-Canadians fills one with shame and indignation. They will not fight for Great Britain that gave them their liberties and the protection of her laws, and whose rule they prefer even to that of France. They will not fight for France, their mother country for whom, until now, the world supposed they still had some affection, since they preserved her language and traditions. They will not fight for justice and humanity, since apparently these words mean nothing to them.

It has been hinted that the Roman Catholic Church in Canada is responsible for this selfish and cowardly attitude of the French-Canadians; but such a thing is inconceivable. When has the Catholic Church ever ceased to denounce iniquity? Have we not all read that here, in the United States, Cardinal Gibbons has told the Catholics that it was their sacred duty to fight in defense of right and justice? Are we to believe, then, that the nefarious German propaganda has made converts among the Canadian priesthood? If not, what, then, is wrong with the French-Canadians? Do they read, unmoved and indifferent, that their French brothers and sisters, brothers and sisters by blood and in Christ, are being slaughtered while kneeling in prayer in the house of God on Good Friday?

Awake, French-Canadians! Join in the holy crusade against the common foe! What more magnificent example of loyalty and courage would you have than that given you by the men of your own land, the British-Canadians? And if that is not enough to rouse you from your apathy, remember at least the French from whom you spring and who, God knows, have not deserved the stigma you are inflicting upon their name. Noblesse oblige! Man, the individual, counts for nothing today. The only thing that does count at this hour is mankind, humanity. R. L. S.

Bread Without Wheat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's paper we are asked to do without wheat until the next harvest. Most of us are anxious to do everything we can to help, but is it not possible for the Government to give us some plain directions for making good bread, without wheat? The dark breads seem very difficult to make. I know one woman to whom every penny means almost a fortune who tried three times to make bread without wheat, and finally went back to the white bread because she could not eat the result of her bakings. This Winter I have been in a hotel where all-white bread is never served. The "war bread" is good, but the rolls in the morning are like rubber balls. People break off the thin outside crust, and leave the rest. This is a case of pure waste, but it has continued for months. Surely it is reasonable to ask for an expert on baking to give us directions for making a bread which we can eat. R. W.

EASTER ON THE BATTLE FRONT

Oh! this is Easter morning, boys, but never would we guess it,
For there's not a bell to tell us it is time to go to church,
Nor a lily, nor a carol, nor a purple egg to bless it,
And as for duds, the tailor sure has left us in the lurch.
We are muddy, torn and bloody, cramped with lying in the trenches
Watching for a shot at Fritzie when he ventures into view,
And our tummies are revolting at the gases and the stenches,
But the Lord is nearer to us than to people in a pew.

For we're walking in His footsteps, men of England grim and gory,
Men of France still bravely smiling
though their souls are crucified;
Striplings from the land of Freedom,
shining-eyed with dreams of glory,
All to save the world are dying as upon the cross He died.
So put on your Easter bonnets where the lilies deck the altar,
And their fragrance hangs like incense heavy in the atmosphere;
Though the guns must be our organs and the bayonets our psalters,
Lo! the Lord of Hosts arisen Easter
Day is with us here.

ATTACKS CREEL COMMITTEE.

Should Be Labelled "Misinformation," Congressman Treadway Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts in debate on the Housing bill today, criticised the Committee on Public Information, and said it should be named "The Committee on Public Misinformation." He made this attack while opposing an amendment to the Housing bill to provide $10,000,000 to build homes for extra Government employes in Washington. He insisted that there was no need to bring so many additional employes here, and advocated that the Food and Fuel Administrations be moved to centres where their activity was more necessary.

"The Food Administration has in its employ in Washington 1,884 persons," said Mr. Treadway. "The centre of food distribution is in Chicago, and why the Food Administration should have its headquarters here is beyond me. Why is the Fuel Administration located here? The centre of fuel distribution is Pittsburgh.

"There are employed by the Committee on Public Information in Washington 325 persons. From recent exposures the title is wrong. It should be called the Committee on Public Misinformation. Another body of this Congress looked into the matter of the usefulness of the committee last week. The misinformation that the public is receiving through the so-called Committee on Public Information will fill a very large volume, not only of printed matter but of photographs."

OVERMAN BILL UP TODAY.

Protracted Debate on Co-ordination Measure Expected in Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator Overman of North Carolina gave notice in the Senate today that tomorrow he would call up his bill proposing blanket powers for the President to co-ordinate Federal war-making agencies and keep it continually before the Senate until final disposition. Advocates and opponents of the legislation were busy lining up their forces, with certainty of lively and determined bipartisan opposition. While most of the Republicans are said to oppose the bill, some of them are disposed to support it, with limitations. Some Democrats will fight the measure.

Estimates of debate in the Senate on the measure varied from a week to a month.

ASKS ACTION FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Kelley Says Bills for Wage Earners Are Sleeping in Legislature.

Mrs. Florence Kelley of the Consumers' League presided at the meeting of the Council of Women's Organizations, sixteen of them, which met in the Rockefeller Foundation Building yesterday afternoon to consider the bills relating to legislative measures concerning the work of women.

"Why has the committee slumbered ever since the hearing on March 19 on Senator Wagner's Minimum Wage bill, and Senator Lockwood's Eight-Hour bill, and what has become of the important Nicoll bill on women in the street car service?" asked Mrs. Kelley. "All these bills are wartime measures to maintain the health and working power of women wage earners while the men are in the camps and trenches. Why are they not reported?" Mrs. Kelley said that President Wilson had expressed himself in favor of a living wage and shorter day for wartime efficiency, and that there was a strong public sentiment behind these measures.

Japanese and Chinese Art, $1,382.

M. K. Kiso paid some of the higher prices at the sale of the McDonnell-Sho Nemoto-Kuniyeda collections of Japanese prints and Chinese paintings at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, $70 for a makimono "Boat Travels in the Spring," of the fifteenth century, and also $70 for an eighteenth century kakemono "Phoenix and Pelownia Tree." A famous book, early impressions, "Seiro Bijin Awase Sugata Kagami," a comparison of the beauties of Yoshiwara, went to L. Blumenthal for $50, and G. Towne paid $55 for a kakemono, "Hermit Under a Pine Tree," by Ma Yuan, 1230 A. D., and $62 for a kakemono attributed to Chu-Lun-Huan, "Flowers and Birds." The returns for the 130 numbers were $1,382.

ART NOTES.

French Paintings Shown at Colonel Vanderbilt's House.

The French paintings shown at the house of Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt for the relief of disabled French soldiers (over 400,000 of whom because of illness have been retired from the French Army without pension) represent a large number of artists of widely varying gifts. The picture by J. Berne Bellecour which is to be given to President Wilson is in the typical Salon spirit, highly dramatic and symbolic, bringing into the composition the Statue of Liberty, a ruined church enveloped by smoke and flame, American soldiers carrying the Stars and Stripes, a French soldier seen against the background of his own flag, a strip of barbed wire, and on the ground the fallen Prussian eagle. These numerous elements are cleverly woven together in one of the complicated but orderly arrangements for which the French are famous.

A number of pictures directly inspired by the war are in the exhibition, one of the most interesting, the "Verdun, 1916" by Ferdinand Gueldry, showing the retaking of Fort de Vaux before the little village of Damloup, where the fighting was terrific and the foe were driven out with the bayonet. The artist has exercised a wise restraint and the attention is first arrested by the cool silvery tone of the painting, the blue of the uniforms making pale accents in the mist of gray-blue smoke through which are darting tongues of flame. It is not until a second glance reveals the twisted forms of the wounded that the horrors of warfare assert themselves, and the effect gains in force for this reticence of statement. Other specifically military pictures are "The Heroes: Ambulance near Verdun, 1915," by Cyprien Boulet; "Soldiers' Graves on the Banks of the Marne," by Mme. Jeanne Amen; "Incidents of the Battle of the Marne and the Capture of the Trenches of Carrency," by R. Arus; "Verdun Under Asphyxiating Gases," and two scenes in reconquered Alsace by P. M. Dupuy, and "German Prisoners" by Alphonse Lalauze.

A special feature of the exhibition is a series of studies in the entrance hall based upon official accounts of the German atrocities during the early part of the war. These are by Ferdinand Gueldry, the painter of the reticent Verdun picture, who in these illustrative drawings uses the frankest possible manner of statement, omitting no detail of horror. He was delegate from the War Department for the official accounts of the atrocities.

The larger proportion of the paintings are of general interest in subject matter, charming watercolors of the Versailles park by Henry Foreau, still life of exceptional beauty by Mlle. Marie Colgnet, fresh keen landscape studies by Emmanuel de la Villeon, and several broadly painted Swiss subjects among them. The admission fee is 50 cents, except on Tuesdays, when it is $2.

The exhibition lasts until April 22.

PUTS COMPENSATION IN M'ADOO'S HANDS

Proclamation Issued by President Authorizing Director General to Deal with Railroads.

HIS POWER COMPREHENSIVE

Free Hand to Arrange Amount of Pay to Carriers and to Make All Necessary Contracts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—President Wilson today issued a proclamation vesting in the Director General of Railroads, W. G. McAdoo, authority, under the new railroad legislation, to arrive at agreements concerning compensation to be paid to the carriers during Government control, and to carry out other negotiations, the decisions and agreements made to be subject to review by the President. The proclamation follows:

By the President of the United States of America.

A Proclamation.

WHEREAS, By the proclamation dated Dec. 26, 1917, taking over each and every system of transportation and the appurtenances thereof located wholly or in part within the boundaries of the Continental United States, it was provided "that the possession, control, operation, and utilization of such transportation systems hereby by me undertaken shall be exercised by and through William G. McAdoo, who is hereby appointed and designated Director General of Railroads," and the said William G. McAdoo, pursuant to said proclamation, entered upon and has continued to discharge the duties of Director General of Railroads, as provided therein; and

WHEREAS, Since the issuance of said proclamation the Congress of the United States has passed an act entitled An Act to Provide for the Operation of Transportation Systems While Under Federal Control, for the Just Compensation of Their Owners, and for Other Purposes, which act was duly approved by me on the 21st day of March, 1918, and is now in full force and effect, and in terms confers upon the President the powers specified therein and the authority to carry the same into effect; and

WHEREAS, It is provided in Section 8 of said act that the President may execute any of the powers therein and theretofore granted him with relation to the Federal control of systems of transportation and parts thereof, including railroads, inland waterways, &c., through such agencies as he may determine;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, WOODROW WILSON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, under and by virtue of the powers and authority so vested in me by said act and of all other powers me hereto enabling, do hereby authorize the said William G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads as aforesaid, either personally or through such divisions, agencies, or persons as he may appoint, and in his own name or in the name of such divisions, agencies or persons, or in the name of the President, to agree with the carriers, or any of them, or with any other person in interest, upon the amount of compensation to be paid pursuant to law, and to sign, seal and deliver in his own name, or in the name of the President, or in the name of the United States, such agreements as may be necessary and expedient with the several carriers or other persons in interest respecting compensation, or any other matter concerning which it may be necessary or expedient to deal, and to make any and all contracts, agreements, or obligations necessary or expedient, and to issue any and all orders which may in any way be found necessary and expedient in connection with the Federal control of systems of transportation, railroads and inland waterways, as fully, in all respects as the President is authorized to do, and generally to do and perform all and singular all acts and things and to exercise all and singular the powers and duties which in and by the said act, or any other act in relation to the subject hereof, the President is authorized to do and perform.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

DONE in the District of Columbia this 29th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-second.

WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:
ROBERT LANSING,
Secretary of State.

The legislation provides that the compensation to be paid the railroads shall be based upon the earnings of the last three years.

BOARD ON DISPUTES NAMED.

Railway Managements and Leading Four Brotherhoods Represented.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Members of the Railroad Administration's Board of Adjustment No. 1, which will pass on disputes over rules, contracts, and employment conditions arising between railroad managements and the leading four railway brotherhoods, were announced tonight. The board will meet here next Monday to organize, and will proceed immediately to consider a number of pending disputes.

The board will consist of four representatives of railway managements and four officers of the brotherhoods, as follows:

E. T. Whiter, Assistant General Manager of the Pennsylvania Lines, West.
John G. Walber, Secretary of the Bureau of Information of Eastern Railways.
J. W. Higgins, Executive Secretary of the Association of Western Railways.
Dr. C. P. Neill, Manager of the Information Bureau of Southeastern Railways.
L. E. Sheppard, Vice President of the Conductors' Brotherhood.
F. A. Burgess, Assistant Chief of the Engineers.
Albert Phillips, Vice President of the Firemen.
W. N. Doak, Vice President of the Trainmen.

The representatives of the managements were appointed by the three Regional Directors of the Railroad Administration, and the Chief of each brotherhood named his representative. Mr. Walber, Mr. Higgins, Dr. Neill, and Mr. Sheppard were members of the old commission of eight, which settled disputes under the Adamson act. This commission has gone out of existence, and its functions are assumed by the new Adjustment Board.

The board's decisions will be final, except in case of a tie vote, when W. S. Carter, Labor Director for the Railroad Administration, will decide. Wage questions will not be considered directly by the board, although matters of pay are necessarily wrapped up in many disputes over hours or conditions of employment. Director General McAdoo still reserves the right to fix wages and hours of labor.

Similar boards probably will be created later for other branches of railway employes.

DROP PLAN TO DIG TRENCHES IN PARK

Loan Committee Abandons the Undertaking and Proposes Other Publicity Measures.

COULDN'T OBTAIN TROOPS

Limited Leaves of Absence for Soldiers, Governor Strong Asserts, Made Project Impossible.

No trenches are to be built in Central Park. The plan for the construction of a trench system on the Sheep Meadow, modeled on those in use on a considerable part of the western front, which had been arranged by the Liberty Loan Committee as a method of advertising the campaign for the Third Liberty Loan, was abandoned at yesterday's meeting of the committee. The reason given by the committee for giving up the scheme was that military authorities had determined that they could not spare the soldiers who were to have constructed the trenches.

Various war materials which had been placed at the disposal of the Liberty Loan Committee by the French High Commission and the British Government will be displayed in places other than Central Park, chiefly indoors, and the committee will arrange for parades and other patriotic demonstrations as stimulants to patriotic spirit in order that the loan may be generously oversubscribed.

Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee issued this formal statement:

At the meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee held today no change of views developed with regard to the desirability and importance, to visualize war conditions, of giving an accurate representation of trench life and activity in Central Park during the coming loan campaign, as expressed in the committee's letter of March 22 to the Mayor and Board of Estimate. The committee was informed, however, of the order issued March 26 by the Adjutant General of the Army limiting to twenty-four hours any absences which commanding officers may grant to their troops for participation in Liberty Loan demonstrations.

In spite of the most vigorous efforts on the part of the committee, the military authorities, possibly influenced by the seriousness of the great drive now in progress in France, feel unable to modify the order to meet this special condition, and it is therefore impossible for the committee to realize its expectation of placing at the disposal of the French High Commission a body of trained soldiers to construct the trenches and man them during the period of the loan campaign.

The fundamental purpose of the exhibit was to present a vivid and realistic idea of the trench life and activity of our soldiers in France, and the committee feels that a mere exhibit of trenches and guns without trained soldiers to man them would be utterly inadequate to convey the living and lasting impressions which the plan was conceived to create, and would justify neither the use of Central Park for the purpose, nor the necessary expenditure of money, and the committee has advised the Mayor accordingly.

In view of its responsibility for the organization of successive campaigns to raise money for the Government for war purposes and of the widespread public interest in the trench exhibit, the committee greatly regrets its inability to carry out this plan, which was to have been the central feature of its publicity work during the coming campaign. Past experience has proved that a realization of the seriousness of the war and the sacrifices it demands form the only basis on which these campaigns can be conducted successfully.

The third Liberty Loan will be made an overwhelming success by reason of a far broader participation in it and a far better organization for it than ever before. The committee will, through the medium of indoor exhibits of the unique war material loaned by the French High Commission and the British authorities, and by means of parades and other features in addition to the usual posters and literature, conduct an intensive campaign along patriotic lines.

But there should be no overconfidence. A task of the greatest difficulty is set for the country, because the contemporaneous payment of the loan subscriptions and of the taxes due June 15 will call for a transfer to the Government of a sum probably greatly in excess of the minimum estimate of $5,500,000,000. These together will constitute the most gigantic financial transaction in history.

Thomas C. Desmond of 31 Nassau Street, who had volunteered his services to the Liberty Loan Committee and was by them put in charge of the actual work of construction of the trench system, yesterday afternoon ordered his staff, as soon as he had learned of the decision of the committee, to take up the stakes which had marked off the site for the trench system on the Sheep Meadow and to start the workmen to filling in the holes that had been dug in order to test the quality of the soil.

Members of civic and artistic organizations who had been vigorous in the fight to preserve the Park from any intrusion of an outside interest, expressed great satisfaction yesterday when informed of the decision of the Liberty Loan Committee. Dr. George Frederic Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, said:

"This would never have been stopped if it had not been for THE NEW YORK TIMES. There is plentiful opportunity for the committee to do good and stimulate war enthusiasm by displays of war material, even a trench system, elsewhere, but no reason had ever been adduced which necessitated the use of Central Park.

"So far from hampering the Liberty Loan campaign, I feel sure that this decision will help it. The attitude of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society has from the beginning of the whole episode been one of whole-hearted support of the Liberty Loan and, consequently, is not changed in any way by this decision. I feel sure, however, that the determination of the committee not to offer an entering wedge for encroachments on the park will create greater confidence in the publicity management of the loan among all lovers of the parks of New York and will prevent any possible feeling that energy, material and expense were to be misdirected. The only thing for all of us to do is to throw all of our efforts into the making of the third Liberty Loan as great a success as the first and second have been."

THE TIMES received the following dispatch last night:

New York City, April 1.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Congratulations to THE TIMES on the success of its fight against the trenches in the Park. "Art artist," lovers of nature and beauty in general and every one interested in the public welfare applaud you. Your splendid opposition against heavy odds makes every citizen and visitor your debtor.

COLUMBIA TO HONOR ARCHBISHOP OF YORK

Degree of Doctor of Laws Will be Conferred Upon English Prelate.

Columbia University will confer the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, upon the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York, on April 11. This was decided at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Trustees. The formalities will take place at a special meeting of the trustees to be called for that purpose, as the Archbishop expects to return to England before the university's annual commencement in June.

The trustees voted also to accept the resignation of Ellery C. Stowell, Associate Professor of International Law, who announced about a month ago that the suppression of academic freedom at Columbia had forced him to quit the faculty.

Archbishop Lang will address the members of the Institute of Arts and Sciences in St. Paul's Chapel immediately after the conferring of the honorary degree. The same degree was conferred on Sept. 8, 1904, upon the Most Rev. Randall T. Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, who visited Columbia University on that day and dedicated the site of the chapel.

President Nicholas Murray Butler would make no comment on the action of the trustees on Professor Stowell's resignation. A reporter stepped up to Dr. Butler as he came out of the meeting room and congratulated him on his birthday.

"Today is Prince Bismarck's birthday," said Dr. Butler with a smile. "Mine is tomorrow. Please don't get me confused with him. Thank you just the same."

Leaves of absence for war service were granted to Rev. Raymond C. Knox, Chaplain of the University, who is soon to take up Y. M. C. A. work in France; to Assistant Professor Edward D. Thurston of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, and to Dr. J. Clayton Sharp of the Department of Anatomy.

Assistant Professor Dean F. Lockwood of the Department of Classical Philology tendered his resignation to take effect at the close of the present academic year, in order to accept an appointment as Professor of Latin at Haverford College. Dr. James W. Jobling, now Professor of Pathology at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., was appointed on the nomination of the Medical Faculty, to be Professor of Pathology to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation last June of Dr. William G. MacCallum, who accepted an appointment at the Johns Hopkins University.

A gift of $2,500 from Mrs. Elizabeth S. Coolidge for the maintenance of research fellowships in medicine was acknowledged. Other gifts reported were: $500 from Joseph P. Grace, '94, toward salaries in the Department of Philosophy; $500 from Lincoln Cromwell, '86, for a Founder's Membership in the Columbia Service Bureau in Paris; $500 from an anonymous donor, to be added to the fund for religious work; $200 from Mrs. Eldridge Fowler of Pasadena, Cal., for instruction in penal problems; $50 from Dr. Adrian V. S. Lambert of the Department of Medical Surgery for the Medical School Library, and $155 from various donors toward the maintenance of the Columbia Service Bureau in Paris.

ARRESTED ON STOCK CHARGE

Two Are Gathered in Net of the District Attorney.

Two additional arrests were made yesterday in the District Attorney's prosecution of fake corporations and "wildcat" stock-selling swindlers in the financial district. Assistant District Attorney Brogan said he had been notified of the arrest of Harry I. Brolaski at Los Angeles, Cal., on a charge of publishing a false financial advertisement in relation to the stock of the Standard Film Industries Corporation.

"Brolaski, who is the President of the Board of Trustees of the town of Rodondo Beach, Cal., was a member of the firm of R. S. Davidson & Co. at 42 Broadway, selling agents for the shares of the Standard Film Corporation," announced Mr. Brogan. "Brolaski was indicted by a Grand Jury here and he is being held at the request of this office. Our investigation shows that Brolaski got fifty cents on the dollar for the film stock he sold."

A representative of the District Attorney's office will go to California to bring Brolaski here for trial. The District Attorney says the Standard Film Industries Corporation sold $300,000 worth of its stock and then went out of business. Louis B. Jennings, its President, was arrested at New Orleans. He has agreed to return with two detectives from the District Attorney's office. Jennings, it is asserted by Mr. Brogan, used the names of well-known men in his stock speculation, several of whom said they had never heard of the corporation until it was called to their attention by the District Attorney. Jennings also induced Lieutenant Anthony J. Drexel, who was appointed a Vice President of the film corporation, to write a letter of indorsement of the corporation's activities and sent it to a manager of Davidson & Co.'s branch office at Detroit.

Harry McDermott, an agent, was arrested at his home in East Thirtieth Street by order of the District Attorney last night on a charge of failing to deliver various shares of stock he is alleged to have sold to public school teachers.

COLONEL HEARS ABOUT SON.

Major Derby Writes Home About Captain Roosevelt's Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 1.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was greatly pleased today when his daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby, received a letter from her husband, Major Derby, in which he told how Captain Archibald Roosevelt had received his wounds, and said that he was progressing finely. This is the first letter which has been received by the family since Captain Roosevelt was wounded on the battle front, all previous messages being from press associations.

Major Derby, who is connected with the Surgical Corps, wrote that he had seen Captain Roosevelt the day following the receipt of his wounds. He stated that the Captain was on his feet several minutes after receiving his injuries and that he gave several orders to his men. The loss of blood finally rendered him unconscious and he fell back in the trench. For the following eight hours Captain Roosevelt lay in the trench, and then for six hours he was on a litter before being taken to a hospital. There it was found that his right arm had been broken in two places and that shrapnel had entered his left knee.

Major Derby wrote that Captain Roosevelt was under the care of Major Poole of the Surgical Corps, and that at the time of writing it was impossible to tell whether he would suffer from a stiff knee. The shell which caused the injuries, the letter stated, knocked down ten men, injuring several of them seriously. Major Theodore Roosevelt, brother of the Captain, was also knocked down by the explosion, but he was not injured.

SUFFRAGISTS LIFT BAN ON OLD PARTIES

City Organization Grants Political Freedom to Its Officers and Members.

WOMEN URGED TO ENROLL

New Voters Should Help Existing Political Organizations, Miss Hay Asserts.

The New York City Woman Suffrage Party yesterday revoked the rule of nonpartisanship which has prevented its members or officials from engaging in factional and political activity as Democrats and Republicans up to the present time. The Suffrage Party will continue in itself to be a nonpartisan organization, but its City Committee at a meeting held at 3 East Thirty-eighth Street yesterday decided that the members or officials, as individuals, might hereafter enroll in the political party of their choice and accept office and serve on political committees, if called upon to do so by the constituencies of their particular districts.

The meeting was attended by hundreds of leaders and workers of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party from all five boroughs. The discussion swung mainly to a consideration of the future policy of the party in view of the fact that it had become advisable at the present stage to allow the members and officials, as individuals, to exercise the political prerogatives which the adoption of suffrage in this State had given them.

Until yesterday any member or official of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party could become allied with one or the other of the political parties only by sacrificing her membership or office in the party.

It was decided yesterday, however, that the party should continue to be nonpartisan, but that the members or officials could now engage as individuals in direct activity along the political lines of their own choice. Resolutions setting forth the general policy which the party will pursue in the immediate future were adopted at yesterday's meeting. They read as follows:

Resolved, That the New York City Woman Suffrage Party continue under its present form of organization along borough, Assembly district, and election district lines until after the ratification of the Federal amendment in New York State and until the completion of its plan for the education of the woman voters; and that the party as an organization continue its nonpartisan policy, so that it may retain the confidence of and serve impartially the women of all political parties.

Resolved, That it be the policy of the New York Woman Suffrage Party to advise each woman voter to enroll in the political party of her choice, in order that women may vote at the primaries, help to select suitable candidates for office, and efficient members to serve on the committees of the various political parties; and that the officers, leaders, and Captains of the Woman Suffrage Party of New York City be permitted to take any office in any political party.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the party, who presided at the meeting, said:

"Lest it be necessary to explain to some people how we can remain nonpartisan in policy and still permit our officers, leaders, and Captains to hold office in the political parties, I would state that there is a difference in this respect between individuals and societies. An individual may be very partisan, but an organization that hopes to retain as members Republicans, Democrats, Prohibitionists, and Socialists must have a nonpartisan policy and must deal with broad questions like education, or those that involve humanitarian principles. This we hope to do.

"We who have worked for suffrage for women, do not wish the enfranchised women to go off by themselves politically, but to join with the men and help the political organizations. The time has now come to advise our women and all women to enroll for the primaries as good citizens should, and if they are called upon by the men to take office in the parties, to serve them faithfully and well. This they can do while retaining their membership in the great civic and educational organization that the Woman Suffrage Party has now become."

LIEUT. V. K. HILTON INJURED.

Young American Is a Member of Royal Flying Corps.

Lieutenant Vincent King Hilton, Royal Flying Corps, formerly of Port Chester, N. Y., was severely injured in action on the western front on March 28, and is now in a base hospital in France, it was said yesterday at the office of his father, Colonel Albert E. Hilton, 43 Exchange Place.

Lieutenant Hilton, who was then 21 years old, went to France as an ambulance driver in November, 1916, and enlisted in the Royal Flying Corps. He is the grandson of the late Judge Henry Hilton. Before going to France he was a student at the Richfield Preparatory School, Richfield, Conn.

MISS JERVIS BETROTHED.

Her Fiance, Karl W. Kirchwey, Son of Ex-Dean of Columbia Law School.

Mr. and Mrs. Perlee V. Jervis of 143 South Portland Avenue, Brooklyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Hutchinson Jervis, to Karl Wendell Kirchwey, son of Dr. and Mrs. George W. Kirchwey of this city and Forest Hills, L. I. Dr. Kirchwey was formerly Dean of Columbia Law School, and for a time Warden of Sing Sing Prison.

Miss Jervis is a graduate of the Gardner School, this city, and attended the Art Students' League. Her father is a well-known musician, and Vice President of the Department of Music of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Mrs. Mabel Sabin Weds.

Mrs. Mabel Whitney Sabin of 38 East Fortieth Street and Dexter Blagden of this city were married yesterday in the Chantry of Grace Church, the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery officiating. Mrs. Sabin is a daughter of the late William Minot Whitney of Albany, and has a son, Charles H. Sabin, Jr., by her first husband, Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, whom she divorced in 1916. Mr. Blagden is a son of Mrs. George Blagden of 18 East Thirty-sixth Street.

Miss Kraft to Wed E. P. Meade.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kraft of Yonkers announce the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Marjorie Kraft, to Everard Page Meade, also of Yonkers, and now in the naval service and on duty in Washington, D. C.

Miss Kraft is a junior at Vassar College. Mr. Meade is the youngest son of the late Rev. Philip Nelson Meade of Oswego, N. Y., and is a cousin of the United States Ambassador to Italy, Thomas Nelson Page.

Butler-O'Brien Wedding Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Maude O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien of 729 Park Avenue, and Lieutenant Pierce H. Butler, son of James Butler of this city, will take place on Saturday morning, in the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, Sixty-seventh Street, between Lexington and Third Avenues. Owing to the recent death of John D. Crimmins, an uncle of Miss O'Brien, there will be no reception after the ceremony.

WILL SEND GEN. J. F. BELL TO THE WEST COAST

Present Commander of Upton Division Is Likely to Be Succeeded by Gen. Johnston.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—It was learned today that Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, commanding the 77th National Army Division, completing its training at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., will not remain in command of that division, but will be sent to San Francisco to take command of the Department of the West.

General Bell was examined by an army board last week and passed the physical examination, but is to remain under observation until further orders. While no announcement is made, it is understood that Brig. Gen. Evan M. Johnston, now at Camp Upton, will command the division when General Bell goes West.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., April 1.—The 1,422 draft men who arrived here today as the first installment of the 7,000 who are expected this week were sent to the Depot Brigade to undergo medical observation for at least two weeks. This is merely a precautionary measure.

WOMEN GET 3 AMBULANCES.

Gifts Announced at $200,000 Campaign Luncheon.

Three motor ambulances for immediate service at the front were presented to the American Women's Hospitals at the daily luncheon of the Money Raising Committee at the Biltmore yesterday. The donors of two of these asked to have their names withheld. Mrs. August Lewis gave the third in honor of Dr. Emily Dunning Barringer, the first woman ambulance surgeon in this country. One of the new ambulances manned by a squad of women doctors is to be placed on exhibition immediately in front of the Public Library at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street to stay the rest of the week. It will aid the women in their drive for $200,000. Returns for the day were the largest so far, $20,863, bringing the total to $71,711.

Praise of the work of the American Women's Hospitals came in a message from Harvey Lee Gibson, Director General of the American Red Cross, which was read at the luncheon.

"Because of the magnificent work you have already done in France and Serbia," said Mr. Gibson, "the Red Cross stands ready to back you to the last ditch."

GRILL DR. MUCK FOR 3 HOURS

Federal Authorities Bring Conductor from Jail for Questioning.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 1.—Dr. Karl Muck, who had been confined in the East Cambridge jail since last Tuesday under the Enemy Alien act, was taken to the Federal Building today, where he was questioned for three hours by United States District Attorney Boynton and special agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation. Later he was returned to the jail.

C. J. Foley, representing Manager Ellis of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, reached the office of the United States Marshal and waited until Dr. Muck was through with the examination. There were a few transactions between Mr. Foley and Dr. Muck, after which the latter went into the prisoners' cage to eat his luncheon.

Upon his return from the conference at Mr. Boynton's office, Dr. Muck was nervous and seemed to have lost a great deal of the care-free appearance which he had earlier in the day. Assistant District Attorney Dewey stated tonight that there was nothing to be made public as to the conference.

MISS WILSON PRAISES ARMY.

"The Sort to Win a War," Says President's Daughter.

After several weeks of singing to the soldiers in the camps, Miss Margaret Wilson, who is now at Fort Worth, Texas, writes that nothing has ever given her so much joy as singing for the men in uniform. Miss Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. Ross David, her accompanist, and Melville A. Clark, harpist, is touring the camps under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

"American boys are so fit and so fine!" said Miss Wilson. "I admire them more than I have ever done before in my life. They're not fine because they're fit, they're fit because they're fine—because their spirit is splendid and brave and devoted. What I have seen of the soldiers and the sailors in the camps I have visited convinces me that our American men are the sort to win a war.

"Every one ought to have some share in the war, and singing for the men is mine. It has been a delight to me to sing for them. They will fight better for the fact that each one of us is standing behind them, doing what he can to have some part in the war. In whatever camp I have been since I have been singing for the soldiers, I have seen how much the Y. M. C. A. means to them."

BLOCK PROHIBITION VOTE.

Nebraska Senate Defers Action After House Passes Measure.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 1.—The Nebraska State Senate adopted tonight by a vote of 18 to 13 a resolution to confine the measures considered by the upper House to legislation specified in Governor Neville's call for the special session of the Legislature now going on.

This, it is believed, will prevent ratification by Nebraska of the Federal Prohibition amendment at this session, as no mention of the amendment was made in the Governor's call. The lower House of the Legislature earlier in the day voted 66 to 7 to ratify the amendment.

Violet Seligman.

Violet Seligman, daughter of Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, McVickar Professor of Political Economy at Columbia University, died yesterday morning after a short illness from pneumonia and measles at Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Penn. Miss Seligman, who was 18 years old, was a freshman at Bryn Mawr. Besides her father, she is survived by her mother and a brother and sister. Miss Seligman lived with her parents at 324 West Eighty-sixth Street.

One of Six Brothers in War Dies.

Joseph A. Quinn, one of six sons of William J. Quinn of Hicks Lane, Great Neck, L. I., who are in the United States military service, died on Monday at the French Hospital in this city, following an operation. Mr. Quinn, who was 37 years old, enlisted at Camp Upton, and was later discharged because of physical condition. It is said that his death was due to ill-health incurred at Camp Upton.

REPORT BIG SUCCESS IN DAYLIGHT SAVING

Large Business Concerns Find Great Advantage in the Additional Hour.

EMPLOYES ALSO PLEASED

Change Made Without Slightest Apparent Inconvenience, and Shoppers Get Special Benefit.

Reports received from large business concerns and representatives of employes all over the country last night by Marcus M. Marks, President of the National Daylight Saving Association, indicated that the plan was a tremendous success yesterday, the first business day it was in operation.

"Merchants reported that there was no need of artificial light at the end of the day in their establishments," said Mr. Marks. "This was of benefit in several ways. Of course, it saved that much electric light and allowed the employes to have some daylight for recreation. In many stores shoppers were able to continue their purchases in daylight and had the advantage of selecting materials and fabrics under normal light instead of artificial light.

"Then there was also a saving of gas by the great masses of working people, who had their evening meals in daylight. They had the opportunity to spend some small part of the late afternoon after their dinner in the open, enjoying the waning sunlight. All of the stores and business houses that communicated with me evinced great satisfaction regarding the innovation, and many asked why it had not been started sooner. On the war side, sight must not be lost of the fact that the new plan will enable a larger output of shipping, because appeals to the patriotism of the shipbuilders will no doubt result in a response by the workers, who will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of putting in an hour in the morning and an hour in the evening of additional overtime. Now when the need of ships is so imperative such an appeal will not fail to bear fruit."

The new plan, however, served to bring out some incongruities. The newsboy shouting "Get your final papers" at a time when the sun still had a good distance to go before it reached the horizon did not seem to fit in quite right with the end of the day as millions of New Yorkers have been accustomed to experience it.

The daylight saving plan was received with relief by members of the Stock Exchange, who found that under the new order of things they were able to have an hour of the business day in common with the London Stock Exchange. When the clocks of England were advanced an hour several weeks ago it eliminated the hour that the two Exchanges formerly had in common, and the introduction of the daylight saving plan in this country restored that hour.

Reports from the Post Office and from the railroads indicated that business was in no way affected by the change. At the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company it was said that all electric clocks were stopped for twelve hours previous to 1 P. M. Sunday, and that at that time all the clocks were started on the new schedule.

FRANK I. COHEN DEAD.

Former Master of Works of Glasgow Was an Aid to Hoover.

Frank I. Cohen, for two years Master of Works of the City of Glasgow, and recently associated with Food Administrator Herbert Hoover, died yesterday of pneumonia at the Parkside Hotel, 31 West Seventy-first Street.

Mr. Cohen was an expert in municipal affairs, having served for fourteen years as a member of the Council of Glasgow. He came to this country on a visit six years ago, and at that time announced that he was going to establish a system of tobacco shops to put the Tobacco Trust out of business. He was then head of the firm of Joseph Cohen & Son, established in 1740, and said to be the largest independent tobacco concern in Great Britain.

Four years ago Mr. Cohen married Mrs. Frances A. Harris of this city. The wedding plans were almost spoiled because Mrs. Harris was unable to furnish a certified copy of the decree of divorce from her former husband, Louis Harris. A Supreme Court Justice helped untangle the difficulty, however.

Mr. Cohen delivered lectures in this country on municipal ownership and toured the country for President Wilson in the last campaign. He was 42 years old and is said to have three brothers fighting with the British.

YNACIO MIER, REFUGEE, DIES

Ex-President Diaz's Son-in-Law Escaped from His Captor, Gen. Zapata.

Ynacio de la Torre y Mier, son-in-law of ex-President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico, and owner of several large estates in Mexico, died after an operation yesterday at the Stern's Sanitarium, West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street.

Senor Mier was noted in Mexico as a sportsman and owner of a stud of racing horses before the overthrow of his father-in-law. After Porfirio Diaz had left Mexico, Senor Mier was arrested by Carranza and later released. When he was preparing to leave Mexico, Senor Mier was captured by General Zapata, who had once been his groom, and carried into the southern part of Mexico. When General Zapata's army was attacked and scattered, Senor Mier escaped and reached Vera Cruz disguised as a peon or native peasant. From there he came to this city.

Senor Mier was born fifty-two years ago and was a member of an old Spanish family well-known in Spain and Mexico. He was educated in Paris at a polytechnical institute. While not entering much into Mexican politics, Senor Mier was at one time a Deputy of the Mexican Parliament.

VINCENT LOESER DEAD.

President of East River National Bank Succumbs at 61 Years.

Vincent Loeser, President of the East River National Bank of New York, died at the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Mary C. Thomae, 22 Munroe Place, Brooklyn, yesterday. Mr. Loeser, who was born in Brooklyn in 1857, was for many years a member of the Produce Exchange and was head of the firm of Loeser, Robinson & Armstrong, brokers. In 1905 Mr. Loeser entered the banking business and became President of the East River National Bank. Mr. Loeser and his wife lived at 320 West 108th Street, but were visiting his sister-in-law in Brooklyn when he was taken ill.

Mr. Loeser was a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Metropolitan, MacDowell, and Bankers Clubs in Manhattan and the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn.

James Teackle Dennis Dead.

James Teackle Dennis, archaeologist and Oriental scholar, died at his home in Woodbrook, Md., yesterday. Mr. Dennis was noted for his work in excavating Egyptian monuments, and among his best-known discoveries was that of the tomb of Mentuhotep I., a pharaoh, who reigned between 2800 and 2700 B. C. Mr. Dennis was born in Baltimore in 1866 and was graduated from Lafayette College in 1887. Two years later, after a post-graduate course at Johns Hopkins University, he was admitted to the Maryland bar.

Mrs. Cornelia R. Spaulding.

Mrs. Cornelia Russell Spaulding, widow of Henry A. Spaulding, a member of the firm of Tiffany & Co., jewelers, and head of the firm of Spaulding & Co. of Chicago and Paris, jewelers, died of heart disease at her home, 22d Central Park West, yesterday. Mrs. Spaulding was 78 years old, and was born in this city. She is survived by a son, Russell Spaulding, who is an importer in Havana, Cuba, and a daughter, Miss Marguerite Spaulding.

Marriage and death notices, intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

Cheering Crowds Speed Second Draft Men to Camp

500 Recruits from Districts Outside New York Included in the Day's Contingent.

MANHATTAN MEN GO TODAY

Great Throngs of Relatives and Friends at the Departure of Bronx and Brooklyn Delegations.

The first selective draft men from New York who will form part of the second national army of the United States were called to the colors yesterday and reported for duty at Camp Upton in the afternoon. The men were the second draft contingents from eight districts in the Bronx, fourteen districts in Brooklyn, and various districts in Westchester, Dutchess, and Putnam Counties. The total number involved in the day's movement was about 1,800, of whom 500 were from districts outside New York City. The first of the Manhattan contingents start for Camp Upton this morning, the men representing the Eighty-ninth to Ninety-third Districts, inclusive.

The men from the first eight districts in the Bronx assembled at the headquarters of their boards at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning and mobilized half an hour later at the 149th Street station of the Third Avenue elevated road. They proceeded on a special train to Thirty-fourth Street and crossed by ferry to Long Island City, where they boarded trains for Camp Upton. More than 2,000 relatives and friends of the men were at the station to join in the cheering that preceded the departure of the military specials.

The Brooklyn contingents left from the Carlton Avenue yards of the Long Island Road. A great crowd cheered the men as they started. Two brass bands took part in the farewell. About 800 men were in the Brooklyn delegation.

The men from Dutchess, Putnam, and Westchester Counties came to the city on special trains, and took the subway to the Flatbush Avenue Station in Brooklyn. A big crowd in the Grand Central terminal cheered them as they marched singing and cheering through the station.

THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning prints additional names of the men who are in the first contingent of the second draft. In the case of a number of boards, the names of alternates as well as of those originally selected for the army are also printed. The alternates were chosen in order to enable the boards to send out full quotas by filling vacancies which might occur at the last moment.

The names follow:

TENER JOINS OFFICIALS AT WASHINGTON IN OPPOSITION TO LATER GAMES

OPPOSED TO PLAN OF LATER GAMES

President Tener of National League Frowns on Changing Hour of Starting.

WASHINGTON IS CRITICAL

Officials Regard Move to Take Advantage of Daylight Saving Law Unfavorably.

President John K. Tener of the National League is opposed to any change in the time for beginning baseball games under the new daylight saving law. He said yesterday that, although the question was up to the clubs individually, he did not think any of them would take advantage of the new law and start the games later. He stated that he had heard of no contemplated changes in the time of starting among his clubs except in one or two cases, where the change suggested was very slight.

It is believed that the attitude of President Tener will have the effect of preventing any changes in the time of games. When the daylight saving plan was first announced, several club owners planned to take advantage of the extra time in the afternoon and extend the hour of starting the game, as a fine scheme to encourage patronage.

This attitude of the baseball club owners and other promoters of sporting events brought forth more or less criticism from officials at Washington. Charles Lathrop Pack, President of the War Garden Commission, has led in the criticism of the proposed plan to start the games later. He says: "Slackers of the worst type is the brand placed upon baseball team owners or managers who plan to move down the schedule time of starting games this Summer. It would certainly be a violation of the spirit of the law."

Men Needed for Gardens.

Commissioner Pack, in voicing his objection to the proposed plan, says further: "The women are going to win this war, and one of the greatest boons will be the help the men can give in the backyard garden. A move like this suggested by the baseball club owners will take thousands of hours of time from gardens. The job of winning this war must be done. Nothing must be allowed to stand in the way of it. The daylight saving law was intended to increase the daylight usefulness in war work, and was not intended to give extra hours for recreation. I do hope that this is not the attitude of those in control of the greatest of national games in our big leagues."

As far as New York is concerned, there will probably be no change in the time of starting games at the Polo Grounds or at Ebbets Field. President Hempstead of the Giants said that the club had not considered the matter yet, except perhaps that it was suggested to start the games ten or fifteen minutes later in order to accommodate the crowds which come from the Wall Street district. The Giants have always started their games at 3:30, the extra ten minutes being added because the Wall Street express did not arrive at the 155th Street elevated station until 3:28.

Uniform Hour Likely.

If there is any change in this starting hour, it will be made to conform with the schedule of this special Wall Street train. The Yankees and the Giants will probably get together before the season opens and agree on a uniform hour for starting the games. It is not the intention of either club to take advantage of the new law, and as far as is known now there will be no change whatever. President Ebbets of Brooklyn has already announced that there will be no change in the time of games at Ebbets Field, where they will start as usual at 3:30.

The new state of affairs will benefit baseball clubs and fans in extra-inning games, and when the contests go into extra innings it will not be necessary under the new time schedule to call the contests on account of darkness.

President Tener of the National League was one of the stanchest advocates of the daylight saving law, and last season when the matter was first proposed he delivered several addresses in favor of it at daylight saving rallies. His position in the matter will have a direct influence in changing the attitude of any club owners who had contemplated a change in time.

Out in St. Louis the matter was put up to a popular vote among the fans, but this resulted in very few votes being cast, which proved to the club owners that there was no sentiment among the fans to start the games at a later hour. So in St. Louis the proposal for a later start has been abandoned.

That the American League does not propose to take advantage of the new law is indicated by the action of President Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox. He announced yesterday that the games at Comiskey Park would begin at 3 o'clock. He said that to start at 4 o'clock, as had been suggested by some of the club owners, would be a violation of the law. This action by Chicago is taken as a sure sign that the other American League clubs will take the same attitude.

REACH POGGENBURG FINAL.

Preliminary play in the Poggenburg Memorial Cup handicap billiard tournament at the Broadway Billiard Academy in Brooklyn came to an end with yesterday's matches. There are now four survivors, who will compete in the final round robin event which begins today. Those who will compete are Louis A. Servatius, Claud R. Lewis, Jacob Klinger, and George Spear. This gives a preponderance of Class C men in the tournament. Servatius, Lewis, and Spear are of this division, while Klinger is of the Class A ranks. All of the Class B men have been eliminated. George T. Moon, Jr., almost slipped into the final tournament. In his division there was a tie between himself, Spear and Klinger, but the application of the Olympic system of scoring, which counts total points made by each contestant in all games irrespective of games won and lost, Klinger and Spear surpassed Moon.

DODGERS TUMBLE AGAIN.

Ninth Inning Once More Fatal and Red Sox Win by 3 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 1.—The exhibition series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Red Sox took on all the appearances of a walk-over for Boston today. The Red Sox again trimmed the National Leaguers in a closely contested game, making the series stand 5 to 1 in their favor. The score was 3 to 2.

The Dodgers again stumbled into defeat in the ninth inning. The game was a tie when Boston came up for the last half of the ninth and put over the needed run with two hits and a wild pitch.

Big Jeff Pfeffer made his first appearance in the box. He pitched the last five innings, replacing Jack Coombs. Manager Robinson held out hope that this combination might halt the Red Sox and his hopes were justified until the ninth. Both Coombs and Pfeffer pitched good ball, but two slight mistakes turned the tide against them.

GIANTS BEAT KELLY TEAM.

Aviators Tumbled in Hard-Hitting Game by 14 to 7.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 1.—The Giants went through another frolic today when they took an army motor truck out to Kelly Field, the biggest aviation camp in the world, and downed the Camp Kelly team by a score of 14 to 7.

The aviators made the mistake of using their good pitchers last and their bad ones first. Wales, whom the soldiers have dubbed the Prince of Wales, was the starter, and he made an awful botch of his job. After he had pitched three innings the Giants had eight runs. He passed six men during this period.

Then came a long, lanky boy known as Heinie Zimmerman, who had quite a wind-up, rubbed the ball on his trousers, on the sand, and in his hair, and held conversations with the catchers and infielders before he let go each ball. However, all these things could not help the army.

After that Waukop, a youth who could at least find the plate, went in and pitched four good innings, permitting only two runs. But by the time he got in McGraw had in all his reserves. Fred Anderson, George Smith, and the inveterate Germany Schaefer were the Giant pitchers. The soldiers did not seem to be extra fond of "Andy" and called him all sorts of endearing names, making frequent mention of a powder puff. No bleacher crowd ever rode the athletes harder than these aviation mechanics. They didn't spare their own team, either, particularly their own pitchers.

Anderson permitted four hits in four innings, and the soldiers began to bang Smith pretty hard after he went in, but as the Giants had a lead of 13 to 0, Smith had orders to put them over so as to make it look like a game. Schaefer was nicked for two homers and two singles in the ninth, but he struck out a man.

EIGHT GAMES FOR HARVARD.

'Varsity and Freshmen Baseball Schedules Announced.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 1.—The baseball schedules for the Harvard 'Varsity and freshmen teams were announced today. Each team has eight games.

Two games each with Yale and Princeton are the only intercollegiate contests on the 'Varsity list. The other four games are with service teams. The season opens April 24 with Princeton at Cambridge and closes June 1 with Yale at New Haven.

16 TENNIS TEAMS ENTERED.

National Indoor Doubles Title Tourney Starts Today.

Sixteen teams are entered for the national indoor doubles championship which will begin on the courts of the Seventh Regiment Armory today. The holders of the title from a year ago, Frederick B. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum, will defend. They will be opposed by a number of strong teams, among them that composed of S. Howard Voshell and Fred Baggs. Alan Behr and Vincent Richards, the national boys' champions, are lined up together and W. T. Tilden, 2d, will play with Cecil Donaldson. A reflection of a Father and son tournament possibility is seen in the team made up of Abraham Bassford, Jr., and Abraham Bassford, 3d.

The draw is as follows:

First Round.—Arthur S. Cragin and W. D. Cunningham vs. S. Howard Voshell and Fred C. Baggs. G. G. Grenz and partner vs. C. A. Anderson and partner, S. Kashio and Harold Taylor vs. S. MacAllister and H. L. Bowman, King Smith and G. C. Shafer vs. R. L. James and M. Goldman; J. L. Anderson and Julian S. Myrick vs. Alan Behr and Vincent Richards, W. T. Tilden, 2d, and Cecil Donaldson vs. G. B. Emerson and F. T. Anderson, W. J. Gallon and R. B. Gatcomb vs. Abraham Bassford, Jr., and Abraham Bassford, 3d, Frederick B. RUEL ROUTS BRAVES WITH TIMELY BLOW

New Yankee Catcher Breaks Up Game with Triple, Scoring Bodie and Peck.

Special to The New York Times.

DUBLIN, Ga., April 1.—Muddy Ruel qualified for the elect today when his long triple to right centre in the fifth inning broke up the game and gave the Yankees a 3 to 0 victory over the Braves in the inaugural contest of the series the two teams will play on the swing north. With Bodie and Peckinpaugh on ahead in the fifth and two down, Ruel leaned into one of Canavan's swift ones and hammered the ball far over Bailey's head for three bases, scoring Ping and Roger. Ruel registered later when Red Smith booted Russell's following grounder.

Until the fifth inning, Hugh Canavan, a young left-hander, let the Yankees down without a hit. In the meantime Allen Russell was twirling splendidly and getting gilt-edged support from the Yankee defense. Starting the fifth inning Canavan winged Pipp with a pitched ball. Baker forced Welly, Henry to Conway. Bodie singled to left, planting Frank on third. On an attempted double steal Rawlins dropped Canavan's throw, Baker holding third and Bodie getting to second. Peckinpaugh hit to Rawlins, whose throw got Baker at the plate, Ping taking third.

Here it was that Ruel injected himself into the film. Catching one of Canavan's shoots on the nean Muddy sent the ball screaming to deep right centre, registering Bodie and Peckinpaugh.

The Braves were in charge of Coach Jack Slattery, George Stallings having remained on his Haddock plantation and Ed Konetchy, who the Miracle Man had assigned in command of the squad, having missed the train at Macon. It perhaps was well for the Braves that Stallings was not around, for they gave their pitchers ragged support and could do nothing with the offerings of Russell and Mogridge.

In the five innings Russell was on the mound he limited the Braves to three scattered safeties. Mogridge held them hitless in the last four innings. The Yankees only got four hits off the combined deliveries of Canavan and Tom Hughes, but the New Yorkers made their hits count as the fifth-inning rally shows.

BOUT TO BE HELD IN WEST.

Col. Miller Hints That Willard-Fulton Fray Will Not Be Held in East.

Although it cannot be ascertained definitely, indications now point to the possibility that the proposed heavyweight championship boxing exhibition between Jess Willard, title holder, and Fred Fulton, challenger, will be held at one of the large Western cities. Colorado is said to be the probable State, but there are other locations of the West which are being considered by Colonel J. C. Miller, copartner of Willard in the promotion of the bout. Colonel Miller refused to say positively yesterday whether he had decided on a battleground, but he hinted that the hopes that have been entertained that the bout would be held in the Eastern section of the country would not materialize.

Several additional offers were received yesterday by Colonel Miller, but what these were or from whom they came the Oklahoman refused to divulge. He said, however, that he expected, within the next few days, to be able to announce the site for the contest.

Willard will not visit this city, as had been generally supposed. Colonel Miller stated yesterday that he had received a telegram from the world's champion containing the information that Willard was on his way to Chicago after completing the sale of his circus horses in Baltimore. From Chicago Willard will go to Kansas to help move his household to the new home he has purchased at Lawrence.

SCOFIELD LEADER AT GOLF.

Has Two Strokes on Field in North and South Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1.—One hundred and eighty-five players took part in the opening session of the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the North and South amateur championship tournament at Pinehurst today. E. L. Scofield of the Weeburn Club led with 39, 38—77 on the No. 2 course, finishing two strokes ahead of Dr. C. H. Gardner of the Rhode Island Country Club, whose round of 42, 37—79 was made on the No. 1 course.

Three players tied for third at 80, but of these three only Dewitt Balch of Cincinnati has put the difficulties of No. 2 course behind him, while Louis A. Hamilton of Garden City, and Leslie Deane Pierce of Ekwenok are called upon to conduct their stern chase on that course tomorrow.

Scofield, who has a two-stroke lead on the field, is a strong favorite for the medal. He played the No. 2 course in 73 in the open tournament Saturday.

The scores:

E. L. Scofield, Weeburn, 39, 38—77; Dr. C. H. Gardner, Rhode Island, 42, 37—79; Dewitt Balch, Cincinnati, 41, 39—80; Louis A. Hamilton, Garden City, 43, 37—80; L. Deane Pierce, Ekwenok, 42, 38—80; Guy A. Miller, Detroit, 39, 42—81; Irving S. Robeson, Rochester, 42, 39—81; Donald Parson, Youngstown, 41, 41—82; C. L. Berker, Ekwanok, 44, 39—83; John D. Chapman, Greenwich, 45, 38—83; Frank S. Danforth, North Fork, 41, 43—84; Athel Denham, Moore County, 39, 45—84; Franklin S. Gates, Moore County, 45, 39—84; Presley S. McLaughlin, Ekwanok, 47, 38—85; Robert M. Markwell, Lake Shore, 42, 43—85; Howard G. Phillips, Moore County, 46, 39—85.

Concannon Beats Greenleaf.

Joseph Concannon defeated Ralph Greenleaf in the opening games of their pocket billiard match at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon Concannon won by 100 to 68, and in the evening his triumph was even more decisive, the score in his favor being 100 to 42. The total score for the day's play was Concannon, 200; Greenleaf, 110. The highest run was made by Concannon in the afternoon, when he put together a count of 38.

Brooklyn Soccer Eleven Victor.

Making good use of the extra hour of daylight yesterday two soccer elevens, the Longfellows of Brooklyn and the Continental Football Club played a league match at Macombs Dam Park, the Longfellows winning by the score of 3 goals to 1. Mills, Meyer, and Lomas shot the winners' three goals in the first period of play.

RACING SEASON OPENED.

Large Crowd Sees First Eastern Events at Bowie.

BOWIE, Md., April 1.—The Eastern racing season was ushered in at Prince Georges course here today under ideal weather conditions, with a track exceptionally fast and a crowd which elbowed into almost every available space in the grand stand and on the lawn.

The Bowie Inaugural Handicap was the attraction of an otherwise well-balanced card, but the big race of the day was somewhat dimmed in lustre when the greater part of the field was scratched. It may be that the trainers had found out that Charlie Leydecker, E. McBride's three-year-old colt, was unusually fit for the seven-furlong route, because the McBride colt tow roped his field and won handily by more than a length. From the barrier Charlie Leydecker jumped to the front and opened up a gap of more than six furlongs. Woodstone and Water Lady were sent after the fleet colt, and Woodstone managed to get close up, but tired from the effort and was nipped for the place by Water Lady, which came strong at the finish and forced an extra effort from the winner.

One long shot breezed under the wire when Caro Nome led the field home in the final race of the day. She paid $122.30 for a two-dollar mutuel ticket.

The Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For maiden colts and geldings two years old, purse $750; four furlongs. Time—0:49 1-5.
Mahony, Thomas Clyde's b. c., 114 pounds, by Beach Sand-Fancy Dress, $6.30, $3.70, $3, (Troxler) 1

TILDEN NARROWLY ESCAPES DEFEAT

Veteran Forced Hard to Win from Taylor, Junior Champion, by 9-7, 7-5.

Only the most strenuous kind of play warded off several threatened upsets in the continuation of the national indoor tennis championships at the 7th Regiment Armory yesterday. Probably the most notable instance was in the case of William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, who now finds himself safely in one of the semi-final round brackets. Holder of a national mixed doubles championship with Miss Mary Browne only a few years ago, credited with being the most severe server in any part of the country at the present time and a player of well-rounded ability as well, Tilden was looked upon as having an easy path through the early rounds of the tournament.

It was one of the younger school of players who almost caused his overthrow. In the fourth round that the Quaker City expert encountered Harold Taylor, the Metropolitan junior champion, who has been making a tennis name for himself during the last two years. As well, however, as Taylor has played in the past it is almost certain that he never showed to better advantage than in the match against Tilden. It would ordinarily be said that leading at 5—2 in the first set and 5—3 in the second he would have run both out to his credit, and thereby defeated one of the strongest men playing the game today.

The reverse was true, however, for Tilden with a wealth of experience and strategy to back up his severe play, succeeded in winning both sets, the first at 9—7, the second at 7—5. Yet even in defeat there was almost as much credit for Taylor as if he had won. He gave a masterly exhibition of tennis skill, in fact, was even closer to victory than the score shows. In the first set he was three times playing for the set point, and each time failed to get it, and the same situation arose twice in the second set.

Another near upset came in the match between Frederick B. Alexander and W. J. Gallon. Alexander, one of the most finished players of the East, was sorely pressed to hold the upper hand in a three-set match that went to him at 6—3, 3—6, 8—6. It was a nip and tuck struggle right up to the last. In the final game of the third set Gallon was serving and shot the match ball over close to the lines. It was doubtful whether it was in or out, there being no linesmen on hand, and the players agreed to play the point over. At the time the advantage was with Alexander, and in the replay he won the point and the set.

S. Howard Voshell made his appearance in the tournament yesterday and signalized the event by winning two victories. His first opponent was the redoubtable S. R. MacAllister. He carried the title holder along at a fast pace and had not Voshell been in rare form he might have tasted defeat. As it was, he won by a score of 6—3, 6—1, but the match was much closer than that group of figures indicates.

Voshell won his second victory of the day over Dr. H. J. Horganthaler in a match that was little more than a romp for the indoor champion. The score was 6—3, 6—2. Voshell has now reached the round before the semi-finals and his next opponent will be G. B. Emerson, another of the younger coterie of players.

The summaries:

FIRST ROUND—G. Carleton Shafer defeated Abraham Bassford, Jr., 6—4, 9—7; F. B. Alexander defeated R. L. James, 6—4, 6—1; S. Howard Voshell defeated S. R. MacAllister, 6—3, 6—1; E. J. Post, Jr., defeated A. C. Pestley, 6—1, 6—3.

SECOND ROUND—L. Bry defeated C. Renney, 3—6, 6—0, 7—5; Harold Taylor defeated E. Bry, 6—3, 6—2; Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated Cecil Donaldson, 6—1, 6—4; G. C. Shafer defeated W. H. Pritchard, 6—1, 6—4; H. S. Parker defeated S. W. Merrihew, 6—2, 6—4; F. B. Alexander defeated W. J. Gallon, 6—3, 3—6, 8—6; G. B. Emerson defeated F. T. Anderson, 8—6, 2—6, 6—4; S. H. Voshell defeated Dr. H. J. Morgenthaler, 6—3, 6—2; C. J. Post defeated J. T. Allen, 9—7, 8—6.

THIRD ROUND—W. T. Tilden defeated L. Bry, 6—0, 6—1; H. Taylor defeated P. L. Kyneston, 6—2, 9—7; H. L. Bowman defeated G. G. Greny, 7—5, 6—2; King Smith defeated L. B. Tiebel, 6—4, 6—2.

FOURTH ROUND—W. T. Tilden defeated Harold Taylor, 9—7, 7—5.

CHAJES CHECKMATES RIVAL.

Announces Victory Over Janowski Four Moves Ahead.

By far the most brilliant chess yet exhibited in the match between D. Janowski of Paris and Oscar Chajes, the New York State champion, was witnessed in the eighth of the series at the Manhattan Chess Club yesterday, when Chajes scored his third victory by announcing mate in four moves after thirty-three moves had been recorded. Chajes, playing the white pieces, selected the four knights opening, which was developed along the lines of the Ruy Lopez.

The State champion kept the initiative all through the game, and worked up a vigorous attack, against which the defense of the French champion proved inadequate. After eight games the score of the match reads: Chajes, 3; Janowski, 1; drawn, 4.

Lewis to Head Crimson Track Men.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 1.—Burnham Lewis of Philadelphia was elected Captain of the Harvard 'Varsity track team today. Lewis is a long-distance runner, and last Fall he led the cross-country team.

Yesterday, when small boys were April-fooling folks, we were reminded that there's no string to "your money back" here. If you want it, you get it—good hard cash!

Of course, it takes quality to back that up!

Everything men and boys wear, including things for the car.

For the owner—lambskin coats, soft suede finish; lambskin jackets with silk sleeves; Scotch knit jackets; Jersey knit coats and breeches; "Scotch Mist" overcoats.

All the accessories.

For the chauffeur—livery built to stay smart through the hardest sort of service. With breeches or long trousers. Medium weight whipcord. Oxford serges. Oxford Gabardine.

Caps, gloves, gauntlets, puttees, mackintoshes, rubber coats.

Army officers' uniforms—of our own manufacture, same as all our clothing.

Officers continue to speak of our generous showing in field boots, dress boots, leggins, shoes, red rubbers and rubber boots.

Jordan Demand

WHEN, more than a year ago, Jordan announced the "All-Star" car with custom style bodies and the best chassis units from the world's leading manufacturers, he made unusual claim as to comfort, luxury and quality.

Jordan demand has justified the Jordan idea. You have seen hundreds of Jordans on the roads since. Perhaps you know a Jordan owner or two.

You have seen the beautiful appearance of the car, and the owners will have told you of the comfort and the dependability of its operation.

This year there are new spring body styles. And the demand is greater than ever. The same old time-tried units that have made reputations and fortunes for their makers are all there.

If you want such names as these your choice must be a Jordan.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Moved Forward in a Dull Session—New Tax Ruling Restricts Trading.

There was nothing in the orderly movement of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday to suggest that the critical stage in the great battle raging in France is approaching, or that any other development of interest to traders had effected a change in the situation as it stood at the close of last week. Transactions were on a very small scale, with prices for most issues working higher. About the only spots of particular interest were American Sumatra, which advanced strongly, and Studebaker, which resumed its slump of last week. Elsewhere the list was quiet. There was said to be an almost entire absence of any short selling.

Brokers yesterday took a much more serious view of the recent ruling of the Attorney General holding that stock borrowed and returned must pay a tax of $2 per hundred shares each way, and it was freely predicted that unless that feature of the law can be nullified by a court decision a great deal of injustice will be worked, entirely aside from the restrictive effect of the ruling on short selling. The point was made that a great deal of stock is regularly borrowed to make deliveries on actual sales, whether the seller is not able to produce his certificates in time for the delivery on the day following, and that stock is also regularly borrowed by brokers for use as collateral. Both of these operations will be rendered costly by compliance with the new ruling. It is also a well established practice for brokers to call stock which they have loaned in order to take care of their own deliveries, making it necessary for the borrower to effect other arrangements. In an active market certificates may be changed half a dozen times in as many days, and under the law each substitution will mean another tax of $4. It is not believed that Congress had any such far-reaching penalty, further that is what it amounts to, in mind when it adopted the provision.

Although bond dealers have practically closed up their regular business in order to turn their facilities over to the Liberty Loan Committees for this month they reported yesterday a steady demand for good securities, which has indicated clearly that investors have not been seriously disturbed by fears over the outcome of the German offensive. One of the large distributing agencies will release 75 per cent. of its salesmen for Government work during the campaign which is to be formally inaugurated next week.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Capital Issue Small.

The total output of railroad and industrial stocks, bonds, and notes during the month of March amounted to $74,874,000, compared with $312,115,800 the same month a year ago, according to a compilation made by The Journal of Commerce. The aggregate of new security issues for the first three months of the current year is $309,484,000, compared with $708,570,800 for the same period in 1917. The exceptional decrease in security issues is due to the Government taking over the railroads, and more particularly to the work of the Capital Issues Committee of the Federal Reserve Board, which has been instrumental in restricting the output of new issues to those essential to the war. It is interesting to note that while in March, 1917, the railroads issued $181,000,000 of bonds and notes, last month the total was only about $11,000,000. Security issues of industrial corporations amounted to $63,834,000 last month, as against $131,000,000 in March of 1917.

Municipal Financing Reduced.

The volume of municipal financing in March reflects still further the extent to which municipalities are postponing unnecessary improvements which would require the floating of bond issues, says The Daily Bond Buyer, which estimates the total March sales at $20,000,000. This compares with $35,325,000 for the same month a year ago, and is less than the amount reported for February.

Mercantile Marine's Report.

There has been a great deal of criticism recently of the vagueness of President Franklin's tentative statement regarding the 1917 earnings of the International Mercantile Marine Company. However, nobody has a keener sense of the inadequacy of that report than the officials of the company themselves. They simply cannot be more specific. One officer of the company yesterday told an inquirer that if the caller could find out what the actual net income of the company was for 1917, he—the officer—would be obliged if the inquirer would let him in on the secret. The point is that an essential part of Marine's statement is the returns of its British subsidiaries. But owing to mail congestion, the censorship, and various other handicaps of war, it has so far been impossible to get those returns across the Atlantic. Until they are obtainable, any estimate of the parent company's earnings is only guesswork.

Pitfalls of the Cotton Market.

There was no external reason on display yesterday for cotton to go up—which may have been a contributing factor to a rise which, for a single day, has been exceeded only a few times even in the present season. It was, in fact, only one more demonstration of a truth which has been demonstrated over and over again this year—that the price of a commodity, in a free market, is determined by far-reaching natural causes, and not by any group of speculators, no matter how powerful. Very seldom has there been a more concerted and extended effort made by the speculative element than has been made this year to depress the price of raw cotton—and the only effect has been to make the rise in price, when due, come with greater swiftness and violence. Said one rueful bear yesterday: "When there is a reason for cotton to go up, it goes up—and when there isn't any reason, it goes up, anyway."

Stamp Tax on Checks.

A correspondent inquires why the framers of the war revenue law did not provide for a stamp tax on checks, just as was done at the time of the Spanish-American war. The reason is simple. With the mobilization of the country's gold reserves by the Federal Reserve Banks, and the shifting of bank credits in connection with Government loans, &c., it is desirable that as much as possible of the country's business should be transacted through the medium of checks, and that the use of currency be placed at a minimum. It is clear that if in paying bills one had to attach a 2-cent stamp tax, a great many persons would seek to effect their payments by means of currency. It was to avoid this situation and to encourage the use of checks that Congress did not enact a stamp tax on checks.

The Enormous Tax Payments.

Advocates of payment of income and excess profits taxes in installments—which means practically the entire financial community—find additional arguments for this step in the entirely unexpected amount of the receipts from these taxes. The inability of even the best-informed Government experts to visualize the hugeness of the country's resources when mobilized for war is strikingly exemplified in the report that instead of $2,500,000,000 anticipated from this source, at least $4,000,000,000, and perhaps even $5,000,000,000, will be realized. "It would be a great shock," says the Wollman Review aptly, "both to the business public and the banks, to be obliged to pay these sums into the Treasury at one time."

Advantage of Serial Liberty Loan.

Alfred D. Chandler of Boston calls attention to the differences in interest charges of a straight and of a serial Liberty Loan of $3,000,000,000 at 4¼ per cent. for periods of five, ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five, thirty, forty, and fifty years, all such differences being in favor of the serial method. He presents the following table:

	Saving in Interest By Serial Method.
Five years' time	$255,000,000
Ten years' time	573,750,000
Fifteen years' time	892,521,000
Twenty years' time	1,211,250,000
Twenty-five years' time	1,530,000,000
Thirty years' time	1,818,768,000
Forty years' time	2,780,277,000
Fifty years' time	3,123,750,000

"By the serial method the principal of $3,000,000,000 and the interest thereon are automatically paid in full by the end of the term, and the nation's credit is thereby fortified for both military and commercial uses," Mr. Chandler says. He adds: "By the straight loan the principal is unpaid at maturity and continues, with its additional interest, to be a burden upon posterity, unless a real sinking fund has been created and been successfully maintained, which is impossible on the huge scale of our Liberty Loans. The so-called 5 per cent. 'sinking fund' for the Third Liberty Loan is merely a temporizing, stabilizing fund to counteract vagaries of the bond market."

New Oil Companies.

The total authorized capitalization of oil companies chartered in March, with capital of $100,000 or more each, according to figures compiled by The Oil Trade Journal, and covering all States of the Union, approximated $80,000,000, covering seventy companies. These figures compare with $60,000,000 and fifty-five companies for February, and with $70,000,000 and eighty companies for January.

Hudson Tunnel Net Income Less.

The Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company reports for the month of February gross revenues of $5[illegible], compared with $497,800 in February, 1917, and operating expenses and taxes of $279,650, as against $231,327. The net operating revenue totaled $2[illegible]288, compared with $266,473 the same month a year ago. After deductions for fixed charges, &c., the balance of net income for the month amounted to $[illegible], compared with $50,270 for February, 1917. For the two months the balance of net income is $108,723, compared with $141,001 in 1917.

BANK DROPS GERMAN NAME.

Another Institution Here Gets Rid of Teutonic Designation.

Directors of the German-American Bank, 23 Broad Street, at their meeting yesterday, decided to change the name of the bank to "The Continental Bank of New York."

The Germania Bank, which has its main offices at Spring Street and the Bowery, has announced that beginning April 15 its name will be changed to "Commonwealth Bank."

A few months ago the German Exchange Bank, at Bowery and Bond Street, changed its name to that of the "Commercial Exchange Bank."

PIERCE ARROW EARNINGS.

Motor Car Company Shows Net Profits of $3,598,748 in 1917.

The report of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company for the calendar year 1917 shows net profits of $3,598,748, equivalent to earnings of $11.19 a share on the outstanding common stock, after caring for preferred dividends. A reserve of $1,161,802 was set aside to meet Federal taxes. In 1916 the Pierce Arrow Motor Company, the predecessor of the present company, earned $4,076,167, without any reserve for taxation. For 1917 dividend payments amounted to $1,425,000, leaving a profit and loss surplus of $2,173,748.

Gross sales nearly doubled during the year, the report announces, in great part because of war orders from the United States Government. "In conformity with the desires of the United States Government growing out of the war," the report says, "the current output of passenger cars has been curtailed. The company will, however, continue a moderate schedule of passenger car production sufficient to supply the current demand and to maintain the integrity of the sales organization."

RULING BY GREGORY CURBS SHORT SALES

Sharp Shrinkage Attributed to Taxation on Borrowing and Lending of Stocks.

RESTRICTED TRADING LIKELY

Seller Need Not Pay Four Federal Taxes on Transaction, as at First Announced.

Inquiry among representative Stock Exchange firms yesterday brought the information that short selling supplied no more than a fraction of the business transacted on the board, a sharp shrinkage resulting from the Attorney General's ruling in respect to taxation on the borrowing and lending of stocks. The moderate upward movement in prices was attributed in part to buying by holders of commitments on the short side, who desired to cover their previous short sales lest the application of the ruling cause them to pay increased Federal taxes. Brokers did not hesitate in predicting that trading would be restricted to a substantial degree while the unexpected tax continued in effect.

The traders who hurriedly bought back stocks they had previously sold short were moved by the possibility of frequent borrowings to replace the stocks they had delivered on the original short sales. It frequently happens that a lender calls in his stock after it is lent, making a fresh borrowing by the seller necessary. As the construction put on the law by the Attorney General requires the payment of a tax whenever stock is borrowed and another when it is returned, it would be possible for a heavy tax bill to run up if a transaction on the short side stood uncompleted over a period of several weeks or months.

Contrary to the opinion held in some quarters when the ruling in Washington was first announced, a short seller is not required to pay four Federal taxes in putting through a transaction. He pays 2 per cent. a share on a stock with $100 par and 2 cents a share on a stock without a par when he sells short, another tax of equal amount when he borrows the stock to make delivery, and a third when he returns the borrowed stock. When he covers his short sale a fourth tax is paid, but in this case the seller of the stock to the trader covering a short sale pays the tax. In addition to these imposts, the short seller pays a tax to the State equal to the Federal tax when he sells, and when he covers the person who sells to him pays a State tax of 2 per cent., or 2 cents a share, as the case may be.

A question was asked yesterday whether it would be proper for a broker carrying stock for customers to lend this stock to other customers who had sold short without paying the additional taxes. The ground on which this query was built apparently lay in the theory that the broker handled both transactions and, therefore, there was no borrowing done outside of the office. Governors of the Exchange, to whom the question was put, settled it quickly by asserting that the ruling clearly applied to intra-office transactions as well as to all others.

No steps were taken yesterday, as far as could be learned, to test the ruling of the Attorney General. Members of the Exchange said they were obeying the law strictly. In the "loan crowd" on the Stock Exchange such borrowing of stocks as was put through carried the agreement between lender and borrower that the latter bore both additional Federal taxes.

Trust Company Merger Favored.

Holders of more than 83 per cent. of the capital stock of the Central Trust Company have sent in their proxies indicating their approval of the proposed plan of amalgamation with the Union Trust Company. The stockholders will hold a special meeting on April 11, when the action of the Trustees of the company will be ratified. Under the State banking law the consent of at least two-thirds of the stock ownership is required for effecting a merger.

EARNINGS OF PENNSYLVANIA

February Operating Revenues $31,587,644—Expenses $36,407,749.

The total operating revenues of the Pennsylvania System—East and West—for the month of February amounted to $31,587,644, while the operating expenses, including tax accruals, &c., totaled $36,407,749, showing an operating deficit of $4,820,104. Debit balance on hire of equipment made the net operating deficit $5,702,866. Compared with figures for February, 1917, the revenues increased only $412,872, although the increase in expenses amounted to $6,193,488.

For the first two months of the current year, the operating revenues of the Pennsylvania System totaled $62,709,962, a decrease of $3,915,925 compared with the same period in 1917. The operating expenses of the two months amounted to $73,207,605, an increase of $12,968,622 over 1917. For the two months the railway operating deficit totals $10,497,643, an increase of $16,884,548. The net railway operating deficit for the two months is placed at $12,371,278, an increase of $17,183,106.

March Receipts Bring Total of War Savings Campaign to $128,000,000.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Sales of war savings and thrift stamps in March totalled $54,000,000 and brought the total receipts for the four months since the war savings campaign started to $128,000,000. Officials estimated, however, that actual sales, some of which have not been reported, are about $150,000,000.

War savings workers are planning special efforts during the Liberty Loan campaign, which opens Saturday, to sell more $5 stamps.

BIG JUMP IN COTTON

Determined Efforts to Cover Short Contracts Raises Prices 50 to 81 Points.

Determined efforts to cover short contracts, made by sellers "on the war news" last week, and by some persistent bears who have been sticking to the short side of the market all season until yesterday, caused a sensational advance in cotton prices on the local market yesterday. The close, a trifle off from the best under realizing by floor traders, was from 50 to 81 points above Thursday's close, and the high prices of the day represented new high records for the season, if not for the history of the cotton trade, all down the line.

Save for internal conditions, there was no particular reason discernible for the advance. Crop news was generally good, and the week-end statistical reports had shown more cotton on hand in the South than had been expected; but apparently there was a much bigger short interest in the market than had been suspected, and also because of the experience gained in closing out the March contracts, a more easily stampeded one. Consequently, although May contracts have still six weeks in which to be met, and July contracts two months beyond that, when the morning quotations showed that the market was going to remain firm, the buying orders began to come in thick and fast.

Aside from the short covering there was a normal accumulation of trade buying orders from the three-day holiday, but trade buyers were inclined in many cases to drop out and wait for better buying opportunities when the prices began to soar. As a result, the greatest volume of business of a very active session was done in the morning, and in the afternoon the continued advance seemed due more to a scarcity in the floating supply of contracts than to an unusually broad demand. The advance was led by May and July, which the speculative element had been selling short earlier in the season, on the theory that the end of the season would find more cotton on hand than had been expected. New-crop months followed the advance in those positions at a more moderate pace, and at the close were around 50 points lower in proportion.

No exports were reported yesterday. The total for this season stands at 3,046,590 bales, against 4,363,823 bales a year ago. Southern spot markets were reported unchanged to 50 points higher.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The copious rains of last week in the Southwest have very materially benefited the Winter wheat crop in that section. It was said that many fields which were thought to have been practically devoid of life have greened up rapidly, and farmers throughout Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas feel very hopeful over the present outlook. The crop is also looking well over the greater part of the Winter wheat belt, and already guesses have been advanced that if the season proves at all favorable this year's yield may amount to 550,000,000 to 600,000,000. Receipts at primary points were a trifle larger than last week, but the total was still of small proportions compared with other years.

RYE.

The local rye market remained entirely nominal in absence of business and owing to a scarcity of offers.

CORN.

The corn market felt the influence of the favorable crop prospect for wheat and oats and prices were lower, closing with a partial rally, but ⅛c below the final of last week. Cash oats in the West were again weak and prices in some cases were from 10 to 15 cents under Saturday's figures. The Chicago Board of Trade will vote on Saturday on the new contract which makes No. 4 corn deliverable, and it was the prevailing impression that if this is adopted by the leading Western markets trading operations will be more active in the July position, with less restrictions than prevail at present. Receipts at primary points were about 400,000 bushels less than on last Monday. Receipts are expected to fall off as the season advances, but they are still much above last year. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.87½; No. 4 yellow, $1.80½; No. 3 white, $2.20½, cost and freight, New York; Argentine corn, $2.50, free on board cars.

OATS.

Most flattering reports regarding the prospects for the new crop of oats caused an easier feeling in the oats market on Monday, and at the close values were 1½c not lower for contracts. Cash prices in the West were 1@2½c lower, and apparently export buyers were less in evidence. The local cash market was easier; natural quoted at $1.05½@1.06½; clipped white $1.06@1.08, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was weak under liquidation prompted by reports of large stocks of meats at Western points and a slow cash demand. Toward the close, however, there was a partial recovery on covering, and at the close the tone was steady, especially for lard. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 57,000; estimated for Tuesday, 33,000. Kansas City received 10,000 and Omaha 14,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

The necessity of conforming to the maximum price regulations gave the coffee market rather an irregular appearance during yesterday's trading. May contracts, which had closed at 8.80c bid on Thursday, were marked down to 8.65c, representing the maximum based on the current month price of 8.50c. Aside from this readjustment, there was scattering liquidation of September, but as soon as the selling of that delivery had been absorbed on a decline of about 10 points the general list ruled steady on scattered covering or trade buying. The opening was 2 points higher to 8 points lower, and the market closed at a net decline of 15 points on April and May, while other months were 5 points lower to 4 points higher. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There has been little in the way of fresh developments in the sugar situation. Refiners are making moderate distribution from day to day, but the irregularity in arrival of raw supplies has been a handicap to operations at the refineries. The International Committee announced the purchase of 34,500 bags Cubas, April shipment, at 4.985c., cost and freight, and 14,000 bags Porto Rico, at 6.003c., cost, insurance, and freight, April shipment. The question of securing sufficient tonnage to move the rapidly accumulating stocks at Cuban points is causing no little uneasiness in the trade.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 12,634 packages, including 3,197 packages in transit for export. Buyers are showing fair interest and the market is a little firmer for most grades of fresh creamery. There is delay in getting stock from the docks due to freight handlers' strike. The previous accumulations are being reduced steadily. Renovated quiet. Ladles a little slow but steady. Not much packing stock arriving. Creamery, higher than extras, per lb., 45½@44c; extras, (92 score,) 43c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38½@40½c; thirds, 36@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44½@45c; extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 41½@43c; seconds, 38@41c; creamery, held, as to quality, 35@41c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42@43c; good to primo, 39@41½c; common to fair, 35@38c; renovated, extras, 39@40c; firsts, 36@38½c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 36@37c; ladles, current make, firsts, 35@35½c; seconds, 33½@34c; lower grades, 31@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 28@32c.

EGGS.—38,940 cases. Arrivals are heavy again, but the advices indicate some decrease in shipments in transit. There is only a moderate distributing trade following Easter and the Jewish holidays, but there is still considerable inquiry for high-grade eggs, and the market is receiving considerable support from a disposition to store high qualities rather than force sales on the present market. Western advices are generally firm and values here are fully supported, but the market is showing a steady to firm tone, except on white eggs, which are in considerable accumulation, moving slowly and tending in buyers' favor, with a prospect that storage buyers will have to be depended upon to clear the market, and the prices that they will pay are not yet definitely known. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 39c; storage packed firsts, 37½@38½c; regular packed extra firsts, 37@37½c; regular packed firsts, 35½@36½c; seconds, 34@35c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 34@35c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@33c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 32@33c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 41@42c; ordinary to prime, 39@40c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 39@41c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 38@40c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 39@40c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 38@38c; duck eggs, nearby Indian runner, 63c; Long Island, 61@65c; Baltimore, prime to choice, 60c; Western and prime Southern, 55@58c; ordinary Southern and far Southern, 50@55c.

INSURANCE STATUTE IN MISSOURI VOID

Federal Supreme Court Reverses Decree That Upheld Non-Forfeiture of Life Policies.

COMPANIES HERE ELATED

Hail Decision as Ending 15 Years of What They Affirm Was Unjust Treatment.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Missouri nonforfeiture statute regulating insurance companies was, in effect, declared invalid by the Supreme Court today in reversing Federal court decrees preventing the New York Life Insurance Company from forfeiting a life insurance policy for nonpayment of premiums.

The court held that the statute "transcends the power of the State." Justices Day, Pitney, Clark and Brandeis dissented.

The invalidation by the Supreme Court of the Missouri law governing life insurance contracts was received yesterday by officials of life insurance companies in this city with a great deal of elation. They were inclined to hail the decision as "a relief from fifteen years of unjust treatment" accorded life insurance companies having branches in Missouri.

They pointed out that only last week the New York Life Company was beaten in the Missouri courts on a case which invoked the Missouri statute, and the Mutual Life Insurance Company has pending a $50,000 case under the same statute. The decision affects all policies written before March, 1903, at the time the first decision on the law was made in the Missouri courts, and involves policies aggregating millions of dollars.

The case decided yesterday by the Supreme Court involved a suit brought by Mrs. Lea F. Dodge, widow of Josiah B. Dodge, of St. Louis, Mo., against the New York Life Insurance Company. The brief for the defendant was filed with the Supreme Court last October by James H. McIntosh, general counsel of the company, and James G. Jones.

The principal in the case was Josiah B. Dodge, who on Oct. 20, 1900, took out a policy insuring his life for $5,000, naming his wife as beneficiary. About six years later he and his wife borrowed from the company $1,350 on the pledge of the policy as collateral security. The policy lapsed for the nonpayment of the premium due on Oct. 20, 1907, and thereupon, according to a provision in the policy, the indebtedness became due and the company foreclosed the pledge by satisfying the indebtedness out of the reserve held by it on the policy. This exhausted the entire reserve, and on Dec. 17, 1907, Mr. Dodge was notified that the policy had no further value.

Nothing was done after that by Mr. Dodge or his wife, who made no offer to pay any premium or loan interest, according to the brief, although the insured lived until Feb. 12, 1912. Two years after his death, counsel for Mrs. Dodge wrote to the company, claiming that Mr. Dodge and his beneficiary could not dispose of their policy in the way they had done because of the nonforfeiture provisions of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1899, Section 7,897, which provided as follows:

"No policies of life insurance hereafter issued by any life insurance company authorized to do business in this State, on and after the 1st day of August, 1899, shall, after payment on it of three annual payments, be forfeited or become void by reason of nonpayment of premiums thereof, but it shall be subject to the following rules of commutation, to wit: The net value of the policy, when the premium becomes due, and is not paid, shall be computed upon the actuaries' or combined experience table of mortality, with 4 per cent. interest per annum, and after deducting from three-fourths of such net value any notes or other evidence of indebtedness to the company, given on account of past premium payments on said policies, issued to the insured, which indebtedness shall then be canceled, the balance shall be taken as a net single premium for temporary insurance for the full amount written in the policy; and the term for which said temporary insurance shall be in force shall be determined by the age of the person whose life is insured at the time of default of premium, and the assumption of mortality and interest aforesaid."

It was claimed by counsel for Mrs. Dodge that neither she nor her husband, according to this statute, could rid themselves of the continued insurance which the reserve named in the statute. On suing the New York Life Insurance Company in the Missouri courts, Mrs. Dodge won the verdict, and judgment was rendered accordingly, but the company appealed to the highest court in Missouri, which sustained the lower court's decision. Thereupon appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court.

It was claimed in the brief filed by the company that the case was unconstitutional because it was in violation of Section 1, Article XIV., of the amendment to the Constitution, which deprived it of its property without due process of law, and also deprived the parties to the contract of their liberty of contract without due process of law.

ADOPTS FINANCE BILL.

Conference Report Accepted by Senate and Sent to House.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The conference report on the Administration bill establishing a War Finance Corporation with $500,000,000 capital and power to issue $3,000,000,000 of bonds to assist war industry was adopted late today by the Senate and sent to the House, which probably will act tomorrow.

Explaining the conferees' agreement, Senator Simmons said that in fixing $3,000,000,000 as the amount of bonds the corporation might issue they had "split the difference" between $4,000,000,000, authorized by the Senate bill, and $2,000,000,000, by the House.

The voluntary security issues licensing plan, under a Capital Issues Committee of seven members, Senator Simmons said, would have about the same effect in actual practice as the compulsory plan originally proposed by Secretary McAdoo, since without the approval of the committee it would be difficult to find any market for securities.

In reply to a question by Senator Cummins of Iowa, Senator Simmons said he thought cities, counties, school districts, and similar public municipal corporations would have to submit proposed bond issues for public improvements to the Capital Issues Committee.

WILLYS-OVERLAND CO. EARNS $6,121,544

The report of the Willys-Overland Company and its subsidiaries for the calendar year 1917 shows a net income, after all deductions, including reserve for taxes, of $6,121,544, equivalent to $3.16 a share on the common stock, after payment of regular preferred stock dividends. In 1916 the company earned $9,565,718, equivalent to $5.71 a share on the common stock then outstanding. The decrease in actual earnings amounted to $3,444,174.

The net earnings of the company and its subsidiaries, after ordinary deductions and reserve for taxes, aside from interest payments and depreciation, &c., increased slightly, being $10,193,490, instead of $10,016,420, and the decrease in net income was consequently due to the writing off of $1,330,798 for depreciation, $559,940 against parts of discontinued models, increase in interest charges, &c. As the dividends paid on the common stock exceeded the actual earnings after these deductions, the company drew on its surplus to the extent of $2,318,026, and this, with other expenses charged against the surplus, decreased the latter from $27,596,593 to $24,304,384.

President Willys in his report discusses the purchase by the company of "a substantial interest" in the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motors Corporation as part of the mobilization of an effective manufacturing force behind the country's aviation program, in the course of "a rapid and sweeping readjustment from a peace to a war manufacturing basis."

"Orders of this company to date for airplane motors and parts amount to in excess of $12,000,000, and further heavy orders are assured," says the report. "An important ordnance contract has been undertaken amounting to over $15,000,000. Negotiations have been completed for a large munitions contract, for the execution of which the company's machine shops are admirably fitted. The company is thus prepared to counteract any probable curtailment of passenger car production. The net earnings for 1917 received no benefit from the war work program, but on the contrary were adversely affected through the second half year."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

With the volume of business comparatively small, the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange closed yesterday with prices of the leading securities showing fractional net gains. The closing quotations, however, were at a lower level than the day's high. The tone of the market was inclined to irregularity during the greater part of the session.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company

To the Stockholders of The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company:

NOTICE is hereby given that the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company will be held in Harmonie Hall, No. 9 Elm Street, in the City of New Haven, Connecticut, on Wednesday, the 17th day of April, 1918, at 12:00 o'clock noon, for the following purposes:

1. To consider and take appropriate action upon the Statement of the affairs of The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, for the year ending December 31, 1917, and all acts described therein or reported at said meeting.
2. To elect a Board of Directors for the ensuing year.
3. To consider and act upon the proposition to authorize the issue of debentures of this corporation to the aggregate amount of not exceeding sixteen million seven hundred and fifty-eight thousand dollars, ($16,758,000,) to be payable on May 1, 1957, and to bear interest at the rate of four (4) per cent. per annum, to be exchanged for an equal amount of Four Per Cent. Fifty-Year Gold Debentures of the Providence Securities Company, due May 1, 1957, heretofore assumed as the direct obligations of this Company and guaranteed by this Company as to payment of principal and interest; such debentures of this Company, if issued, to contain a stipulation or agreement on the part of the holder to waive any and all right to have payment of such debentures secured by any mortgage hereafter created upon this Company's railroad, or any part thereof, for the purpose of securing payment of obligations issued to pay or refund any indebtedness now in excess of the amount outstanding on May 15, 1915, or to provide funds for capital expenditures.
4. To approve the issue of this Company's bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness for periods of more than one year for the purpose of providing funds requisite for maturing obligations, for additions to, betterments and extensions of, the Company's road, equipment, and other property and for other lawful and proper expenditures.
5. To authorize or ratify the making of an agreement with the United States of America regarding compensation for the use and operation of this Company's transportation property and appurtenances, the possession of which was taken by the President of the United States at noon on December 28, 1917, by proclamation made December 26, 1917, and to empower or confirm the authority of such representatives of this Company as the Board of Directors may designate to execute, acknowledge and deliver said agreement in the name and on behalf of the Company under its corporate seal.
6. To transact any other business which may properly come before said meeting.

For the purpose of this meeting the transfer books of the Company will be closed from the close of business April 9, 1918, and reopened on April 18, 1918.

Dated at New Haven, Connecticut, this 26th day of March, 1918.

By order of the Board of Directors.
ARTHUR E. CLARK, Secretary.

Unlimited

Whether you have a Hundred Thousand or a Million Dollars in outstanding accounts, an American Unlimited Credit Insurance policy automatically covers them. The limitation stipulates the coverage on each rated debtor.

Not only does the American's Unlimited Policy provide absolute protection against excessive losses on all outstanding covered accounts; it does more—it serves to prevent losses. It also provides for the allowance of covered accounts not over 45 days past due, if the company fails to collect them.

If you are a manufacturer or a jobber, write for the full particulars of this service.

Sleeveless Waists Popular.

Though there are many waist designs selling this Spring, the sleeveless models are reported by a number of local manufacturers to be among the most popular features introduced so far this year. They have been worked out in a great many attractive variations by different manufacturers, and are said to be having a ready sale in practically every section of the country. Mixtures of dark but rich colors in designs of an Oriental nature are even more popular in these creations, it is said, than the brighter and more conventional effects.

Women Will Dress Despite War.

Easter business this year, in the opinion of several authorities in the women's ready-to-wear industry in this city, serves as a concrete refutation of the prediction made in some quarters that women are not going to buy smart clothes while the country is at war. Many gorgeously designed and brilliantly executed dresses, as well as coats and suits, had a very heavy pre-Easter sale, and price seemed to be very little considered in the high-grade merchandise. "While the war lasts women will dress better not worse," said one authority, "just as they have been doing in England ever since the war started."

Returned Goods Evil Decreases.

The percentage of merchandise returned in the local department stores during the last month is said to have been remarkably low. In spite of the fact that a large Easter business was done, it is said that the record of returned goods is considerably lower than it was during the same period a year ago. Trade authorities believe that it is a great deal the result of more careful buying on the part of the public, prompted, it is thought, partly by their desire to co-operate with the stores in eliminating this evil and partly by the high prices which tend to cut down impulsive purchases.

Gray Goods Buying Fair.

While it lacked much of the snap that characterized trading in the recent past, a fairly active business was done in the local gray goods market yesterday. Prices generally were firm and new levels were reached in some instances. For instance, April lots of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 19 cents, and the same was true of 38½-inch 64-60s at 17 cents. Nearby sales of 39-inch 56-44s were put through at 14¾ cents, and further business, for similar delivery, was done on 38½-inch 60-48s at 15½ cents. In some quarters 22¼ cents is asked for 39-inch 80 squares, but they can still be had here at 22. In the coarse goods, sales of four-yard 48-square sheetings were made at 21½ cents, with most sellers asking 22 cents for nearby lots of four-yard 56-60 sheetings. Printcloth prices closed this way:

39-inch, 80-80s....22c	38½-inch, 64-60s..17c
39-inch, 68-72s....19c	38½-inch, 60-52s..15½c
39-inch, 56-44s....14¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s..15½c
38½-inch, 64-64s..17½c	27-inch, 64-60s...12½c

Large Handkerchief Orders.

Wholesalers who now have men on the road taking orders for handkerchiefs being told of, despite the current prising increase in advance sales as compared with last year. All classes of goods are sharing in this business, an especially good run on linen handkerchiefs being told of, despite the current high prices. Men's linen goods, for instance, that a year or so ago jobbed at $2.75 a dozen, are now priced at $4 or thereabouts. Cotton handkerchiefs are up about 60 per cent. as compared with 1917 prices, but this increase is not considered excessive in view of the sharp advance that has taken place in unfinished cottons in the meantime. The rise in silk handkerchiefs is said to have been, in percentages, the smallest of all. A great many Japanese silk goods are now being disposed of in this country.

Formal Evening Gowns Selling.

Evening gowns, even those of a strictly formal nature, are proving to be very much in demand this season, according to several of the leading dressmakers on Fifth Avenue. "Gorgeously simplified effects," as the head of one establishment expressed it, are usually preferred by the best dressed women. Some simple models, fitted and somewhat on the order of the princess gown, and with moderately narrow skirts, depend for their effectiveness on the rich materials and the brilliant colors employed. With many of these gowns a good figure is a prime necessity. Net is being used a great deal for trimming and for draped effects.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Central Trust Co. Buys Office Building at 74 Broadway from Franklin Pettit.

Franklin Pettit resold yesterday to the Central Trust Company, which was recently in a merger with the Union Trust Company, the twenty-one-story office structure known as the Century Building at 74 Broadway and extending through to 9 and 11 New Street. The building covers a plot with a frontage of 45.6 feet on Broadway and 44.7 feet on New Street, with north and south lines of 112 and 117.2 feet, respectively. It adjoins the tall office building at 80 Broadway, owned by the Union Trust Company.

The Century Building was acquired several weeks ago by Mr. Pettit from a company headed by Peter Marie, who built in 1901, from plans by Bruce Price, at an estimated cost of $900,000. It is assessed by the city at $1,250,000.

$1,250,000 Wall Street Lease.

In one of the most important transactions of its kind closed in the financial district for a number of years, the Pacific Development Corporation, with subsidiaries such as the Pacific Commercial Company, Andersen, Meyer & Co., Limited, Hartmann Brothers, Incorporated, the International Vegetable Oil Company, and the American Machine and Manufacturing Company, leased the twelve-story Taber Building, at 78 and 80 Wall Street, northeast corner of Pearl Street, for twenty-one years, from Klein & Jackson at a rental involving more than $1,250,000.

The building was erected about ten years ago by the G. A. Fuller Construction Company. In the future it will be known as the Pacific Development Building and will be equipped by the lessee with every appliance to make the structure adaptable for its increasing business. The corporation is engaged in import and export trade in the Philippine Islands.

Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker in the transaction. Stoddard & Mark were the attorneys for Klein & Jackson and A. J. Ridley of Sullivan & Cromwell represented the tenants.

Packers to Build on First Avenue.

The H. C. Derby Company, packer, has purchased from Swift & Co. the two four-story buildings at the southwest corner of First Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, on a plot 50.5 by 100. The buyer will erect a five-story cold-storage building on the site, and give up its present quarters at 622 West Thirty-ninth Street. At the office of the H. C. Derby Company it was said yesterday that building operations were expected to be undertaken shortly and it was hoped to have the new building ready for occupancy about Sept. 1.

Ira S. Bushey & Sons have purchased from the estate of Jeremiah P. Robinson, as a site for the erection of a large shipbuilding plant, a block front on Gowanus Canal and Court Streets, Brooklyn, with a frontage on the canal of 495 feet. The purchasers now have a large shipyard at the foot of Twentieth Street, Brooklyn.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the sale.

Brooklyn.

Snowder & Smith sold for Joseph R. Spellman to the Hauck Manufacturing Company the plot of five lots on the south side of Tenth Street, about 100 feet east of Second Avenue. Some months ago the same brokers sold this plot for Charles Lefferts & Co. to the present sellers. The Hauck Company contemplates the erection of a factory building on the site.

The Ulster Court Corporation, Joseph B. Abramson, President, has conveyed to the Benenson Realty Company the three-story brick building at the southwest corner of New Utrecht Avenue and Sixty-ninth Street. This property is at the foot of the subway station. The consideration was all cash. It has been held at $20,000.

Queens Borough Sales.

Walter E. Blythe has purchased 60 Chestnut Street, Richmond Hill, a three-story frame dwelling, on a plot 40 by 100, from John Bruns. Williams & Son negotiated the sale.

J. B. Halleran sold to the Twinboro Corporation a plot, 100 by 250 feet, on the northeast corner of Linden Avenue and Orchard Street, Flushing.

F. C. Wolfe sold to the Gross Construction Company a plot, 100 by 140 feet, on the south side of Arlington Terrace, 140 feet west of Wyckoff Avenue, and a plot, 100 by 140 feet, on the north side of Arlington Terrace, 140 feet west of Wyckoff Avenue, Jamaica. In part payment, the Gross Construction Company transferred to Mr. Wolfe the property, 40 by 100 feet, on the south side of Hillside Avenue, twenty-two feet west of Flushing Avenue, Jamaica.

R. J. Hertel sold to J. A. O'Fee the dwelling and plot, 75 by 100 feet, on the southwest corner of Second Street and Fourteenth Avenue, Whitestone.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The barometer is still generally low east of the Rocky Mountains, with a centre of low pressure in Colorado. A strong anti-cyclone is moving southeastward over Alberta. There have been general rains, and in some cases thunder showers east of the Mississippi, and snow has fallen in Montana and Western South Dakota.

Temperature is considerably above the seasonal average east of the Mississippi, and there has been a marked fall in the last twenty-four hours in the North Rocky Mountain region.

The weather in the Washington forecast district will continue warm Tuesday, but a change to much cooler, with scattered rains, is indicated for Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, the Lower Lake Region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England.

It will be cooler Tuesday in the Upper Lake Region and along the Lower Lakes.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh southwest, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate southwest to west, fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south, fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Tuesday, except local rains, and colder in the northern portion. Wednesday, partly cloudy and colder.
Southern New England—Fair Tuesday. Wednesday, unsettled and colder.
New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair and continued warm Tuesday. Wednesday, local rains and cooler.
Western New York—Partly cloudy, cooler Tuesday. Wednesday, showers.
Northern New England—Showers Tuesday. Wenesday, partly cloudy and colder.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	60	55	4 P. M.	79	69
6 A. M.	55	53	6 P. M.	76	67
9 A. M.	61	52	9 P. M.	60	62
12 M.	73	64	11 P. M.	51	57

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 60; for the corresponding date last year it was 64; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 43. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 51; at 8 P. M. it was 66. Maximum temperature, 70 degrees at 6 P. M.; minimum, 50 degrees at 7:35 A. M. Humidity, 51 per cent. at 8 A. M., 48 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.85 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.73 inches.

United States.

The commission announces for May 8 at the New York Custom House an examination for Assistant Observer, Weather Bureau, for men. Vacancies in offices of the Weather Bureau throughout the United States, at $1,080 a year, will be filled from this examination. Competitors will be examined in meterology, penmanship, English composition upon some meteorological subject, elementary physics, mathematics, copying and correcting manuscript, and geography of the United States. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their thirty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

President Somers yesterday appointed Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Russell, and Mr. Yeska as a special committee to consider the question of providing luncheon service in the public schools.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training, and Assistant Director Way will receive a bonus of $1,000 a year each for their extra work in connection with the physical training of public school boys.

Mrs. Susan C. McShane, who resigned as a teacher in 1908, when she married, and who has been doing substitute teaching at various times since, wrote to the Board of Education withdrawing her resignation and asked to be reinstated as a regular teacher. She said that she resigned because the law at that time rendered her liable to charges because of her marriage, but that the law had been changed since. President Somers thought that it would be a bad precedent to restore her to her former position. Associate Superintendent Shallow and James C. Byrnes of the Board of Examiners said that if she was appointed a regular teacher the matter would be tested in the courts by some of those on the eligible lists. Her request was not granted.

Alfred Kosta, teacher of Spanish in the Commercial High School, will be transferred to the office of Associate Superintendent Tildsley.

MAKE QUICK ARREST IN GAMING MURDER

Police Accuse Morris Rothenberg of Slaying Rich Burglar and Gambler.

NEGRO IDENTIFIES HIM

Elevator Boy Pursued Murderer, Who Took Flight After Shooting Swann Inquiry Witness.

RECALLS ROSENTHAL CASE

Sam Schepps Examined on Suspicion He Might Know Who Killed Latest Informer.

Harry Cohen, known as "Harry the Yot," a burglar, who lived in a $75 a month apartment at 7 West Ninety-second Street, owned an automobile, and handed over to his wife every week from $200 to $1,500, was shot and killed in the hallway of his apartment house yesterday morning at 7:10 o'clock, an hour and a half after he had called upon Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith and promised to give testimony against a number of gamblers.

Late last night Morris Rothenberg, 28 years old, a waiter and bartender, of 740 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, was arrested and charged with the murder by Detectives Mullins, Finan, La Rue, and Newman of the Fourth Branch. Companions of Cohen on Sunday night asserted that they had last seen him in the company of Rothenberg. Joseph Edney, the negro elevator boy of the apartment house where Cohen lived, saw Rothenberg at the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau and identified him as the man who had killed Cohen.

Rothenberg denied that he was implicated in the murder, but said he had been gambling all night with Cohen at a place near Sixth Avenue and Eleventh Street. He said he had also been at Seventh Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, near the jewelry shop of Schepps, with Cohen, during the night. According to his story, he parted with Cohen an hour before the murder took place.

Cohen had for about ten days been promising the District Attorney's office that he would tell all he knew about gambling. He telephoned last Monday to Assistant District Attorney Smith that he had lost more than $300 playing against a roulette wheel in a large downtown hotel. He said he had learned that the wheel had been tampered with, and that he intended to take his revenge by having the place raided. Later he called again at the District Attorney's office and promised to give the testimony that would convict five of the biggest gamblers in the city.

Cohen failed to produce any evidence, however, and was evidently hesitating until yesterday morning, when he called up Assistant District Attorney Smith and made an appointment to see him at the Criminal Courts Building at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and unburden himself of all incriminating information. Detectives under Captain McKenna learned later that Cohen had been gambling all night, and that he had lost the last penny which he carried in his pockets a short time before he called the Assistant District Attorney out of bed to assure him that he was going to impart all that he knew about gambling in New York.

Cohen also promised further information, which was to be of interest to the United States Government, according to District Attorney Swann. While the nature of this information was not made public by the District Attorney, it was reported that Cohen promised to give evidence against a ring which was attempting to carry on traffic in heroin and other prohibited drugs at the United States Army posts. This was said to have been done at the instigation of German agents for the purpose of injuring the work of American soldiers.

The murder of Cohen on the eve of his promised disclosures bore a startling resemblance to the murder of Herman Rosenthal, for which Police Lieutenant Becker was put to death, but the facts surrounding the killing gave it rather more the appearance of a private quarrel.

Cohen arrived at his apartment shortly before 7 o'clock yesterday morning, according to his wife. He was accompanied by a man who went up with him in the elevator and waited in the hall outside. Cohen went to a bureau in his apartment and took out a fifty-dollar bill, telling his wife that it was for a man outside.

Cohen and his companion then went down to the ground floor, where Cohen gave Edney, the elevator man, the number of the Royal Café, at 188 Second Avenue, to call on the telephone. Cohen had started to talk over the telephone when his companion opened fire.

Pursuit of the Slayer.

Edney ran out of the alcove, where the switchboard is placed, in time to see the murderer, who was short and dark, running out the building. Edney gave chase. The murderer ran to Central Park West and then southward, finally boarding an Eighth Avenue car. Edney continued to pursue the car, shouting, he said, but was distanced and finally gave up the chase. Detectives under Captain McKeona later found the revolver near the place where Edney had described the murderer as boarding the car. When Edney returned he found that Cohen was dying, two bullets having taken effect in his head.

The police first began their investigation on the theory that Cohen, who has a record as a "night burglar," had been killed by an accomplice over the division of the spoils, but the investigation took a different turn after Assistant District Attorney Smith heard of the murder. His first step was to request the police to bring to the Criminal Courts Building the notorious Sam Schepps, one of the men who planned the murder of Herman Rosenthal and obtained immunity by giving testimony which resulted in the conviction of Lieutenant Becker.

Schepps, who was questioned at length, promised to help in obtaining certain information. Schepps was associated with Cohen, according to District Attorney Smith, through a woman known as Grace Leslie, recently sent to the workhouse after a raid on her apartment in Riverside Drive.

Among the papers found by the police after this raid were a number of checks made out by the woman and cashed by Schepps. These had interested District Attorney Swann because Cohen had told a sensational story about the Leslie woman.

The District Attorney's office first made the acquaintance of Harry Cohen or "Harry the Yot," when he volunteered information concerning Grace Leslie. His story regarding the woman, according to District Attorney Swann, was one which might be of great interest to the Federal Government. It was reported later that "the Yot" had told about a band which had been engaged by German agents to smuggle drugs into army posts.

Schepps Shows Indignation.

Schepps, who had been conducting a jewelry shop in Seventh Avenue, near Forty-seventh Street, asserted that he knew nothing about the Cohen case and believed that he had been dragged in to increase the resemblance of the case to the Rosenthal case, which gave political prominence to Charles S. Whitman. He said:

"I have been brought into this just for local color. I knew 'Harry the Yot' by reputation, just as I knew Jesse James. I'm a bit of window-dressing, a bunch of ribbon, to help the case along for the District Attorney. It is a shame that a man should be taken away from his business and kept waiting here all day just for a pretext to get the use of his name in connection with the case."

Grace Leslie was interrogated about the murder of "Harry the Pot" to see if she could disclose any new motive of revenge for his murder, but she refused to answer questions.

Cohen, who was 38 years old, had been arrested for burglary on ten occasions since 1901, but had only been convicted twice, and had then served sentences of a few months only. Inspector Cray said that he was one of the cleverest burglars in the country, and that he practiced "night burglaries," entering apartment houses from fire escapes, a type of burglary which the police have found the hardest of all in which to get evidence to convict a clever man.

Assistant District Attorney Smith said yesterday that Cohen's most recent source of income had not been from burglaries, but from his interest in three gambling houses. Inspector of Detectives Cray said yesterday that the police had found no connection between Cohen and gambling houses.

Whatever his source of income, Cohen was able to live luxuriously. The police found his apartment furnished in costly style, while Mrs. Cohen had a fine assortment of jewelry, including several large diamonds.

When the police reached the apartment house they found Mrs. Cohen in the company of Mrs. Lillian Jordan of Bayonne and Mrs. Frieda Singer of 72 West Eighty-ninth Street, who had spent the night at the Cohen apartments after an automobile ride with Mrs. Cohen. All three were detained and questioned, but later released when it was found that they knew nothing about the movements of Cohen.

Ignorant of Husband's Record.

Mrs. Cohen, who was overwhelmed with grief over her husband's death, was shocked when detectives showed her a picture of her husband from the Rogues' Gallery. She said that during their four years of married life she had never known that her husband was a burglar, and had never been accurately informed as to the source of her husband's income, which sometimes amounted to $1,500 a week. She said that lately she had understood that he was gambling.

Police Captain McKenna and Detectives Mullins, Finan, Newman, and La Rue brought to the Criminal Courts Building last night a man named Joe Zorak, or Ehrlich, and another named Charlie Zinc, both of whom admitted having been with Cohen on the night before the murder.

District Attorney Swan said last night that the real name of Grace Leslie was Marie von Schill, a young woman of Baltimore, who was of German birth. He said:

"The Government will be much interested in the information which we are now gathering."

Assistant District Attorney Smith said:

"This is the Rosenthal case over again, except that no police are mixed up in it. Cohen was put out of the way to prevent his squealing. Like many men who have interests in gambling resorts, he would never gamble in his own place, but always go up against some other man's game. He had been cheated repeatedly, he claimed, and wanted revenge on the men who had swindled him.

"While he had seen me several times recently and made promises to tell all he knew, he probably hesitated because of his own interest in gambling places. He visited me three nights ago at my house, and had previously called myself and Judge Swann on the telephone several times. I believe that certain gamblers found out that he was getting ready to squeal and decided to put him out of the way."

WANTS NO WASTE OF MEAT.

Food Board Warns the Public Against Extravagant Consumption.

The order suspending the usual Tuesday meatless regulations for the next thirty days goes into effect for the first time today. Throughout April meat may be eaten on Tuesday, as well as on the other days of the week. The Federal Food Board yesterday called attention to the fact that the suspension of the regulation did not authorize an extravagant or wasteful consumption of meat. "Eat meat, but only as much as you require for your needs, and not one bit more," is the general advice of the Food Board on the subject.

Yesterday was the first day of the new scale of milk prices. Under an agreement reached by producers and distributers the prices for April will involve a reduction of one-half of a cent from the March prices, and will be as follows:

Grade A, delivered, 16 cents a quart, 9 cents a pint.

Grade B, delivered, 14 cents a quart, 8 cents a pint.

Grade B, in stores, 13½ cents a quart and 7½ cents a pint; Grade B, loose, 10 cents a quart.

The officials of the Federal Food Board were unwilling yesterday to give out any further information concerning the complaints received in the past two weeks as to the discovery of bits of glass in bread produced by some of the large baking companies. In all, it was said that fifteen complaints had been received of a genuine nature. The identity of the persons who presented the complaints, or the identity of the baking companies involved, the Federal Food Board would not reveal, on the ground that such a course would merely cause "unnecessary alarm."

Nat Goodwin Wins Verdict.

In the suit of Nat C. Goodwin against the Mirror Films, Inc., to recover damages for breach of employment as star at $1,250 a week, a jury before Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum returned a verdict yesterday for $15,000, the full amount asked, with interest.

RESTAURANT MEN CALLED SLACKERS

J. M. Bowman Keeps Tab on Guests Who Ate Bread at Their Society's Dinner.

CALLS IT GREEDINESS

Threatenes to Read Names of Those He Describes as "Camouflage Patriots."

John M. Bowman, proprietor of the Hotel Biltmore and head of the Hotel, Restaurant, and Dining Car Division of the United States Food Administration, precipitated a sensation at the annual dinner of the Society of Restaurateurs of New York last night at the Biltmore, when, toward the close of the evening, he suddenly disclosed that he had had a secret list made of all the men present who refused to dine without bread and butter. Mr. Bowman denounced the "food slackers" in unmistakable language, impugning their patriotism and inducing some restaurant keepers present to a state almost of panic during the few moments that he held a list of the greedy ones in his hand and acted as though he were going to read it publicly.

The incident ended by Mr. Bowman tearing up the list and dropping the bits in the waste basket, after which he challenged the men whom he just had excoriated to refuse to rise and drink the toast he then proposed to Food Administrator Hoover. Every man sprang to his feet and drank the toast with eagerness.

Hardly had the dinner started when here and there at the tables arose complaints that the diners were not satisfied to eat without bread. At first the waiters refused to serve, but after there had been a consultation with Mr. Bowman, bread and butter were brought to every table where the diners, or any of them, insisted upon being served with it.

When Mr. Bowman arose to speak in response to the introduction of John Cavanagh, President of the Society, he said:

"There are men in this room of whom I am thoroughly ashamed. Things have happened here which have made me feel at at all proud of you. I have had more than one occasion since this evening started to blush for shame for more than one of you. The time has passed for a lot of this camouflage patriotism that we hear from people who don't mean it. The time has passed when men can go around saying 'I am a hellova fellow and I am right behind the Government' and then act very much to the contrary. That sort of thing has become unendurable.

"You have all had reason to know that this was to be a breadless banquet. We had such an affair attended by 500 hotel men on Saturday night in this hotel and there was not a word of complaint. You have all read the papers and you must have been aware of the regulation. So I gave orders to my maitre d'hotel that no bread was to be served in this room tonight. But some of you have shown that you are not altogether with us, and I tell you right now that you cannot be with the Government half way.

"When you insisted upon having bread and butter I ordered the maitre d'hotel to keep a list of every table at which the guests refused to eat without it and to keep a list of every man at that table who demanded bread and butter. There are sixteen tables out of seventy-five at which some of the diners insisted that they must be served with bread and butter. I have the number of each table and the names of the men who sat at it."

At this point Mr. Bowman held up a slip of paper upon which some names were written. From many parts of the room came cries: "Read it! read it!" but Mr. Bowman tore it up. He concluded by saying:

"I don't know what it is—it may be just greediness, but there are men in this room who, knowing that our soldiers are at the front giving their lives for the country, still are indifferent to sacrificing even so little of their personal comfort and their personal desires to such an extent that they will not even refrain from bread at a single meal to help feed our boys over there."

Vernon Stiles

Appearing at Carnegie Hall, April 2nd

Vernon Stiles, the popular American tenor, has exchanged the costume of grand opera and the formal attire of the concert stage for the army khaki. For the duration of the war he has set aside his personal ambitions to serve his country. Wherever he appears he adds to his programme of songs spirited sketches of camp life and its bracing effect on our citizen soldiers and patriotic appeals to further the sale of smileage books.

His favorite songs may be heard at their best on Columbia Records. Any Columbia dealer will gladly play these records for you. Hear them—it will be a revelation of faithful, scientific recording that reproduces all the charm and emotional power of this talented singer's art.

1,500,000 MORE AMERICANS IN NEW CALL, MAKING 3,000,000 IN ALL; 40 WRECKED GERMAN DIVISIONS TAKEN OUT OF THE BATTLE; COUNT CZERNIN MAKES ANOTHER REPLY TO THE PRESIDENT

ARMY PLANS ENLARGED

Officials Moving to Supply Needed Man Power to Allies.

NEW TONNAGE OBTAINED

President Is Resolved That Reinforcements Shall Be Poured Into France.

CAMPS TO BE KEPT FULL

Men to be Sent to Them for Training as Fast as Quarters Are Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—President Wilson's decision to place all the military resources of the nation, including its deep reservoirs of man-power, at the disposal of General Foch and the Entente Allies for use when needed in the campaign against Germany, is being followed by definite plans for putting more men in France at the earliest possible moment.

Not only is it the purpose of the President, as Commander in Chief of the Army, to rush all troops in training over to Europe as rapidly as it can be done constantly with the safety of the great movement of men involved, but it is the plan to hurry along the second draft and increase the size of the second call to the colors. Several weeks ago it was announced that the basic number for the second call would be approximately 800,000 men. It is understood that plans have now been made for nearly doubling the number of men to be drafted during the next twelve months.

The statement was made today that during the period the number of men to be drafted will probably be much nearer 1,800,000, bringing up to more than 3,000,000 the total number of men put into military training by the Government, including the regulars, National Guard, and national army units.

A report was current late this afternoon that General Crowder, the Provost Marshal General, had been called upon to supply a much larger number of drafted men in April than had been expected prior to this time. When General Crowder was asked whether the quota for the second call had been increased beyond 800,000 and he had been called upon to furnish more this month than had been contemplated, he said that he had received no new orders, and that any information regarding draft plans would have to come from the War Department or from Major Gen. March, the Acting Chief of Staff.

The aggregate strength of the American forces now abroad and at home, on active duty and in training camps, is between 1,500,000 and 1,600,000 men. This includes regulars stationed in the Philippines, Hawaii and Panama and at Continental posts. It also embraces all branches of the service, combatant and noncombatant.

Those in the insular possessions will have to be held there, and a certain proportion of the total men available will have to be retained in this country, but the great bulk of the grand total now under arms will be sent to Europe as rapidly as possible. Steps have been taken to obtain the necessary tonnage for their transportation. The steamers seized from Holland and vessels to be obtained from France will be of considerable help in the present situation.

Hastening Method of Movement.

Originally it was the intention to send troops abroad by divisions after each division had completed its training and to forward replacement troops from time to time. There are a number of divisions now fully trained in the National Guard army and some of the draft army divisions are regarded as sufficiently trained for use in the fighting front.

The London official announcement that as a result of communications and conferences among President Wilson, Secretary Baker, Generals Bliss and Pershing, Lord Derby, and A. J. Balfour during the last few days, "large numbers of American battalions" will be sent to Europe during the "coming critical months" and "arrangements for the transportation of these additional forces are now being completed," is interpreted as meaning that the British Government will contribute tonnage to aid in hastening the movement of troops to Europe. There are some regiments that cannot be used immediately in the formation of American divisions, and these, under the arrangement, are to be brigaded with British and French units as long as the necessity lasts.

Under the decisions reached in the last week American troops are moving to the main battle front, and have been for the last four days. Other American units are being put in front line trenches along parts of the line not involved in the present main battle, releasing

Torpedoed Liner Celtic Is Now Safe in Port

The White Star Liner Celtic, which was reported on Monday as having been torpedoed by a German submarine while off the Irish Coast, has reached port in safety. Word of her arrival was received yesterday at the office of her owners here. The cable came to the office, 9 Broadway, in the late afternoon and simply announced:

"Celtic has safely reached port."

It was explained that no further information would be given out regarding the arrival of the vessel. The message is taken to mean that the Celtic has reached her port of departure or some other British port and that one of the largest transports in the allied service is still available.

While lacking knowledge of the extent of the damage suffered by the Celtic, the officers of the White Star Line here believe that she will soon be in commission again.

LENROOT LEADING IN WISCONSIN RACE

His Election as Senator Over Davies by Fully 10,000 Votes Seems Certain.

BERGER IS FAR BEHIND

Socialist and Peace Candidate, However, Has Probably Received 80,000 Votes in State.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wednesday, April 3.—After the most hotly contested Senatorial fight in the history of the Badger State, Republican leaders early this morning were claiming the election of Representative Irvine L. Lenroot as successor to the late Paul O. Husting in the United States Senate by a plurality of 10,000 or more.

The figures from forty-three of the seventy-one counties, including 100 precincts out of 183 in Milwaukee County, were:

Irvine L. Lenroot, Republican, 69,522.
Joseph E. Davies, Democrat, 64,670.
Victor L. Berger, Socialist, 41,623.

Late returns increased the lead of Lenroot, Republican candidate. The figures for fifty-six counties were: Lenroot, 92,677; Davies, 82,775, and Berger, 55,006. Lenroot's lead was then 9,902 and his plurality, it was figured, would probably exceed 10,000.

The showing made by Lenroot in the early returns from districts outside of Milwaukee was very disappointing to the Republican managers, who said the territory heard from included districts along the shore of Lake Michigan which in ordinary years were Democratic.

Berger cut heavily into the Democratic strength in these localities, while in some of the La Follette strongholds in the northern and western parts of the State a large part of the vote cast for La Follette's man, Thompson, in the primaries, and which the Lenroot managers had counted upon, evidently went to the Socialist candidate.

The increase in the Socialist vote, beyond question a peace vote, was a feature of the election. In the pro-German counties Berger ran strongly. Politicians here are staggered by the vote which Berger received after conducting a campaign of such bitterness against the Administration in Washington and such frank appeals to the pacifist and disloyal elements.

Indications are that, with complete returns in, the Berger vote will aggregate 80,000. The previous high record for a Socialist candidate in Wisconsin was 32,000 polled in the Senatorial contest two years ago. He ran very strong in counties with a large German population. In the little town of Middleton, near Madison, inhabited almost exclusively by Germans who in other years have voted the Democratic ticket, Berger received more votes than Lenroot and Davies together. The returns were: Lenroot, 43; Davies, 39; Berger, 102.

The effect of the hard fight the Democrats had made in Republican strongholds up-State showed in returns from these localities late in the evening. Complete returns from 31 out of 70 counties outside of Milwaukee gave Lenroot 32,908; Davies 30,943, and Berger 15,500, a lead for Lenroot of 2,055.

In the City of Milwaukee returns received up to midnight from 75 out of 142 precincts gave Davies 11,807; Lenroot, 7,287, and Berger 12,490. If the same proportion was kept up in the remaining precincts, the plurality of Davies over Lenroot in the City of Milwaukee would be about 9,000.

The early returns for the Mayoralty election in this city gave the Socialist leaders ground for an optimism that the later returns did not sustain. Returns from 103 precincts out of 142 in the city indicate the re-election of Daniel W. Hoan, the Socialist Mayor, by a majority of about 3,000 over Percy Bra-

VIENNA, April 2, (via The Hague.)—Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, made the following speech to a deputation of the Vienna City Council this morning:

"Gentlemen—I am quite ready to reply to the questions put by the Burgomaster and thereby to give both you and the wider public a full view of political conditions as I see them at the moment. I had hoped to speak before the competent forum, but the fact that one of our commissions cannot meet at present makes this impossible, so I take this opportunity of affording in brief a review of the international situation.

"With the signature of peace with Rumania the war in the East is ended. Three treaties of peace have been signed—with Petrograd, Ukraine, and Rumania. One principal section of the war is thus ended.

Doubts Attempt to Split Teutons.

"Before discussing the separate peaces which have been signed and going into details, I wish to return to the statements of the President of the United States wherein he replied to the speech I made before the delegations on Jan. 24. In many parts of the world Mr. Wilson's speech was regarded as an attempt to drive a wedge between Vienna and Berlin. I do not believe that, because I have much too high an opinion of Mr. Wilson's statesmanship to suspect him of such a train of thought.

"According to my impressions, Mr. Wilson does not want to separate Vienna from Berlin. He does not desire that, and knows that it is impossible.

"He perhaps thinks, however, that Vienna presents more favorable soil for sowing the seeds of a general peace. He has perhaps said to himself that the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy has the good fortune to have a monarch who genuinely and honorably desires a general peace, but that this monarch will never be guilty of a breach of faith; that he will never make a shameful peace, and that behind this monarch stand 55,000,000 souls.

Hope in a "Great Idea."

"I imagine that Mr. Wilson says to himself that this closely knit mass of people represents a force which is not to be disregarded and that this honorable and firm will to peace with which the monarch is imbued and which binds him to the peoples of both States is capable of carrying a great idea in the service of which Mr. Wilson has also placed himself.

"Before I discuss Mr. Wilson's last utterances I would like to clear up one misunderstanding. In my last speech which I delivered before the Austrian delegations I replied to an inquiry in this connection that probably Mr. Wilson was already in possession of my utterances. Later Mr. Wilson corrected this, and pointed out that there must be some mistake. I had prepared my speech beforehand, so as to avoid any possibility of its being incorrectly or incompletely transmitted, and at the moment I

Our Airplane Mechanics Help British in Picardy

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2. (Associated Press.)—A considerable number of American aviation mechanics are now co-operating with the British Royal Flying Corps on the battlefield in Picardy.

HURLEY DEMANDS FASTER SHIP WORK

Telegraphs to All Yards Requiring Explanation of Low Output in March.

'SHIPS, NOT EXCUSES,' ASKED

Declares American People Will Put Blame Where It Belongs if There Is Any Failure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, sent a telegram today to the manager of every shipyard in the nation engaged on work for the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation, in which he declared that production in March had proved a keen disappointment, and that neither builder, workman, nor Government agency should expect to escape public condemnation unless immediate and practical methods were employed to speed up.

"The American people," Mr. Hurley said, "want ships, not excuses," and he made it plain that in view of the imperative necessity of rushing troops, munitions, and foods to France, any who failed to do his utmost to build ships was a slacker. If the Shipping Board or Emergency Fleet Corporation was to any extent blameable for delay, he said, he wanted to know it, so that responsibility could be placed where it belonged and faults corrected.

The message sent out today was the result of investigations made and reports received after it became evident that the March deliveries would fall at least 50,000 tons under the minimum estimate made by the Emergency Fleet Corporation upon data obtained from the shipyards. It was countersigned by Charles Piez as General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Admits Disappointment.

The telegram follows:

"We are keenly disappointed in the amount of tonnage delivered by American shipyards during month of March and the slow progress made in many yards. Only twenty-one steel vessels aggregating 166,700 tons were delivered during that month and our minimum estimate was for 197,075 tons. Instead of this reduction from our estimate we should have had an increase. This estimate was made on promises of shipbuilders. Thirty steel ships were launched with a total tonnage of 219,586. Eleven wooden ships were launched amounting to 40,000 tons.

"We are particularly anxious that you and your organization should put forth a special effort during the month of April. We are anxious that you should keep us fully informed concerning all causes of delay encountered in building ships during this month daily, by wire if necessary. We are concerned with the entire program, but we want April to break all records.

"Are the majority of your men doing a full day's work? Are you working overtime? Are you running a night shift, or planning to do so? It is imperative that every power that can be taken advantage of be used. We want your reply promptly to this telegram, stating frankly the facts. Money, material, and men have been supplied without stint by the nation. Keynote of present situation is management—leadership. Emergency Fleet Corporation looks to you for team work in applying leadership to speeding up of program. We will welcome any suggestions which you wish to make, and if, in your opinion, the fault lies with the Emergency Fleet Corporation don't hesitate to advise us. What tonnage do you expect to produce during April in the way of finished ships? How many keels will you lay? How many ships will you launch? Please don't over-estimate. We are anxious to get actual facts so that our war program may be carried out.

"We are holding you personally responsible for the successful management of your property. If you fail to maintain your schedule of production, which schedule the country is expecting you to meet and which we must have you meet in order to win this war, the country will charge you and us with not doing our part. Our country is holding every foreman and every workman in the shipyards, and especially every shipyard owner, stockholder, and manager, as well as every officer and employe of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, re-

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, April 2.—The Allies' respite from massed attacks since the last battle of Arras does not mean that the enemy has abandoned his ambitious plans to drive a wedge between the British and French armies by making a breach in the lines between Amiens and Montdidier and straightening the line of his advance to avoid a dangerous salient by overwhelming our left flank north of Arras. It is probable that he is pausing only to drag his guns across the wild waste of the Somme battlefield, where there is slow progress; to bring new reserves of men into the battle line, and to prepare another blow as equal in fury to the first effort as his means now allow after his bloody losses and heavy engagements with the French armies on his left wing.

I doubt whether his next effort will reach anything like the strength of that battering ram which shocked the allied lines on March 21. For twelve days since then his wastage of man power has been incalculable, and every mile of his way is strewn with his dead—here and there a few men, here and there heaps of mortality.

Backward from those twelve days there has flowed a tide of mangled men, filling his hospitals and Red Cross trains. Forty at least of his assault divisions have had to be withdrawn from the allied front after casualties amounting, in some cases, as we know, certainly to 40 to 50 per cent. Many of his companies and battalions have been almost annihilated, only a score or so of men going back to tell the frightful tale to the people.

Foiled by Heroic Rearguards.

The heroic British rearguards foiled his plans and smashed his time table and broke the spearheads of his armies, so that they had to turn aside in a direction not belonging to the great strategical plan of the German high command. Arras is not his. Amiens is not his, the British armies are still intact in spite of all the losses of men and ground, and new French and British armies are at his throat, ready to rend him to death if he is for a moment at their mercy.

The enemy knows all this, but is playing for big stakes, and their gamblers are ready to throw in all their human counters in order to win or lose the last hazard. So they will not stop now, because if they stop, they have already lost, and they are waiting only to gather their forces for the final throw.

But this delay is the Allies' enormous gain. They, too, have had time to bring fresh men to replace those who fought until they were spent and who barred the way of the Germans' advance with their bodies and souls. The enemy now, in his next battle, will meet men who are not tired and whose resolution is as great as those who met the first onslaught.

Australians and New Zealanders have come into line—fresh, keen, uplifted by fierce enthusiasm, stirred by emotions which make these fellows very dangerous to their enemy. I saw them coming to the relief of the hard-pressed troops, and it was a sight which made one's pulse beat and gave one a sense of new security. When the full menace was upon the lines these Australians came swinging down toward the old Somme battlefields with the spirit of men going to the rescue of a great cause. It was their business along the line of the Somme, for did they not take Pozières, and is not that blasted slope hallowed for all of them by memorials of their own dead

One of Guns Bombarding Paris Blows Up, Killing Five; Three New Yorkers Slain in Church on Good Friday

PARIS, April 2.—One of the German long-range guns bombarding Paris has burst, according to prisoners captured on the French front. Five of the gun crew were killed.

This announcement was made officially tonight.

The eighth long-range bombardment of Paris began at 10:10 o'clock today, when a projectile exploded in the region of the city, wounding two women.

Further identifications show that three members of the Landon family of New York, who had been living in Paris, were killed on Good Friday, when a shell from the long-range German gun struck a church. They were Mrs. Mary G. Landon, wife of Edward H. Landon of New York, and his daughters, Mrs. Lucy Landon Speed, wife of Captain Ralph Speed of the British Army Service Corps, and Miss Ruth Landon.

Edward H. Landon, whose wife and two daughters were killed in Paris when a shell from a long-range German gun struck a church there on Good Friday, is a retired New York lawyer who has been in Paris most of the time since the war started. The family is prominent socially here and in Paris. Mrs. Landon was Miss Mary Grinnell, a niece of Levi P. Morton, former Vice President of the United States and once Governor of New York.

Members of the Landon family here have received a cablegram telling of the deaths of Mrs. Landon and Mrs. Speed and saying Miss Ruth Landon was missing.

CASUALTY LISTS PUT UNDER BAN

Baker Cables That All Information Must Come from Pershing Hereafter.

REASONS ARE NOT STATED

All Matters Concerning Troops Abroad to be Announced by Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Secretary Baker has placed a ban on any information being made public in Washington, or in fact, in this country, officially dealing with the American Expeditionary Force in France.

Matters affecting the forces at home may be announced by the War Department, but nothing regarding the forces in the field in Europe, other than through General Pershing's headquarters in France. The new ban is being applied so literally that announcement was made by the War Department tonight that no more casualty lists would be issued until further notice.

A casualty list was given out today. General March, the acting Chief of Staff, and General McCain, the Adjutant General, interpreted the instructions from Secretary Baker to forbid the further publication of casualty lists and announced that no casualty list would be issued tomorrow.

The establishment of this new ban was disclosed when the following official announcement was issued:

The War Department has been notified by cable that the Secretary of War has prescribed the following rules for handling publicity of matters pertaining to troops and operations:

First—All matters pertaining to events, persons, policies, or operations abroad will only be officially given out from the headquarters, American Expeditionary Force, in France.

Second—Similar matters affecting forces at home will be given out from the War Department.

The reason for this action on the part of Secretary Baker has not been disclosed.

Official Information Scanty.

Very little official information has been disclosed regarding the American forces abroad. The information given out has consisted mostly of routine statements listing the casualties day by day. These were first announced through the Committee on Public Information. As thus issued, the emergency addresses were given. This was not satisfactory to those identified with the expedition, and General Pershing recently cabled urging that the publication of emergency addresses of soldiers killed or wounded be discontinued.

Chairman Creel of the Committee on Public Information regarded the lists as useless if issued without addresses, and refused longer to handle them in his office. The War Department then began issuing the casualty lists through the office of the Adjutant General, giving in each case only the name, rank, and how the casualty occurred, addresses being withheld.

Until the American forces reached the verge of entering the great battle now in progress in France no announcements regarding the use of the expedition were made by the War Department. The battle has been in progress thirteen days, and all that has been given out about it have been paraphrases of a few dispatches from General Pershing, giving information that had already been published in the cable dispatches from abroad to American newspapers. There have been weekly war statements issued by the War Department, but these did not disclose as AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, April 1.—Early this morning the Germans directed a heavy artillery fire against our lines. More than 4,000 shells were fired against our positions—more than half of them gas shells. Our artillery replied actively, and soon after daylight the bombardment of our positions ceased.

It has been raining most of the day. In indescribable mud the American troops were moved successfully, all in the best spirits despite the lack of information as to where they were going, all hoping to be chosen to take part in the big battle. There passed strings of American artillery, supply trains, and infantry covered with mud, but the men were smiling, and all anxious for the latest news from home. At noon there passed two companies of light artillery. They halted for "chow"—a luncheon of bean soup and bread served from a big "goulash cannon." The men exhibited their beloved French "seventy-fives," which all of them praised. One had written on its side, "Fighting," but another bore the less martial name "Gaby," and so on. The men called them the finest guns in the world. All afternoon there passed lines of Americans and the well-known army mule doing its bit in the mud of Sunny France.

The men uncovered as they passed the graves of the French who fell in 1915. Flowers were growing on the graves, showing the tender recent care which the French have not failed to bestow also on American graves.

The shifting of soldiers brought to light many interesting stories of war experience. One night Americans who had been raiding brought in a German officer. He was taken before the commanding American officer, only to find that both had worked in the same office in an Eastern American city. The German came to Europe in 1914, and had been in the war ever since. On another day a German was brought in speaking perfect English. He said he had been a bartender in Brooklyn before the war, adding:

"I wish to God I could get back. It's God's country. The war can't end too soon for me. I have had enough of Kaiser Bill forever."

Corporal Beaten to Death.

A different sort of story was one that told of a recent night when four Americans met a patrol of boches in No Man's Land. The Americans sallied in, killed three Germans, and put the rest to flight. But the American Corporal was captured. He was putting up a fight on the way back to the German trenches the last seen of him. The next day his body was seen lying near the boche trench. That night a party brought him in. A slicker was tied about the head. When unwrapped, the head was nothing but pulp, smashed by German rifle butts. The commanding Lieutenant said:

"I had had an idea of civilized warfare, but that sight converted me. The next day I had a chance to snipe a German, and I did it with joy in my heart."

Repulse Germans on the Oise—Guns Active on Montdidier-Lassigny Sector.

NO CHANGE, BERLIN REPORTS

But Tells of Heavy British Losses Near Hebuterne, and Between Avre and Luce.

LONDON, April 2.—Relative quiet prevailed on the British front today except for successful minor operations near Serre, (north of Albert,) which resulted in the capture of a German post.

Yesterday, in the sector between the Avre and Luce Rivers, the British took fifty prisoners and thirteen machine guns, and in the neighborhood of Hebuterne, north of Serre, they captured seventy-three prisoners and three machine guns, besides killing many Germans.

The report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters in France tonight says:

Except for minor enterprises which we carried out in the neighborhood of Serre and as a result of which we captured a German post, the day passed more quietly on the whole battle front.

The War Office in its announcement this evening says:

The day passed quietly on the British front. There was no serious fighting on the French front.

Following is the text of the day official statement:

In the course of the fighting yesterday in the area between the Avre and the Luce Rivers we captured fifty prisoners and thirteen machine guns. A large number of German dead were found on the ground in this locality by us, and two counter-attacks attempted by the enemy later in the day were broken up, with heavy loss, by our artillery. A German battery in action in this area was successfully engaged at short range and silenced by our machine guns.

A successful local enterprise carried out by us in the neighborhood of Hebuterne resulted in the capture of seventy-three prisoners and three machine guns. Many Germans were killed in this operation, also, and a hostile counterattack during the afternoon was completely repulsed.

On the remainder of the front successful raids, in which we secured several prisoners and killed a number of the enemy, were carried out in the neighborhood of Acheville and Hollebeke.

Still Moving Toward American Zone.

LONDON, April 2.—The general situation at the moment as described by Repter's correspondent at British Headquarters is that the main movement of fresh enemy troops and others that are moderately fresh continues to be toward the zone between the Somme and Montdidier.

North of the Somme the British have succeeded in stabilizing the line, at any rate for the time being.

German Losses 25 to 70 Per Cent.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 2. (Associated Press.)—The British stormed strongly held German positions in a wood along the Luce River yesterday. When the enemy withdrew after sharp fighting, he left the ground strewn with his dead.

The Germans shelled the wood heavily after it was occupied by the British, and organized two counterattacks for the purpose of retaking it. Both were caught in the British artillery barrage and broken.

The British yesterday improved their position by an attack south of Hangard, and later repulsed two German counterattacks which essayed to restore the situation.

South of Hebuterne the British conducted a successful local attack and fepulsed a counterassault.

According to prisoners, the 208th German Division since the beginning of the offensive has suffered losses of 70 per cent. The 20th Division lost 50 per cent. The 88th Division lost 30 per cent; the first day and 40 per cent. in an attack on Meslères March 29.

In the 1st Division the average strength of the companies was reduced to forty men by March 28. The Guard Ersatz Division suffered 25 per cent. loss between March 21 and 28.

The 5th Division had 50 per cent. casualties at Ham, and additional heavy losses in crossing the Somme. In an attack north of the Scarpe River one regiment of the 28th Division lost twenty-four officers.

There has been a considerable increase in the artillery fire against the British positions at Passchendaele and on the Goeberg ridge, in Belgium, northeast of Ypres. The correspondent says, however, that the Germans are committed so heavily to the present battle front that it is not easy to believe they will try an offensive elsewhere.

BERLIN SAYS BRITISH ATTACKS BROKE DOWN

Reports "Heavy Losses" Before German Positions Between the Luce and the Avre.

BERLIN, via London, April 2.—"There is nothing new to report," was the statement made by the War Office this evening concerning operations on the western front.

The day bulletin said that British counterattacks near Hebuterne and against the heights between the Avre and the Luce broke down with heavy losses. This report says:

The position on the battlefield is unchanged. Counterattacks made by the enemy near Hebuterne and with special stubbornness against the heights captured by us between the Luce and the Avre broke down with heavy losses. Minor infantry engagements took place between the Avre and the Oise.

The French have continued to shell Laon, and numbers of the inhabitants have fallen victims.

Reconnoitring engagements occurred on the eastern bank of the Meuse near Haudiomont and southeast of Thann (Alsace). Some prisoners were brought in.

Twenty-two enemy airplanes and five captive balloons were brought down. Lieutenant Kroll won his twenty-third aerial victory. By the energetic carrying out of long-distance observation from the coast as far as south of the Somme aerial detachment No. 3, under Lieutenant Friecke, rendered extraordinary service

SHELL FOE NEAR MONTDIDIER.

French Guns Rake German Concentrations East of Cantigny.

PARIS, April 2.—Spirited artillery fighting, particularly in the region between Montdidier and Lassigny, was the principal feature of today's operations on the French front opposing the German offensive, according to tonight's official report, which also announces the shelling of enemy concentrations east of Cantigny, (northwest of Montdidier,) and the repulse of a strong reconnoitring force of Germans on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of La Fère.

The day communiqué records some gains by French and British troops last night between the Somme and Demuin.

Following is the night report:

The day was marked by quite spirited artillery fighting, particularly between Montdidier and Lassigny. Our batteries caught under their fire enemy concentrations east of Cantigny. A strong German reconnoissance, attacked by our troops on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of Servais, was repulsed.

BRITISH CASUALTIES ARE AMAZINGLY LOW

London Estimates Those of the Germans, However, at 250,000 to 300,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—The storm of the ten days' battle on the western front has been succeeded today by a complete lull, and Field Marshal Haig's midday report, dealing with small raids and the capture of little groups of prisoners, reads strangely after tales of awful carnage.

Competent authorities here, however, believe that the lull is merely temporary. They say that the Central Powers are in no position to settle down again to a waiting game lasting perhaps for months. Austria, in particular, urgently needs a quick decision and must either attack or be attacked by Italy within a month. The Germans, it is suggested, are merely pausing to reorganize and are now so deeply committed on the present battlefield that they must renew their efforts there. It would be much easier for them to start a fresh attack on either the right or left of their positions than to try an entirely new offensive against Verdun or Ypres.

Their losses in the last ten days are believed to be so enormous that even Hindenburg must begin to feel the need of economy. It is reckoned that he had 192 divisions on the west front in all, and that of them he sent 100 into the attack. Of these between forty and fifty were so badly mauled that they were withdrawn to refit. As the Germans generally relieve a division after it has suffered 5,000 casualties, it is held that the total German losses may be estimated conservatively at from 250,000 to 300,000.

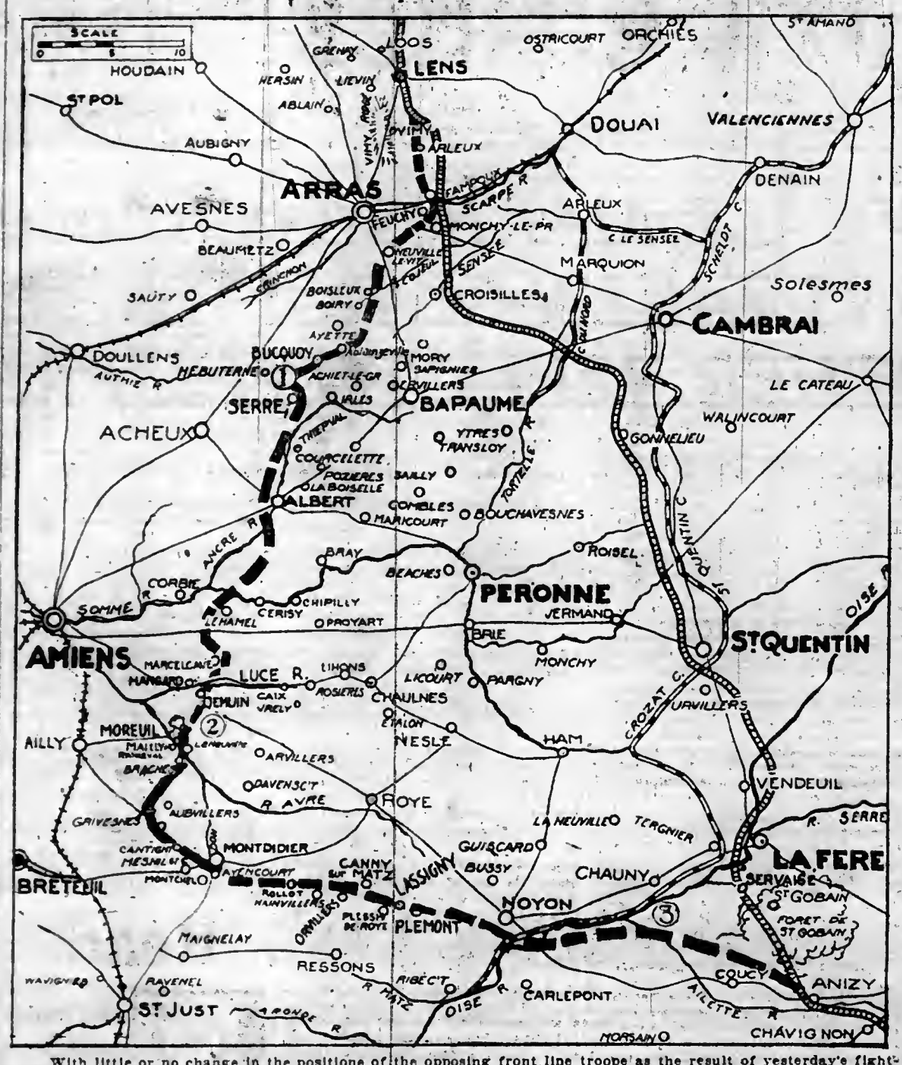
Concerning the allied losses no estimate has been given out. It is admitted that in the first onslaught, when the men in the first line of outposts were holding the enemy masses up and sacrificing themselves deliberately, many units suffered heavily, but since then the action has been fought in such a way as to minimize the casualties greatly. An exact count has been kept, and THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed from a competent source that the allied losses are quite amazingly low "when all things are considered."

France Decorates President of Cuba.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 2.—The Cuban Government was notified today that the Cross of the French Legion of Honor had been conferred on President Menocal.

Where the German Offensive Halts



With little or no change in the positions of the opposing front line troops as the result of yesterday's fighting, the points of the greatest activity recorded in official communications were in the neighborhood of (1) Hebuterne, where Field Marshal Haig reports local successes, and the Germans the breakdown of British attacks; between (2) the Luce and the Avre Rivers, where there have been some conflicts, with diverse claims as to the result, and (3) on the left bank of the Oise, southwest of Servaise, where the French repulsed a strong German reconnoitring party. The region betwsen Montdidier and Lassigny has been the scene of spirited artillery engagements.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The fighting in Picardy has died down completely for the time being. The net result to the Germans has been a very material gain in territory, but a gain achieved at a very great price. Just how great was the price paid we shall probably not know. But we do know that it was inevitable that relatively it was much greater than the losses of the defense.

In the one battle for Arras alone, which was a total repulse, the Germans suffered losses several times those of the British. And it is to this relative loss that we must turn for a basis of judgment rather than the actual numbers.

Regardless of this last attack, which restored to a certain extent, and for a limited time, the war of movement, the war is still a war of attrition and so it must remain. For us it is the German Army which must be destroyed or dispersed. This is the only way we can secure a military victory commensurate with our aims. And this army can be eliminated from the conflict only through attrition. The attrition has gone forward these last ten days at a terrific rate and will so continue, at least for some time to come.

As far as the battle has gone, and it must be understood that it is not yet over, it has been a German defeat. This judgment is reached by comparing the German object in the attack with the results achieved. This object was not to drive the British back to the Somme; it was not to control the water courses of the Avre and the Oise; it was not to gain a certain amount of territory over which they could exercise their brutal sway. It was to split the French and the British armies along the Oise; to drive to the channel and thus separate these two necessary forces by an impassable barrier, and then to destroy them separately, concentrating against first one wing and then the other.

If the Germans could reach the sea through Amiens and cut off the army of the north from that of the south, severing all connection and all means of communication between them, the rest would be relatively easy. The defeat of the Allies could then be accomplished even though an actual rift in the line were not made by the advance along the Oise or the Somme until this point was reached.

None of this have the Germans accomplished. The Allies line is still intact; the Germans have not only been slowed up, but have been stopped short; they have been forced to suspend their operations until they can bring up more men to feed into the maw and more artillery to support them, and until they can reconstruct the supply lines over which their men and guns can be fed. Their gains have been made at a price relatively much greater than that of their opponents. They have therefore failed in their self-allotted task.

The next attack is now in process of forming. We may be certain that the Germans have sacrificed men by the thousands and tens of thousands. They will use them unsparingly in their effort to conquer. They have gone too far to stop, and, in fact, their own press has condemned them to failure if in their final effort they have not reached their goal. They must go and live or die by the result of the battle they themselves have initiated on ground selected by them.

It is true that there is no exact basis of comparison between the present situation and any which has heretofore existed. There have never been so many men involved, there has never been an attack the front of which extended over so much territory, there has never been such a wealth of artillery employed. But at the same time if we may judge of the situation from the other great battles which have been fought, the possibility of a German success has gone glimmering.

The battle of the Marne offers no basis of comparison whatever. There is not the slightest element in common with that mad rush in the open, with flanks exposed, hoping to crush France and England before a concentration could be effected. Then all of the battle was open. There was an opportunity for extreme generalship, for the application of the accepted principles of military strategy. These do not exist today so that the comparison is lost.

But there is a comparison with Verdun, with Itussia, with Rumania, with Italy. In each of these cases there came a positive definite lapse in the fighting, a period of quiet during which Germany was preparing another blow. In each of these cases the blow was delivered, but proved a complete failure.

One of the primary reasons for this failure is that in spite of the development of trench warfare, the element of surprise is still an essential in every successful move. There is no surprise when the enemy attacks at a point which for several weeks he has been constantly hammering.

Germany must attack, when she strikes again, at some point on the present front between Arras and the Montdidier salient. Where this point is no one can say. But to attempt to strike elsewhere would be to pass up whatever advantage has accrued to her through the operations of the last ten days, to acknowledge defeat on this front, and because of the intrenchments which must follow a prolonged period of quiet on the Picardy field, to make the probability of ultimately reaping benefit from her costly advance to the Somme extremely small. Since it is necessary for Germany thus to acknowledge defeat or to fight again, she will fight, but in doing so will fight with the advantage against her. The Allies know where the attack is coming, they have effected their concentrations to meet it, and they have prepared their defenses. There can therefore be no such rush as marked the retreat from Cambrai. Rather succeeding operations will take on the tinge of the Verdun fighting.

Washington Discusses Plans for Merging Our Troops with Allied Units.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent cabled last week, while the arrangements were in making, how high was the appreciation felt here for the immediate steps which were taken by the United States in view of recent developments. The announcement made in today's papers regarding the employment of American troops in France has created in the public mind as deep an impression as had previously been obtained in better informed quarters from knowledge of the American Government's unhesitating determination.

The public announcement was most useful in that it has offset a certain tendency to regard the American contribution to the work of war with some misgiving, which set in largely as a consequence of the somewhat dolorous messages which had come from New York and Washington descriptive of American dissatisfaction at certain aspects of the war preparations. Colonel Roosevelt's statement about showing the Germans that Americans could shoot as well as shout was a particularly unfortunate instance of indiscriminate exportation of domestic criticism.

Among those people who were well informed about America's effort I can testify that there has been no lack of appreciation and of the fullest sympathy. This morning's announcement has had a useful effect upon common public opinion. In both the morning and evening papers there is a volume of appreciation of America's decision.

The Daily Chronicle says:

"There can be no doubt that this is the quickest and most practical method of initiating them in the actual fighting and that it will bring far more immediate help to ourselves and the French than could be brought in any other way. It speaks volumes for the practical vision and unswerving sense of realities which characterize President Wilson and his Government.

"The fine spirit shown by the United States throughout this crisis has been a source of the utmost encouragement and moral support to her allies in Europe. Nowhere has the lesson of Brest-Litovsk been more clearly read than in America. Nowhere now is the absolute confidence for defeating Imperial Germany more distinctly realized.

"Ranged solidly behind their President, the American people are straining all their gigantic strength to achieve the common end. No stone is being left unturned by them to fulfill the double task of feeding the Allies and reinforcing the combatant front."

The Times says that the decision of the United States to brigade American battalions with French and British units is both generous and wise.

"It is generous," says The Times, "because the natural aspiration of our great American ally is to see its rapidly-growing army operating in the field as one cohesive whole. This distribution of a portion of its units, even though expedient, will be only temporary. It implies a spirit of chivalrous sacrifice in the face of stern necessity. It is wise because the needs of the Allies in France are urgent, and because it has become imperative that the training of the American units should be accelerated."

The Daily Telegraph says:

"The part played by President Wilson in the deliberations which ended in this historic decision is emphasized in a statement from our Press Bureau, and it will not be forgotten by those peoples of Europe which already owe so much to his strong and resourceful statesmanship."

The Daily Express remarks that the new plan proves that America is in the war for victory and is additional evidence of President Wilson's idealistic statesmanship.

The Star says:

"In plain English, the Americans will be available as drafts to fill up the gaps in French and British units. They will not be held in reserve until the American Army reaches its maturity. In a true spirit of soldiership and comradeship they will march to the sound of the guns, and will merge their national pride in the common stock of courage for the common good.

"It is a chivalrous decision, and President Wilson, Mr. Baker, General Pershing, and General Bliss have done a very great thing in a very great way. The British people and French people are moved by this splendid proof of American fellowship in the fight for the freedom of the world.

"The natural desire of the American soldiers would be to fight as an American army under the Stars and Stripes, and it is no light matter for them to be blended for a moment with the French and British armies, but let us assure them that they will not lose their ration of glory upon the day when we have made liberty secure and peace inviolable. This act of self-sacrifice will be remembered and the French and British soldiers will tell how they fought shoulder to shoulder with their American comrades."

and by the graves of many comrades? "We will take Pozières back," they said. "It is our job."

Impatient to Repeat Old Victories.

To those who fought there under months of furious fire which broke the earth to fine powder, who went up from Le Sars and into Bapaume on that famous day a year ago, the news that the enemy had come pouring back over that ground was a shock and a challenge. They waited impatiently for the call to come to their lines elsewhere. Every hour their impatience grew.

"When are we going down? It's a darned shame we are not on our way."

At last the call came, and down the roads the Australians came marching along with their easy, slouching step and with their guns and transport and cookers. It was like men coming back after foreign travels to their old home threatened by invasion. In all the villages behind the Somme battlefields they were known at sight of their slouch hats and their long, clean-shaved mugs. The villagers came out shouting and cheering. "Les Australiens! Vivent Australiens!"

Old women came running to them, plucking their loose sleeves and patting their brawny shoulders. Girls waved to them, cheering with shrill voices. And these fellows grinned and said: "That's all right. Don't you be afraid, kid. We will give 'em hell!"

On the transport wagons gypsy-looking fellows sat looking down on these scenes with their arms around their dogs. Australian gunners, hard as the steel of their 18-pounders, rode their mules through the market towns. They were eager to begin work. Long columns of Australian infantry marched day and night to get to the fighting lines, and when I looked down these lines of clean-cut, hatchet faces, the splendor of these men, the grim spirit of them, stirred me with a sense of historic drama.

The New Zealanders followed, spick and span, debonair lads, with a ribbon around their hats, and rudder than the Australians—little country boys from English orchards. It was glory on the roads as they passed.

Things Happened When They Fought.

Very soon after they went into the battle line there were things doing. They sent out patrols and cleared No Man's Land of Germans. They caught the enemy in ambushes and raked him with bullets and brought in prisoners and machine guns. They slaughtered him in several small attacks, and drove him out of villages and woods, and scared him horribly by day and night.

Australians who came out since the Somme battles and who had heard endless stories of Pozières and Bapaume with envy because they were not in that epic of their brothers, scouted around and said: "Well, nobody can say now we haven't seen the Somme. And when are we going up to Pozières?"

"New Zealand boys have gone out on perilous adventures and rounded up many Germans. The day after the arrival of these forces I met several of their lads lightly wounded by machine gun bullets. "We were a bit rash," said one of them. "We put our heads into it." But where they were the enemy could get no farther.

The English, Irish, and Scottish troops who bore the terrific shock of the German assaults on the first day of these battles and fought ten days back to the present lines deserve what rest they can now get, like Ulysses and his men after their long voyage.

It is impossible for me to narrate all I have heard and known about those rearguard fights, because the historic episodes are so crowded that one's pen cannot write them quick enough. On that great stretch of battlefields sixty miles long and twenty deep there were crowds of British, all fighting backward, with the enemy pressing them close and leaving lines of dead in their wake, and each British brigade, each battalion, has its own crowded history.

Among these men were Ulster soldiers, Inniskillings, Royal British Rifles, and others, and their history is typical of all that happened. The enemy broke through on their right flank on March 21 below St. Quentin, and in a fog so thick that the British machine gunners could not see fifty yards ahead streamed through in columns. The Inniskilling Fusiliers held on to their forward redoubts until almost surrounded, and then with other Ulster comrades fell back beyond the canal, blowing up the bridges and fighting desperately to defend the bridgeheads against incessant attacks.

Clerks and Servants Stop Gap.

The enemy struck in between these Ulster troops and battalions of Manchesters, Bedfords, Yorkshires, and Scottish fusiliers on their left, and it was necessary to draw back toward Ham. To fill up the gap, 200 men from headquarters—staff clerks, servants, and signalers—assembled, and with great gallantry held their ground. To pioneer battalions, among them young citizens of Belfast, rifles were given, and they became a fighting force which beat off heavy attacks.

The enemy was always trying to surround these Ulstermen, and once 200 Germans got behind divisional headquarters and were flung out after sharp fighting by staff officers and men. An officer sent through a message, saying: "I am writing this with one hand and firing a rifle with the other." After continual rearguard actions for five days the Ulster troops were supported by French battalions, but were still called upon to fight while the French relief was in progress.

During the last days of the withdrawal the staff officer of a division and an officer of the Royal Irish Rifles were captured in a motor car by a German cavalry patrol. German officers took them prisoners, but left the car later.

Another German patrol captured an Ulster ambulance driver, but on the way met a French patrol advancing in the darkness of the night. The ambulance man shouted out "English prisoner!" and when the French soldiers fired some shots the Germans took to flight.

An Irish ambulance driver went back, salved a derelict motor car, which le punctured with bullet holes, and brought it back safely. Afterward this gallant man spent all that night rescuing wounded.

This is but an outline of a narrative full of strange and thrilling episodes in which the men of Ulster fought as heroes. So did many other brave men in those days of crisis a week ago.

Last Stand by Manchesters.

Nothing is nobler, or more tragic in its nobility, than the last stand of Manchesters in a redoubt called after their own name near St. Quentin. When the enemy was all around them they held on here serving their machine guns. By means of a buried cable they were able to get messages through for some time.

The last words came from the commanding officer about 3:20 in the afternoon, when he was slightly wounded. He spoke calmly, even cheerily, but said they could not hold out much longer as practically every man was hit, and the Germans were swarming around. "The Manchesters will defend this redoubt to the last moment," said this gallant officer. Those were his last words, and the redoubt was overwhelmed.

Scottish Fusiliers, Bedfords, Yorkshires, King's Liverpools, and South Lancashires, and pioneers fought an astounding number of rearguard actions and killed a great number of the enemy, who were like wolves about them.

A party of Scottish Fusiliers who failed to get an order to withdraw stayed on till the officer felt very lonely and discovered that the enemy was two miles to the rear of him. He led his men out and they marched down the road at night with Germans all around them. Twice they were challenged in the darkness, but no attack was made on them, and they reached their own lines safely after their extraordinary adventure.

Again and again, after reaching places where they hoped to rest awhile, these men were called upon to fight at once, and had to rush out of their billets to throw themselves across a road and bar the enemy's way. While near the village of Boucholr, near the Roye road, they saw a column of German transports crossing this road, and turning down in the direction where they were in ambush.

The Scottish Fusiliers wanted to let this transport pass them so that they could bag the lot, but could not be restrained from firing too soon. They emptied German saddlee at twenty yards and captured some wagons, a watercart, and a field cookor. The rest of the transport galloped away wildly and caused confusion in the German lines.

So at least these men were relieved and they staggered with fatigue and lack of sleep, like thousands of other men who had been fighting for a week or more across those same fields of war

HAVE FACED WORST, IS VIEW IN PARIS

French Confidence Strong as Renewed Drive for Amiens Is Expected.

PREDICT FRONTAL ATTACK

Renault Returns from the Front Full of Optimism Over the Outlook.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 2.—"Certainly we must expect new and terrible convulsions on the part of the Germans, but it seems that since we have withstood the most terrible we are now in a position to annihilate those which will follow." is the conclusion of a war editorial in Pichon's newspaper this morning. The same note of confidence in expectation of a new drive runs throughout the press.

"The battle for Amiens is not yet ended," sums up the Petit Parisien's view, and Bidou in the Journal, amplifies the same idea by an analysis whose conclusion is that the Germans, having vainly attempted to encircle Amiens by advances in the direction of Doullens in the north and the village of Canty in the south, will now be compelled to make a frontal attack against the almost perpendicular line that protects Amiens from Moreuil to Albert. Bidou ends:

"This frontal rupture which the enemy is forced to attempt is a far more difficult and costly manoeuvre than the flank envelopments tried before."

Rene Renault, President of the Chamber of Deputies' Army Commission, who returned yesterday from a visit to the front with Premier Clemenceau, said:

"I brought from my trip to the French and British armies an impression of confidence, absolute, complete, and increasing every instant. The soldiers' morale is extraordinary and the leaders have an air of mastery, of trust in themselves and the means at their disposal, which inspires the utmost confidence."

According to the French press reports have been received from the British front that the enemy is moving up further large forces, and Reuter's states that there are indications that the Germans are also drawing troops from Champagne and Lorraine. That in the face of the expected new onslaught optimism here increases daily despite the Gothas and the bombardment is the best proof that things are going well for the Allies.

READING THANKS WILSON.

Sends Message to President About Troop Acceleration.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Lord Reading, the British Ambassador, sent to President Wilson today a message of thanks in behalf of the British Government for "the instant and comprehensive measures" which the President took in response to the request that American troops be used to reinforce the allied armies in France.

An embassy statement announcing that the message had been sent through the State Department said:

"The knowledge that owing to the President's prompt co-operation the Allies will receive the strong reinforcements necessary during the next few months is most welcome to the British Government and people."

WAR ON BULGARIA AND TURKEY URGED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator King of Utah today offered a resolution in the Senate declaring war against Turkey and Bulgaria. Without debate it was referred to the Military Affairs Committee.

Mr. King explained afterward that he had offered the resolution because Turkish and Bulgarian troops were being used against American and allied forces, while America was at peace with those two countries. He felt, furthermore, that Turkey, because of its massacre of Armenians and other acts of barbarism in the war, was the natural enemy of the United States.

Drive Kaiser's Best Troops Out of Grivesnes After Desperate Fighting.

GERMANS RENEW ATTACKS

But Strong Assault Fails to Break Down the Spirited French Defense.

MONTDIDIER DRIVE HALTED

Fighting Since Friday Indicates a Definite Stemming of the Teuton Advance.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday, April 2.—Grivesnes is one of the low, straggling villages of Santerre lying six miles northwest of Montdidier on one of the roads to Amiens, which is twenty miles beyond. Between the village and the mass of woods behind it there is the usual modest country house, dignified with the name of chateau. Just before noon Sunday perhaps the most famous of all bodies of German troops, the First Division of the Prussian Guard, debouched from the neighboring hamlet of Maipart and advanced upon Grivesnes.

They were received with heavy rifle and maching gun fire, but came on in wave after wave from the east, determind to carry this crossroads position. After an hour of murderous fusillades and charges repelled with cruel losses, the greycoats got into the village, and for two hours a hand-to-band struggle continued in the dusty road and among the cottages. At 2:40 P. M. the allied command had the affair in hand and ordered a general advance which swept the Prussians from the place.

In the grounds of the chateau the First Grenadier Guards were dealt with faithfully by a French detachment and fled in disorder. In this as in other recent actions the French armored cars did excellent service.

Guards Fail in New Attack.

Unwilling to accept such a reverse, the guards returned to the attack at 7 o'clock this morning, when they suffered another defeat. This Germandivision was formerly commanded by Gen. von Hutier himself.

Further north, along the Avre and the Luce, there has been more severa fighting, without any considerable change in the front. At one or two points the enemy slightly advanced. On the other hand, the French have retaken the village of Hangard.

Today for the first time since the beginning of the offensive, the enemy has brought a considerable number of guns of middle and large calibres into play.

Amiens is a dead city. The shops, factories, and houses are closed. Only the distant echo of cannon breake the silence. The crowd has vanished.

Stemmed Tide at Montdidier.

Monday, April 1.—The battle of Montdidier, as we may provisionally call it, began on Friday with one of the greatest German onslaughts of the war, blazed on throughout Saturday and that night, and only partially slackened yesterday. It marks an abrupt and radical change in the fats of the adventure into which the Kaiser and his officers have thrown the main mass of their remaining forces. For eight days, save for the arrest on the Oise, their offensive swung forward triumphantly, though not quite up to the time table, and frightfully penalized.

On the ninth day a new chapter of the tragic story was opened. The Allies, their lines unbroken, were standing with clenched teeth on good positions and were hourly adding to their strength in men and guns. Amiens appeared to the enemy like a mirage on the western horizon, and the two Crown Princes may have reflected that there would be accounts to pay at home if this time, after sacrifices such as can only be paralleled in rare episodes of military history like the retreat from Moscow, they did not bring back a victorious peace.

A smashing blow at the Franco-British junction was then to be decisive. It was begun with means believed to be adequate to this aim and was directed westward on both sides of Montdidier toward the Beauvais-Amiens Railway, with a supporting thrust from the threatened flank west of Lassigny. I have described some passages in Friday's and Saturday's fighting in these two parts of the field.

Sunday's Fighting Favored Allies.

Yesterday there was on our part both loss and gain, the balance, so far as it can yet be struck, being favorable. In any case the Allies had made their first considerable and successful stand since the flood fell upon them. Another day of slaughter confirms this characterization of the positions and our hopes.

Saturday, as I have reported, the enemy reached the Avre at Moreuil, capturing this small town. Further south, toward Montdidier, which they already held, the Germans crossed the river, again suffering very heavy losses, but were arrested on the hills of the western bank. In the evening the struggle, despite the exhaustion of both sides, attained its fiercest intensity. Moreuil was recaptured on Saturday night by a mixed Canadian and French force, lost again during the night and once more carried by storm in the old-fashioned way yesterday morning. No Stosstruppen, (shock troops,) no expert grenadiers or flame pumpers this time. Mixed in the same ranks, the British Colonials in khaki and the French in light blue, went forward irresistibly with the bayonet.

"The Canadians," says one of my informants, "performed prodigies of valor, and when the boches fell back they had lost half their effectives.

Full of their success, our troops turned northward and would not be satisfied till they had been firmly set on the wood of heights near the town. Later in the day several violent enemy attacks were made south of the Somme, but they seem to have been of rather a local and scattered kind, as though, at least for the moment, fresh efforts of the dimensions of those of Friday and Saturday were impossible.

The British have made some progress in the Valley of the Luce, and two strong German attacks were repulsed between Marcelcave and the Somme, as were others in the British sphere on the north of the river. On the other hand, the British line was beaten back to the village of Hangard, on the north bank of the Luce, nearly opposite Demuin.

Meanwhile the French in a counter-attack, effectively supported by their famous three-inch guns, had retaken the villages of Ayencourt and Le Montchel, southwest of Montdidier, which had been lost on Saturday.

Last night the allied front ran from the Somme east of Hamel to west of Marcelcave, through Hangard and west of Demuin; around Mareuil and the woods north of it, across the Avre to the Village of Braches, southward to the edge of Maipart, west of Caniigny, east of Avencourt and Montchel, and so, having rounded Montdidier, turned east at Rubescourt toward Lassigny.

In the last-named sector the only considerable combat that passed yesterday, so far as my news goes, resulted in an encouraging advance near Orvillers. From north of Rubescourt the front now runs to the southern border of Orvillers, turns north to include Biermont, Hoye-sur-Matz station, and Canny-sur-Matz, rune south of Liseigny at Plessis de Roye and Piemont, and so eastward to a point south of the Oise at Pont l'Eveque, near Noyon.

Like the actions of the preceding days, this battle has been in the main a conflict of infantry. On neither side has it been possible to get heavy artillery in position in time, but on the allied side French and British guns, freshly detrained, gave support of moral as well as material importance. When the 75 has a target of masses advancing in close, deep waves, its effecie are terrible beyond words. In the open country the air squadrons of the Allies have also worked havoc in the enemy's ranks, besidea hursting tons of explosives on his camps and lines of communication.

French Troops Did Miracles.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—The French performed remarkable feats in connection with the transport of troops when called upon to support their British allies in holding the southern part of the line in the first atage of the battle. One army corps came from a long distance to be thrown immediately into the fighting as the men debarked from motor lorries with their packs. This same corps hae now been in the fighting lines ten days without relief and has requested permission to remain there, although it has borne a great part in barring the route toward Paris through the valley of the Oise.

Other French eorps have entered the struggle since, but none has earned a greater amount of praise than this first reinforcement.

The reserves of the Allies ere still virtually intact.

CONSTANTINE'S AGENTS EXECUTED IN GREECE

Lieutenants Landed by Submarine Planned to Arrange Spy System and Establish a Naval Base.

ATHENS, March 30.—Lieutenants Calamaras and Hodjopoulos, who came to Greece recently on a German submarine as agents of ex-King Constantine, were condemned to death by a court-martial, and the sentence was carried out today. Their lawyer, M. Conoupis, also received the death sentence.

The two officers, after receiving instructions at Zurich, Berlin, and Vienna, came to Greece in the submarine from Pola with a letter from Constantine and plans to arrange a system of espionage and to establish a naval base. Conoupis was intermediary in the matter. A sister of Lieutenant Calamarae was sentenced to life imprisonmsnt and a peasant to fifteen years for harboring the officers.

A royal court-martial has been directed to prosecute Captain Paparrigopoulos, ex-aide de camp to King Constantine, who is said to have arranged for the visit of the Lieutenante, and Kollopas Capchiefet, who also aided in their plans.

CAPTURE 700 TURKS.

British in Palestine Also Get Much Booty in Week's Fighting.

LONDON, April 2.—An official statement issued today at the War Office regarding British operatione in Palestine says:

Seven hundred prisoners, four guns, several machine guns, and a number of motor lorries were captured east of the River Jordan between March 25 and April 1.

On March 30 raiding operations against the Hedjaz Railway having been successfully accomplished, our troops commenced a retirement toward Es-Salt.

The statement reads:

During March 30 our raiding operations east of the Jordan, directed against the Hedjas Railway, were successfully accomplished and our troops commenced their retirement toward Es-Salt. Several miles of the railway track with culverts and an important bridge were effectively demolished.

The enemy offered stubborn resistance in prepared positions in and about the village of Amman, in which direction our attack was not pressed, and a small Turkish force which attacked our rear guard April 1 was easily repulsed.

FIRE 4,000 SHELLS AGAINST OUR LINES

The Americans generally are in excellent shape, though not yet up to the standard of the magnificent French troops, whom they emulate and admire.

The boche may despoil cities and ruin cathedrals, but when it comes to annihilating a truckload of American apple pies and doughnuts, it is a different proposition, despite the expenditure of many thousand dollars in ammunition.

Yesterday a truck loaded with 7,000 doughnuts and more than 100 apple pies started from a Salvation Army hut several miles back of the American lines to go and carry goodies to Uncle Sam's boys in the trenchee. Halfway in view of the enemy the truck broke down. It was spotted by the boches while the driver and helper tried to repair it. After seventy shells had fallen for half an hour around it, the men had to flee. The bombardment of the pies and doughnuts kept up all afternoon.

Party to Rescue Pies.

At night the "Colonel" in charge of the Salvation Army took several men to rescue the truck. The boche spotted them, forcing a retreat before shells which fell for seven hours afterward. This morning a soldier on a motor cycle went past the truck at a clip of seventy-five miles an hour, reconnoitring for pies, and narrowly missing being hit. But he reported that, although shells had potted the road and fields nearby, the pies and doughnuts were safe.

In the afternoon the soldiers learned of the plight of the doughnuts and pies, and there was a rush of volunteers to go and get them tonight at all coets. Army officers gare consent to 100 men; and as this is being written the boys in brown are being picked to rescue the Salvation Army pies and doughnuts.

It is estimated that the Germans fired 400 shells at this truck of pies and doughnuts, evidently taking it for an ammunition truck. The boys swear they will get those pies tonight, boche shells or no boche shells.

HEAVY FIRING CONTINUES.

Americans Retaliate Effectively on Foe Northwest of Toul.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2 (Associated Press).—Northwest of Toul the American troops have again been subjected to heavy bombardment on various parts of the sector. The American artillery retaliated effectively.

The usual patrols were out last night, but no clashes are reported. The weather prevents aerial activity.

STRICTER DISCIPLINE FOR OVERSEAS ARMY

General Order Issued, Designed to Raise Troops to Highest Possible Efficiency.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2, (Associated Press.)—Stricter discipline, in order to bring the men to the highest possible etate of efficiency, is to be required by the American commanders in France. The following general order haa been issued to one of the American units which is to go to the battle front:

The character of the service this command is now about to undertake demands the enforcement of stricter discipline and the maintenance of higher standards of efficiency than any heretofore required.

In future the troops of thie command will be held at all times to the strictest observance of that rigid discipline in camp and on the march which is essential to their maximum efficiency on the day of battle.

The order, which was read to all the men, was issued by the direction of the officer commanding, who explained that it was for the purpose of raieing the troops to the higheet possible etate of efficiency.

Activity still continuea throughout the zone.

SEE BAKER'S HAND IN UNITY.

Washington Officials Think That Was His Special Mission.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Many officials here were convinced tonight that Secretary Baker had been eent to Europe by President Wilson for the purpose of bringing about the amalgamation of forces that has been effected. In urging single command for the whole battlefront in the west, it was regarded as certain that the American Secretary would not have gone empty-handed to the conferences.

The strength of the American Army actually in France was not sufficient to warrant more than a plea for new measures to meet the German onrush. With the whole man power of the United States made available to play its part, in the ranks of the allied armies as well as in the purely American forces, it was argued that Mr. Baker could speak with compelling force. There are many who believe that he crossed the ocean authorized to make this great sacrifice of pride in national achievement upon the altar of world democracy.

Whatever may have been the original purpose of the Secretary's mission, the complete unificeilon of German's three most powerful enemies, it is held here, has been accomplished. The effect it is believed will be seen shortly at the battle front.

GERMAN TENSION AT HIGHEST MARK

People Are Now Steeled For a Prolonged Struggle on the Western Front.

HOPED TO BREAK THROUGH

Surprised at Vigor of Allies' Resistance, But Determined to Fight On.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 2.—From a traveler just come from Germany I learn that the tension of public opinion in that country is "almost unbearable."

The people realize that they are faced with a task which will not quickly reach its end. The slowing down of the offensive has not affected the general public to any extent. It is regarded as an inevitable pause between two mighty efforts.

My informant could detect some disappointment here and there, especially among the upper business circles to which he has access, that the "break through," loudly heralded by the war correspondents on the last two occasions has not been effective. All those with whom he came in contact, especially in Rhineland industrial circles, gave him the impression that the people have steeled themselves for a tremendous struggle to be carried on until it is shown who can put, as one German expressed it, "an extra and deciding ounce into the last blow."

From another and very reliable source I hear that there prevails in the upper circles of the German army great surprise, not to say astonishment, at the tremendous resistance which the German forces have encountered, hut despite that and the extraordinarily high losses the offensive plans are to be sternly persevered in.

I also hear that a new German gas shell of which great things were expected has not nearly come up to anticipations.

The Munich Post refers to the gigantic sufferinge nnd sacrifices which the fighting causes, and says that such can only be justified if they bring peace.

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung is quite pessimistic. It points out that the great battle is not yet over and "however great the German victory is so far and however brilliant it may yet be it can never achieve what the heroes of talk, safe behind the lines, expect of it. The war will of the French people may be broken and England and Italy may be made more inclined to a peace by understanding, but to make England and the United States powerless and to force them to lay down their arms and submit to the victors' terms cannot be achieved by any victory on land.

If Hindenburg's genius brings about a complete victory, England and America cannot be forced to capitulation. Even with peace by force, one frightful weapon remains against us. We cannot live long without wheat, cotton and copper from America, nickel from Canada, cotton from Egypt and India, phosphates from North Africa, rubber from the English colonies, Indian jute, etc. When England and America, after the war, do not deliver such things to us, then as victors we are vanquished."

U-BOAT SINKS ITALIAN SHIP.

The Alessandra Attacked Off Madeira—Crew is Saved.

The Italian steamship Alessandra, of 2,432 tons gross register, hae been sunk by a German submarine, off the Island of Madeira, according to advices received in marine circles here yesterday. The crew was landed last Saturday at Funchal.

The Alessandra was last reported leaving Gibraltar for New York.

RAID AUSTRIAN TRENCHES.

Italians Take Prisoners and Repel Attacks by Patrols.

ROME, April 2.—The War Office today issued the following bulletin:

Our patrols were activo in the Tonale area and Inval Area, capturing a few prisoners. In Giudicaria and east of Ponte della Friula enemy parties were driven back by rifle fire.

Along the whole front there has been slight artillery activity. Bad weather has hindered aerial activity.

$200,000,000 FOR BRITAIN.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Credits to the Allies in the last year were raised to more than $5,000,000,000 by a loan of $200,000,000 to Great Britain.

That nation's total credits from the United States now are $2,720,000,000 and all the Allies, $5,160,600,000.

LONDON IS LEARNING WHO HELD BACK FOE

Byng a Popular Hero Because of Army's Work—Gough of Fifth Army Dropped.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—The English papers have now been permitted to give within limits information regarding the identity of commanders on the western front. General Sir Julian Byng is one of the heroes of the day, for in the great events of the last twelve days nothing has been finer than the etand made by the Third Army against the enemy's onset.

All the indicatioos are that the main German offensive was launched against that part of the British line which was held by Gen. Byng's army. Nevertheless, von Below's hammer blowe made practically no impression on this force. The Third Army did not give way for more than 100 yards under the weight of greatly superior numbers, and only retired in order to conform with the new dispositions rendered necessary by the great hend in the line on its right.

Every division in the Third Army fought gloriously against great odds. None fought better than the Fifty-first Division, composed of Highland Territorials, whose valor wae gratefully and admiringly acknowledged by the King during hie recent visit to the front.

General Sir Henry Rawlinson, who wae the British representative on the Versailles War Council, has been appointed to the command of the Fourth Army, into which several divisions of the old Fifth Army that was aligned on the St. Quentin seotor, have been absorbed.

General Gough, who was in command of the Fifth Army, is for the time being unemployed.

Remarkable incidents connected with the prolonged battle, are becoming known. One of the most dramatic was an audacious and successful effort of a scratch battalion in closing a gap in the British line.

Major General Sandoman Carey, seeing this gap suddenly open, at once improvised a force to close the breach. It was a miscellaneous body, composed of mechanics, aerial artificers, signalers, machine gunnere, and men of the labor corps. For nearly six daya this ecratch force gallantly held its position on the left of the Fifth Army. The skill of its commander and the tenacity of the men composing it rendered invaluable service in a critical emergency.

GIRLS DIRECTED ARMY TRAFFIC

Red Cross Workers Helped Allied Movement at Roye.

PARIS, April 2.—Girls attached to one front line unit of the Red Cross made a fine record in the recent German offensive.

At Roye they took over the direction of military traffic. One girl in gray uniform standing at the four corners directed columns of guns, cavalry, supply wagons, and troops, thus preventing a terrific jam.

The unit had been located at Greycourt, a few miles back of the lines, doing reconstruction and relief work, when the offensive began. They were the last women to leave several towns before the Germans entered, and were on duty in half a dozen villages, widely separated, when word came of the German advance.

They aided hundreds of refugees to the railheads, and established a temporary kitchen in one town, feeding 250 British soldiers who had not eaten for hours.

In four different towns the girls managed to keep just one day ahead of the oncoming Germans. At one place they crossed a bridge a few minutes before it was blown up. Previously they had driven across this bridge night and day while it was mined. The military authorities finally had to order them to cross the bridge.

The Red Cross girls worked eight days without removing their clothes, sleeping on straw in barns and caves and similar hillets.

THE CARLISLE CASTLE SUNK

Vessel, with Cargo of War Supplies, Destroyed in English Channel.

BOSTON, April 2.—Sinking of the British steamer Carlisle Castle, presumably by a German submarine, while on a voyage from this country for a foreign port, was reported in shipping circles here today. She was chartered to the Cunard Line and carried war supplies.

200,000 Insured in Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—More than 200,000 applicatione of officers and enlisted men in the naval service had been filed up to March 31 for war risk insurance. The average amount of insurance on each policy was about $7,300 for each individual, which would make a total of more than $1,500,000,000 insurance.

CZERNIN AGAIN REPLIES TO WILSON

made my speech I supposed that it had already reached Washington. Apparently, however, it only arrived there some days later.

Wilson's Four Points a Basis.

"This does not affect the matter itself. My object was to aecure that the President of the United States should get the exact text of my speech and this object wae attained and the trifling delay of a few days was a matter of indifference.

"With regard to Mr. Wilson's reply, I can only say that I consider it very important that the German Chancellor, in his admirable speech of Feb. 25, took the answer out of my mouth and declared that the four points developed by Mr. Wilson in hie speech of Feb. 11 are the basis upon which a general peace can be discussed. I entirely agree with him in this.

"President Wilson's four points are a suitable basis upon which to begin negotiating about a general peace. The question is whether or not Mr. Wilson will succeed in uniting his allies upon this basis.

Asserts France Blocked Peace.

"God is my witness that we have tried everything possible to avoid a new offensive. The Entente would not have it. A short time before the beginning of the offensive in the west M. Clemenceau inquired of me whether and upon what basis I was prepared to negotiate. I immediately replied, in agreement with Berlin, that I was ready to engotiate, and that as regards France I saw no other obstacle for peace than France's desire for Alsace-Lorraine.

"The reply from Paris was that it that I was ready to negotiate, and basis. There was then no choice left.

"The gigantic struggle in the west has already begun. Austro-Hungarian and German troops are fighting shoulder to shoulder as they did in Russia, Serbia, Rumania, and Italy. We are fighting united for the defence of Austria-Hungary and Germany. Our armies will show the Entento that French and Italian aspirations to portions of our territory are Utopias which will be terribly avenged.

Says Entente "Verges on Lunacy."

"The explanation or this attitude of the Entente Powers, which verges on lunacy, is to a great extent to be sought in certain domeatic events here, to which I shall return later. Whatever may happen, we shall not sacrifice German interests any more than Germany will deeert us. Loyalty on the Danube la not less than German loyalty. We are not fighting for imperialist or annexationist ends, either for ourselves or for Germany, but we shall act together to the end for our defense, for our political existence and for our future.

"The first breach in the determination of our enemies to war has been driven by the peace negotiations with Russia. That was a break-through by the idea of peace.

"It is a symptom of childish dilettantism to overlook the close relationship of the various peace signatures with each other. The constellation of enemy powers in the East was like a net. When one mesh was cut through the remaining meshes loosened of their own accord.

"We first gave international recognition to the separation of Ukraine from Russia, which had to be accomplished as an internal affair of Russia. Profiting from resultant circumstances which were favorable to our aims, we concluded with the Ukraine the peace eought by that country.

"This gave the lead to peace with Petrograd, whereby Rumania was left standing alone, eo that she also had to conclude peace. So one peace brought another and the desired success, namely, the end of the war in the East, was achieved."

[No more of Count Czernin's speech had been received by The Times correspondent at The Hague up to 10 o'clock last night.]

GERMANY PROPOSES BARTER OF ALSATIANS

Asks Through Vatican the Return of Refugees in Exchange for French Civil Captives.

PARIS, April 2.—The Germans have made overtures through the Holy See for the return by France of inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine who have escaped from those regions, offering in exchange an equal number of civilians from the invaded districts of France.

Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, transmitted the offer to Baron Denys Cochin, a prominent Catholic leader and recently a member of the Cabinet. The Baron refused to act as intermediary in the negotiations, on the ground that to do eo would be to recognize Alsatians as German subjects. He wrote a sharp letter, which brought an equally spirited rejoindcr from Cardinal Gasparri.

GERMANY NOW SPURNS WORLD PEACE LEAGUE

Semi-Official Statement Calls Project Fantastic and Rejects Discussion on Alsace.

AMSTERDAM, March 20, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—For the first time in Germany a semi-official statement dismisses the idea of a league of nations as fantastic and impossible. The statement, as published in the German papers, says:

"We do not see that a league of nations could offer any guarantee of lasting peace among men. The nations would perhaps greet such a league with joy, but in due time they would learn to curse it, because it could not fail to deceive all their hopes most cruelly.

"The only possible result would be continual strife and quarreling, and finally perhaps a fresh war, in which the whole world would be involved.

"So far as Alsace-Lorraine is concerned, we decline all leagues and congresses."

REDS WANT ALLIES TO CHECK COSSACKS

Say That if Manchurian Frontier Is Closed They Can Deal with Semenoff's Forces.

ANSWER GERMAN DEMANDS

Ask Proof That Bolshevist Troops Are in Finland—Berlin Seeks Arrest of Deserters.

MOSCOW, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Captain William R. Webster of the American Red Cross and Captain W. L. Hicks of the British Military Mission attended a meeting of the Central Siberian Soviet at Irkutsk. They were assured that less than 1,200 Austrian prisoners throughout Siberia had been armed and enlisted in the Red Guards, and that all these men were Socialists who had renounced their Austrian citizenship. The Soviet gave the assurance that no more prisoners would be armed, and also announced its intention to defend Siberia against the German invasion.

The United States and Great Britain were requested by the Soviet to permit the free exportation of manufactured articles, especially farm machinery, into Siberia through Archangel and Vladivostok. The Soviet officials also asked the assistance of the Allies in checking Cossack raids across the Manchurian border, saying that they were unwilling to follow the marauders into Chinese territory, but were quite able to defeat General Semenoff and his followers if they were prevented from escaping to Chinese soil.

A foreign trade and finance commission of nine members, who include Nikolai Lenine and M. Radek, has been appointed to frame legislation for the establishment of a State monopoly in foreign trade, and generally to deal with all matters pertaining to economic relations with the United States, Germany, the Ukraine, and other countries.

LONDON, April 2.—The Russian Government, according to a Russian wireless statement received here, has addressed the following to the German Government:

Neither the Councils of the Central Government nor the local authorities are sending Red Guards to Finland. If the German Government has in its possession information that Red Guards are arriving in Finland from Russia, the Russian Government will make inquiries and take most severe measures against it. The Russian Government will be very grateful to the German Government for an indication of the points on the Finnish frontier at which Russian Red Guards have entered Finland.

An exchange of the instruments of ratification of the peace treaty concluded at Brest-Litovsk between the Central Powers and Russia took place March 30, according to a Reuter dispatch from Moscow.

BERLIN, April 2, via London, (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The German Government has addressed a note to the Russian Government, in which it says German and Austrian deserters at Moscow are threatening to take forcible possession of the Swedish and Danish Consulates in the same manner that they have already taken possession of lodgings for war prisoners.

"They are endeavoring by violence," says the note, "to put these prisoners into the Red Guard. The civil and military authorities at Moscow are said to be powerless, and, in some instances, to favor such activities. The German Government expects immediate energetic measures to be taken by the Russian Government, and especially expects the dissolution of the War Prisoners' Committee, composed of these deserters under the leadership of the Austrian, Asennz, and the arrest of all of its members."

ANTI-RED RUSSIANS ALLIES OF GERMANS

Plea for Recognition of the Soviet Government by Entente to Foil Them.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sunday, March 31.—Further news from Siberia makes it clear that there, as everywhere else in Russia, politicians opposed to the Soviet Government are compelled to seek the aid of foreign troops—sufficient proof of the fact that these politicians are politically conscious that the bulk of the working classes support the Soviets.

Thus, in Ukraine, while the Rada is supported by German bayonets in Kiev, the Ukranian Soviet in Kharkov is not only itself putting up what regular resistance it can but it is getting at least moral support by an actual rising of the population in the German rear. It is confirmed that Kherson and Nikolayev are again in the hands of Soviet forces. Odessa has been retaken for the Soviet by sailors of the Black Sea fleet which the Ukranian Soviet ineffectually tried to demobilize.

The Rada, not content with the treachery of summoning German help, is now trying to deprive the fleet of its base by countenancing a Turkish expedition to the Crimea with the nominal aim of "restoring order there." The fleet and the Ukranian Soviet troops will resist this attempt.

In the north it is confirmed from Archangel that Finnish White Guards moving eastward are making propaganda for a federation with Finland of the Russian northern provinces with a view to cutting off the northern ports. This position is curious inasmuch as all our enemies recognize the Soviet Government as their enemy, and we do not recognize it at all.

I cannot too strongly urge recognition as a means of strengthening the Soviet Government here and of easing the task of co-operation.

CAUCASUS IN ARMS TO FIGHT THE TURKS

Refuses to Recognize Cession of Territory Made Under Brest-Litovsk Treaty.

PETROGRAD, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Fierce fighting has broken out in the districts of Batum, Kars, and Ardsham, in the Caucasus. The Armenians and Georgians have formed a large army for the defense of the territory against the Turks, who have begun military occupation of the three districts by virtuo of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty.

The Georgians have seized most of the Russian warships in the harbor of Batum and have taken them into the Black Sea.

The entire population of Georgia has been mobilized to oppose the invaders.

Special War Service at Trinity.

On Saturday next, the first anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war, old Trinity Church, at the head of Wall Street, will hold a special midday service to mark the occasion. It is expected that the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Parish, who is now a volunteer chaplain with the 302d United States Engineers at Camp Upton, will make an address.

BAKER IN ROME AFTER SEEING VENICE

Weather Prevents American War Secretary's Visit to Piave and Mountain Fronts.

IS MUCH IMPRESSED BY TRIP

Greeted at the Capital by Officials —Will Be Received by the King.

ROME, April 2.—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, arrived here this afternoon. The Secretary, who was accompanied by Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, was received by General Zupelli, Minister of War, Francesco Nitti, Minister of the Treasury; Colonel Vachelli, head of the Division of the General Staff; Robert R. Perkins, American Red Cross Commissioner to Italy, and the personel of the American Embassy and Consulate.

Mr. Baker arrived in Rome too late to keep his engagement to witness the marriage of Miss Augusta Grover of Princeton to Hart Anderson, Secretary of the American Embassy. The marriage was celebrated in the Embassy this morning.

Secretary Baker gave out this statement:

"The Government and people of the United States are fighting, like the Italian people and Government, for the freedom of the world. I am happy to have this opportunity, however brief, to bring the greetings of America to Italy, its army, and people, and to express the admiration we feel for their magnificent deeds and indomitable spirit. It strengthens our pride and increases our confidence that we are able to count Italy among the nations allied to save civilization from destruction."

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, April 1.—(Associated Press.)—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, accompanied by the members of his staff, arrived at the Italian Army Headquarters this morning. He was joined here by Ambassador Page, who came from Rome, and Major Gen. Eben Swift, head of the American military mission to Italy.

The party proceeded to the Supreme Command, where a handsome villa was placed at the disposition of the Secretary. Mr. Baker and Mr. Page called on General Diaz, the Secretary remaining for a long talk with the Italian Commander in Chief.

Later General Diaz entertained Secretary Baker, Ambassador Page, and General Swift at luncheon. The gathering gave opportunity for an agreeable exchange of views in which General Diaz spoke in high terms of the American troops and Ambassador Page referred to the strong bonds of friendship existing between America and Italy and the desire of the United States to do everything which would contribute to the winning of the common cause.

Venice's Desolation Witnessed.

VENICE, April 1, (Associated Press.)—The desolate condition of Venice, left so by the evacuation of two-thirds of its population and the destruction of many of its churches and buildings by aerial bombardments, was witnessed today by Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War. The distant rumble of the bombardment at the south of the Piave River, twelve miles east of the city, usually echoes through Venice, but there was no cannonade during the Secretary's visit.

Admiral Marzolo, naval commandant of Venice, sent his Chief of Staff and the Admiral's barge to convey the party to Venice. The trip was through the lagoons, which afforded a view of the region flooded by the Italian military engineers in order to hold back the enemy's advance. Arriving in Venice, Mr. Baker and Ambassador Page were escorted to the Admiral's headquarters. The party then passed through the Grand Canal to the Place San Marco and to the City Council Chamber, where the Mayor of Venice, Count Grimani, with the Prefect and members of the municipality, extended it the welcome of the city. Count Grimani's address was a warm tribute to the United States and an acknowledgement of America's part in assisting Venice during the recent critical period.

Later Mr. Baker and party visited the Doge's palace, the Campanile, and the Basilica of San Marco. The Secretary noted the defensive armor of sandbags with which all these world monuments were covered. He also went through the interior of the Doge's palace, now stripped of most of its precious paintings and presenting the appearance of a citadel.

Regarding his impressions of Italy, Secretary Baker authorized the following statement:

"I have been deeply interested in the military activity of the Italian Army and regret that fog prevented my seeing the marvelous engineering works constructed by them in the ragged mountain country through which their line runs. Nothing could exceed the hospitality with which my visit has been received and it has been made possible for me to see a great deal in a short time.

"The relations between the Italian Army and people and the Americans here is most sympathetic and cordial, and it gave me please to express the appreciation of America for the splendid loyalty of Italy to the common cause and to reciprocate the warm sentiments expressed everywhere for America and Americans."

much information as had been sent in news dispatches from General Pershing's headquarters in France.

American forces have now been in France since last Summer and some of our men have been on the fighting front, occupying trenches for six months. No daily communiques regarding the employment of American forces have been issued, although every other nation having forces engaged in the war has been issuing communiques, and the British, French, and German War Offices have issued several official statements regarding military operations daily.

News at Second Hand.

A peculiar feature of the situation appears to be that high officials in the War Department have been obtaining their first news regarding the recent vital developments as to the more immediate use of American forces on a large scale from the newspapers or from published reports of French and British announcements. If the War Department has been taken fully into the confidence of the Administration, or of General Pershing or Secretary Baker, that fact has not been admitted at the department.

The announcement of General Pershing's offer of the unlimited use of American forces was first made in a Parisian newspaper and was later confirmed. Responsible officials of the War Department denied absolutely that they had any knowledge of the offer, beyond what they read in the press. Similarly, when General Foch was named to co-ordinate the allied forces, the first intimation on this side of the water came when the President's congratulatory message to General Foch was made public. Then it was learned from the White House that the message was intended to congratulate General Foch on the fact that he had been intrusted with the unity of command over all the forces on the western front involved in the battle. General March, when asked about the appointment of General Foch, said he had no advices on the subject.

For three days responsible officials of the War Department have insisted that they were without knowledge of the fact that American troops were already on the move toward the battle front, although their movement has been characterized by the greatest enthusiasm and has been dealt with in considerable detail in censored dispatches from abroad. The announcement that American troops were to be rushed to Europe as rapidly as possible from now on also came from abroad in an official statement issued at London, and concerning which the War Department today professed to have no official confirmation.

HOT FIRE ON OVERMAN BILL.

Reed and Smith Oppose Wider Powers for President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Overmnn bill to give the President broader power to redistribute and co-ordinate governmental agencies came up for debate in the Senate today and was vigorously bombarded on both sides of the chamber.

As it stands before the Senate, the bill gives the President power to "utilize, co-ordinate or consolidate any executive or administrative commissions, bureaus, agencies, offices, or officers now existing by law, to transfer any duties or powers from one existing department to another, to transfer the personnel thereof or any part of it, either by detail or assignment." To abolish any department existing by law, the President must obtain legislation from Congress. The law would remain in effect for one year after the war.

Its opponents predict that the measure will be drastically cut so as to narrow down the power to be given to the President. The majority in the Senate is not averse to allowing the President to co-ordinate the War, Navy and Shipping Board activities so as to centralize their functions, but it insists that the measure specify precisely what departments are to be affected.

Senator Cummins said: "If it were necessary to save this country, I'd favor giving the President power to abolish any agencies and create any he saw fit. But that necessity does not exist. This measure is merely a step toward destroying our union, rather than saving it."

"The Senator distrusts the Commander in Chief of the nation," flung back Senator Overman. "He is afraid the President would abuse the power given to him. Let me ask the Senator to tell this Senate if he distrusts the President."

"Mr. President, I hope the Senator from North Carolina won't press me too far as to my trust in the President of the United States," rejoined Senator Cummins. "I have confidence in his good faith, but I would not put such power as this bill contemplates into his hands. I would not do it with any President. The Senator from North Carolina has not convinced me that such power as this bill would bestow is necessary at this time."

"I want to say I think it is necessary," insisted Senator Overman. "We have the most unscientific Government in the whole world. It needs overhauling. The President is hampered through lack of co-ordinated authority. He wants Congress to give it to him."

NAMES REVIEWERS OF EXCESS PROFITS

Board of Fourteen Appointed by Roper to Pass On Complicated Returns.

HEADED BY AN ECONOMIST

Business Liberally Represented—Four Advisory Members—Leniency to Delinquent Taxpayers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The heaviest administrative load connected with the collection of income, corporation, and excess profits taxes will come in the examination of excess profits tax returns. Many technical questions must necessarily arise from this form of taxation, which is new to our system of Government and attended with innumerable complications. To meet the vast amount of work thus entailed upon the Bureau of Internal Revenue, a special board of fourteen reviewers has been designated by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper to co-ordinate the work of the bureau and the rights of business men and firms subject to the tax. The men who will serve on this board are:

T. S. ADAMS, economist of Yale University, Chairman.
J. E. STERRETT, accountant, New York City.
STUART W. CRAMER of the National Council of Cotton Manufacturers, Charlotte, N. C.
E. T. MEREDITH, agricultural publisher, Des Moines, Iowa.
WILLIAM N. DAVIS, engineer and oil expert, Bartlesville, Okla.
THOMAS E. LYONS, member of Wisconsin State Tax Commission, Madison, Wis.
R. C. ALLEN, State Geologist, Lansing, Mich.
RALPH ARNOLD, geologist and petroleum engineer, Los Angeles, Cal.
JOHN MARKS, lawyer and sugar planter, Napoleonville, La.
A. P. RAMSTEDT, mining, smelting, and refining expert, Wallace, Idaho.
GEORGE M. CORNWALL, lumber expert and editor of The Timberman, Portland, Ore.
CARL H. NAU, accountant, Cleveland, Ohio.
M. H. BOND, Massachusetts Income Tax Deputy, Boston, Mass.
L. F. SPEER, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

A number of these reviewers served as advisers in constructing the regulations for the administration of the excess profits tax.

Legal questions arising in connection with the work of the reviewers will be referred to Arthur A. Ballantine, Solicitor for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and to special attorneys, among whom are Fred T. Field, Hugh Satterlee, and Robert N. Miller.

Advisory Board Also Named.

The appointment of four advisory members, who will not participate in the daily review work, but will be called in for conferences on important questions, is also announced. These advisers are:

CORDELL HULL, member of the Ways and Means Committee, House of Representatives.
WALLACE D. SIMMONS, President Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis, Mo.
HENRY WALTERS, Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville & Nashville Railway, Baltimore, Md.
JOHN BURKE, Treasurer of the United States.

There will be advanced to each Collector at the beginning of each quarter of the fiscal year out of the appropriation for the refundment of internal revenue taxes a sum estimated to be sufficient for the repayment to taxpayers of excessive collections, as follows:

1. Collections exceeding the tax shown by the return of the taxpayer to be due.
2. Collections exceeding the amount of tax shown by the assessment list to be due.
3. Duplicate payments where (a) both are made before assessment; (b) both are made after assessment; (c) one is made before, and one after assessment.

Rulings by Commissioner.

Commissioner Roper announced a ruling today, providing for the transmittal of ownership certificates in which exemption is claimed. The substance of the ruling follows:

"Where a debtor corporation, or its duly authorized withholding agent, has made no payments of interest to non-resident alien individuals, or foreign corporations, having no office or place of business in the United States, or has withheld no tax from citizens or residents of the United States, whether or not the bonds upon which such interest accrued contain a tax-free covenant clause, the exemption certificates filed in connection with such interest payments shall not hereafter be forwarded to Collectors of Internal Revenue revised, but shall be transmitted direct to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., accompanied by a return on Form 1,006. When used in this connection, Form 1,006 shall be filed monthly, and in such cases, this office will not require that the return be sworn to."

Commissioner Roper also made a ruling as regard to computation of excess profits taxes for a period of less than a full year and filing of excess profits tax returns for such period. The ruling is that if a taxpayer who is engaged in a trade or business the net income from which is subject to taxation at the graduated rates imposed makes a return for a period of less than twelve months the average invested capital shall be determined by monthly average, based upon the number of months in the period, and the deduction will be an amount which bears the same ratio to the deduction allowable for a full year as the number of months in such period bears to twelve months. The following illustration of the working of this tax is given:

"A corporation making its return on a calendar year basis started business Aug. 16, 1917, with a capital of $100,000, which remained unchanged for the balance of the year 1917. Its net income for that period was $8,000.

"The deduction computed under the provisions of Articles 20 and 21 would, as this corporation was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the pre-war period, be 8 per cent. of the invested capital, or $8,000 plus $3,000, a total of $11,000. But, inasmuch as the return is being made only for a period of four and one-half months, the deduction would be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to $11,000 as four and one-half months bears to a full year of twelve months, or, in other words, the deduction would be reduced to $4,125.

"For the purpose of applying the rates of taxation the invested capital of $100,000 would likewise be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to the full invested capital as the number of months in the period for which the return is made bears to twelve months, or, in other words, would be reduced to $37,500.

"The amount of the net income taxable at each rate would be as follows:

In excess of the deduction and not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital (rate 20 per cent.)	$1,500.00
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof (the rate 25 per cent.)	1,875.00
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof (rate 35 per cent.)	500.00

"The tax would then be computed as follows:

20 per cent. of $1,500	$300.00
25 per cent. of $1,875	468.75
35 per cent. of $500	175.00
Total tax	$943.75

"If a taxpayer who is engaged in a trade or business, the net income from which is subject to taxation at the rate of 8 per cent. imposed, makes a return for a period of less than twelve months, the deduction of $3,000 of $6,000 allowed will be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to such full deduction as the number of months in the period bears to twelve months."

Massachusetts to Pay $100,000,000 This Year on 200,000 Incomes.

BOSTON, April 2.—Massachusetts residents will contribute more than $100,000,000 in taxes to the Federal Treasury this year, it was estimated today at the office of John F. Malley, Collector of Internal Revenue. More than 50,000 returns were received yesterday, bringing the total to more than 200,000.

Federal taxes paid in this State last year amounted to $30,000,000.

Miss Hylan Sells War Stamps.

Miss Virginia Hylan, daughter of the Mayor, who bought one of the first War Savings Stamps sold in this city when the campaign opened on Dec. 3, made her début yesterday as a war saving campaigner. She appeared at the War Savings Committee's Browning machine gun exhibit at the Public Library, Fortysecond Street and Fifth Avenue, and joined a number of members of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense in selling stamps in front of the tent where the machine gun rests.

SIX KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Girl Among Victims in Plant Doing War Work—Many Hurt.

PITTSBURGH Penn., April 2.—Six workmen, one of them a woman machinist's helper, are dead, seven others are in Pittsburgh hospitals suffering from severe injuries, and nearly a score of workmen are more or less injured, as a result of an explosion today in the machine shop of the Flannery Bolt Company's plant at Bridgeville, a suburb.

Ignition of several hundred gallons of oil in a huge cylinder, fourteen feet long and twelve feet in diameter, was responsible for the explosion, which showered burning oil on all the employees of the machine shop.

Jeanette Barnwell, 19 years old, one of the victims of the explosion, was the first of several thousand women who have taken up work in plants in the Pittsburgh district, to meet death in an industrial accident. The Flannery plant is working on Government contracts.

District Attorney Declares Gambling House Men Feared Prosecution.

HEARS OF DARK STRANGER

Rothenberg and His Friend Say Tall Man Accompanied Victim When He Left Them.

Harry Cohen, alias "Harry the Yot," the burglar and gambler who was shot and killed on Monday morning in the hallway of his apartment at 7 West Ninety-second Street, was killed, according to District Attorney Swann, by a gunman hired by proprietors of gambling houses, who feared the disclosures which Cohen had promised to the District Attorney.

Morris Rothenberg, who was arrested on Monday night for the murder by Detectives under Police Captain McKenna, has been connected with Cohen by a series of circumstances, although Rothenberg continued to protest his innocence and offered an alibi which a friend corroborated.

Rothenberg admitted that he was with Cohen up to 6 o'clock on Monday morning in a gambling house in Sixth Avenue near Forty-eighth Street. It was there that Cohen lost all the money he was carrying, which resulted in his telephoning about two hours before he was murdered to Assistant District Attorney Smith and promising to make sensational exposures of gamblers.

But Rothenberg asserted that at 6 o'clock Cohen had started uptown toward his home with a dark stranger, apparently a Greek or Italian. Joseph Galupo, Jr., a friend of Rothenberg, said he was with Cohen at 6 o'clock on Monday morning and that he had also seen Cohen start home with the stranger.

One admission from Rothenberg, which the District Attorney considered important, was that he had received gifts of money from Cohen. He said Cohen had recently been interested in gambling houses. Rothenberg, according to the story, was employed as a "steerer," or one who brings patrons to the gambling house. As the man who killed Cohen accepted a bill of $50 from him a few minutes before the shooting, in the presence of the elevator boy at 7 West Ninety-second Street, District Attorney Swann considered the fact that Rothenberg was in the habit of getting money from Cohen to be significant.

Joseph Edney, the negro elevator boy, who saw the shots fired and chased the murderer, stuck to his identification of Rothenberg as the man who did the shooting.

Rothenberg had been a waiter and café singer. His friend and alibi witness, Joseph Galupo, Jr., is a fruit-stand keeper by occupation, but has not pursued that lawful calling for two years, he said. He was reticent about his means of support.

District Attorney Swann said yesterday that no connection had been established between Rothenberg and the alleged organization of gamblers who were desperate enough to finance a second "Rosenthal murder," rather than let Cohen's information get into the hands of the District Attorney. Judge Swann said that Cohen himself had told about a fund of $10,000 being raised by gamblers to safeguard their interests, when the investigation by the District Attorney's office began a few days after the Hylan Administration took office.

The revolver with which the shooting was done, which was found to contain bullets with their noses notched to make them spread like dumdum bullets, was not easy to trace because the number of the weapon had been filed away by its careful possessor. Acting Captain McKenna was able, however, to find out, through representatives of the Colt Arms Company, where the revolver had been sold, but the weapon was not definitely traced to Rothenberg.

District Attorney Swann said he had been rather startled because Mrs. Cohen, the wife of the dead man, had made an apparent attempt to defend Rothenberg. She denied at first, he said, that Rothenberg had ever been with her husband. Later, after lengthy questioning, she admitted that he had been there frequently and that he often had dinner with them.

FORSTMAN DENIES ANY GERMAN TAINT

Declares He Never Saw Compromising Letters, and Bought Wool at Metz's Suggestion.

Julius Forstmann, President of the $2,000,000 Forstmann & Huffmann Woolen Mills of Passaic, appeared before Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker yesterday afternoon to declare himself a loyal citizen of the United States. The mill, of which Mr. Forstmann is the head, is one of the big plants recently seized by the Alien Property Custodian. Robert H. McCarter of Newark appeared at the hearing as leading counsel for Mr. Forstmann.

"Mr. Forstmann," said Mr. McCarter addressing Mr. Becker, "was born in Germany. He married in Germany. Two of his five children were born in Germany. He came here at the age of 33 years, and when he left Germany he burned his bridges behind him. He settled in Passaic and he built up a great business, and has identified himself with all the civic activities of his adopted city. He owns his home there and he owns an estate in the Catskills, where he is now developing a fish and game preserve."

"In 1914," added Mr. McCarter, "Mr. Forstmann was approached by the Hon. Herman A. Metz, then a member of Congress from New York City and now wearing the uniform of an officer of his country, and Mr. Metz told him that unless some arrangement could be made to get wool and cotton into Germany the dye industry would suffer tremendously."

Lieut. Col. H. A. Metz, National Guard New York, was the first witness called by Mr. McCarter. He told of the efforts to exchange wool and cotton for dyestuffs and verified the statement that he had sought the aid of Mr. Forstmann.

Mr. Forstmann took the stand and denied that he had ever knowingly violated any regulation of the Textile Alliance, and said that he had never bought any wool for Germany except under the circumstances mentioned by Mr. McCarter.

At the conclusion of Mr. McCarter's examination of Mr. Forstmann, Mr. Becker read into the record the following letter from the German Foreign Office. The signature was removed from the copy before it was given out:

Berlin, June 28, 1916.

To Herr Count v. Bernstorff, Rye, N. Y.:

Your Excellency: Interested parties here have repeatedly made representation for preferential treatment of the firm of Forstmann & Huffmann in Passaic, N. J., in connection with shipment of coal tar dyes to the U. S. A., since this pure German firm, as is well known on your side, undertook last year the wool supply for Germany, and therefore, claims it has been specially badly treated by England. It is most respectfully recommended to your Excellency, should there be no reason to the contrary, to arrange for the greatest possible consideration for this firm in the later distribution of the shipments to consumers which are now in prospect.

Mr. Forstmann said that it was the first time he had ever heard of the letter and he added that the German Foreign Office had no justification for transmitting such a letter to the former Ambassador.

Dr. Charles W. Howe, President of the National Bank of Passaic; Richard J. Scoles, President of the Passaic Trust and Safety Deposit Company, and Charles M. Johnson, President of the Passaic Board of Trade appeared as character witnesses for Mr. Forstmann. They testified that he had been one of the largest individual subscribers to Liberty bonds, that he had led in subscription to the Red Cross, and had liberally contributed to the support of the war activities of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Forstmann said he owned $600,000 worth of Liberty bonds. Other prominent Passaic citizens were present also to testify to the loyalty of Mr. Forstmann.

MIKE DONOVAN'S WILL FILED

Discloses an Estate of $4,700 and That His Name Was O'Donovan.

The will of Mike Donovan, teacher of boxing at the New York Athletic Club, who died on March 24, filed yesterday, disclosed that his real name was Michael J. O'Donovan. His entire estate consisted of $4,700 in personal property, which is the principal of a mortgage held in trust for him by the New York Athletic Club.

The testator asked that the mortgage be converted into cash and divided among his three sons, six daughters, and his grandchildren in sums ranging from $200 to $500 each.

BAY STATE ADOPTS DRY AMENDMENT

Vote in Senate 27 to 12 on Federal Proposal, Following Similar House Action.

BOSTON, April 2.—Massachusetts swung into line with the States supporting the Federal prohibition movement when the Senate today ratified the amendment by a roll call vote of 27 to 12. Similar indorsement was voted a week ago by the House 145 to 91.

By this action Massachusetts becomes the first of the Northeastern States to ratify the amendment and the eleventh in the entire country. The States that had previously ratified it are Mississippi, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, Montana, Texas, Delaware, and South Dakota. To carry the amendment twenty-five other States must vote in its favor.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

If we were asked to reduce to its briefest form the chief reason for the success of this organization in its dealings with the many property owners it has served and is now serving, we believe the headline of this advertisement would express it admirably and adequately, for what more can any organization hope to achieve?

Worsted Knitting Yarn of Highest Quality

THE Patriotic Yarn Association was organized to supply the women of this country with the best worsted knitting yarn in the market at the lowest possible cost, allowing only for the expense of distribution, with the understanding that they will make up garments for men in the service of the United States and her Allies. We desire to reach the individual knitter direct, that she may be unrestricted in the disposition of her finished garment, provided only that she knit solely for the above-mentioned cause and give her written word of honor to that effect. We also gladly help out small organizations of recognized reputation working for patriotic purposes.

We will take care of requests for yarn in the order in which they are received, and advise that you act promptly to avoid disappointment. The supply is limited.

The Man at Home

As part of the magnificent morale of the great American Army of Business, which is supporting the American Armies in the Field, it is every man's duty to keep himself in bodily and mental trim.

His smart personal appearance is the outward token of that indomitable spirit which prompts an air of confidence in the midst of sacrifice and struggle.

We have looked after his needs in time of peace. We have learned his preferences when he had the leisure to dwell upon the cut of a lapel. That we have gained his confidence is shown by the splendid growth of this business. And now that he is deep in the work of helping to support the war—having grown neither careless of his appearance nor unmindful of those differences which separate the smart from the commonplace—he will find that his confidence has not been misplaced.

Our Spring and Summer assortments of clothes, for the office, for home, for travel, for country and sport wear, and for evening, reflect the spirit of the hour—his spirit—to a nicety. In character, they are neither too grave nor too gay—the conservative, tasteful expression of a period when serious thoughts and cheerful hopes are mingled in the public mind.

But it is the unexpected values, in this rising market, which will attract his immediate attention. Honesty is a homely virtue. As an element of fashion, its appeal is a minor one. The most honest tailor in the world might make a suit of clothes which, as a fit or an example of smartness, would be a shocking failure.

Honesty is not more unusual in the clothing business than in any other business—because it is the best policy. But there has been something beyond the basic integrity of our merchandise, to bring the Weber and Heilbroner business a prominence beyond its years.

That added force has been that these clothes were specially designed to fit metropolitan tastes and metropolitan moods, with a cleverness of cut and skill in the making new in ready-to-wear clothes. That cleverness is more manifest this Spring than ever before.

The choice weaves and patterns were growing harder to secure—and would grow more difficult still. That the prices of wool and woolens would keep on going up, higher and higher was apparent. We anticipated in every direction. We made our purchases before prices reached anything like their present level—and bought more liberally than ever. Today the demands of the Government are keeping the woolen mills busy day and night. As high as woolens appear to be now, if the war storm continues they will be infinitely higher.

We are giving our clients the benefit of our anticipation of the market. Where we secured an advantage in the woolens, you secure it in the clothes—in many instances at prices much more reasonable than conditions warrant.

Comparisons we have always courted. It has been by the contrasts which they afford that this business has forged ahead from one store to eleven. But this Spring and Summer comparisons mean even more to us. We are so conscious of the result of the efforts we have made to present the very limit in value that we want you fully to understand it.

The Weber and Heilbroner Spring and Summer Suit fabrics—all wool—merge appropriately in color and weave with the models into which they are cut. There are cheery light tweeds and mixtures accurately meeting metropolitan and suburban requirements, and unfinished-worsteds and fine flannels of subdued tones equally sharing favor with men of perfect taste.

The models, from the dignified, youthful cutaway to our "Urban and Suburban" business-and-golf suit, reflect as always the current style thought of the best stylists among the leading tailors of this city, reproduced in minute detail.

There is a topcoat, or Spring overcoat, for every purpose, from "The Splasher," the new Weber and Heilbroner topcoat for shower or shine, to imported motor and country club coats, built for us by Burberry and other leading London coat makers.

INCOME TAXES HERE PUT AT $900,000,000

Returns by Mail Greatly Increase First Estimates Made by Collectors.

MANY GET TIME EXTENSION

German, Loyal to the United States, Sends Check for Double His Tax.

Thousands of income tax returns, many with checks, mailed late on Monday, reached the New York internal revenue offices yesterday morning. Collector Edwards's office, in the Custom House, took twenty-five extra clerks to sort the morning's mail, while a similar condition existed in the Third, or Upper Manhattan, District, of which Mark Eisner is Collector. The Brooklyn and Bronx offices also received big bundles of returns from the Post Office.

At Collector Eisner's office several hundred people called with belated returns, which, however, were received subject to penalty. With receipt of thousands of returns by mail yesterday, revenue officials here were convinced that the estimate of $800,000,000 as New York City's quota of the income and excess profits taxes was not only conservative, but might, when all payments were in next June, reach $900,000,000.

The big tax certain to be collected here was tentatively estimated by districts as follows: First, (Brooklyn,) $100,000,000; Second, or Wall Street, $600,000,000, and Third, (Upper Manhattan,) $100,000,000. The Bronx office, which is a branch of the Fourteenth District, with headquarters in Albany, was unable yesterday to say how much money would be available to the Government on the face of the income tax returns. There were indications that the collections in the Upper Manhattan District would run far ahead of the $100,000,000 estimated Monday night, and, taken in connection with the Federal taxes to be paid in the Bronx, jump the city's total collections to around $900,000,000.

Collector Edwards, at the Office of the Second District, in the Custom House, made the statement that his estimate of the individual returns up to date were in excess of 100,000; that more than 13,000 corporations filed returns on Form 1,031, and more than 7,000 filed excess profits returns on Form 1,103. The Collector also said that there were nearly 5,000 excess profits partnership returns and 1,200 nonresident alien returns, making a total of 127,000 returns.

Many taxpayers, big and little, who had been granted an extension of thirty days from April 1 within which to file their returns, called at the two Manhattan revenue offices yesterday and protested against the order issued by Commissioner Roper directing Collectors to grant extensions only (except in the cases of sick or absent persons) upon condition that taxpayers so favored pay their taxes when filing their returns. If the order stands, all persons to whom extensions were granted will be under the necessity of paying their taxes on or before May 1.

Collector Edwards went over twenty income tax blanks filed with him by corporations and partnerships the tax on which totaled $25,000,000. As to the amount of money which had been taken in in the Second District, the Collector could make no statement pending the sending of the figures to Washington, where it was understood Commissioner Roper would make public total returns from the entire country.

Collector Edwards gave out a copy of a letter received from a German, who sent with his return a check for just double the amount necessary. The letter, in part, read:

"I inclose my income tax return. While the amount of this tax is computed at $45.20, I am inclosing a check for double the amount. I do this in a spirit of penance, because I feel that every German or person of German extraction who lives in this country should be at least thankful that he has escaped the evils of militarism with which Germany, or at least the rulers of Germany, have become obsessed.

"I also wish to state frankly that I have always been and even now am conscientiously opposed to all war, but although it has taken me a long time I have finally reached the conclusion that there is no alternative but to support this country with all our strength if civilization is not to perish, and I feel this more particularly and especially because I am convinced that if any good is to come out of all this waste and destruction it will only be through the efforts and leadership of President Wilson. I hope from the bottom of my heart that Mr. Wilson will still be our President when this war is terminated."

CLEMENCEAU AT FRONT, SHELLED BY GERMANS

Premier Returns to Paris Enthusiastic Over the Prospects of Allied Success.

PARIS, April 2.—Premier Clemenceau, while making his daily visit to the front yesterday, ventured so near the first line that his automobile was shelled vigorously by the German artillery. All the windows were broken, but M. Clemenceau was not hurt.

The Premier returned to Paris enthusiastic and full of confidence in the favorable issue of the present great battle.

Congress Discusses Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Adjournment plans were discussed in the House today. Democratic Leader Kitchin predicted that, unless something unforeseen developed, Congress would adjourn between July 1 and July 15. Many members, however, do not believe an early adjournment probable.

sponsible for the work or building ships. They are needed badly, and the American people want ships, not excuses."

May Seize Some Yards.

There is no direct assertion in the message that shipyards which do not give acceptable reasons for delays will be taken over by the Government, but there has been agitation for the adoption of such drastic measures in the past, and Government officials are not in a mood to adopt half-way measures now.

It is believed, however, that as a result of the action taken today a definite knowledge of conditions will be obtained, so that responsibility may be placed where it belongs, either with employer, labor, or Government agencies. The fact that the deliveries fell below the minimum in March is taken as sufficient ground for the belief that in many of the yards work has not been proceeding under full pressure.

Following the wage adjustments and the settlement of other disputes between employers and workmen through the Labor Adjustment Board, it was hoped that there would be a general speeding up on a scale that would show immediate and very material results despite delays in shipments due to transportation difficulties. This has not proved to be the case, although there is evidence that some of the shipyards are showing a vast improvement. The Shipping Board is anxious and willing to give full credit where credit is deserved, but is not prepared to accept a situation quietly if it is shown that there has not been the fullest co-operation and the greatest extension of the effort in every direction in view of the crisis faced by the nation.

That was the attitude assumed today in sending out the message. It is felt that as a result of the action today it will be possible to place the situation before the nation in such a manner that all may judge whether the utmost energy is being used behind the shipping program.

Demand Three Shifts of Men.

The Shipping Board and other Government agencies which have supplied large sums of money for the program in order to meet wage increases and in other ways to facilitate the work have been making a consistent campaign to put two and three shifts of men on work in yards where this is practicable and to induce labor organizations to cast aside all restrictions which might hinder the maximum of construction. It is felt now that much can be accomplished in this direction if employers and employees are brought to a realization of the tremendous responsibility confronting all interests involved in ship construction.

Steps are being taken in other directions to facilitate the delivery of necessary materials to the shipyards by overcoming transportation difficulties and seeing to it that steel mills and other industries furnish supplies in a constant stream to the ship plants.

The matter has been taken up at conferences here, and the War Industries Board, of which Bernard M. Baruch is Chairman, is working out a plan to establish the necessary priority of delivery.

The belief was expressed today that by complete co-operation of all interests the estimate for April could be more than accomplished.

30 JAPANESE SHIPS SOON TO BE IN ATLANTIC

United States Charters 250,000 Tons in Addition to Vessels Previously Negotiated For,

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—More than 250,000 tons of shipping constructed in Japan, of which thirty vessels averaging 5,000 tons each will fly the Japanese flag, soon will be in the transatlantic service carrying troops, food, and munitions to France.

In addition to this tonnage, the United States Government has arranged for a new construction in Japan, which will aggregate another 200,000 tons.

All of the vessels, as rapidly as they can be made available, will be armed with guns and provided with gun crews, and all the latest devices to fight the German submarines will be installed on them.

Official announcement already has been made by the War Trade Board of the sale to the United States of 100,000 tons of these vessels, the delivery of which will begin in May and will be completed by September. The Government has also made formal announcement concerning negotiations to obtain the 200,000 tons of new construction.

The additional 150,000 tons making up the total of 450,000 tons are to be chartered by the United States, but will remain in the possession of Japan. The thirty vessels are now afloat, and it is understood that they can be placed in the Atlantic soon enough to be of great value in supplying the fighting forces of Europe this Summer.

Information concerning the agreement affecting the 150,000 tons which will be obtained by charter has come in unofficial press dispatches from Tokio. While Government departments here have made no formal announcement about these ships, the news contained in the dispatches concerning the negotiations and the agreement has not been denied.

In connection with the negotiations for the use of all of the tonnage involved in the transatlantic trade, the United States has agreed to furnish Japan with steel plates so that Japan's building program will not be interrupted. The first shipment of steel plates will total 100,000 tons, sufficient for the construction of 300,000 tons of shipping.

TOKIO, Wednesday, March 27. (by The Associated Press.)—The amount of tonnage to be turned over to the United States by Japan under the arrangement made by the Japanese Shipping Commission is estimated by the press at about 250,000. Of this, 150,000 tons will be provided by the Government, and the remainder by shipbuilders in exchange for American steel. An official announcement probably will be made soon.

EXEMPTS DUTCH SHIPS BOUND FOR AMERICA

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The American Government has decided that Dutch ships en route to the United States from Holland at the time the Dutch shipping in American ports was requisitioned shall not be taken over on arrival here.

The War Trade Board announced tonight that inasmuch as the requisitioning had been done, according to President Wilson's proclamation, to restore the ships laid up in American harbors to their normal activity, it was not intended to take the use of those which were in service from Holland when the proclamation was issued.

The American Government is expected soon to reply to Holland's formal protest against the requisitioning, which was presented to the State Department today by the Netherlands Minister, August Philipp. It is expected that the reply will go more fully into the legal phase of the question and will cite additional reasons why this action was justifiable. Assurance has been given to the Minister that grain will be provided to load two ships which the Netherlands Government has arranged to send to this country for needed foodstuffs.

MAY CALL 1,500,0000 IN A NEW DRAFT

French veterans for use in the principal operations. The heavy flow of troops to France has been in progress for several weeks, and arrangements have now been made for accelerating the movement of those ready for departure.

Camps for the New Men.

This accelerated movement will open increased facilities in the present training camps for use by men to be obtained under the new draft, and it is now understood to be the plan to place men of the second draft in the training camps as rapidly as the latter can accommodate them. The schedules called for sending about 66,000 men into the training camps during April. This may be increased to 100,000 men. It is not the purpose to call out the entire second quota at once, but to feed large portions of this quota into the camps as fast as they can be taken care of.

This suggestion has been made that additional training camp facilities might be obtained by moving some of the green men to British training camps vacated by men sent to France, but there has been no official intimation that this suggestion is considered acceptable or feasible at this time. The movement of men to France is primarily a matter of tonnage and the number of men in the United States now far enough along in their training is great enough to tax all available transport facilities well along into the Summer months.

Kelly-Springfield

BIG—STURDY—OVERSIZED

CORD TIRES

We found out what Kelly Cords would do before we offered them for sale. The experimenting was all ours. The pleasure is all yours.

We made our tests with 500 Kelly Cords. If there was a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Tires, it would have interfered. We subjected those tires to the most inhuman treatment we could think of. We drove them over heavy, icy, rutty, winter roads, day and night, on cars weighted up to 5200 pounds, until we wore them out. We then averaged up the odometers and got over 12,000 miles for the 500 tires. You are not buying a new untried tire when you buy Kelly Cords. You are getting a seasoned veteran. They add new luster to the name "Kelly-Springfield."

Two treads—grooved and non-skid.

ENLISTING IN AIR SERVICE IS HALTED

Alan R. Hawley of Aero Club Calls It to Attention of the President.

CAUSED BY LACK OF FUNDS

Department of Aeronautics. He Suggests, as One Remedy for the Existing Situation.

In a letter sent to President Wilson yesterday Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America, called the President's attention to the fact that the Signal Corps is refusing further enlistments for the air service, and urged that steps be taken immediately to correct past mistakes. Mr. Hawley wrote:

"A number of men who had applied for admission in the air service of the army have advised the Aero Club of America that they have been notified by the Signal Corps authorities that no further enlistments are being accepted at this time. Secretary Baker's report, published recently, stated there were less than 4,000 aviators under training, yet it will take 20,000 aviators to keep 5,000 aviators on the fighting front continuously for one year. In answer to our inquiries we were advised that no further enlistments are accepted because there is a lack of training fields and of aeronautic equipment, and that these cannot be provided because there are no funds available for the extension of the air service.

"We submit, Mr. President, that this is a condition which threatens the cause of the Allies more seriously than anything else. The Allies must be able to count on not less than 23,000 American aviators. The percentage of replacements needed in the air service has increased greatly in the last six months, and will further increase in the coming year, because there is much more aerial fighting, attacking troops from the air, bombing at low altitudes, and night raiding.

"This condition today is analogous to the condition which existed last October in the American aircraft situation, when the work of developing additional sources of supplies for aircraft and motors practically stopped, notwithstanding the fact that the Italian reverses and the Russian collapse demanded imperatively that our program be tripled in size. The Aero Club of America officials urged and pleaded for prompt consideration of this new condition at the time, and pointed out that it was absolutely necessary to immediately give two billion dollars additional appropriations for extending the aircraft program. That was six months ago, when prompt action would have prevented the confusion and mistakes which were subsequently made.

"The main cause of the present deplorable condition of our aircraft program was that the authorities in charge tried to make 20,000 airplanes do the work of 5,000. The original program did not take into consideration that it takes an average of two airplanes to give an aviator the one hundred hours of preliminary and advanced training needed to make him fit for the present-day highly specialized work of a military aviator. Nor did it take into consideration that it takes close to 100 per cent. replacements per month in airplanes and motors to keep aviators equipped for fighting. Nor did it take into consideration that it takes 40 per cent. replacements in aviators per month to keep up the fighting personnel of aero squadrons. The number of airplanes under construction today is not sufficient to even give the preliminary and advanced training to the number of aviators the United States must supply within the coming twelve months.

"Lacking funds necessary to place additional orders, the authorities changed the orders which they had placed, so as to meet the requests from France and from the different allies for different types of machines. This caused the setbacks which have resulted in the aircraft program—which is still the same program made at the time when Italy was victorious and Russia was still fighting—being behind by several months.

"We agree with the members of Congress who advise us that those in charge of the present aircraft program have failed to make good and that it is hardly possible to expect better from the same organization if conducted by the same authorities on the present plan of action. We have followed the aircraft program step by step, and are familiar with the inside problems that have caused the delays. These delays are numerous, but the main ones are:

(1) Lack of concentrated responsibility, authority, and control in the management of aerial matters.

(2) Lack of sufficient appropriations to extend the aircraft program to meet the military needs of the Allies.

(3) Lack of touch between the authorities dealing with the strategic side of the war and the authorities having charge of the supplying of aircraft and aviators needed to build American and allied air forces.

(4) The lack of a Government department having the authority and organization necessary to deal with all aircraft matters and prevent delays due to division of responsibility, bureaucratic jealousies and official squabbles over matters of departmental jurisdiction, duplication of efforts, &c. The present Aircraft Board is only an advisory board and has no power to act or to get the necessary organization to extend or carry out an extended aircraft program.

"To correct the situation, two successive steps must be taken, as follows:

(1) The immediate appointment of an Assistant Secretary of War and an Assistant Secretary of the Navy to represent the army and navy, respectively, in the Aircraft Board. This is to solve the immediate problems while the second step is being taken.

(2) The creation of a Department of Aeronautics, based on the British plan, which places the air services under a separate Department of Aeronautics, the head of which is independent of, although co-operating closely with, the War and Navy Departments.

"The British Government went through every one of the troubles we have gone through in connection with our air service. The official reports of the investigation of the British Air Service in 1916 show that there were scandals and charges, countercharges and confusion, just as we have in the United States today. After three years of trying different plans, the military and naval authorities and other branches of the British Government came to the conclusion that the only solution was a separate Department of Aeronautics, with an Air Minister at the head, whose functions are identical with the duties of the War Minister and the First Lord of the Admiralty."

ALDERMEN TAKE UP FOOD WASTE BILL

Measure Suggested by Broadway Association Provides Fine for Violators.

COLORADO BEANS COMING

Grain Corporation Expects to Sell 1,000 Carloads at 10 Cents a Pound or Less.

An ordinance calculated to stop waste of foodstuffs by making it punishable by a fine of not more than $50 was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen. President Smith urged the adoption of the ordinance, and although the majority of the members seemed to favor it, the measure was referred to a special committee for further consideration.

"A short time ago a committee from the Broadway Association, consisting of Jefferson De Mott Thompson, Leon Weinstock, and August Janssen, brought to my attention a condition of waste of foodstuffs that Mr. Janssen claimed came under his personal supervision in the course of a tour of inspection through certain sections of the city," Mr. Smith said. "Wilful waste at any time is sinful, and at a time like this it is criminal. President Wilson, calling upon the country to organize for war, among other things said that America now had an opportunity to remedy her unpardonable fault of waste in foodstuffs of all kinds.

"The purpose of the ordinance is to fix, if it be possible, the responsibility for the waste spoken of in the letter signed by August Janssen, Chairman of the Food Conservation Committee of the Broadway Association."

The Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration requested the Federal Food Board yesterday to assist in the distribution and sale of 1,000 carloads of "pinto" beans which are being brought East from Colorado to relieve the scarcity of white beans in this part of the country. The shortage of white beans has put the price of that product up 18 and 20 cents a pound. The pinto beans will probably be sold at 10 cents a pound or less.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams yesterday concluded his hearing of the cases of the big egg dealers, Swift & Co., who are charged with having assisted in the distribution and sale of 150,000 dozen eggs last January at a price far above the prices allowed by the regulations. C. H. Zinn & Co., brokers in eggs and poultry, were defendants to the same complaint. The evidence showed the C. H. Zinn & Co., acting as brokers for Swift & Co., procured the eggs in question at 48½ cents a dozen from a Western shipper, Elmer Wood, when the price fixed for those eggs by the Food Administrator was 43 cents plus 5 per cent. profit, or 45.15 cents a dozen.

Mr. Williams would not make his decision public yesterday, but declared that he would send certain recommendations to Food Administrator Hoover within the next two days.

Delehanty-McIntyre Case Near End.

Through the signing yesterday by attorneys in the suit brought by James A. Delehanty to oust Judge John F. McIntyre from his seat in General Sessions of a stipulation as to what the testimony of 4,700 election officers yet to be called before Supreme Court Justice Lawyer and a jury would be, it is expected that the case will be closed this week. In the last two weeks the court and jury have heard the testimony of 800 election officers. The recount has already shown the election of ex-Judge Delehanty over Judge McIntyre.

Bran Bread

BRAN BREAD is both healthful and delicious. Healthful because it is the ideal food laxative,—delicious because of the nutlike flavor which only a true health bran can produce. Try Bran Bread made according to the special Pillsbury recipe printed on the package and you will then know what to enjoy on "wheat saving days"—and other days.

Pillsbury's Health Bran

THE coarse, clean, sterilized flakes of this famous product supply the right amount of roughage to prevent the food from massing in the stomach and bowels—thus producing the desired laxative effect without drug taking. Every member of your household will enjoy this bran bread and feel better for eating it.

DENIES RAILROADS HAVE FALLEN DOWN

Wonders Accomplished, A. H. Smith Says, in Spite of Lack of Capital.

MORE TERMINALS NEEDED

Tells Rotary Club That Although Revenue Increased Investors Received $120,000,000 Less.

The operating revenue of the railroads of the United States last year were greater by $415,716,868 than in 1916, but their expenses increased during the same period by $476,463,134, while taxes increased by more than $60,000,000, according to Regional Director Alfred H. Smith of the Eastern Railroads, who spoke last night at the Rotary Club in the Hotel McAlpin.

"In other words," Mr. Smith said, "the increased service which the railroads gave, according to the tabulation of earnings and expenses of all American railroads which has just been completed, produced an increase of more than $400,000,000 in operating income in 1917, without increase in rates, but at the same time the investors who own the railroads received $120,000,000 less in 1917 than they had in the year before.

"That is for the whole country. The Eastern railroads were hit much the hardest, their income, in spite of vastly increased service, showing a decrease of 19.4 per cent. Any business man who faced such a showing at the end of his busiest year would consider it pretty serious, and as lending little encouragement to growth.

"Passenger transportation last year amounted to 35,000,000,000 passenger miles—equivalent to 350 miles per year for every inhabitant—or equal to an annual trip from New York to Rochester, or to Portland, Me., or to Baltimore, and return, for each individual. The unit of freight service is hauling a ton a mile. The average per ton-mile charge of American railroads is about 7 mills, the lowest on record and lowest in the world. That means carrying a ton over four miles for a three-cent postage stamp. Gauged by the dollar-of-pay measure, our railroads give four times as much as those of Germany. They pay higher wages, give better service and more of it—by every standard of comparison."

Mr. Smith said that the most serious drawback to the railroads in their effort to handle the unprecedented traffic of the present time was a shortage of terminal facilities, which railroad men foresaw ten years ago, but were unable to prevent because of the decreased earnings and investing power of railroads during that period. He said:

"The railroads were the pioneer advocates of 'preparedness' in their own field. Following the business boom of 1907 the late James J. Hill told the public that their railroads required an investment of $1,000,000,000 a year for at least five years, if they were to keep pace with the country's needs. He emphasized that the most vital need was bigger terminals. Every railroad since then has been trying to convince the public of this need. It has now become plain to all that the railroads are no bigger, than their terminal capacity—their unloading facilities."

Mr. Smith denied the oft-repeated statements that the railroads had fallen down last year. Considering badly disturbed labor conditions, diminished net earnings, and the state of the railroad plant due to the lack of money for investment, he held that the railroads had performed wonders in 1917. He said:

"The increased freight service was upward of 15 per cent. greater than the preceding year, due to intensified efforts by the railroad army and some measure of better co-operation. Instead of breaking down the railroads have distinctly 'speeded up.' They have increased their average loads, both carloads and trainloads, and have increased their mileage of equipment and at every point have exerted themselves successfully in rendering more service to meet the tremendous demands precipitated by the war.

"This year began badly, because the railroads were staggered by the terrific weather of the first two months of the year, but with better weather, the railroads have shown that the improvement is continuous.

"During the twenty days of the past month in the Eastern district, 2,715,198 cars were loaded and received from connections, an increase of 50,000 carloads in this short period over the record of the previous year."

The total of "cars above normal," which means cars standing still on sidetracks because the entire facilities of the railroads are engaged in moving other freight, was 44,000 yesterday, Mr. Smith said, as against 161,000 cars on Feb. 6, when the "peak" of congestion was reached. He said:

"The congestion against which the railroads struggled is being steadily reduced, despite exceedingly heavy freight movement, particularly of food products for export to our army and allies. There are still large quantities of freight accumulated at North Atlantic ports, though less than three months ago, and special measures are being taken to dispose of this.

"The Government drafted the railroad companies, as it drafted its men, and they are expected to give first devotion and maximum service to the nation throughout the crisis. The different companies, large and small, have temporarily merged their identities, and as the troops in service are merely known by numbers and regiments, so the railroads during the war are being commanded and operated as one great army. The organization of the war-time operation has brought tasks and problems similar to those of mustering our great military units and hastily changing from the ways of peace."

man, non-partisan candidate. The rest of the Socialist city ticket at that time was in doubt.

SOCIALISTS BEATEN IN CHICAGO ELECTION

Loyalty Issue Wins in Aldermanic Contest—Rainey Elected to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The Aldermanic election in this city was fought on the issue exclusively of loyalty. The loyalists won. Every Socialist candidate was defeated.

In the thirty-five wards of Chicago in each of which one Alderman was elected today, there was a Socialist candidate in all save two. They went down to defeat. Eight thousand fewer men and women combined voted the Socialist ticket today than in the last judicial election when men alone voted.

Alderman Rodriguez, Socialist, from the Fifteenth Ward, was defeated by Oscar H. Olson, Republican, not withstanding the fact that the Socialist had the indorsement of the Municipal Voters' League. The defeat of Rodriguez leaves the Socialist representation in the City Council at two members. The Council now stands: Democrats, 43; Republicans, 22; Socialists, 2, and Independent, 1.

John W. Rainey, Democrat, was elected to Congress for the Fourth District vacancy. He won by a clear majority of 5,637 votes over his two opponents, Kasimir P. Gugis, Socialist, who got 0. W. Christopher, Republican, who received 4,310 votes, and Kasimir P. Gugis, Socialist, who got 2,361 votes.

Bloomington voted dry by a majority of 2,138 votes.

Women kept Moline in the dry column Moline adjoins Rock Island, where the Federal Government has been waging a war against the presence of saloons near the arsenal.

Veters of Rock Island have cleaned the city in response to the demands of the Federal Government, and voted out forty-one saloons by a majority of 800 votes. Fulton Township also voted dry.

HARTFORD DEMOCRATS ELECT ENTIRE TICKET

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, April 2.—By about the same plurality accorded to Woodrow Wilson in 1916, Hartford today vindicated herself of any suspicion of lukewarm loyalty, electing John A. Gleason, a democrat, to the office of Town and City Clerk on the issue of Americanism by a margin of 3,382 votes.

Henry F. Smith, a native of Prussia, who Gleason defeated, and has been in office nearly twenty years, carried down to defeat with him the Republican Mayor, Frank S. Hagarty, against whom not a breath of disloyalty or lack of ardent patriotism has ever been uttered. The Democratic nominee, Richard J. Kinsella, won over Hagarty by about 500 votes.

Mr. Gleason, who has been a political writer on The Hartford Times, had a vote of 7,889 to 4,507 for Smith, who admitted he had contributed toward German war funds, but declared that he had been a loyal American since last April.

Rei Cooper Megrue who invented the "noiseless war play," even as Bully Bottom invented the roarless stage lion, was put to shame last night at the Casino. Lincoln J. Carter, who used to astonish Third Avenue and Fourteenth Street with the melodrama of race-track and railway collisions, emerged from retirement to show a degenerate world the proper way to wage war in the theatre.

Does he hesitate to affright the ladies? Not Lincoln J.! Pistols bark, machine guns rattle, Jack Johnsons roar, and, last but not least in volume of sound, the tire of a Red Cross flivver explodes. That was a property joke in the very best manner of Third Avenue, though a Broadway audience failed to flag it.

The result of so much sound and fury proved even more appalling. Clods of earth were torn up and hurled across the footlights; walls crumbled, filling the auditorium with brick dust. What with the smell of burned saltpeter, the audience had fair need of gas masks. In days to come, no doubt, the coat checking department will be changed to a concession renting them, together with commodious ear muffs.

Patriotism was rampant throughout. Once again the Hun was assaulted with all the resources of the English language. And after the great scene in the trenches Mr. Carter himself emerged before the footlights to carry on the linguistic hate. Except when he disclaimed any desire of gain on the part of his producing manager "my friend Wood," the speech rang true enough. A man whose acquaintance with A. H. Woods is so recent that he does not know how his name goes may well confine himself to patriotic generalities. As regards these Mr. Carter is strong medicine, and the result of his play, and of his entr'acte speeches, may well be of value as propaganda. It takes all sorts to make a world, and a world war.

The scenic effects were no less stirring. In the first act we saw the boys in olive drab march by on Fifth Avenue, with a multitude of Hun-hating visages painted on the backdrop, while another multitude of real flags fluttered from canvas windows. The second act showed a Belgian inn, with American forces somewhat miraculously in occupation of the living room and a spy plot in occupation of the cellar. The third act witnessed an airplane encounter in the clouds, the audience looking downward, upon an earth painted like a war map, through clouds in the similitude of an avenue of doughnuts—at the end of which the warring planes looped the loop on wires.

The last act showed hero and heroine mounting to the tower of a church within the enemy's lines. The murdered boches as they went, without a quiver, and having reached the belfry, the heroine pealed out our national air on the chimes, to the tune of which the American Army, (still miraculously in Belgium,) drove out a platoon of Huns into the wings. If this sort of thing is worth your money, you get your money's worth, while Mr. Carter and Mr. Woods, (alias Wood,) rejoice patriotically.

James L. Crane was the ace. In the first act he was a horrid pacifist, but when he got into his stride he was surely a fighter. Mr. Carter thus appears a keen observer of the psychology of pacifism as demonstrated so often in peace conventions. Sue MacManamy was the spying villainess, and most alluring, as is the way with people like her on the stage. Marion Coakley was the Belgian heroine, and a very charming one.

GALLI-CURCI HAS LARYNGITIS

Rosa Raisa Takes Her Concert Tour —Russian's Recital Here.

Rosa Raisa has halted preparations to sail for South America next Tuesday, owing to a telegraphic inquiry yesterday as to whether she would fill a number of concerts for Amelita Galli-Curci, who is ill in the West. Mme. Galli-Curci, after singing in Chicago last Sunday, became so ill with laryngitis that she went to Minneapolis for treatment, cancelling her concert Monday at Buffalo and others beginning tomorrow with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Lucy Gates will sing these three, and Miss Raisa has been asked to fill several more already sold out for the Italian prima donna's tour at fees which caused the younger artist to cable for a postponement of her season at Buenos Aires.

The Russian soprano, at her first matinee recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday, had two huge American flags over the stage and a patriotic introduction in the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience, directed by W. R. Chapman, with Louis R. Dressler at the organ and Alice M. Shaw at the piano. Miss Raisa, accompanied by Richard Hageman of the Metropolitan, surprised her admirers with a program of many favorite songs and fewer operatic airs than she had given at any appearance since her first New York engagement some months ago with the Chicago Opera Company.

Olive Fremstad and Sophie Braslau were among those who heard, with shining eyes and shouts of approval, the first exhibition of Raisa's great dramatic talent applied to little lyrics of the more intimate sort, Russian songs by Arensky and Rachmaninoff, and many encores in the singer's native tongue. The galleries shouted also for the Hebrew "Eili, Eili," which they did not get. The singer added Burleigh's "Just You" in English and di Nogera's "My Love is a Muleteer" after Weckerlin's old French bergerette, "Jeunes Fillettes," as well as Sibella's "Twilight Dreams" and Buzzi-Peccia's "When I Go Alone."

Miss Raisa has before now proved herself a singer of remarkable natural powers. Her sustained phrasing and wealth of golden tone earned an ovation for the great air, rarely attempted, of the "Casta Diva" from "Norma," which fitted not inaptly among the older pieces such as Pergolesi's "Si Tu m'Ami," and others more familiar from "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Il Trovatore." There was in conclusion a duet from Verdi's early opera, "Louisa Miller," with Giacomo Rimini, who also gave a baritone air from "The Masked Ball."

YVETTE GUILBERT SINGS.

Gives an Entire Program from Rare Poems of Baudelaire.

Yvette Guilbert, closing her season with three recitals at the Maxine Elliott Theatre this week, began at yesterday's matinée with a departure, an entire program from rare poems of Baudelaire, the French translator of Poe, and all but unknown for his own works, which, with musical settings by Maurice Rollinat, were heard on this occasion for the first time in New York.

Readers of Baudelaire are most familiar with his share in a single volume in English, the "Pastels in Prose," from various authors, but less so with his original "Fleurs de Mal" and fantasies such as "Les Nuits" or the "Sensualités Amoureuses" and "La Mort des Amants" sung by Guilbert. The French artist, who spoke in plain English about these poems, conveyed in her singing the touch of mystery in an "Invocation Mystique," of subtlety in "Les Sons et les Parfums." Three final songs were from poems of the composer Rollinat.

REPEAL OF SUFFRAGE SOUGHT BY WOMEN

Antis Start Movement for Resubmission of the Question to the People.

TO RAISE FUND OF $50,000

Old Organization Is Transformed Into a Fighting Campaign Unit.

The deferred annual meeting of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, now in process of transformation into the Women Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the Misses Hewitt, 9 Lexington Avenue, and about 100 women present expressed firm determination to take up the campaign for the resubmission of woman's suffrage to the people of the State. Plans for a detailed political organization down to the minutest units, worked out with the assistance of men experts, were presented as the basis from which the new campaign was to be started, and preparations were made for the raising of a campaign fund which for the present is set at $50,000.

Leaders in past anti-suffrage campaigns, both here and in Massachusetts, talked to the audience and laid down as a primary requisite for success in the future that everybody must work as hard as possible. "Suffrage has won its way to its present place," said Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, "largely because there were women in the suffrage ranks who were willing to sacrifice everything to the advancement of what they believed was right. We disagree with their theories, we abhor their methods, we despise some of their leaders but we cannot help admiring their perseverance.

"May God fill our hearts with righteous indignation and touch our tongues with a divine fire of eloquence so that we may carry the gospel of anti-suffrage, anti-socialism, anti-feminism, anti-demoralization into every corner of the land with such an inspiring trumpet call that a mighty army of believers will rise and follow our flag to victory."

Mrs. Edwin Ford, one of the leaders of the movement in Massachusetts, said: "Suffrage would never have won in New York, even with socialism, if every one of our splendid, consecrated women had done her duty as an anti-suffragist. If we had done this from the beginning, the suffragists would be eating out of our hand by now instead of our eating out of theirs, as we are practically doing in Massachusetts. There is a general feeling that something is threatening us. Get together, American patriots!"

The meeting was held under the Chairmanship of Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild, the incoming President, and the first speaker was the retiring President, Miss Mary G. Kilbreth, who declared: "Woman suffrage in this State can be repealed. It depends only on our conviction, our energy, and our money and how much of the three we are willing to give. We propose to make a political enrollment of the vast mass of women who have not been heard from, who have the normal interests and occupations of women leading busy and industrious home-keeping lives, who have a definite job in life as women and do not wish to enter the political arena. Our work will be war work—straight war work. The morale of the population behind the lines ranks with the troops and munitions at the front. Remember that practically every pacifist is a suffragist."

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild; Vice Presidents, Miss Gertrude L. Hoyt, Mrs. George W. Wickersham, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. William D. Guthrie, and Miss Georgine Iselin; Honorary Vice Presidents, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden; Treasurer, Mrs. Herald de Raasloff; Secretary, Mrs. K. B. Lapham; Executive Committee, Mrs. John A. Church, Mrs. F. S. Wheeler, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Miss Tuckerman, Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, and Miss Anna O'Brien; Chairman Organization Committee, Mrs. Edwin Ford.

Volunteers were called for to serve on the Finance Committee. Two or three women volunteered for subordinate places, but nobody was willing to be Chairman, so it was finally decided to leave this to the appointment of the President.

STRANSKY DECLARES HE STANDS FOR AMERICA

Philharmonic Leader, Refuting Charge He Is Pro-German, Gives Instances of His Loyalty.

Josef Stransky, leader of the Philharmonic Society, made a public statement yesterday in reply to the letter received by a Philharmonic Director at Monday's annual meeting, when it appeared that persons not in that society had sought to oust the conductor from his present place by charging that he was pro-German. Mr. Stransky, in his reply to matters contained in the letter, said:

While I readily admit that during the first part of the war my sympathies were with the German people, I was not in favor of the policies of the German Government. Since America's entrance into the war I decided to take a definite stand with my adopted country, and the following lines will prove, I think, that I have fullheartedly taken that step:

First—As a natural expression of my feelings, I opened the Philharmonic season with the playing of the Star-Spangled Banner without suggestion or instruction from any side, and I have conducted it ever since wherever the Philharmonic Orchestra has appeared.

Second—I came from Bohemia, of Czecho-Slav parents, and it is a known fact that in this present world struggle, Bohemia is fighting for her independence and that she favors the Allies.

Third—My sympathies ever since I came to this country have been outspoken for America. In fact, I have renounced my native country, and taken out my American papers with the intention of becoming an American and staying in America.

Fourth—The letter writer refers to the fact that at a Philharmonic concert Lady Speyer was in my box. Why doesn't he also refer to the fact that Mrs. Jay took luncheon at my home a short time ago, or that the Scottish officer, Seumas, Chief of Clan Shearghuis of Stra-Chur, frequently appeared in my box? I have never spoken to Lady Speyer about politics. Like every one else, I read in the papers that Sir Edgar and Lady Speyer were in favor at the British Court, and that they were asked by King George to retain their title.

Fifth—The late Hugo Reisinger was a personal friend of mine long before I came to America, and I naturally retained my friendship for his family, no member of which has ever appeared to me in any other light than as a good American.

Sixth—It is quite true that I knew Count Bernstorff, but I met him only at the time when he was still persona grata at the White House, and when any number of Americans were meeting him.

Seventh—At the beginning of the last season I donated my services to a Red Cross concert in Brooklyn, and also for the sufferers in Halifax.

Eighth—I was the first one to suggest that orchestras should visit camps, and I conducted two orchestral concerts which were given by the Philharmonic Society at Camp Dix and Camp Upton, where I dined with the officers.

Ninth—I have given contributions to several American war charities. I am a contributing member of the American Red Cross. I have lately sent a contribution to the Junior American Guard. I am a member of the society for the support of needy musicians in France, and following a speech which I made before the Philharmonic Orchestra, every member of the orchestra joined that organization to support our fellow-musicians in France.

Tenth—It was my suggestion before the Philharmonic Board that caused the elimination of compositions of living German composers from Philharmonic programs for the duration of the war.

LLOYD GEORGE
The Prime Minister of England.

"You will do this to aid Humanity."

So spoke David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, clasping the hand of D. W. Griffith, in London, eighteen months ago.

Mr. Griffith was upon the eve of starting for France to film upon the battlefields of Flanders and Picardy his greatest masterpiece, "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," an absorbing drama of love with the war as a background.

"The idea back of your splendid story is a message to Civilization that its fight will not be in vain," continued the Prime Minister. "Let me be the first to predict that when you have completed your labors you will have produced a masterpiece which will carry a message around the world—a story which will inspire every heart with patriotism, with love of country, with the great Cause for which the civilized nations are now fighting in France. This, Mr. Griffith, is the greatest and most wonderful task you have ever attempted. God speed you in your great work and grant that you may accomplish your desires."

D. W. Griffith, already inspired with a wonderful idea, set forth with faith renewed because of Lloyd George's words. He went to France, to the little village of Ham, where, with the assistance of the British and French army officials, he succeeded in creating an artistic masterpiece.

Yet, while "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" was filmed amid the smoke and turmoil of battle, actually within sound of the firing line, it is a great love story of human interest, simply told, screened by the master genius of the camera, and told as only D. W. Griffith can tell a story.

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD" will be shown to the public of New York for the first time FRIDAY NIGHT, April 5th, at 8:15, at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

A private INVITATION PRESENTATION will take place TOMORROW night (Thursday) exclusively for officials of the United States Government, officers of the Army and of the Allies, and prominent citizens. NO TICKETS WHATEVER WILL BE SOLD FOR THIS PRIVATE SHOWING.

Seats are on sale at the box office of the 44th Street Theatre NOW. The prices of seats range from 25 cents to $1.50. There will be daily matinees at 2:15, beginning Saturday, when the best seats will be $1.

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD" establishes a new era in the realm of the screen drama.
